On this Memorial Day area veterans will take part in ceremony at the Oneida Nation Veteran's Memorial honoring 32 Oneida Civil War veterans that were killed in action and never came back to Oneida. They will also honor the family of Bataan Death March survivor Roy House. The Civil War veterans will be honored with pavers at the monument.

Activities will take place around 11 a.m. on Monday, May 27 at the Oneida Veteran's Monument located at the corner of Highway 54 and Pleasant Lane.

Passing On...

LaMotte, Arthur

July 14, 1944 - May 13, 2013

Arthur LaMotte, 68 of Oneida passed away on Monday, May 13, 2013. He was born on July 14, 1944 to the late Michael F. and Eleanor V. (Hill) LaMotte. He was united in marriage to Judith D. LaMotte. Arthur served his country in the United States Air Force, as a Sergeant in the Medical Corps. Arthur was stationed numerous places overseas. He and Judi lived in Arlington Heights, IL. before moving to Oneida. Art received his CNA certification in 1985 from Maple Hill Nursing Home in Illinois. Art loved to laugh and spend time with his family and friends, whether it be playing cards, going to casino, or watching American Idol. Although blind, he was blessed with a good nature and generous spirit, and laughed freely and openly. Art is survived by his siblings, Sharon (Al) Sarnowski, Michael W. (Vicki) LaMotte. Nieces and nephews further survive, Tammy, Sandra, Christina, Joe, Toni, Matt, and great nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his wife Judith, and a nephew Scott.

Friends may call at the RYAN FUNERAL HOME 305 N. Tenth Street in De Pere from 3 – 4pm on Thursday. Oneida Hymn Singers will sing at 3:30pm followed by the service at 4pm, and full military rites to follow.

The family would like to thank St. Vincent Home Health, Oneida Elderly Services, Oneida Veterans Services, Outagamie Co. Office for the Blind and Visually Impaired, and Oneida Health Center. Special thanks to Mike Hill, Virginia Riggs RN, Jean Kenevan, and David Haines from UW Madison Transplant Clinic, and so many more too numerous to thanks.

Remains of Native Americans to be buried in Mich.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) ~ The remains of 11 Native Americans, including two sets that were housed at the University of Nebraska State Museum, will be buried in a Michigan cemetery later this week.

A ceremony will be held Friday for the burial of the remains at the Nibokaan Ancestral Cemetery on the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe reservation, which is near Mount Pleasant.

"It's always an honor and a privilege to take care of our ancestors," Charmaine Shawana, a member of the Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribal Council, told the Morning Sun of Mount Pleasant. "I have been taught these very well may be your own relations."

William Johnson, curator at the Mount Pleasant-based Ziibiwing Center for Anishinabe Culture and Lifeways, told MLive.com the remains in Nebraska were unearthed from a site in the Midland, Mich., area in 1883 and were transferred to the museum.

The remains of the other nine people were discovered during a 2012 Michigan highway project, and have since been kept in Lansing.

Johnson said the repatriation will bring "decency and dignity" to the tribal communities. The Saginaw Chippewa Indian Tribe and the Michigan Anishinaabek Cultural Preservation and Repatriation Alliance have submitted requests to retrieve the remains of over 2,200 individuals nationwide.

"We will continue to support other tribes in their repatriation efforts as well," Johnson said. "The commitment to our relatives will never waiver."

The remains found in 2012 were near Oscoda in Iosco County. The Michigan Department of Transportation's archaeological staff and consultants concluded that the remains were of Native American ancestry, and dated to the 1820s to the 1850s.

A total of 202 funerary objects also were recovered.

"They deserve the respect that any human being when they pass into the spirit world," Shawana said. "They have been disturbed and need to be put back into the womb of our Mother Earth in a proper and respectful way."

Wisconsin Vision-Walk

Sunday • May 19, 2013 @ 10:30AM

Veteran's Park • 1010 N. Lincoln Memorial Drive • Milw., WI 53202

You can help restore sight to millions living in darkness by attending Vision-Walk, either by making a donation, walking or both.

I am walking in support of my 3-year old daughter, Gloria, who has Optic Nerve Hypoplasia. She was diagnosed with this when she was only 8 months old.
Your financial support and walking side by side with Gloria and me on Walk Day will bring us closer to a cure – and that Cure is in Sight!

The 3-mile walk is set for May 19, 2013 at 10:30AM at Veteran's Park, just north of the Milwaukee Art Museum and east of the lagoon, next to the kite rental building.

Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary welcomes wolf pups

Naming contest held for the wolf pups

The eight-week old wolves take a break from play; the wolves will be placed in the sanctuary's wolf habitat sometime in late June or early July depending on their growth.

The Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary in Green Bay has adopted two female Grey Wolves from a sanctuary in Florida. The wolf pups are sisters and are about eight weeks old.

"They have been at the sanctuary for about a week and so far they are making the transition really really well," said Matt Rupnik, Senior Animal Keeper.

For now the pair spends most of the day indoors so that their health and well-being can be closely monitored.

"Eventually, once they are big enough and are cleared by the vet they will start playing outdoors. They have been outdoors a little bit, not a whole lot, because right now we are getting through a critical stage where mom's immunity is wearing off. So we have to monitor them and make sure they are staying healthy," Rupnik said.

The pups were adopted not long after Mowa-sa, a male wolf who had been at the sanctuary for 17 years, died of old age in early April.

The females will eventually move into the existing Wolf Habitat.

"There isn't really a specific age or timeline to when they can be in the Wolf Habitat; right now we are looking at mid-June or July. But we don't have anything concrete; it all depends on their progress. Right now the habitat is being renovated. After having males in there for 17 years it was in need of some reworking," Rupnik laughed.

The Wildlife Sanctuary does have hopes of adding more wolf pups down the road, however wolves being pack animals the right time and situation are critical factors so that any new wolves will be welcomed into the pack.

Until that time the professional staff at the sanctuary is focused on the new younglings.

"Right now we are trying to create that bond that exists between them and us so there is a good working relationship. So for some reason we would need to enter the enclosure they wouldn't be afraid of us. Safe for them and safe for us," Rupnik added.

The Wildlife Sanctuary is also conducting a Naming Contest for the wolves. The contest is open to anyone 14 years of age and under and can be found at http://www.greenbay-pressgazette.com/wolf-pups. The deadline to enter names for the contest is June 15th.

ONABEN to offer free business training

ONABEN – A Native American Business Network is excited to travel to Keshena, Wisconsin to present a small business development workshop at the Menominee Business Center, N 559 Library Rd. on Thursday, June 13 (9pm-4pm) and Friday, June 14 (9am-4pm).

ONABEN will offer a FREE two-day course for small business development. The training workshop will benefit anyone who operates or is considering operating a small business.

This workshop will cover business concepts indispensable for anyone starting up or running a small business. Instructors will also identify and help participants avoid common pitfalls. The training will provide comprehensive information on topics important to aspiring entrepreneurs and small business owners related to business planning, access to capital, basic bookkeeping, human resources, problem solving and marketing a small business.

The event will be presented by ONABEN, RedWind Consulting and the Menominee Business Center, owned and operated by the Menominee Indian Tribe of Wisconsin, and is sponsored by the SBA's Office of Native Affairs. The event is open to the public and there is no cost to attend. All class materials and food will be provided to participants free of charge.

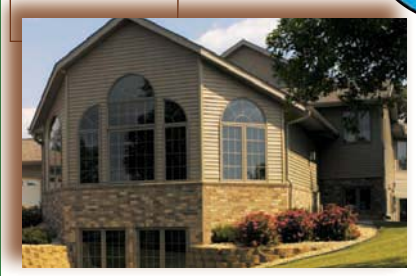
To reserve a space at the workshop, contact Renee Mahkimetas at (715)799-5720. Registration information is needed by June 6th to ensure enough class materials for all participants.

Purple Traps Going Up to Track Emerald Ash Borer

MADISON – If you see a purple box hanging in a tree this summer, just let it be. That's a request from local, state and federal officials overseeing Wisconsin's efforts to deal with the emerald ash borer, or EAB.

The purple boxes are traps set with bait to lure the adult EAB, which then gets caught in a sticky substance coating the trap. The goal is to find new infestations of the ash-killing insect and track its spread in Wisconsin. Workers will be setting them up in most counties of the state over the next several weeks.

"We rely on help from the public to make our trapping programs successful," says Brian Kuhn, director of the Bureau of Plant Industry in the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection. "We set the traps on a scientifically determined grid. Please don't move the boxes, and please allow us on your property to place them. "



Agencies whose employees will be setting the traps are the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection; Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources; and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. In addition, a few local communities will also set up and monitor their own traps.

As many as 1,100 traps may be set. That number may be reduced if some areas scheduled for trapping are inaccessible, weather conditions prevent getting all the traps out, or for other unforeseen reasons.

For information about EAB, visit emeraldashborer.wi.gov.

Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary
4K Nature Based Program

The Green Bay Area Public School District is pleased to offer a new and exciting adventure in learning with the start of a nature based 4K program located at the Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary for the 2013-2014 school year. This program will engage children in highly interactive outdoor activities that encourage children to explore the world around them while learning important skills that will prepare them for Kindergarten.

Time to Get Some Dirt on Your Hands!

Taught by a teacher and naturalist, students will get "down and dirty" as they interact with wildlife, plants and other resources to create a developmentally appropriate and meaningful outdoor experience. In this program, children can expect to hike trails, track animals, look for and identify different types of birds, insects and plants, explore ponds and much more. Rain or shine, we will be exploring all that nature has to teach us!

Gear Up!

Nature provides a constantly changing environment that engages all the senses. In order to take full advantage of the nature based activities, a majority of the program lessons will be held outside in most weather conditions which means clothing, coats, boots, etc. will get muddy, wet and dirty. A list of required "nature gear" has been developed so parents can prepare their child for class. The Green Bay Area Public School District can assist with some of the gear if needed.

Help for the Grieving

By Oneida Behavioral Health

There are many people grieving in our Community at this time due to the heartbreak of suicide and unexpected deaths. Sometimes words cannot express the deep hurt that is being experienced and some might not know what to say to comfort a loved one. Remember that being with someone through grief can help you feel less alone on this journey and time together with family and friends can begin the healing process without a lot of words needing to be spoken.

Many books have been written about stages of grief which can bring awareness to the internal emotions that may be hard to describe in words. When one first becomes aware of a death, there can be a sense of shock or denial—during this stage people often feel numb and question whether the death really happened. There can also be a stage of anger when we often ask "why?" and at times may lash out at God or other people while trying to make sense out of a difficult loss.

Underneath the anger is great hurt and sadness that needs to be acknowledged and released in healthy ways which may include (but are not limited to) praying to your Higher Power, participating in a condolence ceremony, talking with a family member/friend/helping professional, creating a memory book, writing a poem/song/letter.

There is no right or wrong way to grieve per say, but there are unhealthy or risky ways of coping such as turning to alcohol or drugs as an attempt to reduce the pain of grief. If you notice a loved one who is abusing more alcohol or drugs in a grief reaction, please encourage him or her to get help from one of the cultural leaders in the Community or from one of the professional helpers in the Community. Early intervention may save another life.

Confusion can also affect a person's decision-making abilities during grief. When there is such an array of emotions to work through, thinking may be cloudy resulting in poor judgment. It is often recommended to put-off making big decisions (such as, to sell a home or to make a big purchase) for a period of time (six months, if possible). Giving yourself time to heal and time to think clearer may help relieve some pressure and help improve your satisfaction with the decision. Ultimately, there will come a time of acceptance, during the grieving process where you will be able to move forward, adjust to new roles, and set new goals for yourself and your family.

Please be gentle with yourself and others in the grieving process. Healing from loss can take years and does not need to be rushed. Grief often comes in waves and sometimes just when you think that you are done crying another wave may hit. A wave of grief may knock you down for a short time which is to be expected. One way to help you get back up again is to join a grief support group available through programs such as "Grief Share" which is sponsored by local churches (Central Church and Pilgrim Lutheran) with meetings on Sunday afternoon or Sunday evening, or join in on "Navigating the Waters of Grief" which is offered through Unity and meets on Tuesdays at 2366 Oak Ridge Circle in De Pere starting May 14th through June 11th from 1:30 – 3::00 p.m. and July 9th through August 6th from 6:00 – 7:30 p.m. There is also a Survivors of Suicide (SOS) support group that meets in Appleton on the second Monday of each month from 6:30 – 8:30 p.m. in the Founders Room at Fox Valley Unitarian Universalist Church.

For more information on these grief support groups, you may call the sponsoring church office or you can search online for more information on these grief support groups and many more. In the Oneida Community, you are welcome to call Oneida Cultural Heritage at 920.490-2096 or Oneida Behavioral Health at 920.490.3790 for additional grief support.

Diabetic Retinopathy and Macular Degeneration

With Early Detection and Proper Treatment, Millions of Americans Can Avoid Blindness

Chicago, IL – During Healthy Vision Month in May, the American Society of Retina Specialists (ASRS) urges adults to schedule an eye examination to check for early signs of diabetic retinopathy or age-related macular degeneration (AMD), the 2 leading causes of new cases of vision loss and blindness among adults.

Diabetic retinopathy is a complication of diabetes that affects more than 4 million Americans and results in the most new cases of blindness in typical working-age adults age 20-74. An estimated 15 million adults also have some form of macular degeneration, which can progress to an advanced stage in more than 100,000 people age 60 and older each year and lead to blindness if not detected and treated promptly.

These diseases can severely damage the retina, the light-sensitive layer of tissue at the back of the eye that provides clear, sharp images. Symptoms include blurred or distorted vision, spots or shadows in the field of vision, difficulty reading or recognizing faces, and vision loss. Often, both diseases go undetected for years until these noticeable changes occur.

No one should take their vision for granted. During a routine examination, an ophthalmologist can see early signs of these and other retinal diseases, long before vision loss begins and, if diagnosed, refer the patient to a retina specialist who can begin a treatment regimen to prolong vision.

Retina specialists are highly trained physicians who specialize in the treatment of diabetic retinopathy, macular degeneration, and other eye conditions and diseases. These physicians treat patients by slowing the progression of AMD, diabetic retinopathy, and other retinal diseases and making living with them very manageable.

Take the first step in preserving vision. Visit www.savingvision.org to learn about these and other retinal diseases and locate a retina specialist.

About ASRS

ASRS is the largest retinal organization in the world, representing more than 2,400 members in the US and more than 55 countries.

Its mission is to provide a collegial open forum for education, to advance the understanding and treatment of vitreoretinal diseases, and to enhance the ability of its members to provide the highest quality of patient care.

Youth Entrepreneur Program

With a grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, and First Nations Development Institute, we are offering a Summer Youth Entrepreneur Program. This program is designed to teach Oneida youth about the origin of natural, healthy foods and promote capacity building by establishing a program where youth harvest, process and market various nutritional food items. Throughout the summer, with supervision, and through a curriculum of study that will be offered in conjunction with the program, the youth will learn business management and financial record keeping skills associated with the purchasing and processing of natural foods, and realization of the profit from sale of their product.

This will be an eight week project and stipends are available.

To qualify for participation in this activity a youth must be between the ages of 15 and 17 years of age and be a member or descendent of the Oneida Tribe.

Applications for participation can be picked-up at the Main Reception window at the Center for Self-Sufficiency in the Social Services Building located at 2640 West Point Road.

Priority deadline for receipt of applications for participation in this activity is May 31, 2013. Applicants whose applications are received after the above stated date will be placed on a waiting list for future participation.

Applications must be returned to Jeff Metoxen at the Tsyunhéhkwʌ Farm.

NWTC Tech Camps to start June 10

Camps provide hands-on fun for middle school students; career exploration

(GREEN BAY, WI) Northeast Wisconsin Technical College is set to kick off its annual summer camp for students entering grades 5-8. Tech Camp gives young students the chance to "try out" careers like architecture, web design, solar energy, jewelry making and more through fun, hands-on education. The camps take place June 10 through August 16.

The purpose of Tech Camp is to enhance middle school students' awareness and understanding of career choices available in the today's job market. Each camp focuses on their importance of education, and the skills employers are looking for in the current and future workforce.

The 26 different camps will take place at locations across Northeast Wisconsin: Green Bay, Shawano, Washington Island, Sturgeon Bay, Oconto Falls, Luxemburg, Florence, Algoma, Marinette, Crivitz, Wausaukee and Fish Creek.

Haskell Univ. president leaving

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) ~ The president of Haskell Indian Nations University plans to resign soon to take another position in Oklahoma.

The Lawrence Journal World reports that Chris Redman made the announcement Tuesday in a message to students, faculty and staff. In the memo, Redman said he'd be moving closer to his family after being offered a new position.

Redman wrote that the "choice was difficult." But he added that he's been given a "great opportunity to continue to serve Indian Country in a new capacity."

The note included no additional details about Redman's new job.

Haskell spokesman Stephen Prue says Redman and other officials wouldn't comment beyond the memo, out of a desire not to draw attention away from Friday's commencement ceremonies. Redman says more information will be released after commencement.

2013 Artstreet Image Design needed

GREEN BAY, WIS. - The Artstreet design committee is looking for an official design for the 2013 fine arts festival. The event will be held Friday through Sunday, August 23, 24, and 25. A cash prize of $300 will be awarded to the artist whose design is chosen.

Artstreet is produced by Mosaic Arts Inc., a nonprofit organization dedicated to supporting and promoting the arts. The goal of Mosaic Arts is to represent all creative individuals and enhance their presence in the community.

Artistic designs which convey the essence of Mosaic Arts, Inc. and the Artstreet event are welcome. The look of the design should be bold, original, fresh, creative, imaginative, unique, fanciful, eye catching, different and novel. The winning image will be displayed on t-shirts, posters, and other promotional items for Artstreet 2013.

Anyone interested in submitting a design may receive more details and an entry form by contacting Mosaic Arts, Inc. at (920) 435-5220 or info@mosaicartsinc.org. All entries must be received by Mosaic Arts Inc. by no later than Friday May 31, 2013.

Talents of Our Community Care Givers Revealed

Submitted photos

Members of the Community Health Nursing Department team recently volunteered their time and unique talent to share their creative treasures for this year's Share the Care American Indian Cancer Conference held at the Radisson in Green Bay. These self-designed items were donated for raffled during the event. The department is also proud of our CHR's; Vicki Johnson, Peggy Bork and Neva Archiquette who were key members of the 2013 Conference planning committee.

A Housing Tenant's Story

Lianne Dennis and her young daughter left an abusive relationship. She applied for Oneida housing while still living in California. She came to Oneida and lived with a cousin for a year. She was accepted into a brand new unit in August 2011.

Lianne had promised her daughter a puppy when they got their own place. Her daughter was very upset to learn that they were not allowed to have pets in the unit they were assigned to. However, when they were taken to the new unit, the Housing Specialist gave her daughter the key and asked her to take a look at her new home. Her daughter was so thrilled with her new home that she completely forgot about the puppy. She loved her new home and was allowed to choose her own room.

Lianne has some physical disabilities and Oneida has been great assisting her with lawn care. She does not have a vehicle, so is appreciative of Oneida Transit services and the trails that are in the vicinity of her home so that she and her daughter can get out and enjoy the outdoors. Housing staff supported her through the court process. She did not ask for help, but was offered services.

Lianne is very proud of her daughter's progress in school. She attends Rockledge School in Seymour. She won an award through Partnership Through Education and was awarded $1,000 for college.

Lianne has experienced prompt service when requesting home repairs and receives snow-plowing services due to her disability. She encourages any tenant who is having problems to bring their concerns to the attention of Housing staff.

Oneida Post Office Stamps Out Hunger

Oneida Letter Carriers collect 500 pounds of food from community

ONEIDA, WI – Letter carriers for the Oneida Post Office along with postal employees and local volunteers teamed up once again to stamp out hunger in the community.

Across the country, the National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) Food Drive – held in cooperation with the Postal Service – resulted in millions of pounds of non-perishable food collected and distributed to deserving charities nationwide.

Closer to home, the four Oneida carriers collected 500 pounds of food from generous donations left at mailboxes, which were then delivered to local community food pantries.

"For 21 years our letter carriers, volunteers and neighbors have come together for this important community event," said Oneida Postmaster Cheryl Koenig. "This clearly shows the generosity of our customers and the commitment of our employees to make a difference in people's lives."

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, more than 50 million Americans are food insecure, meaning they live at risk of hunger. Perhaps most alarming is the fact that nearly 17 million children in America are struggling with hunger. Stamp Out Hunger — the nation's largest one-day food drive — collects non-perishable food to help more than 37 million people, who face hunger every day in America.

Partners for this year's drive were the Campbell Soup Company, Feeding America, United Way, AFL-CIO, Valpak, AARP, Uncle Bob's Self Storage, and the National Rural Letter Carriers' Association.

The Postal Service receives no tax dollars for operating expenses and relies on the sale of postage, products and services to fund its operations.

Take 25 minutes for safety

Kali photos/Travis Cottrell

The Take 25 event was hosted by the Oneida Police Department. Take 25 is an initiative designed to take 25 minutes a day to discuss safety with children. The event featured firetrucks, police cars and motorcycles, an ambulance, a firehouse, and the Safe Assured ID program. Top: Children find their way out of the firehouse which simulates a fire and requires children to use proper technique to exit the structure. Right: Everett Danforth hangs on to the back of a fire truck.

As Oneida people our original instructions given to us by the creator are to always take care of our Mother Earth and walk respectfully among creation. According to the Recycling and Solid Waste Disposal Law, No dumping or burning of solid waste is allowed on the reservation. Those caught violating this law could be assessed a fine as high as $2000. Sometimes the Division of Land Management monitors sites with hidden cameras and reports violators to the Oneida Police Department.

Other disposal options exist on or near the reservation:

Students use their skills for Habitat for Humanity

Oneida students (left to right) DJ Denny, Marquita Hill, and Jamison Skenandore are currently studying Carpentry at NWTC. On Wednesday, May 8th they helped frame a home on Green Bay's east side along with Habitat for Humanity. The students also built the walls that were used for the frame during their workshop time. The team builds similar structures on a smaller scale during classes, however with Habitat for Humanity they get valueable on the job experience while helping families in need.

Several petitions discussed during OBC meeting

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) debated how to enforce audits and assigned dates to seven petitions to be heard at two upcoming General Tribal Council meetings at the Wednesday, May 8 OBC meeting.

Present: Chairman Ed Delgado, Vice Chairman Greg Matson, Treasurer Tina Danforth, Secretary Patty Hoeft, Council members Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, David Jordan

Not Present: Council members Brandon Stevens, Paul Ninham (arrived late).

Jim Skenandore of the Audit Committee asked that procedures be put in place to follow up and audit findings.

"This is my second term, and we're still seeing on paper coming through from the audit team that stuff that hasn't been addressed," said Skenandore. "We need to have something to hold people accountable."

Some suggestions were to enact as whistle blower law, bring the issue to the GTC, and to put more Oneida citizens on the audit committee.

Councilwoman Melinda Danforth suggested that the Legislative Operating Committee (LOC) has been drafting a bill to address this issue for the past 10 years, and that it be brought to the front burner. A motion was passed that the LOC make the legislation a priority.

Four petitions all concerning the Oneida justice system will be heard at a July 8 GTC. In one petition Linda Dallas is asking for an investigation of the Oneida Appeals Commission for unethical actions going back 15 years.

Dallas and co-petitioner Kerry Danforth presented a second petition requesting discretionary transfer authority in Tribal Law Chapters 78 and 79 to allow child support cases originating in Oneida courts to be transferred to a different jurisdiction. Both also put forth a petition asking that the Oneida Appeals Commission to be immediately dissolved.

Finally, Petitioner Danforth asked that the GTC rescind Oneida Child placement, visitation and support paternity laws.

The three remaining petitions will be heard at a July 29 GTC meeting. Petitioner Dallas is asking that Oneida pay real estate taxes for all tribally owned property.

Cathy L. Metoxen will present an petition requiring that all supervisory, management, and entry level jobs be held by enrolled Oneida citizens.

Finally, Dallas asks that for term limits for membership to boards, committees and commissions.

The Human Resources Department (HRD) reported that the percentage of Oneida employees went up from 48% in 2008 to 55% in 2012. There was also discussion over hiring levels overall. Oneida has 2900 employees but financially needs to be at 2500. HRD Area Manager Geraldine Danforth stated there are 381 employees over the age of 60.

"We're not forcing anyone to retire, but they may retire any day now, and are those positions critical and need to be filled?" said Geraldine Danforth. The report was accepted.

Oneida Royalty offers an update

Miss Oneida Rosa Francour

Shekoli,

Hello all, I hope everyone is having a great year! The royalty crew and I have been working hard on many past events and a few upcoming events that we have left this year! Since our last update, we have done some community events, powwows, and local seminars and conferences.

In February, Jr. Miss (Natasha) and I helped our Lil Miss Oneida (Yokalasha) sponsor a smoke dance special at the annual Honor the Youth Powwow at the Radisson. Together, we fundraised and coordinated the smoke dance special and had an amazing time seeing all the youth come out to dance and compete for their community! Later that month, Jr. Miss Oneida and I attended the Green Bay Business Expo at the KI Convention Center. Natasha and I visited and networking with area businesses and also represented at our Oneida Nation booth. We had a great time representing Oneida among all the Green Bay businesses!

In March, I attended the Dancing with the Stars event at the Radisson. I helped represent Oneida as a sponsor of the event. Many local dancers were paired with local celebrities, where they competed for the "Mirror Ball" trophy. Among the local celebrities was the one-of-a-kind Donald Driver from the Green Bay Packers! I had the pleasure to meet him and get a photo, which I thought was awesome since I am a huge Green Bay Packers Fan! Also in March, the ladies and I represented at the National Curling Tournament held at the Cornerstone Sports Complex in Ashwaubenon. The ladies and I helped to welcome all the athletes to our area during the opening ceremony. Also in March, we attended the Green Bay Film Festival held at the Radisson. The girls and I introduced the Native American Films that were playing during the film festival. It was a very fun and educational experience.

Most recently in April, we attended the annual Fishing Ceremony at Pamperin Park. We were proud and honored to attend and help begin our fishing season. We also attended the Food Sovereignty Summit Conference and the Radisson. The Ladies and I helped to welcome many different representatives from other tribal communities to our area. We had a great time, and enjoying some amazing food! We also have a few more things planned this year, so we are very exciting to participate in the remaining events planned.

As this year comes to a close, I am also very excited to be graduating with my Master's degree in May! On May 16th, I will be graduating with my Master's Degree in Tribal Administration and Governance from the University of Minnesota Duluth. I am proud to be among the first cohort group to graduate from this program. The Master's of Tribal Administration and Governance program is the only graduate program of its kind offered in the United States, and I am proud to be Oneida and represent our community during graduation and as a member of the first graduating group! It will be historic, and I can't wait to give back and share all that I have learned with our community! I encourage all of our community to apply for the program and continue with our goals of higher education!

Also as spring approaches, the final months of royalty reign approaches as well. With the change in seasons, comes the beginning of the recruitment for this year's Lil Miss, Jr. Miss, and Miss Oneida pageant. This year, the Lil' Miss Oneida pageant will be combined with the Jr. Miss and Miss Oneida Pageant. The pageant will take place on June 19th, 2013 at 6pm in the Wolf Room at the Radisson. We will host the pageant prep days on June 18th and 19th for Jr. Miss and Miss Oneida contestants. The contestants for Lil Miss will be asked to turn in applications on the 19th and I encourage all of our young Oneida women to enter into the pageant, it is an amazing experience that has positively influenced and impacted my life in so many ways. I know our community has many strong, talented, and smart young women, so if you know anyone, please encourage them to enter our pageant. If you have any daughters, granddaughters, friends, nieces, or anyone young women, please encourage them to apply. When we foster our young Oneida women in programs like these, we can help to begin to support our women as leaders within our community someday! Please contact Rich Figueroa if you have any questions.

I would like to thank everyone who has helped me on my journey and path as Miss Oneida! It has been an amazing experience, and I look forward to continue helping my community and Oneida people!

Yawáko,
Rosa R. Francour

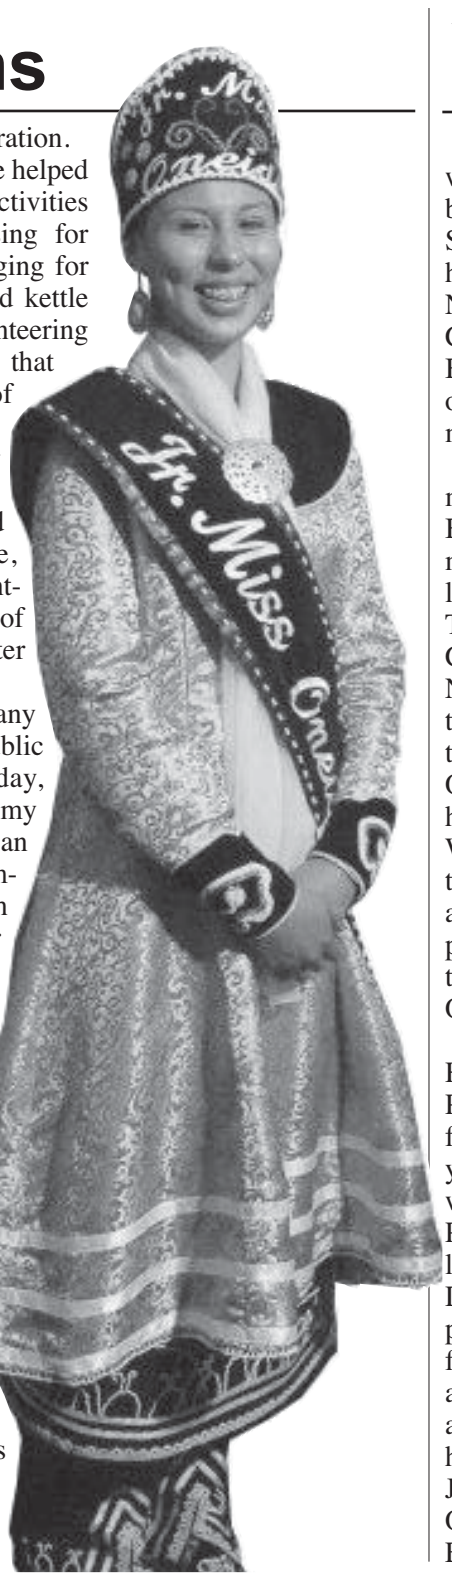
Junior Miss Oneida Natasha Stevens

Sekoli,

My name is Natasha Stevens; I am your Jr. Miss Oneida 2012-2013.

Throughout my reign I have attended a lot of events. Some of the more recent have been the Green Bay Holiday Parade, Honor the Youth powwow, the Anna John Elderly center ribbon cutting, the ribbon cutting for the new Oneida OneStop and Oneida Market, the Oneida Family Fun Fest, the Green Bay Business Expo, along many others. This has been a very busy year for me, Miss, and Lil Miss Oneida.

The events I've attended have been very beneficial to me in many ways. Some of the concepts that I have learned were; listening, learning, helping, and sharing. These are the concepts that I feel will help me in staying on track to becoming a better person and role model for others.



Through attending these events I have listened to and spoken with many knowledgeable people and speakers. One of the most important teachings I have learned was how important it is to be a good role model to all people, especially the younger generation.

I feel that I have helped others by doing activities such as fundraising for diabetes, bell ringing for the Red Cross red kettle event, and volunteering at several events that were in need of extra hands. I have shared our ways through the earth songs and our language, which I am currently in the process of learning to be better at both.

One of my many goals is to be a public speaker one day, another one of my goals is to make an impact in our community through strengthening our Oneida culture and traditions.

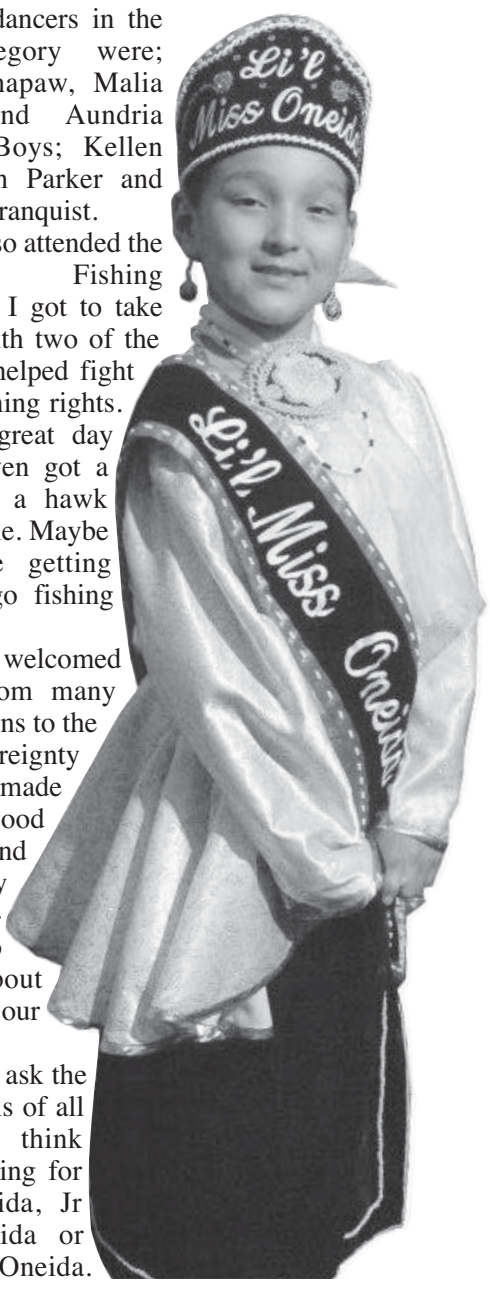
I will continue to work hard representing the Oneida Nation in a good way!

Yawáko
Natasha Stevens

Lil' Miss Oneida Yokalasha Danforth

I have been having fun with the girls. We have been traveling all over. Some of the places we have been are, the National Curling Championships, Green Bay Film Festival, Get out the Vote rally and more.

I also got the chance to meet the President, Barrack Obama. Me and my mom stood in a long line in the cold weather. Thank you to Councilman Paul Ninham for giving us the tickets. We got very close to where President Obama was speaking and he waved right to us. When he came around to the crowd, he hugged me and called me a beautiful princess. I was so happy to be able to represent the Oneida Nation that day.



I also went to the Honor the Youth Powwow. It was a lot of fun and nice to see all the young people dancing. I want to thank to Powwow Committee for letting me have a Smoke Dance Special at the powwow. It made me feel happy. Thank you to all the kids who danced and the people who helped judge the dancers; Jessica House, Jr. Miss Oneida Natasha Stevens, Eddie Santiago, Lakwako McLester, Kanani Nunies, Bradley Granquist, Jasmine House and our singer, Johnson Jimmerson. The top three dancers in the girls category were; Diana Sanapaw, Malia Jacobs and Aundria Hackett; Boys; Kellen Hill, Jaden Parker and Brandon Granquist.

I have also attended the Annual Fishing Ceremony. I got to take pictures with two of the men who helped fight for our fishing rights. It was a great day and we even got a visit from a hawk and an eagle. Maybe they were getting ready to go fishing too.

Finally, I welcomed visitors from many other Nations to the Food Sovereignty Summit. I made me feel good to be around so many smart people who know about protecting our foods.

I want to ask the Oneida girls of all ages to think about running for Miss Oneida, Jr Miss Oneida or Lil Miss Oneida. It's so much fun and you learn a lot.

Yawáko,
Yokalasha Danforth

Who's on first? Changes at Cultural Heritage

Many of the older folks out there will remember the old Abbot and Costello baseball sketch from 1945. Those of you who would like to see it you can find it on YouTube search Who's on First.

This article is written to address some of the changes with Cultural Heritage in the past year and a half. Most recently our website went under construction. Information that was available before may not be readily available now but if you use the contact button on our website we can get the information for you upon request.

Other changes include staffing. Two of our previous staff members were promoted to other areas of the tribe. Michelle Danforth was promoted to Tourism Director and uses the information she gained as a Multi Media Specialist with Cultural Heritage to promote tourism. Tours now include the log home area and a future life size long house being developed with the Internal Services staff.

The other staff member Nic Reynolds took a promotion as a Trainer with Human Services. Nic uses his vast knowledge to promote the use of Language and Culture.

Nic and Michelle continue to work closely with Cultural Heritage staff on various initiatives and research projects.

The replacements for Nic and Michelle are previous Museum employees Eliza Skenandore and Josh Gerzitech. Eliza replaced Michelle as the Multi-Media Specialist and Josh replaced Nic as the Historical Researcher. Eliza recently gave birth and will be out of the office until June. Josh has gracefully taken on some of her duties. Josh and Eliza are under the direct supervision of Loretta Metoxen, Tribal Historian.

New hires to the Museum include Lauren Hoeft and Shawn Skenandore as Educator and Interpreter. We extend a warm welcome to Lauren and Shawn as they begin a new trail with many bright and invigorating ideas.

While Eliza goes on leave our Administrative Assistant Beverly Skenandore is returning from a very long nine month medical leave. The help we received from our emergency temporary employees Porsche Skenandore, Jeanine Anderle, Angel Wilson and our modified duty worker Rhiannon Boyd was greatly appreciated.

So now then, who's on first?

Yawʌ́ko for all the concerned citizens who requested this information and maybe made up their own.

Wis. bill would forgive dead soldiers' taxes

MADISON, WI (AP) – The parents of a Wisconsin soldier killed in Afghanistan are backing a bill that would forgive state income taxes for military members killed in combat.

Andrew Johnson's son David was killed last year while patrolling in the Kandahar Province. Johnson says he was shocked to learn later that while the federal government would forgive his son's income taxes, the state wouldn't.

Bipartisan legislation sponsored by state Rep. Mark Born and Sen. Scott Fitzgerald would exempt military income earned the year before a soldier is killed, along with that from the year in which the soldier dies. The measure is up for vote in both the Senate and the Assembly on Tuesday.

Nearly 6,700 U.S. soldiers have died in combat since 2001. About 150 were from Wisconsin.

From 1A/Silas Jr. NAMMY

Like most performers, Silas discovered his love of singing and dancing at an early age.

"I've been doing both since I was five or six years-old. My earliest memories are from around then. My dad always tells me I was singing and dancing before I could walk and talk," Silas said. "I've grown up singing powwow. There are a lot of different variations through that. I continue to sing powwow but I started a solo career which derives from round dance style of singing."

Silas grew up traveling the powwow circuit learning the etiquette from many he considers father figures.

"My main influence was my father. He was superman to me and I really looked up to him. He showed me the ways around the drum and arena, how to respect my elders, and listen before I speak. Once I got a little older I wanted to travel more and unfortunately my parents had such a tight work schedule it was hard so I had other people take me with them," said Silas. "There was Ben Bearskin Jr., Herman Logan, Gerald Cleveland Sr., and Myron Pyawasit. I am in debt to all of them for showing me this life that I love."

Silas identifies his four children as his driving influence now.

"They all take big interest in what I do. We travel, sing, and dance together. They sing on their own. I am very proud of them and see great things happening for them in the future," he said.

Silas grew up in Chicago and spent a lot of time at the American Indian Center developing his style. "That's where I danced and sang throughout my childhood," he said. "I sing about love and nature –infatuations, relationships, breakups, perusing, and laughter. I use a lot of pop culture, pick-up lines, sayings, stuff even from love songs and I piece them together. I do a lot of collaborations because 15 tracks of the same person is hard to listen to. I try to give my listener variety. I try to not make the same style or pace song one after another. Some are happy love songs, sad love songs, and funny love songs. I mix them up with solos and collaborations. I think that makes my stuff a little more distinctive."

"True", released last year reflects Silas' belief you need to be true to yourself, who you come from, and who you are today. It is also dedicated to his niece True Ann, who was battles Alexander's Disease. It is his second solo album on Canyon Records.

His drum group, Tha Tribe, was part of the "Gathering of Nations Powwow" record, a compilation of live songs recorded at the 1999 Gathering of Nations Powwow. The album won the first ever Grammy for American Indian music.

Silas hopes to keep making music and doesn't plan to stop as long as the songs keep providing themselves to him.

"They come to me out of nowhere. I was taught by all these people that you don't make the song it is given to you. It's funny through trial and error I've learned that to be very true. There's been times when you force it and it doesn't come together," Silas said.

Will Disney's new Tonto be any better?

By Felicia Fonseca
Associated Press

Flagstaff, AZ (AP) – The Hollywood image of Tonto once had the Lone Ranger's sidekick wearing a thin headband and lots of dangling fringes. The latest Disney version has a shirtless Johnny Depp adorned with feathers, a face painted white with black stripes, and a stuffed crow on his head.

The character in the upcoming "The Lone Ranger" still speaks broken English and chants prayers. But Depp has said he's less subservient, honors the proud American Indian warrior and displays a dry sense of humor seen throughout Indian Country. The production even hired a Comanche adviser, making it decidedly a Comanche story, and received the blessing of other tribes through ceremonies during filming.

Yet Disney has caught flak for what some say is the perpetuation of stereotypes through a character that lacks any real cultural traits. Moviegoers will have to wait until July 3 to see how all this plays out on screen. For now, they're getting a glimpse through movie trailers that have left them both optimistic and angry, and wondering to what extent the new Tonto portrays actual American Indians.

What has most people scratching their heads is the black crow that appears to hover over Depp's head, and the black stripes that run vertically down his painted face. The inspiration came from a painting by artist Kirby Sattler, who said his work isn't specific to one tribe but is modeled after nomadic Plains tribes of the 19th century.

Depp took the image to the film's Comanche adviser, William "Two-Raven" Voelker, to ask if it was far-fetched. His answer: It's not.

"There are a lot of people out there screaming who are not Comanche, as in this story Tonto is supposed to be," Voelker said. "They know nothing of bird culture. When we wear or use those feathers, we're calling on the energy of the entire bird."

Depp's elaborate costumes - as seen in "Pirates of the Caribbean," "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" and "Edward Scissorhands" - are nothing new. Voelker said he never would have agreed to be a consultant on the movie had he not been assured the production team would be sensitive to American Indian culture and committed to at least some historical accuracy.

The teepees used in the movies, for example, have four poles to reflect the way the Comanche built them, not three more commonly seen in movies and that trace back to Cheyenne and Sioux tribes. The production also visited Oklahoma to hear the Comanche language being spoken and worked with Voelker and others to give Depp Comanche lines in the movie.

The story of westward expansion as told from Tonto's perspective isn't entirely accurate historically. Some of the scenes are filmed in Monument Valley on the Navajo Nation, with trains curving around the spires that Navajos believe are petrified deities, and Depp and co-star Armie Hammer looking out beyond the cliffs. Voelker had sought out the sweeping expanses of the southern Plains, home to the Comanche Nation.

Hanay Geiogamah, a member of the Kiowa Tribe of Oklahoma who advised Disney on "Pocahontas," said Depp's Tonto comes off as a mystical, radical modernization of the character played by Jay Silverheels in the 1950s, which is by far the most recognizable.

"You can say, 'well, American Indians are going to like this one more,'" Geiogamah said. "Are they going to respond more positively to the Johnny Depp Tonto? You're still responding to a non-Indian, stereotypical image."

Eileen Maxwell, a spokeswoman for the Smithsonian's National Museum of the American Indian, said Depp has a tall order to fill if he wants to turn Tonto into a more positive image.

"All of its past iterations have not been good for Native Americans," she said. "They've been stereotypical, one-dimension and not true depictions of the westward expansion, which was devastating to Native America."

Ernest Tsosie of the Navajo comedy duo, James and Ernie, is looking forward to seeing the movie.

One scene has Tonto and the Lone Ranger atop a train, being held at gunpoint by an outlaw who asked if they're going somewhere. The Lone Ranger says no; Tonto insists they are. His straight-face turns to a smirk as the two are picked off the train by a hook that catches the chains that tie them together.

"It's a real quick moment where I caught it and I kind of chuckled," Tsosie said. "From what I saw, there's some moments in there that are meant to be funny but not outwardly funny. I think most Natives will pick up on it."

Tsosie said other tribes have teased the Comanche for making Depp an honorary member but doesn't believe Depp is ignorant of American Indian culture. Depp was inquisitive about the Navajo language during filming, and the tribal president gave him a Pendleton blanket. T-shirts that Depp has worn have pictures of American Indian warriors in the 1492 version of homeland security and with the letters ``AIM" for American Indian Movement, Tsosie said. ``I think he knows what's up."

Disney's remake of the ``Lone Ranger" has Tonto in the role of coach to John Reid, the idealistic law school graduate played by Hammer, who finds himself out of his depth when he returns to his hometown and eventually becomes the Lone Ranger.

Michelle Shining Elk, a member of the Colville Tribes of the Pacific Northwest who works in the film industry, said the latest depiction will give the wrong perception of American Indians, ``that we are uneducated, irrelevant, non-contributors to society living in teepees out on the Plains." She expected Depp to deliver his lines in a more realistic and modern manner, ``not like a caricature from a John Wayne movie, or 1920s cartoon," she said.

But as John Wayne was a Hollywood creation, so is Tonto largely.

``I just hope that the other rabble-rousers out there can just sit back and take this in as a piece of entertainment," Voelker said. ``It's not ever supposed to be an end-all to our Comanche culture. If they have problems, they can come to us, and I take that responsibility."

State Purchases Artwork of Oneida Artist

The State of Wisconsin, through the Wisconsin Historical Society has just purchased a large piece of Iroquois Raised Beadwork for the permanent collection of the Wisconsin Historical Museum from Oneida artist, Karen Ann Hoffman. The acquisition of the heavily beaded, brown velvet shoulder bag was completed in mid-May, 2013.

The piece, called "Crane Bag" is a bandolier style bag. The bag celebrates the return of spring to the marsh and depicts a sandhill crane dancing near a cattail frond. The beadwork is done with small glass seed beads accented with crystal drop beads.

The bag, along with a large selection of Hoffman's other pieces of Iroquois Raised Beadwork and the Rock Art Watercolors of Geri Schrab, will go on display at the Wisconsin Historical Museum as part of a two woman exhibit, "Sisters in Spirit Native American Stories through Rocks and Beads" from July 2 - November 2, 2013. historicalmuseum.wisconsinhistory.org/Events/EventDetail/Event3150.aspx

Karen Ann is a member of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin and a resident of Stevens Point, WI.

"I beaded as a young woman," said Hoffman, "Just small things; bracelets, earrings, beaded caps for my husband..."

It wasn't until 1998, when she met her teachers, Sam Thomas and the late Lorna Hill of Niagara Falls Ontario, that Karen Ann learned to bead in the traditional Iroquois Raised Beadwork style. "I fell in love with the style." Originally attracted to the beauty of small mounds of sparkling glass beads on a rich velvet background, Hoffman was taught to delve deeper into what the beadwork had to offer. "Lorna always told me, pretty is good, but pretty isn't enough. There has to be something more; a meaning, a message."

Hoffman has honed her craft over the past 15 years. She began by following her teachers throughout Canada, Up State New York, New York City; even Africa. She attended workshops, explored museum archives, meeting collectors, beaders and scholars along the way.

Now, she speaks and teaches from Wisconsin to New York.

Karen Ann's work is in the permanent collection of private collectors as well as the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of the American Indian in Washington DC, the Indianapolis Children's Museum and now the Wisconsin Historical Museum at 30 North Carroll Street on the Capitol Square in Madison, WI.

The Seymour Community Historical Society is pleased to invite the public to view the impressive works of Randy Peterson and Steve Kemp from Countryside Photographers. Many of their award winning photos will be on display Friday evening, May 17, from 5:00 to 9:00 PM at the museum. The historical society staff will serve snacks and beverages.

Countryside Photography has been in business in Seymour since 1973. The museum will also display their work during regular visiting hours from 1:00 to 4:00 on Sunday, May 19 and Sunday, May 26.

Randy Peterson is a member of the Wisconsin Photographer's Association Hall of Fame. His senior, family, and wedding photography has earned many state and national awards. Peterson holds a Master of Photography, Master of Electronic Imaging, and the Photographic Craftsman Degree, from Professional Photographers of America and a Fellowship degree from Wisconsin Professional Photographers Association.

Steve Kemp is the eighth photographer in the world to hold all four degrees (Photography, Artist, Electronic Imaging, and Craftsman degrees from the PPA) and a Fellowship degree from Wisconsin Professional Photographers Association. In 2008 Kemp was the only person from Wisconsin to earn the Photographers of the year Diamond level. Steve is noted for his electronic imaging and creative ability.

This is a great opportunity to view outstanding photography and tour the new community museum. There is no charge to view the exhibit or to tour the museum. Donations are appreciated.

Phone and Internet Discounts Available To CenturyLink Customers

CenturyLink participates in a government benefit program (Lifeline) to make residential telephone service more affordable to eligible low-income individuals and families. Eligible customers are those that meet eligibility standards as defined by the FCC and state commissions. Residents who live on federally recognized tribal lands may qualify for additional tribal benefits (up to an additional $25 of enhanced Lifeline support monthly and a credit of up to $100 on their initial installation charges) if they participate in certain additional federal eligibility programs. The Lifeline discount is available for only one telephone per household, which can be either a wireline or wireless telephone. A household is defined for the purposes of the Lifeline program as any individual or group of individuals who live together at the same address and share income and expenses. Lifeline service is not transferable, and only eligible consumers may enroll in the program. Consumers who willfully make false statements in order to obtain Lifeline telephone service can be punished by fine or imprisonment and can be barred from the program.

Lifeline eligible subscribers may also qualify for reliable home high-speed Internet service up to 1.5Mbps for $9.95* per month for the first 12 months of service. Further details are available at centurylink.com/internetbasics.

If you live in a CenturyLink service area, please call 1-888-833-9522 or visit centurylink.com/lifeline with questions or to request an application for the Lifeline program.

CenturyLink Internet Basics Program – Residential customers only who qualify based on meeting income level or program participation eligibility requirements, and requires remaining eligible for the entire offer period. First bill will include charges for the \first full month of service billed in advance, prorated charges for service from the date of installation to bill date, and one-time charges and fees described above. Qualifying customers may keep this program for a maximum of 60 months after service activation provided customer still qualifies during that time. Listed High-Speed Internet rate of $9.95/mo. applies for first 12 months of service (after which the rate reverts to $14.95/mo. for the next 48 months of service), and requires a 12-month term agreement. Customer must either lease a modem/router from CenturyLink for an additional monthly charge or independently purchase a modem/router, and a one-time High-Speed Internet activation fee applies. A one-time professional installation charge (if selected by customer) and a one-time shipping and handling fee applies to customer's modem/router. General – Services not available everywhere. CenturyLink may change or cancel services or substitute similar services at its sole discretion without notice. Offer, plans, and stated rates are subject to change and may vary by service area. Deposit may be required. Additional restrictions apply. Terms and Conditions – All products and services listed are governed by tariffs, terms of service, or terms and conditions posted at centurylink.com. Taxes, Fees, and Surcharges – Applicable taxes, fees, and surcharges include a carrier Universal Service charge, carrier cost recovery surcharges, state and local fees that vary by area and certain in-state surcharges. Cost recovery fees are not taxes or government-required charges for use. Taxes, fees, and surcharges apply based on standard monthly, not promotional, rates.

An Evening of Enchantment

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

On April 13th, 2013, Oneida Nation High School held its prom at the Radisson Hotel. This year's prom theme was An Evening of Enchantment and there were over 60 people that showed up for the night's festivities.

This year's winners for prom court were as follows: the freshmen court members were Chad Manthei and Michaela Welch. For the sophomores, it was Brandon Blackowl and Autumn Oshkeshequoam. Luis Webster and Kylene Welch represented the juniors. Finally, it came down to the seniors. The Prom King was Diego Metoxen and the Prom Queen was Noelle Metoxen.

The people that were in charge of making the prom a success were Mrs. Studee and the prom committee. The prom committee helped Mrs. Studee pull off the Evening of Enchantment. The committee had to help decide the theme and help make the decorations. There were also a lot of students who went to the Radisson to help set up for this year's prom.

Student of the Month: Muriel King

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

Muriel King is a junior at ONHS and has attended the high school for 2½ years. She has been in the Oneida Nation School System for 10 years and also attended Seymour Middle/High School.

Muriel is the daughter of Justin King and Sacheen Flores, both of which are alumnus of ONHS. Muriel is involved in athletics for her extra-curricular activities, and she participates in volleyball, basketball, and is currently on the softball team.

Outside of school, Muriel's hobbies are going to the civic, playing basketball, playing volleyball, and spending time with her family.

Muriel likes to listen to native music. Her favorite musical artist is Nakoa Heavyrunner because his voice is calming. Her favorite color is purple. King's favorite food is her grandma's cooking.

"My grandma's cooking is the best. There's nothing else that can compare to it!" said Muriel.

Muriel says that her favorite TV show is The Walking Dead because it's exciting. Her favorite movie is "Black Cloud" because Eddie Spears plays in it and he is her favorite celebrity. Her favorite book is "A Boat at the Bottom of the Sea." Her favorite sports teams are the Green Bay Packers and the Los Angeles Clippers.

King's plan after high school is to go to a big university. She plans on becoming a pediatrician or a counselor. Her schedule this year consists of Honors American Lit, Oneida Crafts, All World Lit, Algebra 2, Chemistry, Science Research, and Trigonometry. Her favorite class out of them all is Chemistry because she likes taking notes.

Oneida Transit is Useful for ONHS Students

By Bryan Quella
Thunderhawk Times

Every once in a while I hear complaints about the Oneida Transit System. People have said that sometimes it runs late, sometimes it is canceled because of blizzards or other nasty weather, and sometimes people don't hear the driver honk the horn and they miss their ride.

In all honesty, it really is pretty nice that the Oneida Tribe has a public transit system at all, especially if you are a student. Another nice thing is that it is affordable: it's only $1 for kids, $1 for seniors, $1.50 for adults, and a couple of bucks if you need a ride outside of the usual boundaries.

For ONHS students, having something like this is pretty handy. We can get rides to the civic, to our house, to the fitness center, to school in the morning if it's after 9:00am, and home after school.

Transit is especially good for appointments that are scheduled ahead of time. That way there is enough time to plan for a ride with Oneida Transit.

For people who have complained about transit, remember this: It's not easy to schedule a bunch of rides from people calling in. I would advise people to make sure that they call at least a day ahead when they have an appointment they need to get to. That way, there can be no complaints in the future about our transit system.

Oneida Culture Days 2013

By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

The Oneida Nation High School is holding their Oneida Culture Days on May 23, 2013. Culture Day festivities allows students and staff to honor and learn more about the Oneida culture by participating in cultural events such as Archery, Lacrosse, Iroquois Music, Fry Bread making, Iroquois Art, Smoke dancing, and Oneida Trivia.

In order to become involved, students must sign up for each event they would like to participate in. All students will have a limited time to complete each activity and have the option of participating alone, with a partner, or as a team.

Not only are the high school students going to be attending their own Culture Day events, but a few ONHS students with leadership skills were chosen to assist with the same events on May 3rd at the Elementary school. The high school students played the games and helped the students learn the Oneida language and culture through similar activities.

The ONHS students who participated in Culture Days at the elementary school were Angelica Schuyler, Ruby John, Chad Manthei, Brianna Bissonette, Makayla Doxtator, Heather Stevens, Michaela Welch, Lindsey Danforth, Mitchel Cornelius, Yasmine Denny, Tasha Stevens, Byran Halona, Leon Denny, Jessica House, Josanna Cornelius-Daubon, Muriel King, Diego Metoxen, Freddy Miller, Autumn Oshkeshquam, and Issac Reed.

Oneida Class of 2013

By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

Getting through high school was difficult. From being picked on, dressing right, finding out how smart you are, and getting picked on, high school can be daunting.

Although most students feel they need to fit in to make it through high school, I was one student that came into high school as one person and am leaving as another. I changed over time while being here. Thanks to the class of 2013, I feel like I'm leaving with memories and people that I will never forget.

A few of us were new coming to Oneida Nation High School. Some of us grew up together, but just about all of us leave as family. Sure we get into fights, we argue, and we don't always get along, but by the end of the day, we would stick up for each other if it came down to it.

The class of 2013 is one class that, no matter what, is like family and accepts each other no matter the way we dress, talk, where we came from, or when or how we got here. It mattered how we treated each other, and when worse came to worse we supported each other.

The class of 2013 is a class that won't forget the memories, the bonds, and the friendships that we made when we go our separate ways after graduation. We will hold those things close for years to come.

Coming to an End

By Jessica House
Thunderhawk Times

The school year at Oneida Nation High School is coming close to its end. There are only 13 school days left for freshman, sophomore, and junior students before the end of the school year, and there are only 12 days left for seniors. Essentially, that means that students must stay on top of their game with their school work because finals are coming up quickly.

But final exams aren't the only thing on the horizon. Oneida Nation High School students have a few fun things to look forward to as well.

Oneida Culture Days is coming up fast. On May 23, students can participate in cultural activities throughout the whole day. Some of the activities include lacrosse, Iroquois singing, trivia, arts and crafts, archery, making fry bread, and smoke dancing.

Oneida Nation students also can look forward to the end of the school year activity – which is still top secret to students – but more than likely will be a lot of fun. They also can look forward to the last day of school when Oneida has an active half-day. Traditionally, that last day is a sports day with 3-on-3 basketball tournaments, a softball game against the staff, and more.

Beyond all of these great events, the most exciting thing of the whole year will be graduation. The 2013 Oneida Nation High School graduation will be held at the Radisson on June 6th, 2013. Be sure to watch the next issue of the Kalihwisaks for more information about graduation.

Treasurer's Report

By Cristina Danforth
Oneida Tribal Treasurer

The GTC was well attended and I am concerned about the limited information based on facts and research that was not afforded to the Oneida 7 Generations project. Going forward I hope there will be less time dedicated to procedural questions and more patience for pertinent information and discussion. The per capita issue was also addressed and the Finance staff and I are obligated to provide objective and accurate information. We will move forward on this item.

As Treasurer of the Oneida Tribe, it is my duty to ask the right questions. Many times managers bring their issues forward without understanding exactly what they are asking for or why. Having an idea does not justify a cost. Without a sound plan, I will not approve requisitions to release funds. I understand this frustrates managers but from my perspective, it is necessary to ensure our money is being spent appropriately and in accordance to financial procedures..

Being accused of micromanaging on the GTC floor was unnecessary especially because the definition of micromanaging is being involved in every aspect of the operation at all times. Meaning a department cannot complete the simplest of tasks without my approval. Being this involved in an area and asking the right questions are two completely different things and to realize that some managers use terms without knowing the proper definitions is concerning.

I would say the same about being budget driven. Budget driven organizations know how much is going to be spent on every project and adjust the design to meet the dollar amount assigned. With the exception of the Anna John Resident Centered Care Community (AJRCCC) and a few other projects, many of our other ventures have cost more than the budgeted amount. This is especially true of our labor costs. According to the most recent HR Communicator, at the end of April 2012 we had 2851 employees. At the end of March 2013 we had 2915 employees. This is an increase of 64 employees over an eleven month period. Considering the economic downturn and two employee severance packages, this is unacceptable. Rather than utilizing the current staff in more efficient manners such as cross training or inter-departmental transfers, we choose to continue hiring people at additional costs to the organization.

If we were truly a budget driven organization, we would be more concerned with the costs associated with each and every employee. Obviously our labor force continues to rise without any consideration for what this does to our membership. If organizationally we were concerned, there would have been no need to reduce the amount of per-capita and all departments would stay within their approved budgets.

Each request to reduce department budgets results in a "comment" against me and the Finance Department. Managers throw out the terms without understanding their meanings and expect us to change our philosophy simply because they did not get their way. This tactic may have worked in the past but will not while I am Treasurer. The GTC has given me the opportunity to manage our money appropriately and that is what I strive to accomplish each and every day. I will not apologize if the managers do not like it; perhaps this will encourage them to be properly prepared before presenting their items in the future.

I have no problem taking the responsibility for the Finance Department because I know they do an exceptional job. They do watch purchases. They watch them for final cost, competitive bids, procedural adherence, and for value to the organization. If these items are not met, the purchase is sent back for more information. The actions of the Finance Department are appropriate and I am sure the membership will agree with me that these reviews are not micromanaging.

I stand behind my decisions and those of the Finance Department which is headed by Chief Financial Officer (CFO) Larry Barton who recently received the Native American Finance Officers Association (NAFOA) CFO of the Year Award. Congratulations Larry! Going above and beyond his job requirements for the Oneida Tribe has afforded him such an honor and recognition by his peers.

I have been given a great opportunity by the GTC to complete great things for the Tribe and safeguarding our money is the most important aspect. I receive many inquiries about different issues throughout the Tribe and my office responds to each and every one. If the issue is about a specific area, I forward the request to that area and follow up to make sure an appropriate response was made. Again I would hope the various departments would view these as opportunities to communicate and improve.

On a positive note; Oneida currently funds 1,074 students with the majority attending NWTC, Menominee College and UWGB. Congratulations to all of our graduates at each level of your educational goals.

Personally I am looking forward to the July 1 GTC meeting and the Treasurer's Report on the Tribe's finances. I hope to see you all there.

OBC Forum...

Vince DelaRosa
Councilman

I wanted to share with the tribal membership that I will not seek another term next year. Many have been asking so I wanted to lay that issue to rest. It has been an honor to serve and over the next year or so, I will continue to seek out meaningful opportunities to help the Oneida people. I see so many opportunities and I hope we can make something happen.

One of the projects I have sought out, and have attracted some interest on, is from a 50 year old company that would like to be located on the Oneida Reservation. Hopefully, we can harvest a new economic energy that can serve as a catalyst to more jobs and opportunities.

Budget

As summer closes in, we begin our process of working on the budget which is facing over a $29 million dollar deficit. This is an old song with new problems and very few new solutions. All I hear are cuts are needed, but what about growth opportunities? Is there a possibility to prosper rather than simply cut? Can new jobs from other industries be created for Oneidas?

Reality is really hitting home, financial solutions have to surface because continued poor economic responses will not build a future. Cuts will not solve everything while weakly performing enterprises and department and sagging corporations continue on. They have to be evaluated for restructuring or elimination from the budget.

As we embark on this next budget cycle, I am asking that we consider taking a strong approach towards the budget process by fully evaluating and re-tooling now. Meaning, we have to build in real budget solutions, we cannot just keep cutting without basis or reason.

With that said, I did try last year to engage in a discussion on budget management issues with the release of a memo in June 2012. I never received any feedback on that memo and unfortunately solutions still need to be carved out. I do understand one of the Council members is now working on a budget management act, but we need to run a parallel process now in order to get things on a sound fiscal track. Future legislation can serve to shore-up some of the solutions we may devise now, but we have to act immediately because of the emergency financial situation we are facing!

One of my main concerns is the lack of any effort to invest in innovative methods to draw in new significant revenue. We will not be able to cut our way to prosperity so investing in new economic growth opportunities is the only answer. It is clear, budgetary solutions have to be creative and devised quickly or we may be forced into having to lay off employees rather than giving employees a much needed wage increase. There are good performing employees who are keeping us afloat and we need to be able to reward those that perform. Therefore, the first thing we need to do is enlist some help, it is not a sign of weakness to say we need help, this is a sign of strength; this is the smart thing to do.

We need to go down the lines of what the Commission on the Reform of Ontario's Public Services did in 2012. In their example, they had economist Don Drummond illustrate the immense fiscal challenges facing the province. The Ontario government then made a concerted effort to address the province's growing debt through deficit- reduction measures.

I am recommending that we consider bringing in a group right now called the Institute for Competitiveness & Prosperity. If this route is taken, this team could be coupled with our CFO, his team, and the OBC to harness some new budgetary methodologies.

These types of governmental budgeting experts can help guide us through this failing process and help us build new processes for the proper long-term management of the Oneida people's money. We have to embark on a pursuit to explore the impact of Oneida's fiscal policy on our economic competitiveness. This type of review work has to run parallel to both the ongoing budget processing and the drafting of the budget management act.

Oneida's governmental revenue streams, spending habits and debt should be closely analyzed so recommendations can be offered as to how we can become more efficient and contribute to a more robust economy. Significant cuts have to occur but targeted growth opportunities have to also be sought out.

Legislative Update

Election Law

Election Law amendments have been submitted to the Legislative Operating Committee (LOC) and an analysis has been completed on the first drafts. Some of the substantial changes I am recommending to the Election Law are:

- Setting term limits for all elected offices. I am recommending a limit of two consecutive terms for any member of a board, committee or commission (board) with a required break equivalent to one term before being a person can become eligible again for the same office. I am also recommending term limits apply to appointed boards through the Comprehensive Policy Governing Boards, Committees, and Commissions. This is to ensure that we mandate turnovers so that we can hopefully receive fresh perspectives and new ideas. This should also encourage more people to run for office especially when a seat is truly open.
- Requiring chain of custody records to be maintained for important election equipment and supplies (ballots, voting memory cards, etc.). This addition would require and hold the Election Board responsible for documenting all aspects of the election and documenting any irregularities that may occur. At the end of the day, every ballot should be accounted for and every incident appropriately documented in case it is needed in determining the validity of an election.
- Prohibiting Tribal employees from serving on boards. This will perhaps be one of the more controversial amendments I am proposing but I feel it is important to present this to the people for consideration. Avoiding any perception of conflicts is the primary reason I am requesting your support in pushing forth this amendment. In addition, there have been continuous complaints from membership and employees about employees performing board member duties while on work time and just as many complaints about tribal assets being used during work time for board member duties. This amendment should eliminate these concerns and hopefully encourage more tribal members to run for election.
- Extending the appeal timeframe to 30 days from an election to allow sufficient time for candidates to appeal any portion of the election process which may have impacted the election results.
- Reducing the timeframe of the primary from 90 days to 60 days. In general, I am not in favor of a Tribal primary but do realize the GTC has supported and approved the primary so therefore I am recommending some language to make this process run a bit more efficiently.
- Decreasing the number of Business Committee candidates (non-officers) that will proceed after a primary. The current law allows for the top 15 primary candidates to proceed to the general election ballot. I am recommending that number be reduced to 10 primary candidates which is essentially two candidates per open seat. This change would be consistent with only the top two officer candidates moving on to the general election in the current law.
- Setting in law general guidelines for allowing Election Day observers and the removal of an Election Day observer in cases where they are violating the Election Law.

Commerce Code

We are looking at various economic models with reasoned approaches that could work for us. The idea of generating commerce and economic vitality on behalf of the people is much needed. The facts are, we are approaching a sinking point, where the cost of running our current operations will soon eclipse our ability to afford all of this.

Part of my goal with this project is to use economic diversification and new commerce to stabilize our current operations and/or to supplement the bottom line of the tribe. The other goal with this project long-term will be to create a vibrant and thriving Oneida community where there is a real desire for families live and a place where new industry and new exciting social opportunities exist.

The overarching point here is Oneida needs to start thinking hard about generating new jobs. Much of the work in this area should be geared around creating new jobs for our people by focusing on leveraging our good points to enhance opportunities.

Here are a few economic suggestions I have already shared with the Oneida Business Committee regarding these matters:

As part of moving forward in a more expedited manner, I am suggesting the consideration of some more immediate actions by the OBC. Following is a short list of things that need to be

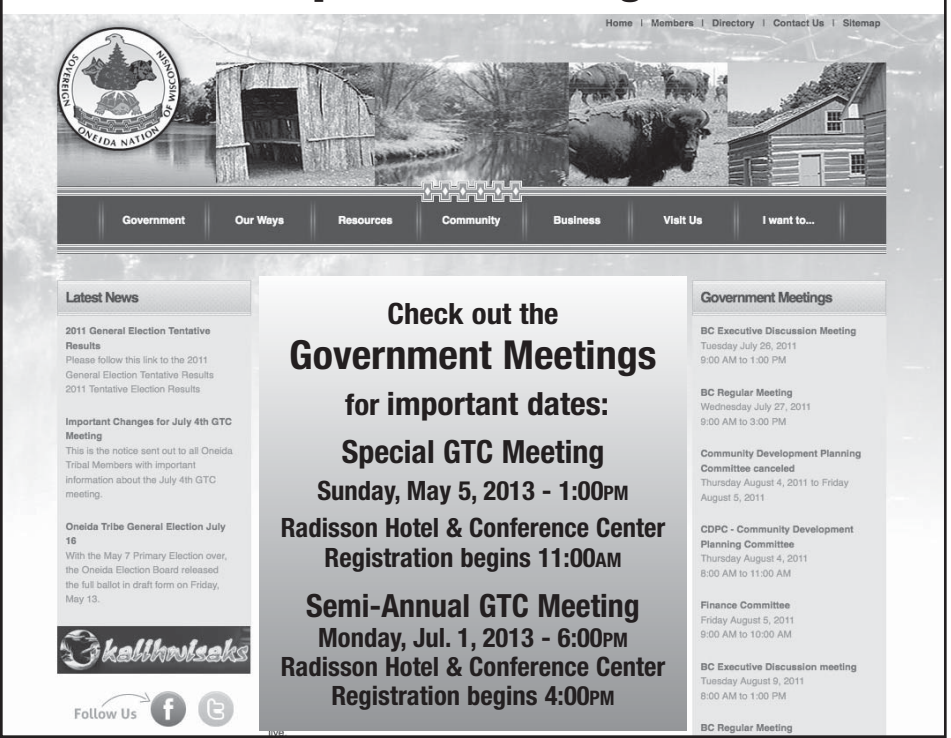
Motion by Patty Hoeft to rescind the resolution to deny forgiveness for Anthony Galbraith, seconded by Brandon Stevens. Motion carried with two abstentions:

Abstained: Vince DelaRosa, David Jordan

For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated the reason I'm abstaining is I thought we were going to talk about the pursuit of the meeting, I didn't know we were going to be reversing any action. So I was a little caught off guard by that.



For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I'm kind of in the same boat of Councilman DelaRosa. I'd like the meeting but as far as process we would need to rescind the resolution first to make that action and to make that meeting happen. I was caught off a little off guard about that.

Motion by Patty Hoeft to schedule a meeting in executive session with Anthony Galbraith to ask him

Chairman's Report

By Ed Delgado
Chairman

Issues

General Tribal Council (GTC): For the past 10 days, I have lived in appreciation. Thankful to be Oneida. Proud and appreciative for the beautiful Indian Reservation I live on and have been able to raise two of my children on. And finally, I am so thankful that we the people have a General Tribal Council (GTC) as the ultimate and supreme governing body of our Tribe. Our GTC, in one sense only exists when we are assembled at a duly called meeting, and yet each day the Oneida Business Committee and Oneida Tribe is cognizant of the directives and laws of the GTC and are bound on carrying out those directives and laws. How awesome and humbling it is to be given the opportunity to preside as Chairman over such a powerful institution where 2,000 Oneida Tribal members meet and govern a nation. It was 10 days ago as I write this article, that the GTC met for five long and arduous hours and made decisions that I believe were right for our people, our lands, and for the financial stability of the our Tribe.

Oneida Land Claims – Three Nations – Still One People: In June, most of the Business Committee, including myself, will be traveling to Canada to visit and talk with our relatives, the Oneida of the Thames. We have always had good relations with them, however, after years of intense land claim issues and sometimes differing interests, our relations, though still good, could be better. We will talk with their leadership, participate in their Solidarity Day events, and become better acquainted. I'm sure that it will be a good thing and it will bring our people closer together, as we once were. If the Oneida are to survive for the next 1,000 years, the Oneidas of the Thames should forever be our close relatives. This trip follows a visit with the New York Oneida on their Reservation. Our relations with our NY relatives were definitely strained after years of land claim initiatives where our Tribe and the New York Oneidas could not agree, and as a result, mistakes have been made that have resulted in poor relations with our relatives. Again, we talked with their leaders and affirmed that we, the Oneida Tribe, will in the future, make every effort to consult and/or communicate with them as we move to the US Congress for a just settlement on our New York Land Claim, and again, if the Oneida people are to survive for the next 1,000 years, the Oneidas of the Oneida Indian Nation in the state of NY, should forever be our close relatives. These two trips, to Canada and to New York, along with our trip to President Obama's inauguration in Washington DC, are all made to help ensure and protect our survival as a sovereign people in a world that is appears to be trying to forget that we even exist.

A Message to the Onyote'a-ka (Oneida People)...

On May 9, 2013, the United States Department of the Interior Office of Hearings and Appeals issued an Order Affirming in Part and Vacating in Part, and Remanding in an appeal by the Village of Hobart v. Midwest Regional Director, Bureau of Indian Affairs. Affirms (for the Tribe) Section (a) Statutory authority for acquisition (The brief says the Oneida Tribe of Indians has been under federal jurisdiction since 1784, (b and d) Need of the individual tribe for land, (c) Purpose for which the land is used, (d) same as (b) and (g) Regional BIA office equipped to handle new trust land for all six notices of decision. Vacates (e) impact upon state/political subdivisions resulting from removal from tax rolls (f) Jurisdictional problems and conflict of land use (h) environmental issues (h) "BIAS". Remands all 6 Notices of decision back to Tribe and Regional BIA Office.

What does this mean in Chairman talk to Tribal members? It means that three years ago the Village of Hobart filed a brief with the Department of Interior claiming that 2,763 acres placed in Trust application by the Tribe in 2006 was not done properly and the Interior Board of Indian Appeals ruled in favor of the Village of Hobart. The Tribe will have to re-apply to put the 2,793 acres in Trust. The 2,793 acres remains in tax status and taxes are and have been paid to Pulaski, Brown County, and Hobart. Part of the Brief submitted by Hobart in 2010, included arguments that the Oneida Tribe did not come under Federal Jurisdiction prior to the 1934 Indian Reorganization Act and therefore the BIA could not accept application for Trust Land. The IBIA does not have jurisdiction over Constitutional matters, however did issue an opinion that the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin has been under federal jurisdiction since 1784. The second argument by Hobart was the issue of the 14th amendment regarding "legal protection for all" and the IBIA issued no decision or opinion.

Tribe gets to re-apply to put the 2,793 acres into Trust.

The Oneida Tribal members will receive more information on the interpretation and impact of this decision by the IBIA as the Business Committee will meet this following Tuesday to discuss this decision and to be briefed by the Oneida Legal Department.

Sincerely,
Ed Delgado
Oneida Tribal Chairman

moved on right now:

The Immediate Urgency
Remember, we have spent well over $600 million dollars since 1982 trying to engage in economic growth and diversification for the Oneida Tribe and the results have been abysmal.

I make the suggestion that these four areas below need to be pursued in conjunction with the broader development community. We cannot do this alone; we need to forge positive business relations with the broader outside business community.

1) Jobs - The Oneida Tribe has to create new jobs, and not necessarily tribal jobs. Joint partnerships, public/private partnerships and other job creation ideas should be pursued aggressively.

Until we create a viable small business environment, the Oneida people have to rely on the leadership to try our best to create jobs and create job opportunities for the community. There is a viable work force here in Oneida. There are also three empty business parks which have to be put into play.

2) Economic Diversification - The Oneida Tribe needs to diversify the economy of this tribe. We are sinking in so many ways financially. We have been confronted with successive years of projected budgets deficits and we have seen a dramatic economic shift happen nationally stemming from the 2007 collapse of the national economy.

We all should understand that without diversification, layoffs of tribal employees may be needed. I am trying to save us from having to take this type of difficult action. Clearly, economic diversification is the preferred path to layoffs.

a) Under this area is the suggestion to move immediately on re-formatting the OEDA mechanism. We need to get OEDA re-tooled and running on all cylinders.

b) I have done extensive research in this area and I am prepared to create a report with actionable suggestions so we can get moving on a new OEDA. I have asked that we seek outside legal counsel to help on this project, we will be discussing this at the June 12, 2013 OBC meeting.

3) Tribal Enterprises - The Oneida Tribe should think about the idea of creating and fostering an environment for real tribal enterprises. We spend too much time discussing the details of Indian preference and no time discussing how to help facilitate and fund the creation of Native American enterprises and Tribal enterprises. For example, Oneida Small Business Project 2000 has been defunded.

a) Under this area also is the suggestion to move immediately on examining existing Tribal enterprises to see how we can maximize the performance of all tribal enterprises and see what improvements can be made to increase revenue generation.

4) Economic Corridors - Throughout the Oneida Reservation there are roads leading in and out of the reservation, economic opportunities abound at all of these corridors. We should be focused like a laser on developing businesses in these key areas. A plan should be laid out which would place an emphasis on the development of businesses around these corridors. Plans should be diverse and include partnering with development partner(s) which can let the development community at large weigh-in on these matters. This weighing-in can and should involve outside partnerships and outside investments.

Thank you for reading my article. If you would like to contact my office, please contact my assistant Cathy Bachhuber at 920-869-4426 or cbachhub@oneidanation.org.

Respectfully,
Vince DelaRosa

Oneida Tribal Judicial System

Quarterly Summaries for January - March 2013

Initial Review

Rule 9(D) – Criteria for Acceptance:

The Initial Review Body shall accept an appeal for appellate review if one or more of the following elements are sufficiently alleged to exist in the original hearing body decision by the Appellant in the Notice of Appeal:

(1) A violation of constitutional provisions;
(2) The decision is outside the scope of the authority or otherwise unlawful;
(3) The decision is clearly erroneous and is against the weight of the evidence presented at the hearing level;
(4) The decision is arbitrary and/or capricious;
(5) There is exhibited a procedural irregularity which would be considered a harmful error that may have contributed to the final decision, which if the error had not occurred, would have altered the final decision;
(6) There is a presentation or introduction of new evidence that was not available at the hearing level which, if available, may have altered the final decision.

To conserve time and space provided, the Oneida Tribal Judicial System will only put into print the Initial Review Decisions which have been denied. The cases that have been accepted at Initial Review will be published when the final adjudication has been entered.

Denied Initial Review Decisions

Julie Mitchler vs. Oneida HRD-Benefits, Crawford Insurance.

Docket No. 12-AC-024, January 21, 2013. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. Denied. Ms. Mitchler failed to perfect her initial filing by the required date of January 10, 2013.

Appellate Court Decisions

Kurt Jordan, Quality Construction Management vs Dale Wheelock, Oneida Housing Authority.

Docket No. 12-AC-016, January 4, 2013. Judicial Officers Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless, Winnifred L. Thomas, Jennifer Webster and Stanley Webster presiding. This was an appeal of Oneida Tribal Judicial System, Trial Court decision dismissing Mr. Jordan's claim the Oneida Housing Authority had failed to comply with Chapter 57 of the Tribe's laws and give preference to Mr. Jordan in awarding a construction contract. Mr. Jordan alleged the Trial Court decision to dismiss was outside the scope of authority, clearly erroneous, against the weight of the evidence, arbitrary and/or capricious and exhibited a procedural irregularity. The Appellate Court found the Trial Court dismissed the case based on the absence of a waiver of sovereign immunity and without the waiver the case could not proceed against the Respondent due to the Tribe's immunity from suit. Dismissal upheld.

Docket No. 12-AC-019, February 14, 2013. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Carole Liggins (Pro Tem), Janice L. McLester, Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This case was an appeal of the Oneida Tribal Judicial System, Trial Court decision denial of benefits. Ms. Cornelius worked as a dispatcher for Oneida Transit. Ms. Cornelius presented evidence showing that not only she but other workers as well within the building suffered from increased or new sinus infections, respiratory issues, and other detrimental health effects which she believed was caused from the mold in the building. The Trial Court substantiated the fact there was indeed mold present in the Oneida Transit building through the pictures of the growth of plants growing out of a window sill; water intrusion in the ceiling tiles and mold growing in the gypsum wall corner and the employees testimonies, there was no evidence connecting the mold at the workplace to her health issues in December 2011. The Appellate Court was persuaded by the preponderance of the evidence that the environment in which Ms. Cornelius worked caused the health issues and led to her hospitalization. The Oneida Worker's Compensation Law states in section 13.3-12. Covered Injury/Accidents. Mental or physical harm to an employee caused by accident or disease and arising out of and in the course of employment. Injury includes mental harm or emotional stress or strain without physical trauma, which arises from exposure to conditions or circumstances beyond those common to occupational and/or non-occupational life and is predominantly work related, extraordinary and unusual. While the Trial Court concluded in their decision "There is no evidence connecting the mold at the workplace to her health issues in December, 2011. Dr. Mjannes's testimony seemed to be on the verge of doing so, but without the test results of the mold at the workplace, he could not connect the cause and effect." Ms. Cornelius had requested those findings so that her physician could test for a specific mold in the building where she worked that may have caused her illnesses. She had been denied that information on 4/2/2012, when she received an e-mail from Mr.Mears of the Environmental Department that stated "We have been advised by the Oneida Law Office not to release any reports related to Oneida Transit". The Appellate Court stated in their decision "The employee has a right to work in a safe and healthy environment. The employer has a responsibility to ensure a safe and healthy work place environment. Chapter 13 Oneida Worker's Compensation Law states: 13.1-1-2. It is the policy of the Oneida Tribe to protect the employees of the Oneida Tribe and over which the Oneida Tribe extends its jurisdiction." This Appellate Court finds in favor of the Appellant, Ms. Cornelius, and overturns the decision of the Trial Court. Thus Appellate Court grants the Appellant, Ms. Cornelius benefits from February 2011 through December 2011, as related to her claim, for her medical bills for Oneida Health Center, Prevea Health, St. Vincent's Hospital, personal and vacation time, as well as the donated hours she received while recovering from her hospital stay.

Dale Wheelock, vs. Ed Delgado: Geraldine Danforth.

Docket #12-AC-020 February 2, 2013. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Carole Liggins (Pro Tem), James Van Stippen (Pro Tem), Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This was an appeal of the Oneida Personnel Commission's Initial Review Body's decision to deny Mr. Wheelock's appeal due to being untimely. The Appellate Court found Mr. Wheelock's appeal was timely filed. The decision of the Appellate Court was to remand this case to the Oneida Personnel Commission for a hearing on the merits.

Trial Court Decisions

Kurt Jordan, Quality Construction Management vs Dale Wheelock-Oneida Housing Authority.

Docket No. 12-TC-052, June 19, 2012. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Jean M. Webster and Leland Wigg-Ninham presiding. This case involved the Respondent, Oneida Housing Authority's alleged failure to apply Chapter 57 of the Tribe's laws and give preference to Petitioner Kurt Jordan in awarding a construction contract. Petitioner filed a motion for injunction seeking, among other things, an order stopping the OHA from going forward with the construction project while this litigation was pending and for investigation to be done by the Indian Preference Department (IPD). Respondents seek to dismiss the motion on various grounds. We issued an injunction in order to maintain the status quo and permit the IPD to investigate. Respondents submitted a motion to dismiss based on two grounds: 1) That injunctive relief should be denied because Petitioner cannot establish a right to relief as there is no requirement that Respondent OHA enter into a contract with QCM even though it was the lowest bidder and 2) QCM's suit is barred by sovereign immunity. The IPD stated the OTJS should not have accepted the injunction until after their investigation was completed. We respectfully disagree; the Indian Preference Department should be completing its duties on time. Timely investigation and reporting would reduce or eliminate this type of litigation. Petitioner claims QCM previously earned contracts through the bidding process. Petitioner asserts he was notified that QCM was awarded the contracts and later the Law Office told him to re-bid. Petitioner alleges upon the second time he re-bid the contract was again offered to QCM to sign; this is when QCM signed the contract. Petitioner points out; an enforceable contract has three elements: 1) an offer, 2) an acceptance and 3) consideration. Petitioner contends the written contract offered by Respondent to QCM constituted an offer. Petitioner contends QCM was ready, willing and able to perform the terms of the contract and thereby signing it constitutes QCM's acceptance. Petitioner further contends nowhere in the contract was a provision requiring a conditional acceptance requiring the Oneida Law Office's approval. Petitioner asserts there was an offer, acceptance, and consideration resulting in a binding contract. In addition, Petitioner argues although Oneida has changed its policies regarding contracting with tribal employees this change would not affect QCM's contract because policy changes are not retroactive. Petitioner claims that for years contracts have been bid and entered into with tribal employees with the same tribal contracting procedures and regulations concerning IPL, FICA, FUTA and FLSA that exist today. Petitioner argues there has been no change in tribal or federal law which would warrant a change in policy and therefore, BC Resolution 04-25-12E is wrong and unsupported by any law or reason. Petitioner points out that the Oneida Law Office never produced any form of justification or proof for their opinion and can only speculate. The Court found that under the current Independent Contractor Policy adopted by the Oneida Business Committee on April 25, 2012 that prohibits the Oneida Tribe from entering into contracts with employees that own their own business was not in effect when Petitioner filed his claim. Therefore, the policy does not apply to this case because the policy changes are not retroactive. The Court grants Respondents motion to dismiss because according to O-Tech Solutions and DS Cash Management Services the IPD shall first investigate and then file on behalf of the vendor at the OTJS for violations of the IPL. It seems the original intent of the IPL was written so that the IPD assisted the vendors with some form of remedy. Assuming that all other things are equal such as the amount of the bid, the quality of work and eligibility of the contractor, what else does the word "preference" mean? Section 57.9-1(a) states the Tribe "shall give preference in contracting." Preferring one over another means giving priority. Respondents' Motion to Dismiss was granted. The injunction was lifted.

Tara A. & Latakeh Smith vs Oneida Housing Authority.

Docket No. 13-TC-023, March 8, 2013. Judicial Officers Jean M. Webster, Mary Adams and Kathy Hughes presiding. On February 6, 2013 Petitioner's filed a request for a Temporary Restraining Order (TRO) against the Respondent, Oneida Housing Authority and on February 7, 2013 a deliberation was held and a hearing scheduled for February 12, 2013. At the February 12, 2013 hearing Respondent's requested a stay of proceedings to allow the parties to work out an agreement. Request granted and the next hearing scheduled for March 7, 2013. At the March 7, 2013 Petitioner's failed to appear. Respondent's motioned the Court to lift the temporary order, proceed with the eviction, and order the Petitioners not to commit any waste upon the home. Petitioner's to vacate the premises by March 15, 2013 by 12:00 noon. Respondent's further noticed the Court that upon completion of the housing inspection, they will be filing a Motion for Enforcement and Deficiency Judgment for outstanding rental charges and repair charges due to neglect and/or waste. Respondent's motion granted.

Christopher Danforth, Sr. vs Scott Denny, Oneida Housing Authority.

Docket No. 13-TC-027, March 27, 2013. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Jean M. Webster and Leland Wigg-Ninham presiding. This cased involved a request for a Temporary Restraining Order against Respondent, Scott Denny, Oneida Housing Authority. Petitioners claim they were issued an eviction notice on March 19, 2013 to vacate the premises by March 21, 2013 at 11:00 a.m. due to a Stipulation within docket 08-TC-074 to maintain compliance with NAHASDA to provide healthy and safe housing neighborhoods. Petitioner argued a substance found in his home was not his, once he found it he was waiting to call Oneida Police Department (OPD) to dispose it. However, prior to contacting OPD a police officer approached him with a search warrant and then found the substance within his home. He was not legally charged and this incident should not be held against him. This is not the first time Petitioner was faced with eviction. Respondents asserted Petitioner signed a Stipulation in late 2008 that stated "it is not necessary for a conviction of a drug offense to result in a violation of the One-Strike and You're-Out Drug Policy, but rather a violation may be determined on a preponderance of the evidence. Respondents point out that the preponderance of the evidence means a drug conviction is not necessary, but only that drugs were found on the premises. Mr. Danforth conceded illegal drugs were found on his premises. Based on the above evidence the Court had no other alternative but to uphold the eviction and order Mr. Danforth to vacate the premises.

Anthony R. Webster-Bodway and Marla M. Webster-Bodway vs Oneida Housing Authority.

Docket No. 13-TC-025, March 28, 2013. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Kathy Hughes and Leland Wigg-Ninham presiding. This case involved a request for a Temporary Restraining Order against Respondent, Oneida Housing Authority. Petitioners were issued eviction notice to vacate the premises due to failure to submit a written appeal and appear before the OHA Interim Executive Director. Petitioners claim they satisfied the rental arrears and admit they are behind on the utilities. The parties requested a joint motion to stay the eviction. The parties entered into a stipulation and based on the terms, request a two (2) week stay with a hearing. The parties agreed that if Petitioners abide by the stipulation, the parties shall enter a joint motion to dismiss the eviction prior to the hearing. Petitioners failed to appear. Respondent requested the Court to lift the Temporary Restraining Order and set a date for the eviction. The Court granted Respondent's motion to lift the Temporary Restraining Order and ordered the eviction.

Letters & Opinions...

Experienced

Shekoli

I'm an Oneida tribal member, 43 years old. I will not want the youth to follow in my footsteps - gangs and the violence I had to endure and participate in.

I'm from Chicago raised on the reservation. The poster child of what not to be like when you're grown as an ex-gang member doing 60 years in prison. My home has been in max-prisons – Stateville, Pontiac, Menard – not something to be proud of, but something to learn from.

Do not join a gang. Do not use drugs. I've done both and nothing positive has come from either one. Ask me how I know. Simply put, this is where you will end up – in prison.

There will come a time in your life when your spirit will want to belong to something. That's when you turn to your culture. Native American – that's who you are. This is what you truly belong to as you can see for yourself. It does not say anything – anything – about gangs or drugs. Stay on the right path. Culture is your path. Be curious in your culture.

Some definitions of culture from the thesaurus will read civilizing, tradition, education, law, society, family, arts, sciences, literature, music, history, religion, etc. My advice is learn them all! Because that is the right way of life to live by. A positive way of life and a free way of life. Not living life in a prison cell. I don't want that for you.

Experience, that's what I have in the gangs and drugs. This is not a positive way to live your life. Let me share a little of my life's journey. North side of Chicago, 1970, I joined a gang. That was what I needed to belong to something. Went to prison for a shooting as an active gang member. Then I did drugs and sold them. These two key things are what destroyed my life – gangs and drugs. I got out of prison and went right back – this time for 60 years. Now I'm writing to you from experience. Life is meant to be lived free and living free is not coming to prison for drugs or gangs.

A positive way of life and you cannot go wrong is through culture. When you get that strong feeling to belong to something, belong to your culture. Native American youth, if I thought there was anything good that came out of my whole life is that I had a chance to say these wise words to you all! I lived it, I've done it. I plead to your common sense. Stay out of the gangs. Do not do drugs. That is a message to you from experience. Choose culture over the gangs and drugs.

Key words to look up in your thesaurus: belong, culture, experienced, path.

Ideas:

Volunteer your time with the elders.

Find a job with these positive steps. You will succeed in life in whatever you do!

Respectfully,
Brodie J. Young III

WAHPETON ~ A student at Circle of Nations School brought back two trophies from the USA Boxing Junior Olympic State Tournament this past Saturday, April 20 at McLaughlin, S.D.

Seventh grader Desmond "D.J." Jordan won in the novice division in his 139-pound weight class. He also got the Outstanding Boxer trophy after winning his bout in 21 seconds by TKO. He fought a more experienced boxer since there were no Novice competitors in his weight class.

Circle of Nations "Wahpeton Warriors" USA Boxing Club head coach Felix Youngbird was the corner man and art teacher Laura Youngbird filmed the action. CNS is chartered under the Sisseton-Wahpeton Oyate headquartered in South Dakota. The event was on the Standing Rock Reservation (located in both North Dakota and South Dakota) and Jordan defeated another North Dakota-licensed athlete, so technically Jordan is a two-state winner.

His grandmother and legal guardian Cindy Brabbs expressed surprise and happiness from her home in Green Bay, Wis.

"He has found a lot of things to be good at in school, singing in the drum group and being a leader," P.E.P. teacher Hunter Reinke said. "I have seen he is a natural athlete in the running club, working out at the Fitness Center, even the square dancing and jigging classes. "

His grandmother said jigging is popular among the Native people back in Wisconsin so he had some practice beforehand.

Desmond Jordan has earned praise from his boxing trainers for his self discipline and mental focus.

This was the first tournament or USA sanctioned event ever for 13-year old Jordan, who worked with professional boxer Shawn "Sioux Warrior" Hawk and his trainer and father Ray through "Weekend Warriors & Health Heroes" program at CNS, funded by Otto Bremer Foundation. Jordan attended a three-day weekend training camp last month in SD hosted by professional boxers Farley Hawk and Cheyenne Ziegler and their amateur boxing clubs from the Lower Brule and Crow Creek reservations. The special event was offered free of charge to CNS coaches and athletes as a solidarity gesture for Native youth.

"He's a promising young boxer. He needs to go right back into training and pursue his goal of being in the Olympics someday," said coach Felix Youngbird. "That is what USA Boxing is for. I saw this young man grow and mature in his outlook through this opportunity over the school year."

The Oneida Thunderhawk 14u Boys Basketball Travel Team would like to thank their parents, families, friends, community, Oneida Recreation Department, coach Scott Murray, and Lisa Rauschenbach for the support during the spring travel team basketball season. A big thank you to the numerous freshman, junior varsity, and varsity basketball players that took the time out to scrimmage against us and help us prepare for our tournaments. We participated in the Mountain Dew Classic, the White Lake Shootout, and the Just A Game Classic basketball tournaments. Overall we finished with a 6 - 4 record and won the championship at the White Lake Shootout. Coaches are Sid White and Karl Peters.

Public Hearing

The Oneida Child Care Services Program will be holding a Community Meeting to solicit written or verbal comments from the public on the provisions of child care services for the Child Care and Development Fund (CCDF). The meeting will be held:

Tuesday June 4th, 2011; 9:30AM to 11:30AM or 6:00 PM
Social Services Building
Green Conference Room
2640 West Point Road, Green Bay, WI

The Child Care Developmental Fund is a single integrated child care fund under the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act, and replaces the former AFDC related child care. Eligibility is limited to Native Americans living within Brown or Outagamie Counties. The plan covers the period of October 1, 2013 through September 30, 2015. These funds are to be used to help low income families working or preparing for work, or those attending school or training programs, to subsidize for the cost of child care and to improve the quality of child care programming and services. All families are responsible for a portion of the cost of care.

Information is provided in the plan to indicate how parents are informed of the availability of child care and different child care service options, the process for applying for assistance, how eligibility for child care assistance is determined, co-payment schedules, determination and reimbursement calculations, and the child care payment process. The plan includes the types of services and range of child care providers available to parents, limits on in-home child care services, and the establishment of child care maximum rates, including rate setting procedures. The plan indicates how licensing regulations are enforced, how complaints are recorded and how complaint information is made available to the public. Health and safety standards are indicated in the plan for both licensed and certified providers. In Wisconsin, most of these topics are determined by the State Statute through the legislative process and are reported in the State CCDF Plan.

The purpose of the Child Care and Development Fund (CCDF) is to increase the availability, affordability, and quality of child care services. The goals of the CCDF are:

1) Allow flexibility for the grantee in developing child care programs and policies that best suite the needs of the children and parents within the community.
2) Promote parental choice to empower working parents to make their own decisions on the child care that best suites their family's needs.
3) Encourage the grantee to provide consumer education information to help parents make informed choices about child care.
4) Assist the grantee in providing child care to parents trying to achieve independence from public assistance.
5) Assist grantee in implementing the health, safety, licensing, and registration regulations. A copy of the plan will be available on the Oneida Intranet, at the community meeting, at the Oneida Library, Social Services or call 920-490-3738 for a copy. Written comments on the plan may be submitted to Mary Motquin, Oneida Child Care Services, P O Box 365, Oneida, WI, 54 54155 no later than June 7th, 2013. The e-mail address for comments is mmotquin@oneidanation.org.

May 18

Springtime on the Farm
WHEN: Saturday, May 18
TIME: 10:00AM – 4:30PM
PLACE: Heritage Hill State Historical Park
2640 S. Webster Avenue
Green Bay, WI 54301
COST: $9 Adult, $8 Senior, $7 Children 4 -17, Heritage Hill Members and those 3 and under FREE.
Breakfast Cost: $2

Spring was a busy time on the farm. Join us on May 18 as we recreate some of the typical chores and activities that would have occurred on a Wisconsin farm at the beginning of the 20th century. Learn how to pick and card wool, try your hand at stuffing a mattress, smell the aroma of pies baking in the oven, learn how to make cheese, churn cream into butter or use a schnitzelbank (shaving bench) to make shingles.
This event will include plenty of demonstrations and hands on activities for the entire family, including "Addie the Cow." Addie is a life-size fiberglass milk cow that milks, moos, and wears bells and flowers. She is truly a kid and camera magnet that is experienced by thousands each year. In addition to Addie, there will be educational displays by the Sheboygan County Dairy Promotion Association. This is a new event that you won't want to miss! Also join us for our annual pancake and porkie breakfast. For more details go to: www.heritagehillgb.org

Bataan Death March survivor's family honored

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

Like many young men during in the 1940's Roy J. House was uprooted from home and drafted in the United States Army to fight in World War II. He survived what some consider the most abominable war travesty to ever take place.

House, a Sergeant, was taken into Japanese custody in 1942 while in the Philippines and survived the gruesome Bataan Death March.

The March started after a pocket of United States and Pilipino soldiers surrendered to Japanese forces. Nearly 75,000 soldiers then became Prisoners of War (POW). Many of the POWs were severely mistreated, malnourished, murdered, and beaten. Some were killed if injured or to weak to carry on and to show dominance over the other prisoners. It was about 65 miles long in extreme heat with little to no water offered to the POWs.

After the march, conditions did not improve much. House served in several prison camps and was finally released in 1945, roughly three years in Japanese custody. No records were kept regarding the amount of deaths but it is estimated at roughly 10,000 soldiers were killed or died during captivity.

House returned home and married Leone McCarrell. He passed away in 1992 at 77 years old.

During this year's Memorial Day services Oneida veterans honored House's family with eagle feathers to show their support and acknowledge his service.

Sharon House, his only daughter, accepted a plaque on behalf of his family. She knew little about her father's service until later in his life.

"(He) never talked to us about it. I knew he was in the service and when he started getting elderly they told him to get funds from the veterans and that's when we really found out how terrible it was. He would still never tell us," said Sharon.

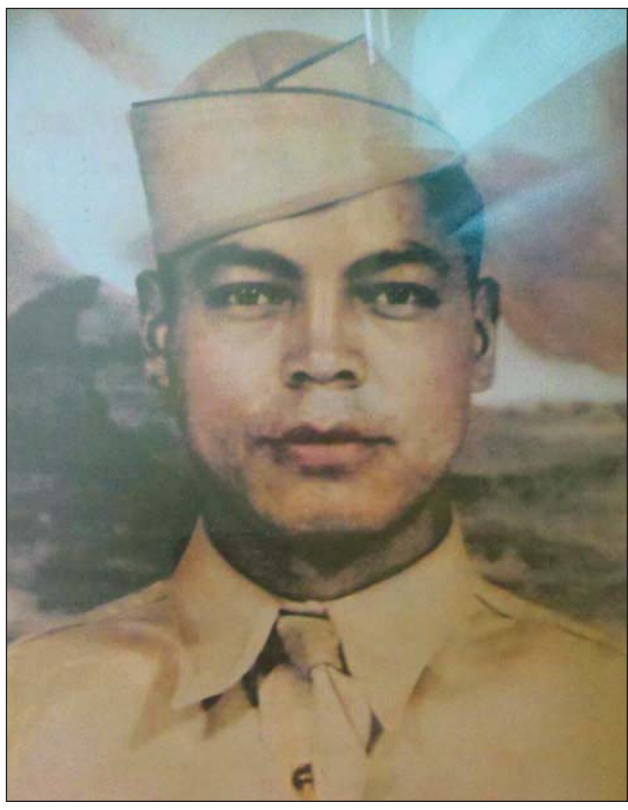
Sharon had six children and Roy served as a father figure to them.

"They went through all their teenage years at the same time and thank God he was around," said Sharon. "He served the purpose. Now I have two sons taking care of their kids and that's where it really comes out in how they parent their kids."

"I was really close to Grandpa Roy. It's really hard to talk about him. He was a father figure. He taught a lot of the things we're suppose to learn from our father, our father wasn't around. That didn't stop him from caring for us and him teaching us," House's grandson Yuma added.

As a father figure to Sharon's children many of his traits are seen in them.

"Military became part of our lives. I served a tour in Iraq. We were raised people come first, serve the people, (they) come first before yourself," said Yuma.



"I get frustrated and when it gets overwhelming I just think about how he made it through that and what I am dealing with is nothing. I think he instilled that in his grandchildren," said Sharon. "I look at my kids as pretty successful, no matter what heck they bring, they all take care of their children and they do the most they can and that's how he used to be."

Yuma to this day still gets emotional when talking about his grandfather.

"We miss our grandpa dearly everyday. I mourned for about 15 years and I couldn't talk about him because it does hurt because we were so close to him," he said.

Sharon is very appreciative of the support the community has shown.

"I can't think of anyone better than the veterans. I really can't imagine being honored by anyone better than the military for what he did," she said.

IBIA rejects Hobart's "skewed" view of history

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

The Interior Board of Indian Appeals (IBIA) affirmed that the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin is in fact a tribe of Indians in a May 9 Notice of Decision (NOD) in response to an appeal filed by the Village of Hobart objecting to the placement of 499.2 acres of land into federal trust status.

According to Deputy Chief Counsel James Bittorf, the NOD undermines Hobart's assertion that Oneida was not under federal jurisdiction in 1934 and therefore can't have its lands put into trust status under the Indian Reorganization Act (IRA).

"The IBIA determined that the Tribe was under federal jurisdiction in 1934, and therefore is eligible to have land taken into trust under the IRA. In reaching this determination, the IBIA rejected Hobart's skewed interpretation of the Tribe's history," stated Bittorf in an email.

However, Hobart was successful in getting the 21 parcels in question remanded back to the Acting Regional Midwest Director of the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA).

"The IBIA determined that the BIA adequately considered the Tribe's need for the land, the Tribe's purposes for and uses of the land, and the BIA's capacity to handle additional responsibilities associated with the acquisitions. The IBIA found that the Regional Director failed to provide sufficient analysis to support her rejection of Hobart's objections regarding the impact of the removal of the land from the tax rolls, jurisdictional issues, and environmental issues," stated Bittorf.

> "The IBIA determined that the Tribe was under federal jurisdiction in 1934, and therefore is eligible to have land taken into trust under the IRA."

Areas of concern included storm water management and zoning issues.

"The vacated portions of the decision go back to the Midwest Regional Office of the BIA for reconsideration," stated Bittorf.

The IBIA also determined that the BIA should address Hobart's claims of bias, according to Bittorf. Hobart argues that the BIA staff members that processed the fee-to-trust applications were "tainted by 'blatant bias'" due to a consortium agreement where tribes apparently directed Federal funding towards BIA staff positions.

Silas recognized for NAMMY at OBC meeting

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) honored Oneida Citizen Wayne Silas Jr. for winning a Native American Music Award, and acknowledged receipt of an injunction seeking to put construction of a new South Eastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS) building on hold.

Present: Chairman Ed Delgado, Vice Chairman Greg Matson, Secretary Patty Hoeft, Treasurer Tina Danforth, Councilmen David Jordan and Brandon Stevens.

Excused: Council Members Melinda Danforth, Vince DelaRosa and Paul Ninham.

The OBC congratulated Silas on winning a "Nammy" for Best Male Artist for his album True Round Dance Songs at the Native American Music Awards. Councilman Brandon Stevens praised Silas for his hard work and success in the music world.

"On behalf of the Business Committee, I would like to thank you for representing Oneida in the best way you can," said Stevens. Silas was asked to sing a song from his album to open the meeting and Chairman Ed Delgado presented him with a certificate celebrating his achievement.

"I've been singing and dancing all my life since I was a toddler," said Silas. "I was fortunate enough to be able to experience the Native American Music Awards … it was really a highlight of my musical career."

After the honoring, representatives from the OTIE Board and business asked the OBC to extend the current board members' terms by four years so they can oversee OTIE's creation of subsidiary companies that will share OTIE's resources. OTIE Chairman Butch Rentmeester explained that the subsidiary companies will be able to maintain the small business minority owned status that OTIE will outgrow.

"These subsidiaries could pursue the work that was lost to OTIE and retain this income for the tribe," said Rentmeester.

Treasurer Tina Danforth questioned why an extension of the current board's term was needed for the subsidiaries to go forward.

"I don't think the bearing of the terms has any bearing on the ability of the management to run the company," she said.

The matter was deferred to a meeting to be scheduled before June 3.

The OBC discussed with the Oneida Nation School Board concerns over the proposed events area and the need to get construction underway soon. Secretary Patty Hoeft summarized the roadblock to a lease agreement with the school

"There seems to be a conflict over who's in charge. The tribe is proposing that the organization through our Recreation Department is in charge of the area, and that we would handle the maintenance of it as well as the scheduling, but we would work cooperatively with the school to assure school extracurricular events are scheduled," said Hoeft.

The events area will consist of two softball fields and a lacrosse field to be built on land that belongs to the Oneida Nation School System. School Superintendent Sharon Mousseau stated they had concerns over liability should someone wander from the events area to the school playground.

"Would there be a fence or how would we assure that there wouldn't be any issues as far as safety?" she asked.

Danforth emphasized the need to get the project started.

"We're running out of time. We've had the money for quite some time now, about two years, and it's not been activated and spent. And if this is really isn't doable, then we need to find another site," she said.

The item was deferred to a working meeting to be held before June 10.

The OBC held off activating $16,098,000 in funds for the casino expansion until a meeting could be held to hammer out details involving food vendors.

The OBC acknowledged an injunction filled by Brian Doxtator asking that a contract between the OBC and Bonnilake Real Estate, LLC be place on hold until the General Tribal Council (GTC) has had an opportunity to review the decision. There was no discussion, however, the service notice was part of the meeting packet.

The injunction filed May 20 states that on July 31, 2004 the GTC adopted a motion directing the OBC to provide assistance to the SEOTS Program in renting or purchasing a long-term facility. The injunction states there were no requests for new construction, and "Improper execution of the 2004 GTC directive could jeopardize the $2 million set aside for the purposes of acquiring a permanent facility for the SEOTS program."

NACHP adds Greendeer to staff

The Native American Center for Health Professions (NACHP) has recently hired Melissa Greendeer as the new Community and Academic Support Coordinator. Mrs. Greendeer will provide student support/career development services for Native American pre-health professional students, as well as grow and develop our successful campus and community partnerships to assist in the successful recruitment and development of NA/AN students at UW.

Mrs. Greendeer has worked on campus, within the College of Letters and Science's Center for Academic Excellence, serving as American Indian Coordinator/ Advisor for nearly 4 years. In this position, she worked directly with American Indian/Alaska Native students where she concentrated her work on student growth and leadership development, intentional academic advising and programming to encourage community engagement. She developed the Native Women's Leadership Retreat which was successful in bringing students, faculty, staff and key community members together in a collaborative environment.

Mrs. Greendeer also focused on relationship and community building with campus offices and the local community, but most importantly with regional tribal communities. Her recognition of the importance of synthesizing relationships and acknowledging the importance of tribal communities to the university have allowed her to successfully serve students.

Mrs. Greendeer earned a Bachelors of Arts degree in Sociology from UW-Madison. She also holds a Masters of Science degree in Educational Leadership & Policy Analysis from UW-Madison's School of Education. She is a member of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin.

Oneida Farm ensures quality care for buffalo herd

By Travis Cottrell

Twenty-eight new buffalo were introduced to the herd on November 16, 2012.

With the extended Memorial Day weekend approached the Oneida Nation Farm took extra measures to ensure the well being of the farm's buffalo herd.

After twenty-eight buffalo died due to a lack of water over the 2012 Labor Day weekend, the staff made some changes to the water system and how the animals are monitored during the week.

"We've got a water system that is now, it's locked on basically, it can't be shut off without the clear intention to shut it off. It's going to take some doing to shut the water off," said Denny Van Vreede, Oneida Nation Farm Supervisor.

With the water secured, farm staff members make daily trips to the buffalo pasture. The daily checks require that workers go onto the field and physically check the water supply.

"We don't drive by and look from the road to see if everything is okay. They physically have to go into the field to make sure there is clean water and the containers get cleaned. We have employees that go there everyday and keep a much closer eye on them. They've been great at getting that done," Van Vreede added.

The Oneida Nation Farm is currently moving the herd of 110 buffalo out of their winter pastures and into different paddocks that contain more grass for grazing.

"We are doing that now because that new pasture will give them enough fresh grass to graze on through the weekend. If for some reason we have to move them over the weekend then we have to move them over the weekend. They are a priority," Van Vreede said.

Over the Memorial Day weekend there was a pair of workers on duty to tend to the buffalo as well as the cowherd located at the Oneida Nation Farm.

"What will happen is that they will both check the cowherd here at the farm. When they finish that, one will start the feeding of the farm animals and one will check the buffalo. For us Saturday and Sunday is no different than any other day," Van Vreede said.

The buffalo that perished last fall were replaced with similar animals and they have fit in nicely with the existing herd. So far there are eight calves in the west pen and one calf in the east pen.

Once the buffalo reach a certain age and size they can be harvested for meat products. The Oneida Nation Farm has harvested 14 buffalo from October 1, 2012 through May 30, 2013.

"Majority went to the new Oneida Market on Packerland. The school took two so far for the school year. We also had one go to the Food Summit that was held at the Radisson. Another one was donated for tribal programs," said Marlene Westgor, Oneida Nation Farm's Administrative Assistant.

Individual cuts of buffalo meat from the Oneida Farm can be purchased at the Oneida Market located at 501 Packerland Drive, Green Bay, WI. Quarters and halves of buffalo are not available at this time due to cost.

Passing On...

Reiter, Anthony

September 4, 1941 - May 20, 2013

Anthony "Reiter Boy" Reiter, age 71 of Keshena, passed away Monday, May 20, 2013 in Appleton.

Born on September 4, 1941 in Keshena, he was the son of the late Antone and Alegria (Dick) Reiter.

After attending high school, Anthony enlisted with the United States Army and was stationed in Germany for three years. After his discharge, he worked in the maintenance department for the Oneida Tribe of Wisconsin in the casino until retiring.

In his younger years, he was an avid boxer and has been a big time card player his entire life. Anthony enjoyed watching the Green Bay Packers, spending time at the casino and listening to George Jones music. Anthony was especially proud of his 30+ years of sobriety. He loved to joke, play around and tease his nieces and nephews. His carefree spirit will be sadly missed by all who knew him.

Anthony is survived by: 4 children, Dori Jo, Marla Jean, Tony Perez, Tina Reiter; numerous grandchildren; special friend, Ferletta; 4 brothers, Randolph (Laurie) Reiter, Guy M. Reiter, Sr., Arden (Carol) Reiter, Sr. and Rudolph B (special friend, Iris) Reiter all of Keshena; 6 sisters, Donna (Bob) Burkel of Keshena, Selene (John) Jackson of Milwaukee, Patricia (Tony) Martin of Appleton, Yolanda (Lyle, Sr.) Toutillott of Milwaukee, Ava Fowler of Keshena, Frizty Reiter; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at 11:00am on Wednesday, May 22, 2013 at the St. Michael's Catholic Church in Keshena with the Deacon Bobby Doxtator officiating. Visitation was held at the St. Michael Parish Hall on Wednesday from 9:00am until the time of the service. Swedberg Funeral Home in Shawano assisted the family with the arrangements.

The family would like to extend a special thank you to the doctors and nurses of ThedaCare for all the wonderful care given to Antone and his family.

Sobiesczyk, Lana Rae

October 17, 1963 – May 24, 2013

Lana Rae Sobiesczyk, 49, Green Bay, a much loved daughter, mother, grandmother, sister, aunt, cousin and friend, peacefully returned to her Lord on May 24, 2013.

Born Oct. 17, 1963, in Green Bay, she is the daughter of Leonard Sobiesczyk and Mary "Monnie' Kraay and stepfather, Joie Kraay.

Lana was an animal lover and an avid reader. She will be remembered as fun-loving, with a laugh that captured everyone's hearts and spirits. She lived her life to the fullest and one of her greatest joys was to spend time with her beloved granddaughter, Isabella. Lana is loved by many and will be sadly missed by her family and all that knew her.

She is survived by sons, Luke Villers and Tyler (Courtney) Sobiesczyk; granddaughter, Isabella Mary; fiance, Rodney "Racer' Smits; sisters, Wendy (Kevin Umentum) Sobiesczyk, Lisa (Gary) Pochron, Cheryl (Buck) Udell, Cathy (Grant) Wright; ex-husband, Dennis Villers; and many other family members.

She was preceded in death by grandparents, Leonard and Josephine Sobiesczyk, Jack and Maggie Stowe; and cousin, Mike Stowe.

Please join us in a celebration of Lana's life at River's Bend Supper Club, 792 Riverview Dr., on Thursday, May 30, from 3 to 7 p.m.

A special thank you to Brent and Meghan of Newcomer Funeral Home who assisted the family in our time of sorrow.

There is no charge for obituary notices to be published in the Kalihwisaks for enrolled Oneida citizens or spouses.

Oneida Art for Design

The Oneida Nation Arts Board is excited to introduce a new project that acquires art pieces from Oneida tribal members and their families to be displayed in tribal buildings. Oneida Art for Design "promotes the diverse artistic expression within the community that reflects our heritage and spirit for future generations." This is a great opportunity to give back to your community through your gifts of art and craft.

What are we looking for? We will select about 35 pieces in 2D (things that hang on the wall) and 10 pieces of 3D (things that fit in a display cases) from children, community members and artists to be displayed at the Anna John Community Care Center. The 20 work should not be framed or mounted and no larger than 3 ft. x 4 ft.

Where will it be placed? For this application, we will be selecting pieces to display in the new Anna John Community Care Center.

How do I participate? There are two ways to participate: Community Contest and Purchasing Program. This is open to all Oneida tribal members and their descendants. We are looking for a wide variety of art pieces from: traditional to contemporary, fine arts to craft arts, children's art to professional art.

In the Community Contest children, students and community members submit an application and picture. Each person submitting in the Community Contest will receive a $10 retail card. Pieces selected for purchasing will receive a $40 Wal-Mart card.

In the Purchasing Program artists and craft people submit an application with a picture and a purchase price. Maximum purchasing price is $500.

How does this work? Applications are due electronically to the Arts Program by June 27, 2013. Applications must be complete and include a picture of the work to be considered.

Incomplete applications will not be considered.

In the Community Contest, each piece will be reviewed and awarded a 1st or 2nd place by the Oneida Nation Arts Board. All participants will receive a $10 gift card. The Arts Board will notify applicants. Applicants receiving a 1st place will be asked to bring in their pieces to the Arts Program the week of July 8. A community committee will review the 1st place winners and select up to 25 pieces for display. A $40 gift card to Wal-Mart will be given in exchange for each art piece selected. Pieces will be framed and/or displayed at the Anna John Community Care Center. Pieces not selected will be held for pick up until August 15.

In Purchasing Program the Arts Board review applicants and selects pieces for possible purchase. Applicants selected for possible purchase will be asked to bring in their art pieces to the Arts Program cottage by July 8. A community committee will review the pieces and select up to 20 pieces for display. Applicants will be paid the purchase price receiving checks in early August.

Criteria for Selection? The Oneida Nation Arts Board will be looking for pieces that reflect our mission: "...diverse artistic expression within the community that reflects our heritage and spirit for future generations"

Other Details: Participation in this program is voluntary; and if your piece is selected or purchased it will be the property of the Oneida Tribe of Indians. Pieces may be used by various programs of the Oneida Tribe of Indians for promotional use.

Time Line: June 27 - 4:30pm deadline for submission

Got to https://oneidansn.gov/uploadedFiles/wwwroot/~_Latest_News/Art.Design.App.pdf for an application or contact the Oneida Nation Arts Program at (920) 490-3830.

What is Sustain Oneida?

By The Oneida Trust and Enrollment Committee

The population of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin will probably decline within the next 10 years. The Tribe currently faces a diminishing population with the enrollment criteria of ¼ Oneida blood. According to the 2012 Enrollment records, only 57% of new enrollees were ¼ blood. As of 2013, 38% are ¼ blood. It is estimated that the last "Oneida" will be born approximately three generations from today. If we continue on the same course, we enroll ourselves out of Tribal members. Or we can take action now by starting to explore our options.

The Sustain Oneida initiative was launched in 2012 to help the community determine our future citizenship and belonging to onʌyote·akʌ. The initiative includes Trust and Enrollment Committee members and Tribal staff. The two main objectives for the Sustain Oneida initiative are to:

1) Increase awareness and provide opportunities and events for Oneida Citizens to participate in a conversation about enrollment criteria and its effect on our long-term survival and,

2) Increase the General Tribal Council and the Tribal organization's awareness of enrollment issues and population trends. These conversations will promote the survival of onʌyote·akʌ into the future.

It is clear that continuing our current enrollment requirements means supporting self-termination. So what can we do instead? The Sustain Oneida group has planned some activities and events to get this discussion going in the Oneida community. One event is the Sustain Oneida Summit in September 2013. The focus will be on Oneida identity, values, language and culture. All Oneidas are invited to participate: people of every age, background, religion and way of life. We urge everyone to offer their ideas and to listen respectfully to the ideas of others. The goal of these discussions is to inform Oneida citizens about Tribal enrollment issues and explore potential solutions for citizenship and belonging.

At the heart of this issue are two questions: 'What does it mean to belong to a Tribe?' and 'What responsibilities does that belonging involve?' Before the Sustain Oneida Summit, a number of community meetings will be held to discuss big questions such as, 'What does it mean to be Oneida?' 'What should enrollment criteria look like?' and 'How should we define Oneida citizenship?'

We recognize that this is one of the most complex and challenging issues the Tribe will face. We will need to share all of our ideas, energy, and our commitment to our Tribe. To move forward, many options must be considered, and patience and understanding is essential. The Oneida community should talk about this as long as is needed to reach a final decision that benefits the Tribe as a whole. Although these conversations will be challenging, we must have them to ensure the future existence of onʌyote·akʌ.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

GreenFoot Designs makes environment a priority

Benefits of steel roofing and siding

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

Like many small business owners Mike Jourdan got tired of working for someone else and took the skills obtained at prior jobs to start his own company.

Jourdan founded GreenFoot Designs, LLC in 2009. They specialize in metal roofing and siding as well as remodels, post frame buildings, and sustainable new home construction.

"I started my own business to be able to effect peoples livelihoods for a lifetime. I offer them a product that will never let them down and allow for them to truly protect what they value and love," Jourdan said.

The green in the company's name is by design.

"We pride ourselves on our commitment to the environment and ensure on all our projects anything recyclable is recycled and items on remodels, that are still in good working order, are donated to Habitat for Humanity," said Jourdan.

Along with donating items to Habitat for Humanity Jourdan is working to keep siding out of landfills.

"Currently we are working with Terracycle to find a feasible recycling program for vinyl siding," Jourdan said. "Currently there is no such thing and all vinyl siding simply ends up in the landfill where it will never decompose and will stay that way forever."

GreenFoot Designs currently has four carpenters in the field and one full-time salesperson. They are in a very competitive field and believe the advantage of steel products is sometimes not understood.

"Some challenges in our field of business are getting people to understand the long term benefits of steel roofing and siding, doing the job once for life as well as the amount of competition out there that is fly by night, with no license or insurance. We are licensed with the state of Wisconsin as a general contractor and we carry full liability insurance as well as workers compensation insurance," said Jourdan.

Jourdan worked for Bayland Buildings as a steel erector and crane operator and ran a local branch of a nationwide post frame construction company. He has over 10 years in tile and hardwood installation along with five years of general contracting experience.

As a business owner Jourdan thrives on treating customers right.

"The most rewarding thing about owning my own business is being able to see the look on peoples faces when we complete the job and tell them they will never have to worry about the work for the rest of their lives. I really enjoy the process of sales to completion and we are committed to our customers with proof of our commitment being our Better Business Bureau accreditation," he said.

GreenFoot Designs, LLC can be reached at (920) 606-6603 and are located at 2803 South Packerland Drive, Suite 15. Office hours are by appointment only. They can also be reached via email at info@greenfootdesigns.com and their website is www.greenfootdesigns.com

Wis. candidates got $758K from sand, gas industry

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ A new report says the sand mining and natural gas industries have given Wisconsin candidates nearly $758,000 dollars since 2007, with contributions spiking last year as sand mining took off in the state.

The Wisconsin Democracy Campaign study found the gas and sand mining industries gave candidates a total of $18,762 in 2007 when only five sand mines were operating in the state. Last year the industries gave candidates $413,642.

About 100 mines and processing plants were running in Wisconsin that year. Demand for silica sand is grown because it's used in hydraulic fracturing, or "fracking," a process that produces oil and gas.

Republican Gov. Scott Walker received the most money of any candidate over that six year period, accepting $520,266.

ONABEN to offer free business training

Deadline drawing near to participate in this FREE 2–day workshop

ONABEN – A Native American Business Network is excited to travel to Keshena, Wisconsin to present a small business development workshop at the Menominee Business Center, N 559 Library Rd. on Thursday, June 13 (9pm-4pm) and Friday, June 14 (9am-4pm).

ONABEN will offer a FREE two-day course for small business development. The training workshop will benefit anyone who operates or is considering operating a small business.

This workshop will cover business concepts indispensable for anyone starting up or running a small business. Instructors will also identify and help participants avoid common pitfalls. The training will provide comprehensive information on topics important to aspiring entrepreneurs and small business owners related to business planning, access to capital, basic bookkeeping, human resources, problem solving and marketing a small business.

The event will be presented by ONABEN, RedWind Consulting and the Menominee Business Center, owned and operated by the Menominee Indian Tribe of Wisconsin, and is sponsored by the SBA's Office of Native Affairs. The event is open to the public and there is no cost to attend. All class materials and food will be provided to participants free of charge.

To reserve a space at the workshop, contact Renee Mahkimetas at (715)799-5720. Registration information is needed by June 6th to ensure enough class materials for all participants.

Mailbox Maintenance

Oneida, WI ~ With the spring season well underway, the U.S. Postal Service is asking all Oneida area homeowners to inspect and repair their mailboxes.

"Repairing suburban and rural mailboxes improves the appearance of our community and makes delivering and receiving mail safer for our carriers and customers," says Oneida Postmaster Cheryl Koenig.

The Postal Service makes this annual request because of the wear and tear that occurs to mailboxes every year. "This is especially important after the effects of last winter," adds Koenig.

Some of the typical activities that may need to be done include:

- Replacing loose hinges on a mailbox door.
- Repainting a mailbox that may have rusted or started peeling.
- Remounting a mailbox post if loosened.
- Replacing or adding house numbers.
- Removing/spraying for pests, such as bees, spiders, etc.

"If a homeowner plans to install a new mailbox or replace a worn one, he or she must use only Postal Service–approved traditional, contemporary or locking full/limited service mailboxes," said Koenig. "Customers should be careful when purchasing curbside mail receptacles because the use of unapproved boxes is prohibited. Postal approved mailboxes are normally indicated as such by the manufacturer. Customers may use a custom-built mailbox, but they must consult with my office to ensure it conforms to guidelines applying to flag, size, strength, and quality of construction."

For more information on the use of names or numbers on mailboxes, or answers to any other questions, please contact Postmaster Cheryl Koenig at 920-869-3710.

The Postal Service receives no tax dollars for operating expenses and relies on the sale of postage, products and services to fund its operations.

A self-supporting government enterprise, the U.S. Postal Service is the only delivery service that reaches every address in the nation: 152 million residences, businesses and Post Office Boxes. The Postal Service receives no tax dollars for operating expenses and relies on the sale of postage, products and services to fund its operations. With more than 31,000 retail locations and the most frequently visited website in the federal government, usps.com, the Postal Service has annual revenue of more than $65 billion and delivers nearly 40 percent of the world's mail.

During regular business hours

Please call the Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711 to speak with the triage nurse. The nurse will assess your symptoms and recommend care. If you need further evaluation and treatment, the nurse will direct you to the appropriate healthcare facility. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to an urgent care clinic or emergency room (ER). Please present your healthcare insurance card and a list of your current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need. However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services (CHS) for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to CHS for payment.
Your telephone call and recommended care by the nurse will be documented.

After regular business hours

Please call Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711. If you are certain that this is a life threatening emergency or injury and you need to go to the ER, please leave a message with the after-hours CHS notification line. The message should include the patient's name, birthdate, phone number and reason for ER visit, name of ER and healthcare insurance information.
If you need to discuss your symptoms with the nurse, stay on the line for the Answering Service. Those representatives will gather your contact information and have a nurse call you back. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to either an urgent care clinic or emergency room. Please present your healthcare cad and list of current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need.
However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to Contract Health Services for payment.

Public Hearing

The Oneida Child Care Services Program will be holding a Community Meeting to solicit written or verbal comments from the public on the provisions of child care services for the Child Care and Development Fund (CCDF). The meeting will be held:

Tuesday June 4, 2013; 9:30AM to 11:30AM or 6:00 PM
Social Services Building
2640 West Point Road, Green Bay, WI

The Child Care Developmental Fund is a single integrated child care fund under the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act, and replaces the former AFDC related child care. Eligibility is limited to Native Americans living within Brown or Outagamie Counties. The plan covers the period of October 1, 2013 through September 30, 2015. These funds are to be used to help low income families working or preparing for work, or those attending school or training programs, to subsidize for the cost of child care and to improve the quality of child care programming and services. All families are responsible for a portion of the cost of care.

Information is provided in the plan to indicate how parents are informed of the availability of child care and different child care service options, the process for applying for assistance, how eligibility for child care assistance is determined, co-payment schedules, determination and reimbursement calculations, and the child care payment process. The plan includes the types of services and range of child care providers available to parents, limits on in-home child care services, and the establishment of child care maximum rates, including rate setting procedures. The plan indicates how licensing regulations are enforced, how complaints are recorded and how complaint information is made available to the public. Health and safety standards are indicated in the plan for both licensed and certified providers. In Wisconsin, most of these topics are determined by the State Statute through the legislative process and are reported in the State CCDF Plan.

The purpose of the Child Care and Development Fund (CCDF) is to increase the availability, affordability, and quality of child care services. The goals of the CCDF are:

1) Allow flexibility for the grantee in developing child care programs and policies that best suite the needs of the children and parents within the community.
2) Promote parental choice to empower working parents to make their own decisions on the child care that best suites their family's needs.
3) Encourage the grantee to provide consumer education information to help parents make informed choices about child care.
4) Assist the grantee in providing child care to parents trying to achieve independence from public assistance.
5) Assist grantee in implementing the health, safety, licensing, and registration regulations. A copy of the plan will be available on the Oneida Intranet, at the community meeting, at the Oneida Library, Social Services or call 920-490-3738 for a copy. Written comments on the plan may be submitted to Mary Motquin, Oneida Child Care Services, P O Box 365, Oneida, WI, 54 54155 no later than June 7, 2013. The e-mail address for comments is mmotquin@oneidanation.org.

Estate Claims Assistant
Oneida Enrollment Department

Shekolih Swakweku
(Greetings to all)

Spring has finally arrived! Along, with the warm temperatures and sunny days this has allowed the Department of Public Works to begin maintenance in the Oneida Cemetery. Thanks to all the workers for your diligent effort in keeping the sacred ground of our loved ones looking beautiful. We also want to point out that we have purchased new Cemetery Rules & Regulations signs and they should be installed in the next couple of weeks. We hope our visitor's find this information helpful.

Final Reminder - To Win OLIPP Incentive prizes

This is your last reminder to submit your Oneida Beneficiary Designation forms. The Enrollment Department must have your completed Beneficiary Designation form in our office by 4:30 pm on June 5th. Drawing for the incentive prizes will be held on June 10th. Winners will be notified by mail.

What exactly is OLIPP?

- The acronym stands for "Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus"
- OLIPP is a $15,000 term life insurance policy available only to enrolled tribal members.
- EPIC Life Insurance Company administers the policy.
- OLIPP is not a "whole life" insurance policy; therefore, you CAN'T borrow against it.
- OLIPP does not pay you (the member) one cent—it pays your beneficiary after your passing.
- The intent of the OLIPP benefit is to assist members with their final expenses (which can include funeral expenses).
- OLIPP replaced the original $5000 Burial Fund.
- By designating a beneficiary (ies) you determine how your OLIPP benefit is distributed.

How prepared are you?

With the recent tornadoes that ravaged through Oklahoma, it only took minutes for several towns to be completely destroyed and unfortunately lives were lost. We're not immune to such a natural disaster. It was only a few years ago, a tornado went through northwestern Wisconsin and left a path of destruction through rural forest and damaged several homes. That tornado was no way close to the EF5 in Oklahoma, but nonetheless, members need to be prepared for unexpected disasters. You can become more prepared by completing your Oneida Beneficiary Designation form and take control while you're still living.

What about the children that pass away?

The loss of a child is the most devastating event a parent will endure. My son has been gone 13 years and even today, the thought of him is never very far from my heart. When faced with this loss, Oneida Enrollment does have a Children's Burial Fund which is established to assist families with burial expenses for children 0-5 years old who are not enrolled BUT would have been eligible for enrollment. OR children age 6, whose parent has made application for and who have been recommended by the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee for enrollment but have not been approved for enrollment by the Oneida Business Committee.

ANYONE WISHING TO USE THIS BENEFIT MUST FIRST CONTACT THE ONEIDA ENROLLMENT DEPARTMENT FOR DETERMINATION OF ELIGIBILITY.

What document is needed for Children's Burial Fund?

- If child dies after birth—we need a birth certificate and death certificate.
- If child was stillborn, we need a Maternity/Paternity statement and one of the following: fetal death report or disposition of a body.
- Original bills/invoices must be provided to the Oneida Enrollment Department.
- All required documents must be received before any vendor payment(s) can be made.

What does the Children's Burial Fund cover?

- Maximum funding amount is $3500.
- All burial related costs are paid directly to funeral related vendor(s).
- No payments can be made to reimburse individual family members.
- $200 food allowance—this expense can be covered by a food voucher, can be added directly to the funeral home invoice, paid directly to a caterer, food vendor or restaurant.
- $1000 maximum allowance for a monument/headstone. This can be paid directly to the vendor or put on the funeral home invoice.
- Cemetery and Church costs-this expense may be paid directly to the church/cemetery vendor or placed on the funeral home invoice.
- Funeral Home costs will be paid directly to the vendor.
- Any amounts exceeding $3500 are the responsibility of the family.
- This benefit cannot be used if a child is enrolled. Enrolled children are automatically covered under OLIPP.
- Minor children can't designate beneficiaries, if they pass away, EPIC Life Insurance Company will follow the naming sequence identified in the policy to pay out the benefit proceeds.

Funeral pre-planning can start now

- You can begin price shopping now—costs will vary from funeral home to funeral home.
- You can make selections of what items you want -you just can't lock into a price, this will at least give you an estimate of expenditures.
- Depending on your selections average funerals cost between $7000-$10,000.
- Direct cremation is the most economical; it averages between $1500-$3000 for basic cremations. Costs increase when you have a wake ceremony, casket rental, and other components. When choosing these selections this could increase your funeral costs by an additional $3000-$5000.
- Major costs associated for funerals is professional services of funeral home director/staff, this varies from $1200-$2600. Services & Merchandise you purchase varies from $2000-$4000 and caskets prices range from $1000 to $10,000.
- Other costs can include: flowers, obituary notices, honorariums, cemetery cost, purchasing death certificates, wake/funeral meal, embalming, cosmetic fee, hairdresser fee, memorial cards, vault or outer liner, monument/headstone, just to name a few.

Estate Planner

- We're developing a planner which will assist the membership in planning their final funeral wishes. Our goal is to complete this tool by the end of this year.
- Advantage for pre-planning is it removes the burdens and pressures your loved ones will have in making decisions during a time of grief and emotional stress.
- Pre-planning provides you with the time to make practical decisions that reflect your standards.
- Pre-planning can prevent friction within the family and can head-off possible arguments over costs and what others think you'd prefer.

SPECIAL THANKS

- At the May 5th GTC meeting, I polled 142 members and asked if we had an Estate Planning document would you use it, overwhelmingly, the majority said they would. It was great to know we're on track in working to meet the membership's needs. Some of the interesting feedback of why members wouldn't use it was: some felt their families will just take care of it, they didn't care what their families do after their gone, some felt superstitious by planning their funeral arrangements, some don't want to think about this and some don't care what happens. Interesting!!
- Thanks to all those who have responded to the OLIPP incentive by submitting their forms. Also, thanks to those for calling me with your questions or just inquiring about OLIPP.

My Contact Information:

- Direct line is 920-869-6212
- Email Address is jdenny@oneidanation.org

Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary
4K Nature Based Program

The Green Bay Area Public School District is pleased to offer a new and exciting adventure in learning with the start of a nature based 4K program located at the Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary for the 2013-2014 school year. This program will engage children in highly interactive outdoor activities that encourage children to explore the world around them while learning important skills that will prepare them for Kindergarten.

Time to Get Some Dirt on Your Hands!
Taught by a teacher and naturalist, students will get "down and dirty" as they interact with wildlife, plants and other resources to create a developmentally appropriate and meaningful outdoor experience. In this program, children can expect to hike trails, track animals, look for and identify different types of birds, insects and plants, explore ponds and much more. Rain or shine, we will be exploring all that nature has to teach us!

Gear Up!
Nature provides a constantly changing environment that engages all the senses. In order to take full advantage of the nature based activities, a majority of the program lessons will be held outside in most weather conditions which means clothing, coats, boots, etc. will get muddy, wet and dirty. A list of required "nature gear" has been developed so parents can prepare their child for class. The Green Bay Area Public School District can assist with some of the gear if needed.

Wis. GOP lawmaker: Bill will save voter ID

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ One of the chief authors of Wisconsin's voter photo identification plan is shopping around a new bill designed to allay legal concerns that the requirements are too burdensome by letting poor people opt out.

Republican lawmakers passed voter photo ID requirements two years ago, saying the move was needed to combat election fraud. But a pair of Dane County judges struck the requirements down in separate lawsuits last year. One ruled the requirements were unconstitutional because some people entitled to vote might lack the resources to obtain an ID. The other said the law substantially impairs the right to vote for poor people, noting birth certificates are required to obtain the IDs and voters who lack them must pay for them.

The state Justice Department has appealed both decisions. Two federal lawsuits challenging the requirements are still pending.

Rep. Jeff Stone, R-Greendale, was one of the main sponsors of the voter ID bill two years ago. He began circulating a new measure last week that would make a multitude of changes to Wisconsin election law, chief among them provisions that would allow voters to opt out of showing photo identification if they sign an affidavit for poll inspectors saying they're poor and can't obtain the identification without paying a fee; have a religious objection to being photographed; or they can't obtain the proper documents needed to acquire photo identification.

Those voters' ballots would be marked and canvassers could review them for validity in the event of a recount, Stone said. Municipal clerks or election commissioners also would be allowed to investigate the voter's qualifications.

"We want to address the concerns that have come up as the case has worked through the courts," Stone said. "If we pass this bill we'll once again have photo ID in place in Wisconsin."

Lester Pines is the attorney who brought one of the Dane County lawsuits challenging voter ID on behalf of the League of Women Voters. He said Stone's bill is essentially an admission that the original bill is unconstitutional. He hadn't studied the new bill carefully but called it a positive step.

"I would be less than honest if I didn't say they're getting closer," Pines said. "Maybe they can get it right this time."

Assembly Assistant Minority Leader Sandy Pasch, D-Shorewood, said in a statement Republicans should focus on legislation that creates jobs rather than "pushing a divisive and unnecessary anti-voter agenda."

The bill doesn't stop at voter ID. It makes a number of other changes to state election law, including allowing corporations to make political contributions, bringing Wisconsin law in line with the 2010 U.S. Supreme Court Citizens United decision.

The measure also would permit lobbyists to make contributions to state candidates between the first day the candidates can circulate nomination papers and the day of the election. Currently lobbyists can make contributions between June 1 and Election Day.

Voters would be barred from submitting electronic forms of documents proving residence during registration. The state Government Accountability Board also would have to create a list of all registered voters that includes what type of documents they submitted.

Candidates seeking recounts would have to pay $25 per ward or per undivided municipality rather than the current $5. The measure wouldn't change current state law allowing free recount for candidates in an election where 1,000 or fewer voters were cast or the margin between the winner and loser is between 0.5 percent and 2 percent of the total votes, however.

School boards would be prohibited from spending any state aid or local tax dollars to spread word about any referendum on whether their districts could exceed revenue limits.

And anyone looking to recall a local official would have to show the official has been charged with a crime or ethics violation. Under current law, anyone who circulates a recall petition against a local official must indicate a reason related to the official's duties. Local officials have been pressing lawmakers to tighten up the requirements, saying its currently too easy to initiate a recall against them. Rep. Al Ott, R-Forest Junction, has introduced a stand-alone bill mirroring Stone's criminal and ethics language.

Stone said it makes sense to include all the election changes in one sweeping bill rather than have 20 or 30 pieces of legislation floating around. Stone sent an email to his fellow legislators on Friday giving them until noon on Wednesday to sign on as co-sponsors.

"(The bill will) make for an election system that's fair and accurate for everyone," Stone said.

Republicans control both the state Assembly and Senate as well as the governor's office. A spokeswoman for Assembly Speaker Robin Vos, R-Burlington, said Vos expects the body to vote on the measure yet this spring.

A spokeswoman for Senate Majority Leader Scott Fitzgerald, R-Juneau, was vague, saying Fitzgerald's staff was still going through the bill.

Ho-Chunk leader vows to keep poker room open

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ The Ho-Chunk Nation leader says he'll fight the state's efforts to close the poker room at the tribe's Madison casino.

The state Justice Department is suing the Black River Falls-based tribe seeking an injunction to shut down the Ho-Chunk's electronic poker games. The state says the Vegas-style games are only allowed at the Ho-Chunk's other casinos, not in Madison which is limited to bingo-style games.

The Journal Sentinel says the tribe argues the computerized poker games are legal because gamblers play against each other and not against the house, thereby making them Class II games. A Class II casino isn't regulated by the state.

Tribal president Jon Greendeer says he has an opinion from the National Indian Gaming Commission that says the games are legal.

Vets get into Milwaukee Art Museum free all summer

MILWAUKEE (AP) ~ The Milwaukee Art Museum is offering free admission to veterans and active military members all summer starting on Memorial Day.

The museum is again participating in the "Blue Star Museums" program, where military families receive free or reduced summer admission to hundreds of museums across the country.

The Milwaukee Art Museum currently has on view an exhibit called "The Veterans Book Project: Objects for Deployment." It highlights stories of veterans from throughout the country, including five local veterans and their families.

The museum will be free for veterans, active military and up to five additional family members through Labor Day.

Winter schools retire American Indian logo

WINTER, Wis. (AP) ~ A western Wisconsin school district will change its Native American logo that it's used for its sports teams.

Winter School District Administrator Penny Boileau says the American Indian warrior logo has been used for decades, but if it's offensive to anyone, then it's time to change.

A state law requires the state superintendent to consider any complaints that a school mascot or nickname is race-based and discriminatory and decide whether to order the school to drop the moniker. The Winter School Board decided last month to proactively replace the logo.

Winter schools are using letter 'W' as a placeholder until a new logo is implemented. WEAU-TV reports several hundred people voting for a logo recently selected an eagle with a feather as the new mascot.

County lawmakers consider Oneida Indian deal

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) ~ A state-brokered agreement with the Oneida Indians involving land claims and gambling rights will be considered this week by legislators in Oneida County.

Members of the Oneida County Board of Legislators will vote Tuesday on whether to approve the broad agreement with the Oneida Indian Nation announced by Gov. Andrew Cuomo this month.

The deal would guarantee the Oneidas exclusive territory for their central New York casino in exchange for revenue payments to the state of around $50 million annually. It also would settle longstanding tax and land claim issues that have dogged the Oneida's relationship with their upstate neighbors.

The deal requires approval of county legislatures in Oneida and Madison counties. It also requires approval by the state Legislature, the Department of the Interior and the state attorney general.

Members of Congress urge Redskins to change name

WASHINGTON (AP) ~ Ten members of Congress are urging the Washington Redskins to change their name because it is offensive to many Native Americans.

The representatives said Tuesday they've sent letters to Redskins owner Dan Snyder, NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell, Redskins sponsor FedEx and the other 31 NFL franchises.

The letter to Snyder says that "Native Americans throughout the country consider the 'R-word' a racial, derogatory slur akin to the 'N-word' among African Americans or the 'W-word' among Latinos."

Among the group sending the letters are the leaders of the Congressional Native American Caucus: Tom Cole, R-Okla., and Betty McCollum, D-Minn.

The nickname is the subject of a long-running legal challenge from a group seeking to have the team lose its trademark protection.

Snyder has vowed that he will never change the name.

Native American vets push for recognition

By Susan Montoya Bryan
Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. ~ The Navajo Code Talkers are legendary. Then there was Cpl. Ira Hamilton Hayes, the Pima Indian who became a symbol of courage and patriotism when he and his fellow Marines raised the flag over Iwo Jima in 1945.

Before World War II and in the decades since, tens of thousands of American Indians have enlisted in the Armed Forces to serve their country at a rate much greater than any other ethnicity.

Yet, among all the monuments and statues along the National Mall in Washington, D.C., not one stands in recognition.

A grassroots effort is brewing among tribes across the country to change that, while Democratic Sen. Brian Schatz of Hawaii has introduced legislation that would clear the way for the National Museum of the American Indian to begin raising private funds for a memorial.

"This is not a political gamble for anyone, and it's not politically threatening for anyone," said Jefferson Keel, a retired Army officer and president of the National Congress of American Indians. "This is something that both sides of the aisle can get behind and support, because it's not going to cost a lot of money for the country. It's just something that needs to be done."

The push for a memorial can be traced back to the 1980s when the well-known Three Soldiers sculpture was unveiled near the Vietnam Veterans Memorial. Depicted are three American soldiers: one white, one black and a Hispanic.

During the Vietnam era, the federal government says more than 42,000 Native Americans served in the military and 90 percent of those service members were volunteers.

"I've come across veterans from throughout the whole country, from the East Coast all the way to California, and a lot of Indian who people believe that there should be something on the National Mall. We're not there, we haven't been recognized," said Steven Bowers, a Vietnam veteran and member of the Seminole tribe in Florida.

Bowers is spearheading an effort to gain support from the nation's tribes to erect a soldier statue on the National Mall in recognition of American Indians, Alaska Natives and Native Hawaiians who have served over the years.

His proposal calls for placing it prominently at the entrance of a planned education center at the Vietnam memorial - where millions of people visit each year - rather than at the Museum of the American Indian.

Numerous tribal organizations, including the National Congress of American Indians, have signed on in support of the grassroots effort, and Bowers is hopeful the legislation introduced this week by Schatz doesn't complicate matters.

Gov. Cuomo talks tough with Indians over casinos

By Michael Hill
Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y. ~ Gov. Andrew Cuomo's tough talk about Indian casinos breaks with the past practice of governors treading carefully with tribes sharply protective of their sovereign rights.

Cuomo's explanation is simple: Money disputes between the state and the tribes have simmered for years. Now he is proposing three casinos in yet-to-be disclosed locations in upstate New York. And he wants voters to decide on an amendment to the state constitution this year that would allow full casinos off of Indian land.

It's time to make decisions.

Cuomo was already in negotiations with the Oneida Indian Nation on May 9 when he warned that the state would consider allowing casinos near existing operations run by tribes that were not in good standing with the state. The talks bore fruit Thursday with an agreement that would provide exclusive territory for the Oneida's Turning Stone casino in central New York. The state would get a cut of casino revenue, and local tax and land disputes would be resolved.

The Seneca Nation of Indians has withheld more than $500 million in casino payments to the state since 2009, claiming that New York violated a compact with the tribe by allowing video slot gambling in its exclusive western New York territory. The Senecas, who operate casinos in Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Salamanca, are in binding arbitration with the state.

Cuomo suggested Thursday that the Senecas' compact would not be renewed after 2016 if they do not reach a deal.

Similarly, the St. Regis Mohawks have withheld $59 million since 2010. The nation has cited illegal slot machines on other Mohawk land in its exclusive northern New York territory.

The desire to settle these disputes takes on more urgency with a statewide vote to expand gambling possible in November. Tribal agreements would allow Cuomo to focus on building support with lawmakers, the public and other gambling interests. The tribes, as Cuomo explains it, would receive assurances that new casinos won't open in their backyards.

"It's a poker game, is the way I look at it, between the Senecas and the governor and between the other casinos and the governor as well," said Don Grinde, a University at Buffalo professor of transnational studies who has written extensively on the Iroquois and U.S. Indian policy.

Seneca Nation President Barry Snyder has reacted with some tough talk of his own, accusing Cuomo of using "playground bully tactics" as the tribe acts in good faith and negotiates diplomatically.

The Mohawk tribal government has not commented on Cuomo's remarks.

Elders connecting with the Youth

By Yvonne Kaquatosh
Kalihwisaks

The weather was perfect for a day of fishing for the youth & elders who participated in the 14th annual activity. The event was held on Saturday, May 18th at Osnúhsa? Lake.

In addition to fishing for tagged fish, participants had the opportunity to dunk the warden as well spend quality time with loved ones throughout the morning. A picnic lunch was also provided in part by the Oneida Environmental Health & Safety Division with funding from the EPA and support from the USFWS.

Open House held at Oneida Community Library

Event held in conjunction with Children's Book Week on May 18th

Special to Kalihwisaks

Oneida Community Library changed a few things up this year for our Open House. Usually we have our open house during National Library Week in April, but this year we celebrated Children's Book Week and held our Open House on May 18! We usually have a staff chili cook-off for our Open House, but this year, we served chili, but had a Cultural Heritage staff pie contest instead!

Change is good! Yummy, too! We invited Oneida Business Committee members to judge the contest by sampling each of the entries and voting on their three favorites. Chairman Ed Delgado and Council Member David Jordan did the honors.

The pie contest winners were Anita Barber, Cultural Heritage Area Manager, with her rhubarb pie entry. She also baked a delicious cherry pie as well! Second place tied with Library Board member Carol Elm's lemon meringue and Kim Cackowski's (Green Earth Branch Library staff) Chocolate Covered Strawberry Mousse Pie. Third place winners were Library Manager Louis William's apple pie and library staff Brooke Beltran's banana cream.

Children's author and award-winning Wisconsin illustrator Lois Ehlert's books and artwork were featured, with crafts, games, and story time props available for the day. It was a fun weekend and we're so glad that so many in our community got to be a part of our celebration! Yawʌko to everyone that entered and the judges for all that tasting!

New Oneida ID Cards Available

Beginning June 1st there will be a new Oneida ID card available at Enrollment office. The new card looks much like the old cards with one exception, it will have a bar code on the back of the card. This bar code allows for faster Gas Tax exemption service for the customers at the Oneida One Stops. It also a more accurate way of tracking the transactions so the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin can be reimbursed from the State more efficiently.

In the future it will also assist with the processing of tribal members who attend GTC meetings. Getting a new card today will require a fee of $3.50 or $1.50 if you are over 55. The only exception to the bar coded cards are youth 15 or younger who will not receive bar coded ID cards.

A new ID card can be obtained during regular business hours at the Enrollment office with the exception of Mondays – No ID cards are processed on Mondays between June 1-Sept 2.

If you do not need a new card right now, you may opt to wait until October 1, 2013, at which time, you may exchange your old card for a new card with bar code at NO cost to you.

OTIE Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises

Employment Opportunities

Electrical Design Engineer – Green Bay

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises (OTIE) is an engineering, science and construction services firm with offices nationwide.

We have an immediate opening for an electrical design engineer in our Green Bay office. Applicants must have a BS in Electrical Engineering, 10 years of electrical design experience and a Professional Engineer's license.

Job Description:
OTIE currently has a solid backlog of projects, an excellent staff of design and construction engineers, and a reputation for providing outstanding services to our clients. We are seeking a highly motivated professional to start an electrical design team out of our Green Bay office, and to coordinate with our other Wisconsin offices located in Milwaukee and Madison. This position offers an excellent opportunity for promotions and upward mobility within a growing firm that has a 20+ year track record of providing outstanding engineering services for federal, state, county, municipal and private clients.

Specific duties include:
- Provide immediate electrical design support to all OTIE offices as required
- Assist with business development activities to proactively market and win new electrical projects
- Actively manage projects to ensure that project deliverables and budgets are met
- Plan and develop an electrical design team
- Ensure that all services being performed out of this office exceed our clients expectations
- Attend and participate in meetings with clients and the general public
- Work cooperatively with other engineers, project managers and technicians
- Develop and promote a positive internal work environment that takes great pride in delivering outstanding electrical services to our clients
- Strategic planning to ensure the long term success of OTIE

Part Time Administrative Assistant

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises (OTIE) is a growing civil, environmental engineering and construction services firm with offices nationwide. We provide consulting engineering services to US Department of Defense (DOD), US Department of Energy (DOE), and US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). We have a new position open in our San Francisco Bay Area office for a part-time Administrative Assistant with 5 plus years of experience.

Job Description:
Provide administrative support inclusive of word processing; document production; forms, spreadsheets, memos, manuals and reports preparation (non-technical); proofreading and other administrative tasks. Personal flexibility a plus because there are occasional strict project deadlines requiring long hours and evening work.

Requirements:
- A.S. degree or higher preferred. Professional/technical certifications and/or additional training are pluses.
- Previous experience in engineering office. Experience with DOD (Navy, US Army Corp of Engineers, Air Force, National Guard) is a plus.
- Self- starting and detail oriented.
- Must be capable of precisely following written and verbal instruction.
- Thorough practical knowledge (i.e., advanced) of MS Word and Adobe Acrobat Standard or Professional.
- Basic practical knowledge of MS Excel, MS Outlook, Power Point, and internet browsers.
- Excellent spelling and written grammar.
- Typing capability of 60 wpm.
- Previous experience in document production/document assembly for complex reporting documents. Large quantities of hard copies and CDs are required for shipping, often by overnight service, to multiple recipients.
- Some experience with electronic and hard copy file storage and archiving.
- Punctuality and ability to complete assignments with little oversight.

Some students are into art, some are into music, and others love sports. To stop and think that we may not be able to participate in these events or even have the access to all the supplies we need to enjoy these hobbies is a scary thought. Many students enjoy the sporting events whether they're playing or watching. As a senior, I realized that this was my last year to be involved in these events.

As a member of this year's senior class, we cheered our loudest and enjoyed ourselves as much as we could because it is the last time that we will be in this situation. We will never be this age again – we need to take advantage of it and appreciate it while we can.

Growing up isn't something we all want to do, but it's something we have to do. Preparing for college, jobs, and life itself gets harder and harder. Let your last season of whatever sport you play end with a bang and enjoy it in the process.

Student of the Month: Natasha Stevens

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

Natasha Stevens is a junior that attends Oneida Nation High School. She has been a part of the school system for three years now. Before she was at Oneida, she attended West De Pere Middle School.

Stevens plays basketball and just joined the softball team. She is the reigning Junior Miss Oneida and smoke dances as an extra-curricular activity. The things she does that are creative are doing her hair, doing her nails, and making smoke dance dresses. Her hobbies outside of school are playing basketball, going for a run, dancing, and learning the Oneida language.

When asked about her favorite food, Natasha said, "My favorite food is mashed potatoes because you can always eat them and they go with everything."

After high school, Natasha plans on going to college to be a lawyer and teach the Oneida language. One of her favorite classes is math because she likes math. Her other favorite class is Chemistry because math is involved in the class.

Natasha's grades have been exemplary this year by being on the honor roll all year long. It's no surprise that she has had one of the top ten GPAs in the entire school during every quarter this year.

Stevens' role model is her language teacher Leander Danforth. Her hero is her mother.

When asked what her motto to live by was, Natasha said, "Always try your best even if you don't succeed."

What are they doing after Graduation?

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

With the end of the year coming to a close, the Oneida Nation High School seniors are constantly asked what they plan on doing after graduation. In order to save the sanity of the senior class, I compiled a comprehensive list of the future plans for the ONHS Class of 2013:

- Emmitt Big Medicine: "Go to a four-year college and start UFC training."
- Brandon Doxtator: "Sit around, be bored, and then work at the casino."
- Curtis Doxtator: "Probably go to school."
- Jessica House: "Go to college, play basketball, and get a degree in teaching."
- Aleah Jimenez: "Attend NWTC and find a part time job."

- Larissa Lucas: "I'm registered to attend the College of Menominee Nation in the fall."
- Diego Metoxen: "Go to college."
- Noelle Metoxen: "Attend Stout University and travel as much as I can."
- Fredrick Miller: "I plan on attending college."
- Michael Mills: "I plan on attending Northern Michigan University to play Division 2 football."
- Rachel Ninham: "I'm jumping right back into school."
- Eveyonna Ortega: "Go to school and do big and better things."
- Abalone Paprocki: "I'm going to attend NWTC for my freshman year and then transfer to either Stout or Stevens Point."
- Devonte Pointer: "I'm going to attend UW Fox Valley, play basketball, and get a degree in either athletic training, business, or zoology."
- Kaylynn Powless: "Go to college and try to find a good job."
- Leo Powless: "Attend Haskel University and follow the Pow Wow Trail."
- Heather Stevens: "I plan on going to college."
- Marcus Tucker: "Go to college."
- David White: "Maybe go to school."

Going Green at ONHS

By Emmitt Big Medicine
Thunderhawk Times

Oneida Nation High School is trying to do something a little different than other schools. They are going to increase composting and recycling more than they already do.

Recycling and composting will help the planet. At the high school, they have bins especially for bottle and cans. Students should try to have their parents do the same by telling them what they are doing at school to help the environment and try practicing these also at home.

During the spring at school, students go into the woods located behind the school and tap trees for sap.

Every Earth Day, April 21st, the entire school goes out and cleans the yard around the school.

ONHS Thunderhawk Lacrosse season

By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

After a couple of weeks of straight conditioning in a gym, the ONHS Lacrosse team was able to get in shape by the time the snow melted.

This year's team has players from Seymour and West DePere who are helping ONHS to have a great team. Everybody that is on the team is starting to know each other very well. They are a family that works hard together to be able to have a winning season and to have a fun season together.

Since the Thuderhawks are considered a JV team this year, they are trying to work hard together so that they can get to the varsity level. The team has about 15 players on the team; all the players are committed to getting into the varsity level.

Andrew Wiggins: Top High School Basketball Player

By Marcus Tucker
Thunderhawk Times

Andrew Wiggins was born February 23, 1995. He was born in Toronto, Ontario. He is currently the top college recruit for basketball, making him the top high school basketball player in the U.S. He was named the 2013 Naismith Prep Player of the Year in February of this year. He was also named the Gatorade boy's basketball National Player of the Year in March.

He is in his last year of high school at Huntington Prep School in Huntington, West Virginia. His father was a former NBA player and his mother is an Olympic track-and-field sprinter. He played in the 2010 FIBA U-17 Canadian team and the 2012 FIBA U-18 team. He signed to the University of Kansas. He has a bright and very fortunate future ahead of him.

My High School Experience

By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

Coming into high school I was a totally different person than I am now. I walked in nervous and anxious that I wasn't going to fit in or make it through this. I walked into this old building and was clueless as to where I was. I missed my freshmen orientation and didn't know where any of my classes were.

The first thing I remember was looking for my friends to help me though the building. For the first week, the jokes about freshmen hazing made me nervous to walk through the halls.

Sophomore year I was less nervous about high school but there were still upper classmen that made me nervous. Junior year I was very confident and proud of myself. I started walking through the halls with my head held high.

Senior year changed everything because the friends I was with, and the new ones I made in the process. Although I had a bad case of "senioritis," I enjoyed every minute of my high school career. I loved going to sporting events, being a part of my schools government, and being in the atmosphere of Oneida Nation High School.

Many people talk about Oneida like it's a school for slackers and we won't amount to anything, but I wouldn't go back and change my high school experience for anything else. The only thing I would like to see changed is the building itself.

MBDA Announces Grant Competition to Create Jobs and Grow Businesses

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Commerce's Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA) today announced a solicitation for applications from prospective candidates to operate a new MBDA Business Center in one National location with a significant American Indian or Alaska Native population. Applicants are required to choose one of the following locations: Bridgeport, Conn., Buffalo, N.Y., Green Bay, Wis., Jackson, Miss., Milwaukee or Portland, Ore. The successful applicant will join a network of more than 30 MBDA Business Centers across the United States and Puerto Rico. The grant amount will be $255,000 per year for a four year cycle.

"The American Indian and Alaskan Native business community comprises approximately 200,000 companies and generates nearly $27 billion in annual revenue," said David A. Hinson, MBDA National Director. "It is our goal to ensure the continued success of all minority-owned firms who in turn strengthen the economy and create American jobs."

The MBDA helps to create and maintain jobs by supporting the growth and global expansion of U.S. minority-owned businesses. In Fiscal Year 2012, the MBDA helped create and retain over 16,000 jobs, the highest level in the 44-year history of the Agency, and helped its clients obtain over $3.6 billion in contracts and capital awards.

The MBDA Business Center program has had notable success in increasing public and private sector contracts and capital investments obtained by minority-owned firms. The primary objectives of the business centers is to provide strategic consulting services to minority-owned firms that will result in the creation and retention of jobs for Americans through business growth as well as to foster global business expansion by promoting export opportunities. The successful applicant of this competition is also expected to address the unique economic challenges and opportunities in Indian Country and Native Alaska.

Although each MBDA Business Center is strategically located in areas with significant numbers of minority-owned firms in the state and surrounding areas, they are not limited by geographic boundaries and may serve minority businesses in all 50 states and Puerto Rico. This expanded reach is designed to facilitate collaborative efforts among minority-owned firms around the U.S. and with Fortune 500 companies regardless of location.

Eligible Applicants:

For-profit entities (including but not limited to sole-proprietorships, partnerships, limited liability companies and corporations), non-profit organizations, state and local government entities, American Indian Tribes and educational institutions are eligible to apply to operate a business center.

Submission Requirements:

Applicants must review and adhere to the full Announcement of Federal Funding Opportunity (FFO). This document outlines program details and instructions for submitting an application. The FFO can be accessed at www.Grants.gov or www.mbda.gov. Only one location among the specific cities listed may be proposed within an application.

Applications must be submitted electronically and time-stamped at www.Grants.gov by 11:59 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time (EDT) on June 22, 2013. Applications that are time-stamped after the deadline will not be considered.

MBDA will conduct a pre-application teleconference on June 4, 2013. The goal of the teleconference is to provide a background and summary of the MBDA Business Center program, as well as provide potential applicants with the opportunity to ask questions about the program and the application process. The time and registration instructions for the pre-application conference will be posted on MBDA's website. Applicants should visit MBDA at www.mbda.gov for more information. Interested applicants unable to participate in the pre-application teleconference may access a recording of the teleconference and materials on the Agency's website the following day.

Note: The MBDA Business Center program is not a grant program to start or expand an individual business. Applicants must be able to operate a business center and provide business consulting services to eligible minority-owned firms as set forth in the Announcement of Federal Funding Opportunity. Applications that do not meet these requirements will not be considered by MBDA for funding.

About the Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA)

MBDA, www.mbda.gov, an agency within the U.S. Department of Commerce, helps create and maintain U.S. jobs by promoting the growth and global competitiveness of large, medium and small businesses owned and operated by members of the minority and Diaspora communities. Through a national network of more than 30 business centers and a wide range of domestic and international strategic partners, MBDA provides Agency clients with the technical assistance and access to capital, contract opportunities and new markets that they need to create new jobs.

St. Norbert College receives Great Lakes College Ready Grant

DE PERE, WI - In collaboration with Oneida Nation High School, St. Norbert College was awarded an $81,565 grant from Great Lakes Higher Education Guaranty Corporation for its "Start Right" program.

The "Start Right" program is a tutoring/mentoring initiative based at Oneida Nation High School in Oneida, Wis. St. Norbert College students will serve as tutors for the program, working with all 9th - and 10th-grade Native American students. The tutors will spend time in the language arts classroom during the day, and assist students with their homework two days a week after school. The "Start Right" program will focus on improving students' English scores in order to prepare them for the rigors of college academics.

"The program provides our students with the opportunity to have current college students from St. Norbert College assist them with their homework and most importantly provide the 'encouragement' message of getting ready for college which starts in the 9th/10th grade," said Art Skenandore, principal of the Oneida Nation High School. "The partnership with St. Norbert is an engaging step to assist our Oneida Nation High School students," he added.

Nearly 4,000 students in the region, including those in grades 6 through 12 and adult learners, will be served by this and other programs that received College Ready grants. Each program has developed strategies to prepare their students for college by helping them to improve their academic performance, as measured through grade point averages (GPAs) or ACT and SAT scores. Strategies include a mix of short-term, focused programming as well as year-round support. Regardless of the strategy employed, each program has committed to tracking the impact of their efforts on preparing students for college success.

For more information on the "Start Right" program, contact Bridgit Martin, director of multicultural student services at St. Norbert College, at 920-403-3963 or email bridgit.martin@snc.edu.

Public Hearing Notice

3759 W. Mason St., Ridgeview Plaza – Suite 4

Purpose:
Land Access Designation for Oneida Parks

The Environmental Resource Board (ERB) is identified in the Public Use of Lands and Trespass Law as the body to determine the designations for Tribal Land.

The purpose of this hearing is to identify the proper land access designations for Oneida Park lands for different land uses. Land Access shall be created which designates these Parks as one of the following: Limited Access, Oneida Community Access, Oneida Tribal Member Access, or Open Access. The ERB together with the EH&SD shall, after holding a public hearing and reviewing any comments received, make written findings of fact and determine the designations towards the creation of a Land Access map.

I. Testimony:

A. Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.

B. Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Environmental Resource Board encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of five (5) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to Eugene Schubert, Policy Analyst, eschuber@oneidanation.org or Chad Wilson, Project Manager, cwilson1@oneidanation.org at Environmental Resource Board, 3759 W. Mason St, Ridgeview Plaza Suite #6, Oneida, WI 54155

If you would like to obtain a copy of the Parks under discussion, the land access designations under the Public Use of Lands & Trespass Law, or have any questions as to the public hearing process you may contact Eugene Schubert at ERB, via email at: eschuber@oneidanation.org or call (920) 496-5362.*

Legislative Operating Committee
Public Meeting Notice

JUNE 13, 2013 • 5:00 PM
Business Committee Conference Room (BCCR)

Purpose: Small Business Project 2000 Amendments
The purpose of the amendments to the Small Business Project 2000 Policies and Procedures (Policy) is to change the Policy into a law and revise the terms under which small business loans are provided to eligible Tribal borrowers. The amendments include:

- Clarifying that Bay Bank is the exclusive bank that provides Tribally-funded loans under the Policy.
- Disqualifying applicants who are in arrears on money owed to the Tribe or to any Tribal subsidiary, instead of only disqualifying applicants who are in arrears on any Tribal loan.
- Reducing the maximum loan cap from $300,000 to $200,000 for loans that do not include real estate.
- Increasing the borrower's minimum contribution from 5% to 15%.
- Removing a flat 5% loan interest rate and authorizing the interest rate to be set through resolution by the Oneida Business Committee.
- Expanding the maximum term of a real estate loan from 15 to 20 years, and allowing loans to be amortized over 30 years, instead of 25.
- Requiring the Loan Fund Manager to provide a borrower with 20 calendar days written notice of the documents that the borrower must bring to the closing.
- Revising the default provisions to provide the borrower with more information on how to cure a default, and to require a minimum of 30 calendar days following such notice whereby the borrower can cure the default.
- Updating the format of the Law.

Public Meeting Process

A. Oral: The presiding Legislative Operating Committee member(s) may impose a time limit for oral testimony. Any time limit imposed shall not be less than five (5) minutes. 4. Oneida School Board – Susan White, Chairwoman Motion by Patty Hoeft to accept the Oneida School Board quarterly report, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried unanimously
a. Approve procedural exception to hiring component of the Memorandum of Agreement between Oneida Business Committee and Oneida School Board
Sponsor: Greg Matson
Motion by Greg Matson to approve the procedural exception to hiring component of the Memorandum of Agreement between Oneida Business Committee and Oneida School Board, which requires three school board members to be present for the hiring process and the March 12, 2013 interviews were held with two school board members, due to an illness of the third board member, seconded by Vince DelaRosa, Motion carried with one abstention:
Abstained: Tina Danforth
For the record: Tina Danforth stated that it's advisable that the school board have an alternate school board member in case that this happens in the future that somebody is unable to make an interview or that you have alternative days scheduled as well. Like if you can't meet on this day because you don't have necessary parties that you have a subsequent day.
Motion by Tina Danforth that the sublease be finalized no later than May 28, 2013. In the event the sublease is not thoroughly vetted and approved by the School Board, which means you may have to have a special meeting, the funds will be considered for utilization of the project elsewhere, seconded by David Jordan. Motion failed with four opposed:
Opposed: Melinda J. Danforth, Patty Hoeft, Greg Matson, Paul Ninham
For the record: David Jordan stated this is a perfect example why we have too many boards, committees and commissions. There are so many silos; we cannot get anything done in this tribe because all of these silos are put up. This is something that needs to be brought back to the GTC for reconsideration because there are so many that supersede other boards and committees, we can't get anything done.
For the record: Tina Danforth stated it is imperative that this sublease be concluded in order to not be a detriment to the bond funds that have been available for this project.
Motion by Patty Hoeft that Butch Rentmeester, Development Division Director and Don White, Governmental Services Division Director bring back a report on May 22, 2013 on the status of the community events area. Hopefully in that report, they will tell us the sublease is done and that the Attorney representing the Tribe on this matter to also be included in the report status, seconded by Tina Danforth. Motion carried unanimously

Oneida Nation Compact with New York a bad deal for all Iroquois

By Doug George-Kanentiio

As an original member of the Land Claims Committee for the Mohawk Nation I took a firm stance against the cession of our aboriginal lands to New York State regardless of what kind of offer then Governor Mario Cuomo tendered.

I was committed to defending our treaties which committed us to act in union as Haudenosaunee, I did not believe we had any authority to sell the earth beneath our feet and I was compelled to protect the rights of those yet unborn unto the seventh generation.

For those who felt as I did the thought of ceding our aboriginal lands or agreeing to the expansion of New York State authority upon our territories was reprehensible. We were a part of a strong tradition of opposing the State and of defending our people from administrative intrusions such as external taxation which, we knew, would lead to the ultimate loss of our sovereignty. We knew commercial gambling was a trap set by the State to place our lands into US federal trust before removing the last elements of our heritage. The late Tadodaho Leon Shenandoah was cited for his adamant opposition to gambling since he knew it would involve fatal compromises in our morals as well. He predicted, however, that there are those among us who cared nothing for our ancient principles but would exploit our collective rights in their mad pursuit of material wealth.

Tragically, the warnings of Leon Shenandoah have come to pass.

The Oneida Nation of New York, which must be emphatically stated, is not a part of the Haudenosaunee Confederacy. Nor is the pro-gambling Seneca Nation of Indians or the St. Regis Tribal Council. All three groups have no formal or informal connection with the Confederacy but muddy the public's perception as to who the Haudenosaunee are by making unauthorized use of the Confederacy's symbols and is traditions. They do so to protect their gambling operations despite the Confederacy's official opposition to this immoral activity.

But this does not stop them from affecting the Confederacy and its standing as a politically and socially distinct society. It must be absolutely clear that the three casino "tribes" are not protected by the 1794 Treaty of Canandaigua which was made by the Confederacy with the USA. The Oneida Nation of New York did not exist until 1993, the Seneca Nation of Indians was created in 1848 and the St. Regis Tribe was formed by an act of the New York State Legislature in 1892. None govern according to the Great Law of Peace nor do any of the three have the requisite chiefs, clanmothers, faithkeepers or spiritual customs which define a Haudenosaunee council.

Nonetheless the terrible deal entered into between the Oneida Nation "representative" on May 16 brings great harm to our people. It was negotiated in secrecy without the knowledge or consent of the Oneida people just as this self-appointed "representative" did with Governor Mario Cuomo in 1993. It ceded all of the homelands of the Oneidas except for a highly conditional acreage which the representative placed into "trust" which means the US and not the Oneidas own their land. It brings taxation to the Oneidas, a fatal compromise in their aboriginal sovereignty. It imposed New York State administrative and policing authority upon a people who have long opposed such policies as contradictory to their rights to exclusive jurisdiction. It concedes the Oneida's "sovereign immunity" from any judicial claim. It makes a mockery to any argument of legal distinction. And it may well destroy the other Haudenosaunee if it is allowed to pass.

As was seen in the disasterous Oneida Nation v. City of Sherrill case of 2005 the US courts will make no distinction between the Iroquois and what legal ruling or compact applied to one applies to all.

Anyone who knows anything about the Haudenosaunee and the current state of New York-Iroquois relations could have easily predicted that the governor would concentrate on breaking the Iroquois by attacking it weakest link. In this case it was the Oneida Nation of New York, a pariah among the Iroquois for its dictatorial control, its documented human rights abuses and its refusal to allow any democratic reforms on its homelands.

There are strict prohibitions within traditional Iroquois law against the selling of land, engaging in commercial gambling or doing anything which compromises the rights of the unborn. On May 16 the Oneida Nation of New York's "representative" violated all of those laws as he showed his complete contempt for our traditional beliefs.

The challenge for the Haudenosaunee Confederacy is how to minimize the damages inherent in the May 16 compact by restoring democracy and common sense to the Oneida people.

Doug George-Kanentiio, Akwesasne Mohawk, is a co-founder of the Native American Journalists Association. The former editor of the journal Akwesasne Notes he is the author of "Iroquois on Fire" among other books. He resides in Oneida Castle on the homesite of the Oneida leader Shenandoah.

Letters & Opinions...

Greed

I attended the May 5 General Tribal Council (GTC) meeting. I was proud of the tribal members trying to get their points across.

It's as if the people all want big per capita.

Whoever is running the show up there don't want to pay GTC members nothing.

Yet since the casino started they have made bad deals costing Oneida people millions.

It continues to this day.

It's really yucky.

Oneida money is from the casino. It belongs to the Oneida people.

And to say the Radisson is going to hit the tribe for a million dollars. Corruption, stealing, the whole casino thing probably isn't of God.

Jesus said "I am the way the truth and the life. No one comes unto the Father except by Me."

Bruce A. Doxtater

Get the Facts

Dear Editor,

I'm disappointed about the action the General Tribal Council took regarding the Oneida Seven Generation's "plastic to oil" (P2O) plans at the GTC meeting on May 5th. The OBC Chairman didn't help to ensure the GTC got accurate and balance information, either, about the P2O plans for the Towers Foods site in Oneida, WI.

The Oneida Seven Generations corp (OSGC) is separate from the tribal organization and they have their own budget and Board of Directors. The OSGC was set up by the BC to operate independently of the tribe so they could enter into contracts and projects without making the tribe liable for anything. So, their "corporate veil," must stay in place to protect the tribe and tribal organization.

The presentation by Leah Dodge about the OSGC plans to set up a P2O plant was factually incorrect regarding dioxin, smoke stacks, and the technology. Her character assassinations of the OSGC board members and staff wasn't very appealing either. She conveyed to the membership that there would be poisonous gases that would harm children and giant smoke stacks built in Oneida. Any high school student, up on their science skills, could have known that her science claims weren't adding up.

I heard her slide show media, created on a Mac computer, caused the technical failure of the BC's laptop when they tried to play the OSGC slide show afterwards.

The most disappointing part of this meeting was how the GTC refused to hear directly from the OSGC board and staff. When it became obvious some of the GTC was getting restless, a motion to table the topic was made. The motion failed by only 59 votes (755 yes vs. 814 no to table). The motion to table, and wait for a better day to hear the OSGC presentation, was a very close vote -- which means many people were willing to keep an open mind.

The P2O plant wouldn't have had a giant smoke stack on it, nor would it have created dioxin. One piece of jargon to learn is the WI DNR defines a vent, regardless of size or depth, as a "stack." So, your kitchen stove, furnace, and bathroom plumbing are all technically "stacks" used for internal air quality according to the WI DNR.

The plant would have used food-grade plastic (no chlorine to create dioxins) and a closed loop system (no flame to burn) to create base oil and propane. Although, low on the totem pole of "renewable energy" or "recycling," the P2O would have kept plastic out of the landfills. They would have produced base oil for sale to oil refineries, and propane to benefit tribal members.

The OSGC were proud to bring new jobs and revenue to our community as we expect of the BC and our corporations. I was excited about the 45 new jobs that the P2O plant would have created. Our local families would have benefitted so much from these jobs created by OSGC.

Sincerely,
Sherrole Benton

GOP lawmaker: Bill will save voter ID

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ One of the chief authors of Wisconsin's voter photo identification plan is shopping around a new bill designed to allay legal concerns that the requirements are too burdensome by letting poor people opt out.

Republican lawmakers passed voter photo ID requirements two years ago, saying the move was needed to combat election fraud. But a pair of Dane County judges struck the requirements down in separate lawsuits last year. One ruled the requirements were unconstitutional because some people entitled to vote might lack the resources to obtain an ID. The other said the law substantially impairs the right to vote for poor people, noting birth certificates are required to obtain the IDs and voters who lack them must pay for them.

The state Justice Department has appealed both decisions. Two federal lawsuits challenging the requirements are still pending.

Rep. Jeff Stone, R-Greendale, was one of the main sponsors of the voter ID bill two years ago. He began circulating a new measure last week that would make a multitude of changes to Wisconsin election law, chief among them provisions that would allow voters to opt out of showing photo identification if they sign an affidavit for poll inspectors saying they're poor and can't obtain the identification without paying a fee; have a religious objection to being photographed; or they can't obtain the proper documents needed to acquire photo identification.

Those voters' ballots would be marked and canvassers could review them for validity in the event of a recount, Stone said. Municipal clerks or election commissioners also would be allowed to investigate the voter's qualifications.

"We want to address the concerns that have come up as the case has worked through the courts," Stone said. "If we pass this bill we'll once again have photo ID in place in Wisconsin."

Lester Pines is the attorney who brought one of the Dane County lawsuits challenging voter ID on behalf of the League of Women Voters. He said Stone's bill is essentially an admission that the original bill is unconstitutional. He hadn't studied the new bill carefully but called it a positive step.

"I would be less than honest if I didn't say they're getting closer," Pines said. "Maybe they can get it right this time."

Assembly Assistant Minority Leader Sandy Pasch, D-Shorewood, said in a statement Republicans should focus on legislation that creates jobs rather than "pushing a divisive and unnecessary anti-voter agenda."

The bill doesn't stop at voter ID. It makes a number of other changes to state election law, including allowing corporations to make political contributions, bringing Wisconsin law in line with the 2010 U.S. Supreme Court Citizens United decision.

The measure also would permit lobbyists to make contributions to state candidates between the first day the candidates can circulate nomination papers and the day of the election. Currently lobbyists can make contributions between June 1 and Election Day.

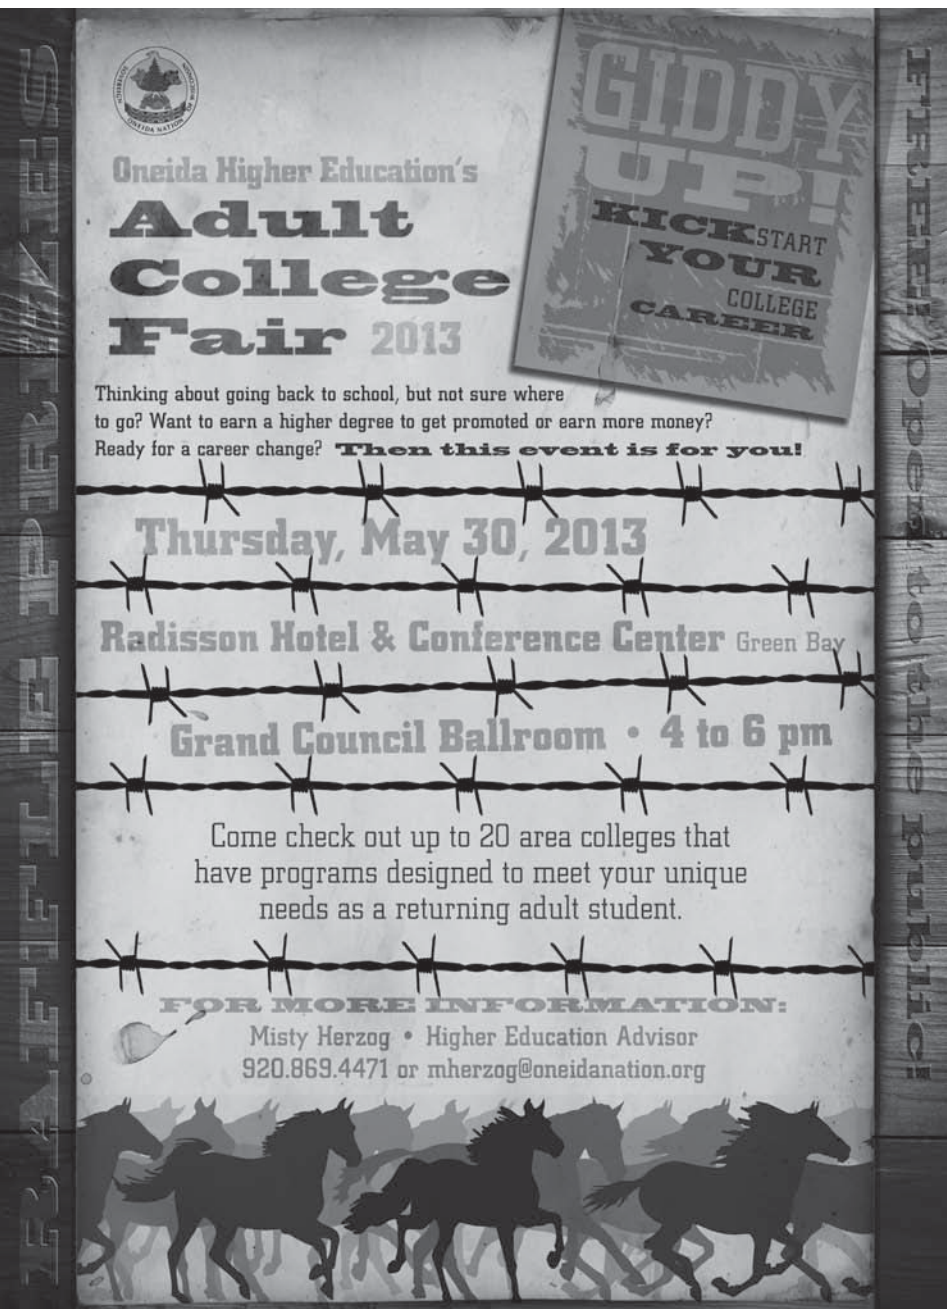
Voters would be barred from submitting electronic forms of documents proving residence during registration. The state Government Accountability Board also would have to create a list of all registered voters that includes what type of documents they submitted.

Candidates seeking recounts would have to pay $25 per ward or per undivided municipality rather than the current $5. The measure wouldn't change current state law allowing free recount for candidates in an election where 1,000 or fewer voters were cast or the margin between the winner and loser is between 0.5 percent and 2 percent of the total votes, however.

School boards would be prohibited from spending any state aid or local tax dollars to spread word about any referendum on whether their districts could exceed revenue limits.

And anyone looking to recall a local official would have to show the official has been charged with a crime or ethics violation. Under current law, anyone who circulates a recall petition against a local official must indicate a reason related to the official's duties. Local officials have been pressing lawmakers to tighten up the requirements, saying its currently too easy to initiate a recall against them. Rep. Al Ott, R-Forest Junction, has introduced a stand-alone bill mirroring Stone's criminal and ethics language.

Stone said it makes sense to include all the election changes in one sweeping bill rather than have 20 or 30 pieces of legislation floating around. Stone sent an email to his fellow legislators on Friday giving them until noon on Wednesday to sign on as co-sponsors.



"(The bill will) make for an election system that's fair and accurate for everyone," Stone said.

Republicans control both the state Assembly and Senate as well as the governor's office. A spokeswoman for Assembly Speaker Robin Vos, R-Burlington, said Vos expects the body to vote on the measure yet this spring.

A spokeswoman for Senate Majority Leader Scott Fitzgerald, R-Juneau, was vague, saying Fitzgerald's staff was still going through the bill.

4-H Daffodil transplant and giveaway

We are inviting the community to come out and assist the 4-H club in relocating the daffodils.

The flowers are being moved into a more suitable location for community members to harvest them.

For every daffodil you assist in relocating-you get to take one home for free! Daffodils are easy to grow and return every Spring. There are numerous varieties of Daffodils available.

This community event will be held on Saturday, June 8th from 9am to 3pm. The location of the 4-H event will take place just West of the old Tower Foods building. It is near the intersection of Water Circle Place.

VThis will be a fun event for the entire family! Please bring shovels, garden gloves and containers for transplanting your daffodils home.

In case of rain the follow up date will be Saturday, June 15. For more information contact Bill at 920-819-1933.

Spring cleaning a great time to reuse and recycle

Spring cleaning offers a great opportunity to reduce waste, save money and make a positive impact on the environment.

As people are cleaning out the basement or garage, the Department of Natural Resources offers a number of helpful hints on their website to recycle old materials and keep waste out of our landfills:

- Organize a swap with friends, family or coworkers to trade books, clothing, games and other household items;
- Start a compost pile of yard materials that accumulate from spring yard cleanup;
- Donate items in usable condition, such as clothing, appliances, books and home construction and renovation materials;
- Create a designated "to recycle" pile where you can collect all recyclables, including retired electronics, old magazines, junk mail, cardboard boxes and other items;
- Contact your local recycling program to see what large or bulky items you may be able to bring to a drop-off for recycling, such as Styrofoam packaging, appliances, large cardboard boxes, and yard debris; and
- Check if your community or county is hosting a Clean Sweep (exit DNR) collection where you can bring unwanted household chemicals or leftover prescription drugs.

For more reuse and recycling ideas to use during spring cleaning, visit the DNR website and search "recycling for all seasons."

Other tips from the DNR include:

- Going through your child's school supplies from this year and sort out what can be reused around the house or in the next school year, including notebooks, tape, crayons and colored pencils; organizing a swap with other families to trade books, clothing for growing children, age-appropriate games and school supplies; college students can donate unwanted furniture, appliances, household goods and clothing to local resale stores, and can also; return old textbooks to a university bookstore or sell them to an independent reseller to avoid sending them to a landfill.

New Field Guide Helps Anglers Recognize Invasive Species

Don't know your round goby from your rusty crayfish? Think a bighead carp looks an awful lot like a lake trout? If you're one of the thousands of Wisconsin anglers who are a little less than incisive about your invasive species identification, fear not: The Great Lakes Sea Grant Network and Wildlife Forever have you covered They've teamed up to produce a handy invasive species field guide called Invaders of the Great Lakes, available now from Adventure Publications in Cambridge, Minnesota.

The 171-page guide, complete with images and detailed descriptions of headline-grabbing Great Lakes invaders like sea lamprey and round goby and more obscure species like the faucet snail and the threespine stickleback serves multiple purposes. Specific sections are devoted to aquatic, plant and invertebrates. Each species page details how the invader impacts fishing quality as well as specific steps that can be taken to prevent its future spread.

"'Clean, Drain, Dry' is naturally where prevention starts," explained Tim Campbell, aquatic invasive species outreach specialist for University of Wisconsin Sea Grant, referring to the three-step process that anglers can use to make sure their boats aren't harboring invasive species as they move from lake to lake. "But beyond that, there are plenty of species-specific things anglers can do to make sure they're not contributing to the problem."

The bottom of each page features an interesting fact about the invader in question. For instance, you may not have known that the aforementioned threespine stickleback is so aggressive it will attack a penny dropped in the water. Or that a voracious bighead carp can eat as much as a pound per day.

The guide is also useful in tracking the spread of invasive species into new environments. A section toward the back lists contacts for invasive species management in each of the fifty states, in case anglers see something unusual.

"Having resources like this to identify and report and invasive species is an important part of rapid response," said Campbell. "If you can detect, you can respond and take action. If you don't find something early, there's no chance to contain it."

The guide will be available for distribution this summer. It will be available for purchase in UW Sea Grant's publications store and may eventually be developed as a smartphone app for anglers and nature-lovers who don't want to tuck a physical guide into their fishing gear.

Phil Moy, assistant director for research with University of Wisconsin Sea Grant, is especially grateful the guide has the endorsement of 2010 World Walleye Champion Johnnie Candle.

Summer of construction

County E Paving Project

The Outagamie County Highway Department will be making safety improvements to County E between County EE and the east county line in the Town of Oneida. The improvements include reclaiming the existing pavement, installing curb radiuses and deceleration lanes at all intersections, and then repaving.

Preparations off the pavement have already started and the road is open to all traffic with intermittent lane closures using flaggers. Starting mid-July, the major work will begin and the road will be closed to through traffic, but open for local access. The detour for through traffic will be County EE to County U. The project is expected to be completed in mid-August.

Note for residents: Your mailboxes will need to be removed and temporarily relocated prior mid-July. Another notice will be sent with more details. This work is not expected to extend beyond the existing highway right-of-way-line.

Visit http://www.outagamie.org/index.aspx?page=473 for more information.

Fond du Lac food drive brings in 65 tons of food

FOND DU LAC, Wis. (AP) ~ A Fond du Lac food drive failed to set a world record this weekend but still brought in 65 tons of food.

Organizers of the Food for Freedom drive were trying to break the record for volume of food raised in a 24-hour period - just under 560,000 pounds. They fell well short, but still managed to collect about 130,000 pounds, The Reporter Media reported.

"We were slower than we anticipated, but we raised a ton of food for people who really need it,'" said organizer Dan Loomans, a 17-year-old junior at Fond du Lac High School. "I told my board and supervisors before we headed out here today that no matter what happens, if we go out there and at the end of the day say there wasn't one more thing we could have done, then we will have had a successful weekend."

As the clock ticked down the final minutes Sunday afternoon, volunteers packed food into boxes that were weighed and loaded into trailers.

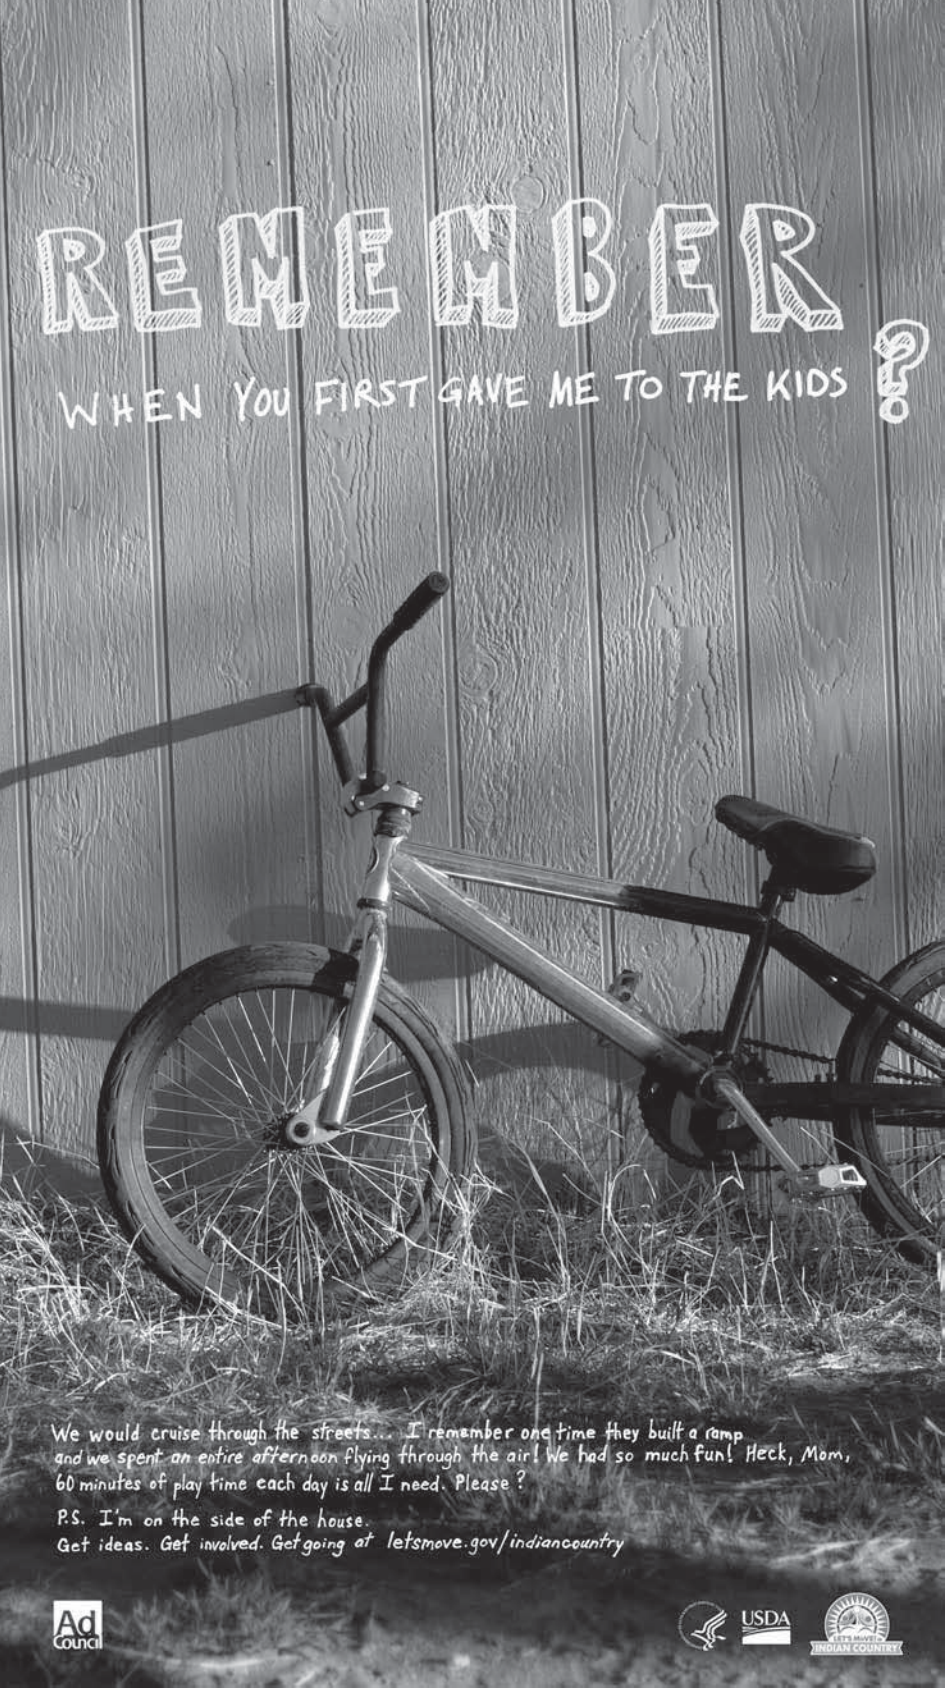
Jenny King, a Fond du Lac High School teacher and Food for Freedom board member, said she wasn't focusing on the fact that the group fell short of its goal.

"We have a lot of pounds of food that we're taking to these food pantries that they didn't have before," King said.

Donated food will be sent across a five-county area, including Paul's Pantry of Green Bay. Craig Robbins, a spokesman for that facility, said he's grateful for the donation, especially because contributions tend to dry up in the summer.

"People are typically on vacations during the summer and not really thinking about feeding the hungry," Robbins said. "We've (run) out of food during the summer months. This will definitely help us tremendously."

The timing may have worked against Food for Freedom. Loomans said the group shouldn't have held the event during a holiday weekend because that made it harder to recruit volunteers. Even so, more than 500 people participated.



Gail Hable, who works for the Emmanuel Food Pantry of Oshkosh, said her food pantry is the smallest of about eight in the Oshkosh area, but still goes through 1,000 pounds of food per week.

"Today's donation could easily mean a month's supply of food to our pantry," she said.

Loomans estimated that he put in nearly 4,000 volunteer hours since setting the project in motion 18 months ago. While it was difficult to juggle the food drive with all his other responsibilities, he said he reminded himself how important it was to feed the needy.

"While speaking at a Boys and Girls Club event, I told them that one out of seven people goes to bed hungry. A little girl came up to me afterwards and asked, 'Does that mean I live in poverty?' That's why we're doing this - for kids like her," he said.

ONEIDA NATION LADY THUNDERHAWKS SOFTBALL

Season ends against Wildcats

Kali photos/Travis Cottrell

The Oneida Nation Lady Thunderhawks softball team traveled to Green Bay West for the final game of the season. The ladies gave up a couple of early runs but quickly answered with runs of their own. The ladies were in a close battle during the last inning, but they were not able to hang on. Final score: Oneida 6, Green Bay West 7.

Casino bets on face lift to gain competitive edge

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Tribe broke ground on a $27.9 million casino expansion project in hopes of capturing even more of the area's gaming customers and maintain their competitive edge over the other 15 gaming facilities in Wisconsin.

The expansion and renovation will upgrade the main casino along with the Mason Street Casino. Changes to the main casino include more space allocated to slot machines, approximately 5,000 square feet of smoke-free gaming, relocation of the smoke shop to the gaming floor and a food court with three separate restaurant selections. The main casino will be the new home for the poker room and also host a 10,500 square foot sports bar and grill. The Mason Street location will add a 100-seat country themed bar and grill. The facility will expand by 8,000 square feet on the northwest side. More slot machines will be added with poker moving to the main casino.

The improvements were based off focus group results with Oneida Fun Club members.

"We are going to reinvest in ourselves," said Gaming General Manager Louise Cornelius. "Our vision is to ensure all customers have a positive entertainment experience each and every time they visit. The Oneida Gaming Division is headed for an incredibly exciting year with this expansion. We are energized and excited to put the plan of action in motion for development of expansion of gaming, entertainment and dining experiences."

Members of the Oneida Business Committee along with National Indian Gaming Association's Chairman Ernie Stevens, Jr. break ground on the casino expansion.

National Indian Gaming Association Chairman Ernie Stevens feels modern and guest focused gaming facilities benefits all tribes.

"People come to our facilities to spend their recreational dollars and it's not always about a slot machine. Whether it's good music, good food or just a different experience, in today's gaming world, there are a lot more options out there," Stevens said. Insurance leaders detail uncertainty of overhaul

By Scott Bauer
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ It will be a tough task implementing the online health insurance marketplaces that are required of each state under the federal health care overhaul, and there will no doubt be consumer horror stories about trying to navigate them, insurance company executives warned Tuesday.

The insurance exchanges will offer private coverage to the uninsured and subsidies for low-income consumers. They're supposed to be open for enrollments by Oct. 1 and operating fully by Jan. 1.

"There's a great deal of uncertainty almost everywhere you look," said Mark Moody, the president and chief executive officer of WEA Trust, which offers insurance to Wisconsin school districts, state health plan members, and local units of government.

Just like when Medicare Part D was implemented, using the exchange will be stressful and chaotic for months before things settle down, Moody said.

"There will be horror stories, stories of so-called train wrecks," Moody said at the panel discussion organized by Wisconsin Health News. "It will be a difficult process to get the exchanges started. ... I think fundamentally the Affordable Care Act is on the right track but it's going to be a long, slow process."

How Wisconsin's exchange will work under real-life conditions is untested, said Mike Hamerlik, the president and chief executive officer of WPS Health Insurance, which covers about 164,000 people through health plans sold to individuals and small employers.

"It is dependent on proper execution," he said. "How this is rolled out is going to largely define at least the pace at which it is adopted."

Neither WEA Trust nor WPS are participating in Wisconsin's exchange, at least initially, because of all the uncertainty.

Gov. Scott Walker declined to have Wisconsin construct and run its own exchange, instead ceding that responsibility to the federal government. Walker, who like most Republicans staunchly opposed President Barack Obama's signature health care law, also rejected a federally funded expansion of Medicaid.

Instead, Walker's proposed budget would restrict the income eligibility requirement for qualifying for the state's BadgerCare Medicaid

Students build own computers

Elvis Bartlett walks students through a software update, the final step before they can take their computers home.

By Travis Cottrell

Computers play a major role in everyday life, making knowledge of computer components a valuable skill in today's technological world. The newly formed Technology Club at the Oneida Nation High School gives students the opportunity to develop that skill by piecing together their own computer.

The club began with expertise, spearheaded by Elvis Bartlett and James Sommerfeldt, and spare equipment offered to the club by the Management Information Services (MIS) department.

"I gave them the parts and sort of walked around to make sure everyone was working. They work well with each other, I would show one student how to install a hard drive another how to put in some RAM and then they kind of showed each other how to put them together," said Bartlett.

The actual construction of the computers inner workings proved to be the most difficult task. Once those components were working together properly then the students were able to update the computer's software.

"I handed out packets of information on how to regularly clean your computer, just basic maintenance stuff; I figured that would be the easiest way to start learning the computers," Bartlett said.

The students used computers that were donated by the MIS department after they were replaced by newer models.

"We try to salvage laptops that were just going to be disposed of otherwise. That's a great place to start working is on scrapped equipment," Bartlett added.

Meeting one to two times a week for the past four months has given students a chance to get involved in a subject that has accumulated much interest.

"It was really fun getting to do something like this. We learned how to take a computer apart and put it back together. I was always interested in computers so I joined the club to get to learn about computers and build my own," said junior Vincent Webster.

Once the students have their computer built and running on updated software their project is complete and they will be able to take their computer home.

After the popularity and success of this new club there are hopes of expanding the club in the future.

"Hopefully in the near future we can offer this as part of the curriculum. We can have Elvis come in, or others from the MIS department, for assistance and we could include certifications from the Career Center," said math teacher Michael Hanke, whose classroom serves as the meeting and building room. "A lot of our students play sports so they don't have time to commit after school to learn these things. That's where we would again benefit from a classroom setting."

Aside from the possibility of offering computer technology classes, subjects such as computer graphics and building web pages are also being considered. Subjects that would further update the curriculum, bringing it into the information technology age.

Missing you on Father's Day

Norman J. Elm

February 1, 1931 – January 30, 2013

You never said "I'm leaving"
You never said "goodbye"
You were gone before I knew it,
And only God knew why.
There are no words to tell you,
Just what I feel,
The shock, the hurt, the anger that is all inside.
A million times I need you
A million times I cried
If Love alone could have saved you
You never would have died
In Life I loved you dearly
In death I love you still
In my heart you hold a place
That no one could ever fill
It broke my heart to lose you
But you didn't go alone
For part of me went with you
The day God took you home
Things will never be the same
And although it hurts so bad
I will smile whenever I hear your name
And be proud you were my Dad.
That is why on this Day I am remembering you in every way.
I miss you and love you forever.

Love, Carol, Lori, Norb, Tamara, Tasha, Meg, Bryce, Skylee, Annah and Ahlayna

Thank You

The Family of Robert "Bob" W. King would like to thank everyone for their love and support during this difficult time. Our family was overwhelmed by the prayers, kindness, and generosity we received from our family and friends within the Green Bay, Oneida, Menominee, and Shawano communities. To all those who comforted us with visits, phone calls, beautiful flowers, and donations, we could never thank you enough. We are truly blessed to have you all in our hearts.

A very special thank you goes to Uncle Bunker Pecore and the whole family for holding our hands and walking us through the details involved for such a lovely funeral for Bob, and to Beverly King, Julie King, Sandra Danforth, and Kelly Danforth for managing our home and caring for us. Our sincere gratitude and appreciation to the cooks, Pat Roberts and the kitchen crew for the wonderful meal, Father David McElroy of St Michael's Church, for your comforting words and beautiful service, Pall Bearers, Alter Girls, Savage Creek drum, the Long Marsh Mangler's for giving Chief Patoota "Big Buck Hunter" a final salute and Swedberg Funeral Home.

We will never forget the love and support, you helped us through a very difficult time in our lives.

Passing On...

Domencich, Lee

Deceased June 2, 2013

Lee Domencich, age 48, passed away at his home in Oneida on Sunday June 2, 2013. He had fulfilled his duties as a loving son, husband, father, brother, uncle, cousin and friend before he died. He is at peace now, and will be sadly missed by his family and friends. Born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, he was the son of Loretta (Stan) Webster and Donald Domencich. He also had a special mother Delores Steffey. Lee graduated from Freedom High School where he met his wife and life-long partner Lois Johnson. They have one daughter Eva, who was the center of his family life, and always made him proud. Lee worked for the Oneida Tribe of Wisconsin until forced to retire because of illness in 2005. He liked the blues, especially when played and sung by Jimi Hendrix. Lee also liked Bob Marley and Buddy Guy. He loved to play his guitar, even though he could never compare to his idols. Of all the places he liked, it was Jamaica that he always talked about. He really enjoyed the family trips there. Lee was a great cook and especially liked to grill ribs.

Lee is survived by his wife Lois, his daughter Eva, Lee's Ma Loretta (Stan) Webster, and his dad Don Domencich. He is further survived by his sister, Rae "Noki" (David) Skenandore and son Zach Schrap, his brother Tony (Jodi) Domencich, step brothers, Richard (Tina) Webster, Eli Webster, Pete Webster. Lee is also survived by his in laws; Bernard and Rose Johnson, brother in-laws, Bernie (Vicki) Johnson, and Dennis (Debbie) Johnson, sister in laws, Bonnie (Steve Kornaus) Johnson, and Debra Johnson, as well as numerous aunts, uncles, cousins and friends. He was preceded in death by his grandparents, Anthony and Dorothy Domencich, and Walter and Pearl House, as well as his step mother Donna Domencich.

Friends may have called the RYAN FUNERAL HOME 305 N. Tenth Street in De Pere from 4 – 7pm on Wednesday June 5, 2013. The Oneida Hymn Singers sang at 6:30pm followed by a prayer service at 7pm to bring the evening to a close. Visitation continued after 9am on Thursday at Oneida United Methodist Church until time of service at 10am with Pastor Candace Ascher officiating. Please go to www.ryanfh.com to send online condolences to the family.

The family would like to thank Officers Bill Cone and Merlin Cornelius of the Oneida Police Department for all of their care and concern.

Moore, Ida

October 24, 1930 – May 29, 2013

Ida C. Moore, 82, of Oneida, passed away on Wednesday evening, May 29, 2013. The daughter of the late Peter and Delia (King) Powlas was born on October 24, 1930. On February 3, 1956 she married Russell Moore. He preceded her in death in 1983. Ida enjoyed playing bingo, watching movies, and was an aspiring actress (appearing in a few off-Broadway numbers) before she developed a love for teaching where she spent 18 years teaching 5th grade in New York. She was a dedicated teacher, and she even kept track of all the students she tutored to see how they were doing. It was because of this commitment to her students that she was regarded continually as one of the top ten teachers in her school district. More than anything, Ida had a generous spirit that she shared with others.

Ida will be deeply missed by her children, Randy Moore and Amy Skenandore; her grandchildren, Ron (Kathy) Jones and Rachael Moore; great grandchildren, Hope Jones, Jordan Eastman, and Breanna Eastman. She was preceded in death by her husband and parents.

Friends and family were asked to gather on Monday, June 3, 2013 at Oneida Methodist Church from 9am until 11am when a memorial service was held, Pastor Candace Ascher officiated. Burial was in Oneida Methodist Cemetery. Please visit www.ryanfh.com to send online condolences to the Moore family. RYAN FUNERAL HOME is assisting the family.

Sauer, Ella

June 5, 1926 – May 30, 2013

Ella Sauer, 86, of Oneida, passed away Thursday morning, May 30, 2013 at a local hospital. The daughter of the late Milton and Mildred (Elm) Summers was born June 5, 1926 in Oneida. She married William Sauer on September 3, 1949 at St. Willebrord Catholic Church. He preceded her in death on January 9, 1999.

She worked for many years as an LPN at Bellin Hospital. She retired from the Oneida Community Health Center. She loved spending time with her grandchildren.

Survivors include her children, Bill Sauer, Tim (Colleen) Sauer, Edith Sauer, John Sauer, eleven grandchildren, Jessica Figura, Mary Vincent, Billy Sauer, Carol Roberts, Elizabeth Pries, Tim Sauer, Jr., Emily Sauer, Nicole Rommel, Aaron Rommel, Cole and Cade Sauer, fifteen great-grandchildren, her siblings, Rita Summers, Noel Cleven, Jan Frion, Arvilla Parsons, Luanne Green, Lynn Summers, Phillip Summers. She was preceded in death by her parents, her husband, Bill, her siblings, Emma Schultz, Lavinia Metoxen, Amanda Summers and Milton Summers, Jr.

Family and friends may have called St. Willebrord's Catholic Church, 209 South Adams Street, Green Bay from 9:00 to 10:30 am Saturday, June 1, 2013. Oneida Hymn Singing began at 10:00 am. Mass of Christian Burial was held at 10:30 am Saturday at the church with Father Andrew Cribben, O.Praem., officiating. Entombment in Allouez Mausoleum. Please visit www.ryanfh.com to send online condolences to the Sauer family. RYAN FUNERAL HOME of De Pere is assisting the family with arrangements.

Roberta "Bird" Tonnon, 49, of Chicago, passed away Thursday, May 2, 2013 from health problems that only God could heal in the spirit world. The daughter of the late Betty J. (Stevens) Tonnon, Guillermo "Willie" Garcia and Robert L. Tonnon, was born on March 18, 1964.

Roberta was a person who enjoyed her life with her children and grandchildren and spent as much time as possible with each of them. She loved to make dream catchers, toilet paper holders, puzzles and most of all thrift store bargain shopping with her favorite auntie Lil' Gal Marie Moreno. She was very proud of her American Indian culture and often wore jewelry, hats and boots that showed her love and passion for her culture.

Roberta is survived by her partner of 25 years, Jesus "Jesse" G. Valdez, her children, Tannara and son-in-law Fabian Reyna, Sr., Christopher, Michael (Senia) Tonnon, Abraham "Tootie", and Jesse "Jay" Valdez; her grandchildren, Fabian Jr., Isaiah Reyna, Neveah Tonnon, Christopher Tonnon, Jr., Leah Valdez and an unborn grandchild of son, Michael and Senia.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Betty J. (Stevens) Tonnon, Guillermo "Willie" Garcia and Robert L. Tonnon; her grandparents, Louie Webster and Mary Stevens; several aunts, uncles and cousins in Oneida, WI.

She is no longer suffering and is a 'Free Bird' as she would call it. She is loved by many and will be fondly remembered for the rest of our lives…until our chain links us again. We love you Mom!

Fairbrother Funeral Home, 4447 W. Irving Park Rd., Chicago, Il, assisted the family with arrangements.

In Loving Memory of
Lee Domencich

To my sister Lois, whose heart aches in unbelievable pain,
It's much too much to even explain.
Lee is gone. He passed away.
Now you and Eva must live day to day.
During his service,
while we were in church,
I wished I could stand and tell you his worth.
But I was too nervous and I know you won't believe, a little bit shy
I have to tell you how I feel,
he was a genuine guy.
So many funny stories, some I can't tell,
I just wish he were here healthy and well.
I'm one of many who know his worth,
All the good times while here on earth.
"Time heals all wounds," is an old cliché
I wish enough time passed to be that day.
But until that time, my sister, my friend,
My heart aches with you, like there's no end.

All my Love,
Bonnie XOXO

OTIE sponsors Club Invention

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises LLC (OTIE) is pleased to announce the sponsorship of the 2013 Club Invention summer camp program for Oneida Nation School System students entering grades 1-6.

OTIE will sponsor more than 20 children to attend Club Invention so that Oneida children have the opportunity to learn more about math, science, engineering and technology in a safe and familiar environment.

Club Invention will take place at the Oneida Nation Elementary School from June 10-14 and June 17-21, 2013, under the direction of ONES administration and teaching staff that have helped coordinate the Club Invention program through OTIE sponsorship.

Club Invention is a summer series program of Invent Now, Inc., that is dedicated to finding new ways to promote creativity and technology. The program was created for children in grades 1-6 to provide fun, educational activities based on math and science.

This is the first year that Club Invention is being brought to the Oneida community as part of the OTIE education outreach program, and is part of OTIE's commitment to providing education enrichment opportunities for Oneida children and their families.

If the program concept is successful and effectively plants the seeds of engineering and science interest in the minds of Oneida children, OTIE will continue to expand this program or a similar program over the next few years.

OTIE is an engineering, science and construction management services company owned by the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin.

to the plate."

Stevens also pointed out Indian gaming is accomplishing what it was designed to do.

"We were in the process of doing what exactly tribal government gaming does, expanding and building into our education system and our tribal government system. That is the true reason for gaming and that's really what we are all about," he said.

It is anticipated that the opening of the new food venues will create approximately 145 to 175 food and beverage jobs. The main casino construction is set to be completed in April 2014 while work at the Mason Street location is slated to be finalized in May of 2014.

The expansion plans were approved the General Tribal Council (GTC) during a November 2011 GTC Budget meeting.

"We have a great work force that continues to move our casino forward. We have the support of the Oneida Business Committee and most importantly more than 2,000 of our General Tribal Council that supported this expansion (and) gave us support and approval to move forward," added Cornelius.

Behind the Naming of Structures in Our Community

Embracing the Life Achievements of those Honored

Anna John

One of the catalysts of progress on the Oneida Reservation during a time when we experienced the most progress, was Anna John, nee Christjohn. Anna was the eldest daughter of Lucy and Mose Christjohn. She was born and raised on the Oneida Reservation during an era that brought hard times on Oneida people. Anna was raised by her Grandmother Louisa Christjohn. She married Noran John and they had eight children, four sons and four daughters: Richard, Emily, Darrel, Carlton (Beaver), Darwin, Brenda, LuAnne, and Rosemary.

Anna spent her life pursuing her personal vision to improve the quality of life on the Oneida Reservation by bringing the standard of health care, education and elder services to a higher quality. She had a strong work ethic and often times did much for her community through her church and through the Oneida Tribal Council. She was a strong advocate for providing resources for our Oneida people to acquire the skills needed to help themselves. She was staunch in her position about Oneida who needed to pick themselves up by the bootstraps when they were able and just as driven to help those who could not pick themselves up.

Anna was a fluent speaker of the Oneida Language and was also a consultant to the Oneida Language program and always willing to lend her ears to make sure pronunciation and diction were correct. Students of the Oneida language always knew they had support of these native speakers.

Anna worked with many other leaders in this community to improve the quality of life in a community that had dirt roads, outdoor toilets, no running water and old wood stoves for heat. She lived in an era when women hung their laundry out to dry and ironed clothes for their family. She knew what it was to actually cook meals for her family, three times a day. She made sure her family made it to school, work and church. Her values were strong family values, a good work ethic and dreams of education of her children in a healthy environment. She had a dream not only for her family, but for all Oneida families to live in decent homes, have jobs and go to school.

Later in life Anna developed a passion for taking care of our elders and meeting their health care needs. Somehow she and others got this idea that we could have our own nursing home to take care of those elders who didn't have the means to stay with family or needed medical attention that couldn't be provided at home. She and a host of other strong willed Oneida women began to take their talk one step further to fruition.

Anna combined her efforts with Priscilla "Budgie" Manders, Audrey Doxtator, and together these women began to meet and seek out the resources needed to identify funding for their new project.

Anna and Priscilla Manders were affectionately called Oneida's first cigarette girls. They were bound and determined to see their vision of a nursing home for Oneida elders come to fruition. They began to sell untaxed cigarettes weekly at our bingo games in the civic center out of a storage cabinet. The revenues went to a fund for the nursing home.

Oneida Government was a tool for Anna, she was quite adept at influencing the General Tribal Council. During Anna's lifetime it was not easy to get a quorum for our annual and semi-annual meetings of the General Tribal Council. The fact that we might one day pay each person to attend would most likely have shocked Anna. She would most likely rather see that money used for increasing and improving elder services and education. Very seldom was Anna John not in attendance at a GTC meeting. She had strong opinions and was well respected in the GTC as well as the Oneida community. When Anna spoke, people knew she spoke from the heart, with wisdom and she had the best interest of the Oneida Tribe at heart.

So who was Anna John, and why did we name a Nursing Home in her honor? Anna was a strong outspoken Oneida woman who was hard pressed to ever take no for an answer. She was dedicated and motivated to improve conditions on the Oneida Reservation to make a better life for her people. She was a woman driven to help when someone needed a hand, she was an inspiration to many people and a devoted Oneida woman who worked tirelessly without stipends and per capita checks. She was in truth a remarkable Oneida woman.

I wonder why Anna did so much for our community when she didn't have to do a thing. Perhaps because she knew she could improve the quality of life for those who could not help themselves, or perhaps because she knew she could be the voice for those who could not speak for themselves. Whatever the reason, I'm glad she chose to challenge herself and those around her to make the Oneida Reservation a better place to live a good community to raise a family.

Seven Generation Visionaries

This is a series I am composing to profile our past leadership for their contributions to the Oneida Nation and their efforts that will impact our lives for the next seven generations and perhaps beyond. These are recollections that I have about the people I have known throughout my life, my earliest recollection is Oscar Archiquette who was my first teacher of the Oneida Language. Others include, Irene Moore, Lee McLester II, David "Sonny" King, Norbert Hill and others.

The first in my series is Anna John, an elder whom I respected and admired for many years. Her grandson Allen, entered a comment on facebook about the new Anna John Nursing Home and felt there was very little attributed to the namesake of that beautiful state of the art facility. That inspired me to begin to write short recollections about all the Oneida people who have places named in their honor. We need to keep their memory alive, but more importantly, Oneida people need to know the spirit that lived in each of these leaders which inspired them to create a better quality of life on our reservation.

I hope you enjoy my memories.

Practice fireworks safety while celebrating Independence Day

The Oneida Eye Clinic urges you to protect your eyesight this July 4th

The Fourth of July is a widely celebrated holiday nationwide, and a large part of many Fourth of July celebrations is the novelty and fun of fireworks. As we celebrate this national holiday in honor of our nation's independence, however, we must not forget the danger that fireworks may pose to our eyes and to our vision. During this year's Fourth of July holiday celebrations, we urge all citizens to exercise caution and safety when enjoying the spectacle of and in the using of all types of fireworks.

Outside of injuries to the hands and fingers, eye injuries are among the most common injuries which result from the improper use of fireworks. According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC - http://www.cpsc.gov/), an estimated 9,600 fireworks-related injuries were treated in 2011. In a study conducted by CPSC staff of fireworks injuries from June 17-July 17, 2011, injuries to the eye were the second most common fireworks-related injuries as measured, accounting for nearly 1 in 5 cases. While fireworks-related injuries typically result in burns on other parts of the body, hits, cuts, and embedded foreign bodies are common in terms of fireworks damage done to the eye.

Of concern in this study are results showing that children and young adults under 20 years of age accounted for over 30 percent of all estimated injuries caused by fireworks, and over 1 in 4 children under the age of 15 suffered fireworks-related injuries in this time period. Topping the list of injury causes were sparklers, a favorite among children and generally thought to be reasonably safe in the minds of many parents and adults. The young, who tend to be especially attracted to the spectacle of using fireworks, are suffering the greatest negative impact as a result. In terms of gender, males are overwhelmingly impacted, comprising 68% of fireworks-related injury occurrences.

"As adults and parents, we must take the reins in promoting the safe use of fireworks to everyone within our circle of family and friends," advises our Optical Director and optometrist, Dr. Lisa Slaby. "As an eye doctor, I have seen firsthand the devastating results of fireworks-related accidents to the eye. Most of these injuries could have been avoided."

The purchase and use without a permit of some consumer fireworks is legal in Wisconsin. However, we remind everyone that no private use of fireworks is completely without risk, and therefore, we urge people to attend fireworks displays conducted by professionals. If you do choose to use fireworks this Fourth of July, please follow common sense safety guidelines; provide adult supervision to all children at all times, instruct children to leave the area immediately if their friends are using fireworks without adult supervision, do not allow young children to play with or ignite fireworks, never shoot off fireworks in metal or glass containers as these materials can explode and release shrapnel, never try to relight or pick up fireworks that have not ignited fully, and always keep a bucket of water on hand in case of a malfunction or fire.

If an accident does occur, minimize damage to the eye and help potentially save a person's sight by following these guidelines:

- Seek medical attention immediately, even for seemingly mild injuries. "Mildly" damaged areas can worsen and end in serious vision loss or even blindness.
- Shield the eye from pressure. Tape or secure the bottom of a foam cup, milk carton or similar shield against the brow, cheek, and bridge of the nose.
- Do NOT rub the eye or apply pressure. If any eye tissue is torn, rubbing might cause more serious damage.
- Do NOT attempt to rinse out the eye. This can be even more damaging than rubbing.
- Do NOT give aspirin/ibuprofen (or other non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs) to try to reduce the pain. These medications thin the blood and might increase bleeding.
- Do NOT apply ointment or any medication without consulting a licensed eye doctor.

2012/2013 Contract Health Services Bill Submission Deadlines

If you're requesting Contract Health Services to assist in payment of your health related bills you must submit all bills to the Contract Health Service Department. It's best to submit your bills as soon as you receive them to prevent them from being turned over to a collection agency. The Contract Health Service fiscal year ends September 30th of each year.

Below is the bill submission deadline dates:

Date of Service 6/1/12 – 12/31/12, Submission deadline: 5/31/13
Date of Service 1/1/13 – 3/31/13, Submission deadline: 6/30/13
Date of Service 4/1/13 – 6/30/13, Submission deadline: 9/30/13
Date of Service 7/1/13 – 10/31/13, Submission deadline: 1/31/14
Date of Service 11/1/13 – 12/31/13, Submission deadline: 3/31/14

Please be sure that your insurance has been billed and made a payment determination on all your claims. If your insurance requires additional information you must respond within the specified timeframes. Once your bills are received CHS will determine your CHS eligibility and pay or notify you if your claims are not eligible for payment.

For inquiries regarding your bills please contact the Contract Health Service Department at (920) 869-2711.

After Hours Care for OCHC Medical

When to speak with On Call Staff:
- Any urgent health care needs that cannot wait until the next business day

Prescription Coverage:
- CVS Pharmacy on W. Mason and Military
- No controlled substance coverage (narcotics and pain pills)
- Must have Tribal ID & insurance card

Tribal employees with UMR may go to the Retail Clinic at Wal-Mart or Shopko
- $0 copay—must show insurance card
- If directed elsewhere, contact the On Call Staff

When you are out of town and need medical attention

During regular business hours

Please call the Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711 to speak with the triage nurse. The nurse will assess your symptoms and recommend care. If you need further evaluation and treatment, the nurse will direct you to the appropriate healthcare facility. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to an urgent care clinic or emergency room (ER). Please present your healthcare insurance card and a list of your current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need. However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services (CHS) for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to CHS for payment. Your telephone call and recommended care by the nurse will be documented.

After regular business hours

Please call Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711. If you are certain that this is a life threatening emergency or injury and you need to go to the ER, please leave a message with the after-hours CHS notification line. The message should include the patient's name, birthdate, phone number and reason for ER visit, name of ER and healthcare insurance information.
If you need to discuss your symptoms with the nurse, stay on the line for the Answering Service. Those representatives will gather your contact information and have a nurse call you back. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to either an urgent care clinic or emergency room. Please present your healthcare cad and list of current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need.
However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to Contract Health Services for payment.

St. Norbert College to hold tours during Wisconsin private college week

DE PERE, WI - St. Norbert College is offering student guided campus tours and giving students and their families a chance to meet with staff from the admission office during Wisconsin Private College Week Monday, July 8, through Friday, July 12. Refreshments will be served. Come ready to ask questions.

Students and families are invited to tour St. Norbert College and visit residence halls, and other facilities with knowledgeable guides. Tours, including a meeting with an admission representative, can be scheduled each weekday during Private College Week.

If you would like to visit St. Norbert College during Wisconsin Private College Week you are encouraged to make an appointment. For more information call 1-800-236-4878 or 920-403-3005.

The office of admission is also open throughout the summer and offers campus visits, as well as application fee waivers, on a daily basis to all prospective students considering St. Norbert College. Go to http://www.snc.edu/admission/events/privatecollegeweek.html for more information.

Concordia University WI - Green Bay to host an open house June 17

Concordia University WI – Green Bay will hold an Open House Monday, June 17 from 4-7pm. For over twenty years Concordia's Green Bay Center has been providing the opportunity for area adults to return to school to pursue or complete their college degree while working. Located just off Hansen Rd in Ashwaubenon, many Oneida tribal members have chosen Concordia for its convenience. Coursework is accelerated and offered in the evening. Classes meet one night a week from 6:00pm - 10:00pm thus allowing students to work full time while pursuing their degree. Concordia offers Associate and Bachelor's degree programs in Accounting, Business, Criminal Justice, Health Care, Human Resources, Nursing (RN to BSN) and a Master's degree in Business (MBA). Concordia is a regionally accredited private university affiliated with the Lutheran Church. Green Bay is one of their ten Adult Learning Centers in Wisconsin.

Concordia Green Bay Student Services and Admissions personnel work closely with Oneida Higher Education staff to make certain that Oneida tribal members attending Concordia provide the necessary paperwork needed for their education benefits. A large percentage of the student body at Concordia Green Bay consists of Oneida tribal members. For more information visit their website (cuw.edu/greenbay) or stop in for a tour and refreshments at 1150 Springhurst Dr. on Monday, June 17 between 4:00pm and 7:00pm.

Community baby shower a success

Candi Cornelius
MSN RN
Oneida Prenatal Care Coordinator

The Oneida Prenatal Care program (located at the Oneida Community Health Center) and the Oneida Early Head Start program (located in the cottages behind the Oneida Social Service Building) held the 1st Annual Oneida Community Baby Shower on June 4, 2013 at the Oneida Social Service Building.

Pregnant women who received prenatal care at the Oneida Health Center with due dates from January 2013 to June 2013 or who were enrolled in the Oneida Early Head Start program were selected to attend.

There were a total of 16 people that attended with 10 being new moms.

The event started with introductions and baby shower games. Game winners were able to select a package of diapers or an infant toy.

The group was then divided and each attended two informational sessions re: local programs in the Oneida Community. Then a third session was held by WIC about making nutritious and good tasting baby food. List of presenters is below:

Kala-Kimberly Cornelius
Oneida Community Health Nurse
Car Seat and Immunization program

920-869-4836

Finally each mom was put into a raffle for large infant gifts which were given out at the end.

The parents expressed their gratitude for the event and prizes. Both programs were glad a collaboration effort could be made to make this event happen.

Also thanks to the Oneida Early Intervention program for donated gifts and the Oneida WIC department for the cake.

Another baby shower is tentatively planned for December 2013 for moms with delivery dates between July 2013 and December 2013.

Oneida Clinic patients can look for fliers and pregnant women who qualify will receive a mail invite so please make sure address is up to date. Yawáko!

ONAP Dollars for Arts

Application Deadline – Friday, July 26, 2013

The Dollars for Arts Program (DAP) is a re-granting program funded by the Wisconsin Arts Board and the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin. DAP provides funds to support excellence, innovations and the development of the arts in Oneida. The arts include both traditional and contemporary styles in dance, literature, music, theatre, and visual arts. There are three funding areas in DAP:

Community Awards - are available to community groups or tribal programs for arts projects that are new and innovative or significantly enhance an existing program in the Oneida community.

Oneida Fellowship Award - is a $1,000 cash award to an Oneida artist for artistic excellence in the Oneida community. There is a maximum of one Fellowship available per fiscal year. If you have received a Fellowship from the Oneida Nation Arts Program in the last 3 years or received an Artist Development Award in the current fiscal year, you are not eligible for this award in fiscal 2014.

Artist Development Awards - are available to artists in the community who have identified a special project that will enhance their professional development and benefit the Oneida community.

The deadline for submitting grant applications is Friday, July 26, 2013, for activities occurring October 1, 2013, through September 30, 2014. The applications are available through the Oneida Nation Arts Program's website oneidanationarts.org. If you have any questions or wish to receive a hard copy of the application, contact Christine Klimmek via email at cklimmek@oneidanation.org or call 920-490-3831.

9 tall ships to visit Green Bay

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) ~ Nine tall ships will be making their way to Green Bay this summer.

Green Bay is the only Wisconsin port at which the ships are stopping on their Great Lakes tour.

The ships include the S/V Denis Sullivan, a 137-foot three-masted schooner based in Milwaukee and the STV Unicorn, which is the only all-female crewed tall ship in the world. The largest ship at the festival is the 210-foot Sorlandet (sohr-LAHN-deht), which is a square-rigged ship built in Norway in 1927.

The Baylake Bank Tall Ship Festival will be August 16-18 at Leicht Memorial Park in downtown Green Bay.

Organizers expect the festival to draw an estimated 60,000 people.

You are invited to join....

Letters & Opinions...

The Ugly Truth

Sherrole Benton's letter in the May 30, 2013 Kalihwisaks could be dismissed as the ravings of an uninformed OSGC fangirl if it wasn't so blatantly defamatory.

For the record, my presentation at the May 5, 2013 GTC Meeting was factually correct and scientifically accurate, made no false claims about anyone, and neither I nor the equipment I used are at fault for any technical problems experienced by OSGC.

In fact, Tribal Information Officer Brenda John-Stevens and PM Productions owner Pat Metoxen can attest that they were having difficulty with their equipment before I even walked in, as can the many witnesses who arrived early and saw it for themselves.

Sherrole should presumably know better than to try to besmirch me with lies and here-say given that she's bragged on State Senator Dave Hansen's Facebook page that she's an award-winning journalist, which means she should be held to journalistic standards that she betrayed.

Did you notice how Sherrole's letter slyly attempted to smear me with accusations that are actually true about OSGC and herself?

It wasn't I but Brown County Judge Marc A. Hammer who determined that many of OSGC's claims about its incineration project were 'factually incorrect' and 'didn't add up.'

It's not "character assassination" to point out that someone else is committing 'character suicide.' To the many GTC members who thanked me for my presentation and for clarifying details regarding certain relationships, you're welcome.

What is "character assassination"? Using one's OBC column to falsely accuse opponents of dioxin-emitting incinerators of being nothing but racists, especially when you previously voted for a resolution to ask the U.S. Government to pursue ending the production of dioxin everywhere because it harms indigenous people.

Likewise, Oneidas bellowing "Racist! Racist!" at Green Bay public hearings toward people who share the same misgivings as well-known Native American activists. What was the nickname given that group again? The Ugly Squad?

Shining a light and holding up a mirror to expose ugly acts doesn't make you responsible for the reprehensible reflection of reality.

I asked Editor Dawn Walschinski to retract Sherrole's letter and acknowledge that the Kalihwisaks' staff has no basis on which to believe or publish any of her false claims, but Dawn declined my request.

Therefore, I ask that you – the reader – contact Dawn and her supervisor, Joanie Buckley, as well as Chairperson Ed Delgado, and ask that no section of the Kalihwisaks be used to publish falsehoods about facts and people. Having an opinion is one thing, but lying is dishonorable and unacceptable.

We deserve better if we demand better.

Insurance

Instead, Walker's proposed budget would restrict the income eligibility requirement for qualifying for the state's BadgerCare Medicaid program to no more than 100 percent of poverty. People currently on Medicaid who earn up to 200 percent of poverty would instead purchase their insurance through the exchange.

Walker assumed that 93 percent of the people who would lose BadgerCare coverage would still buy insurance through the exchange. But the nonpartisan Legislative Fiscal Bureau said that estimate was "unreasonably optimistic."

Linda Hoff, the president and chief executive officer of Physicians Plus Insurance Corp., said during Tuesday's panel that she believes navigating the exchange will be difficult, and healthy young people won't even bother trying. Physicians Plus covers about 105,000 people in south central Wisconsin.

"We're going to see an uptick in the uninsured coming through the ER," Hoff said. "That's only going to put more pressure on costs going up everywhere else."

Walker's budget includes a $73 million payment to hospitals to help defray the anticipated costs of more uninsured people seeking coverage at hospitals.

Lon Sprecher, the president and chief executive officer of Dean Health Plan, said his biggest concern was that only high-risk people will end up joining the exchanges.

The panel focused largely on the implementation of the exchange, but also touched on other elements of the health care law, including whether it will save money and provide people with better options.

The key to transforming the nation's health care system is for everyone involved to be more transparent about the true cost of care, Hamerlik said. The cost of health care is one of the most controlling factors in people's lives, and you can't have a true marketplace unless all prices are published, he said.

"The whole purpose of this is to provide consumers with a choice," he said.

Dental Day at SEOTS

By Deb Ushakow

Oneida Tribal Member Susan Brandstetter a registered Dental Hygienist visited the Elder on Senior Day. Dental Hygiene is so important for everyone, no matter what age. Growing up for most people at the age of 50 or 60 years of age, most of us just went to the dentist if we had a toothache. I myself never knew anything about flossing.

Susan talked about the best way to take care of our teeth. She brought different dental instruments, and gave us information on how to brush your teeth, choosing your toothpaste and even a choosing a good toothbrush. We learned that we should not choose an unknown brand from the dollar store, due to the fact that the tips of the brush may not be cut correctly. The tips of the brush should be rounded so the teeth are not damaged or your gums are not damaged when brushing. Fluoride protects our teeth and flossing is important to do on a daily basis.

Susan talked about the fear of going to the dentist and for us to be sure and tell your dentist, so he can assure and help you through that fear.

Taking care of crowns and bridges is as important as taking care of your natural teeth. It is important that the dentures fit well and they must be kept clean to prevent inflammation of the gums and if not cleaned properly can cause infection.

We learned as we age, so do our mouths. Susan expressed the importance of good dental health, because it can affect your overall health, especially if you are a diabetic or have heart problems. Gum disease (gingivitis) is 100% preventable for everyone.

So the bottom line is: Brush your teeth twice a day, floss and it is suggested to see your dentist every 6 months for a good cleaning!

So keep brushing and keep Smiling!

Thank You Susan for your great presentation! And by the way, thank you for joining us for lunch!

SEOTS Building Project

By Mark W. Powless

In 1992, Southeastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS) was established as an off-reservation office in the Milwaukee-area to provide services to all Oneida tribal members in the six counties of southeastern Wisconsin. The mission of SEOTS is: Strengthening our cultural connection and providing services and programs to enhance the well-being of Onʌyote?a·ka in southeastern Wisconsin. Twenty years of resourceful and innovative collaboration have allowed SEOTS to provide many services to other tribal members and their descendants as well.

SEOTS offers many services and programs, including youth and elder activities, medication distribution, cultural education, Oneida language classes, referral services and much more. The population of Oneida Tribal members residing in southeast Wisconsin currently stand at 1,976. During fiscal year 2012, SEOTS' total client interactions was about 11,500. A client interaction includes office visits as well as phone calls received.

In 2004 the Oneida General Tribal Council directed the Oneida Business Committee to provide assistance to SEOTS to locate long term facilities for the SEOTS program, whether rental or purchase.

In 2010 the Oneida General Tribal Council approved a $38 million bond package that included $2 million for the purchase of long-term facility for SEOTS. From the on-set, SEOTS has considered buying an existing facility or building a new facility. SEOTS recently viewed an existing facility that meets many of the criteria established for the building search.

There are two main reasons for the purchase of building (instead of continuing to lease).

One reason is financial. According to loopnet.com, an online resource for commercial real estate, average office lease rates for Milwaukee city are approximately $14 per square foot. SEOTS current lease rate is $14.50 for a 7,100 square foot facility. That places our yearly lease payment at approximately $103,000. As with all lease or rent payments, there is no way to recoup those expenses.

Purchasing a building will pay for itself over time, when taking into account inflation and increased efficiencies.

In addition, SEOTS has not viewed an available building in Milwaukee that conforms to the needs of the Oneida community of southeast Wisconsin. An example is the existing building that lacks adequate space for large community gatherings and a kitchen. Community gatherings occur regularly but for many events, SEOTS must rent space outside of the existing building that can accommodate 100-150 people. Food is also a challenge at SEOTS functions without a kitchen to prep food and wash dishes.

A renovation of the existing SEOTS building was considered, but the cost to make the necessary changes reached $600,000. To consider spending that sum for a facility that the Oneida Tribe does not own was considered financially irresponsible by the SEOTS Board and staff and the project was halted.

The second is to create a long-term connection to the second largest Oneida Tribe of Wisconsin community and to the largest general population of the state. Milwaukee offers economic opportunities that no other city in the state can offer. By developing a long-term relationship with southeast Wisconsin, the Oneida Tribe positions itself to take advance of more opportunities and strengthens its relationship with a significant population of Oneida Tribal members thereby taking one step closer to the Oneida vision of strong families built on our ways and a strong economy.

As we move forward, we hope to maintain the support of the Oneida Tribal community in all endeavors. After all, Oneida Tribal members have traveled to the Milwaukee for decades in search of opportunity and development, some, choosing to make a home in the area, others choosing to return home to the reservation. This is a trend that does not appear to be changing and SEOTS can be a resource for the community for generations to come, as we preserve our cultural connections and develop economic opportunities for the Oneida Tribe.

For Tribal members who desire more information, feel free to contact the SEOTS office, Monday-Friday, 8:30am-4:30pm.

Leadership Development & WWGP

Oneida adventures partnered with Wise Women Gathering in helping their high school students develop leadership skills. High school students attending Wise Youth Group, led by Jen Schanen, took the facilitator role in Oneida Adventure's break out discussion groups and experiential activities, leading the middle school student group. Many of the high school students committed their time to consistently leading the middle school students on the once a month scheduled time frame with Oneida Adventures. The leadership activities included: mask making activities focusing on trust building, outdoor hiking and adventure stations focusing on an anti-bullying initiative, and challenge course/high ropes climbing. High school students recognized the importance of the leadership role and challenged themselves to engage with the middle school student on a new level to earn their respect and trust.

Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems

Why Buy Local?

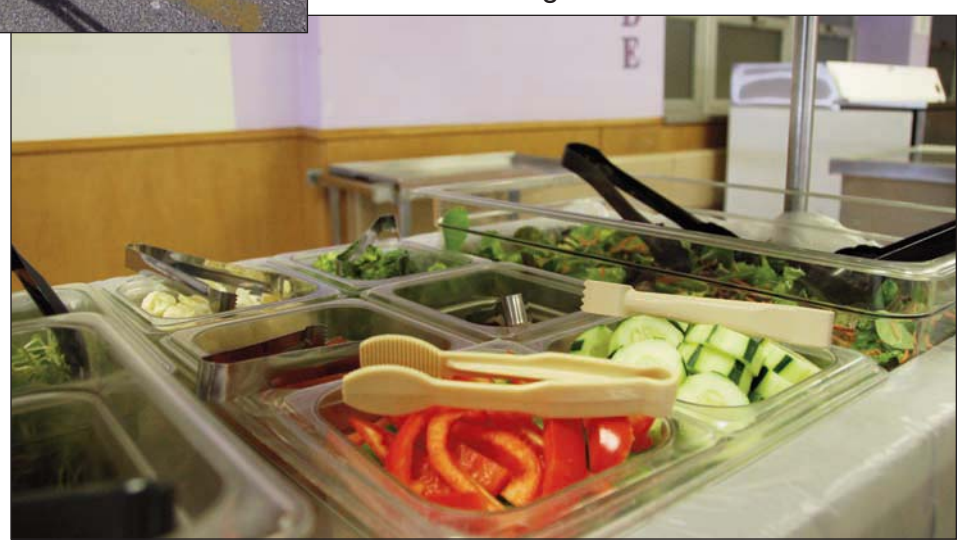
Food comes to most of us now through a global food system which is destructive of both natural and social communities. In this unstable, post-modern world, our food can be one way through which we reassemble our fragmented identities and reestablish communities. We find this vision of people living well and responsibly with each other and with the land on which they are placed to be deeply appealing.

Local businesses and farms produce more income, jobs, and tax receipts for local communities than big box stores do. Local businesses and farms are more likely to utilize local ads, banks and other services. Local businesses donate more money to nonprofits and are more accountable to their local communities. Supporting local businesses preserves the economic diversity of our communities and the unique character of our neighborhoods.

Supporting local businesses and farmers is good for the environment, because it cuts down on fuel consumption. Buying locally produced goods reduces the need to ship goods from thousands of miles away and also cuts down on the distance shoppers travel. Vine ripen - not truck ripen. Many of our foods are picked when they are not yet ripen in the truck on the way here, or worse yet sprayed to look like they are ripe when they get here.

The Oneida Nation Farm operates a cattle and bison operation, from our farm to your table. No steroids, hormones, antibiotics, or animal byproducts are used. The Oneida Nation Farm features a "Point-of-Origin" cow-calf pasture, a beef feedlot, and pastured Bison herd. The Apple Orchard has 34 acres of orchard with 36 different varieties. In addition they have fresh produce such as: strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, sweet corn, squash, pumpkins.

Tsyunhehkwa program is a culturally and community based agricultural entity of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin. The program consists of two components, Agricultural & Cannery. The Agricultural component is located on a Certified Organic 80-acre site, which provides grass-fed beef, free range poultry, farm fresh eggs and organic produce. The Cannery processes not only our products, but items produced by other areas of the Nation and the Community. They work to be your educational resource in food security and pursuit toward self -sustainability.



So buy your natural Black Angus meat, your fruit, and your certified organic produce from the new ONEIDA MARKET located at 501 Packerland Drive in Green Bay.

Be sure to check out the Oneida Farmers' Market starting on June 27 near the Post Office in the Oneida Business Park. For more information about the Farmers' Market please visit us at our website www.oneidanation.org/ocifs or check us out on Facebook.

Wis. Senate OKs outdoor fees for Purple Heart vets

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ The Wisconsin Senate has approved a bill that would offer wounded veterans steep discounts on the state Department of Natural Resource's catch-all outdoor activity license.

The bipartisan measure would allow Purple Heart recipients who reside in Wisconsin to purchase a conservation patron license for $10. The licenses currently cost state residents $165.

Purple Heart recipients who live outside Wisconsin would pay $161 for a license; out-of-state residents currently pay $600 per license.

Conservation patron licenses authorize the holder to participate in a range of hunting, trapping and fishing activities.

The bill also would offer out-of-state Purple Heart winners individual outdoor licenses at cheaper state resident prices.

The Senate approved the bill on a unanimous voice vote on Tuesday with no debate. It now goes to the state Assembly.

UW looks at 2 options for flexible degree program

MILWAUKEE (AP) – University of Wisconsin System regents have been presented with two choices for working adults hoping to finish college degrees with the systems' new Flexible Option program.

The flexible degree program being introduced in the fall will allow students to earn college credit by demonstrating knowledge on tests. That knowledge may come from on-the-job training, military experience or coursework.

Under a proposal the UW Board of Regents was expected to discuss at its Thursday meeting, students would be able to learn as much as they could in three months for $2,250. The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel reported it would likely include two to four classes, depending on how quickly students worked and passed the tests.

Assuming students completed three terms per year, the $6,750 cost would be comparable to undergraduate resident tuition at UW system four-year campuses, system officials said. The all-you-can-learn option would include access to financial aid, advising, tutoring and other support services.

The fee for the second option, an assessment for college credit, has not yet been set. It would not include financial aid or student services.

"The beauty of the program is it could cost them very little if they take the pretest and test out of coursework," said Ray Cross, chancellor of UW Colleges. "When they are admitted, they work with an admissions adviser to sort out the exact competencies where they may be deficient, and work only on those."

Wisconsin lags the national average in the portion of its residents with a college degree. Currently, 26 percent of Wisconsin adults have one, compared to 28 percent nationally. The flexible degree program is aimed at boosting that number and, in turn, improving the state economy.

The first Flexible Option degrees will be offered in areas where officials say skills are most needed: health care, information technology and business.

The program will start this fall at UW-Milwaukee and the two-year UW colleges. It will expand to other UW campuses over the next several years.

Coalition still battling against Mich. wolf hunt

LANSING, Mich. (AP) ~ A coalition that opposes hunting wolves in Michigan is still making its case even though officials have scheduled a hunt for later this year.

The Keep Michigan Wolves Protected campaign is holding forums this week in Kalamazoo, Clarkston and Woodhaven. Organizers say they'll focus on the ecological and cultural value of wolves and provide information about the hunt.

The coalition includes animal welfare groups, conservationists, Native American tribes and faith leaders. They gathered more than 255,000 signatures seeking a statewide vote on a new law designating the wolf as a game species.

But legislators rushed through another measure that would make the referendum meaningless by allowing the Natural Resources Commission to establish a hunt. The commission last month scheduled an Upper Peninsula hunt for Nov. 15 to Dec. 31.

Health groups unite against ban on sugar bans

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Six health groups have united against a provision in the Wisconsin state budget that would prohibit local communities from banning sugary foods and drinks.

The groups on Tuesday called on the Legislature to remove the provision before passing the budget later this month.

The ban was added by the Joint Finance Committee last month, with Republican supporters saying they didn't want government infringing on their ability to buy large sodas.

But the health groups say the ban will have a much wider unintended impact, including limiting employee wellness programs.

Groups calling for removal of the provision are Health First Wisconsin, the American Cancer Society Cancer Action Network, the American Heart Association, the Wisconsin Council on Children and Families, the Wisconsin Primary Health Care Association, and the Childhood Obesity Prevention Collaborative.

Interior allows more comments for drilling

By Matthew Daly
Associated Press

WASHINGTON ~ Companies that drill for oil and natural gas - and their critics - will have 60 more days to comment on a new rule regulating hydraulic fracturing operations on public lands.

Interior Secretary Sally Jewell announced the extension Thursday after industry groups and environmentalists said they needed more time to digest a 171-page "fracking" rule issued last month.

The rule requires companies for the first time to disclose publicly the chemicals used in fracking operations and sets standards for proper construction of wells and disposal of wastewater.

Jewell called the rule a "common-sense update" that increases safety while also providing flexibility and improving coordination with states and Indian tribes. Drilling regulations were last changed in 1982.

Comments on the drilling proposal will be accepted through late August.

UT gets letter handwritten by George Washington

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) ~ The University of Texas at Austin has acquired a letter handwritten by George Washington that school officials say "sheds light" on the first president's view on Native Americans.

The letter written in 1769 describes the killing of three members of the Mingo tribe by white settlers. In the letter, Washington described the deaths as "villainy" and demanded "justice." He also wrote that the killings were murder "for it deserves no other name."

The university's Dolph Briscoe Center for American History acquired the letter. Briscoe Center Executive Director Don Carleton said the letter "sheds light on Washington's views on Indian relations and his care for his family."

UT accepted the letter as a donation from Dallas oil and gas businessman and major UT donor Barron U. Kidd.

Feds toss Michigan complaint to ban Indian mascots

LANSING, Mich. (AP) ~ A federal agency has dismissed a complaint seeking to ban the use of American Indian mascots in Michigan's K-12 schools.

In February, the Michigan Department of Civil Rights cited 35 Michigan school districts for discrimination, saying their mascots reinforce stereotypes and hurt American Indian students' self-esteem and learning.

But the U.S. Education Department's Office of Civil Rights denied the state's complaint last week. Federal officials say Michigan officials provided no specific examples of racial incidents or American Indian students suffering specific harm because of the reported discrimination.

The state civil rights department said Monday it's disappointed by the ruling and is considering its options.

Michigan's complaint to the federal government has drawn criticism from Republican lawmakers who say it was misguided and a done without input from communities.

US poisons invasive Lake Michigan lamprey larvae

EAST BAY TOWNSHIP, Mich. (AP) – Federal wildlife workers will go after one of the Great Lakes' greatest invasive pests this week when they poison the larvae of sea lamprey in a stream feeding Lake Michigan.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service plans treatments for Tuesday through next Sunday in the Mitchell Creek stream bottom. The creek flows through Traverse City State Park before entering Grand Traverse Bay's east arm. The park is in Grand Traverse County's East Bay Township, east of Traverse City.

"The larval sea lamprey in these rivers is at its most vulnerable life stage," said Alex Gonzalez, a fish biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Ludington office. "For us to get the adult lamprey in the lakes would be impossible."

The treatments are 95 percent to 99 percent effective in killing the parasite at this stage, Gonzalez told the Traverse City Record-Eagle.

Lamprey have been sucking the blood from lake trout, salmon and walleye for decades.

Gonzalez said the lamprey control program has helped control the parasite's Great Lakes populations for 50 years and keep native fish populations viable. Treatments are typically done every 3 to 5 years, he said.

Heather Hettinger, a fisheries biologist with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, said most local waterways that connect with Lake Michigan - such as the Betise and Platte rivers - have been regularly treated for sea lamprey for decades.

The lampricides don't pose an unreasonable risk to humans or the larger environment, but people are encouraged to limit their exposure as the treatments are underway, Hettinger said. She said the chemicals biodegrade quickly.

Adult sea lampreys, which reach lengths of 2 to 3 feet, resemble eels but behave more like leeches. With round, disk-like mouths and sharp teeth, they latch onto fish and suck out their blood and other bodily fluids, killing or severely weakening the hosts.

Although native to the Atlantic, they can live in fresh water and migrated to the Great Lakes through shipping canals. By the late 1940s, the prolific invaders had decimated trout, whitefish and other sport and commercial species across the lakes.

The fight against lamprey has cost more than $400 million over five decades. The lamprey population has dropped by about 90 percent since researchers perfected a way in the late 1950s to kill lamprey but not other species.

Comparing Cultural differences, similarities

By Yvonne Kaquatosh
Kalihwisaks

The Oneida Nation Museum was the location for one of the stops for a group study exchange team as part of their month-long mission to the United States. The visitors from Australia included members of Rotary International District 9750, DG Bill and Christie Salter, based in New South Wales Australia; Team Leader Richard Booth, retired Superintendent of Liverpool School District (2002); Rescue Team Leader Anna Habeck, who served eight years in that capacity for the Kiama unit of the New South Wales State Emergency Service and is currently earning her PhD in fluvial geomorphology from the University of Wollongong; Solicitor Kate Gould, an attorney with Marsdens Law Group; Health Policy Officer Alexander Lynch, whose role focuses on extensive planning, developing and advocating initiatives to various levels of government in relation to the health sector; and Teacher Ben Cook, who is a member of a two person teaching team for an organization called Father Riley's Youth Off The Streets for the homeless and disadvantaged teenagers in the Sydney region.

Oneida Nation citizens on hand to address key programs or areas of interest in the community were Marty Antone, Director in Charge of Emergency Management/Homeland Security; JoAnn Ninham, YES Program Advisor; Terry Cornelius, CFO Advisor; Randy Cornelius, Cultural Heritage; as well as Oneida Business Committee Council member Brandon Stevens.

The guests were interested in learning more about Native American tribes in this region and the Oneida were happy to accommodate.

Topics touched on were in the area of history, environmental, health, education as well and farming practices to name a few.

The group traveled to locations in both Michigan and Wisconsin. They also met with members of the Potawatomi Tribe.

Rita Lara, Museum Director, coordinated the event and provided a traditional lunch for the guests.

Mr. Booth of the Australian group said it best when comparing the two communities – Oneida and the Australians, "Two completely distinct cultures coming together."

Household Clean Sweep offers elders curbside pick up for unwanted items

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwaslchi@oneidanation.org

Environmental specialist-pollution prevention Amy Spears would like to know if she'll ever see the end of old television sets.

"It feels like at some point we're going to have to start decreasing with the amount of stuff, especially with the TV's, I just can't believe how many TV's people have. Every year, there's just more and more electronic waste," said Spears.

It was in response to a 2010 ban on electronic waste that the Oneida Environmental Health and Safety Department (EHS) started the annual Household Clean Sweep where Oneida citizens could unload unwanted TVs, appliances, tires, household hazardous waste and other unwanted items for free disposal.

"We've had our service agreement with Brown County for quite a few years, and our tribal members can use the household hazardous waste facility on Broadway free of charge," said Spears. "They keep track on their end of people who show their tribal ID … we were having extremely low numbers. So we're paying this service agreement to them but our tribal members are hardly using that service."

The Household Clean Sweep had been planned to be a one-time event.

"We had such a great response, an awesome response, that we decided to keep doing it," said Spears.

Last year's event had 315 registered people and recycled 35 tons of material, according to Spears. Like last year, this year's clean sweep brought out Habitat for Humanity Restore, Goodwill, and a metal scrapper to find a home for items that can be reused or recycled.

EHS partnered with the Oneida Housing Authority (OHA) and Oneida Elder Services to expand the clean sweep. Along with a $10,000 grant from the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection, the Oneida departments have teamed up to offer curbside pick-up for Oneida elders on the reservation.

"It was really something that came about because I was getting calls from people asking for this," she said.

Spears said the teams collected waste from 80 homes over two days.

"Ninety-five percent of the people that we're picking up from have big TVs," said Spears. There are plans for a second pick-up in August.

As workers from OHA loaded up her refuse into a trailer, Marlene Ninham expressed gratitude for the service.

"I would have to hire someone with a truck to take this stuff to the dump for me. This is a really good idea," she said.

New Oneida ID Cards Available

Beginning June 1st there will be a new Oneida ID card available at Enrollment office. The new card looks much like the old cards with one exception, it will have a bar code on the back of the card. This bar code allows for faster Gas Tax exemption service for the customers at the Oneida One Stops. It also a more accurate way of tracking the transactions so the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin can be reimbursed from the State more efficiently.

In the future it will also assist with the processing of tribal members who attend GTC meetings. Getting a new card today will require a fee of $3.50 or $1.50 if you are over 55. The only exception to the bar coded cards are youth 15 or younger who will not receive bar coded ID cards.

A new ID card can be obtained during regular business hours at the Enrollment office with the exception of Mondays – No ID cards are processed on Mondays between June 1-Sept 2.

If you do not need a new card right now, you may opt to wait until October 1, 2013, at which time, you may exchange your old card for a new card with bar code at NO cost to you.

Legislative Operating Committee

Public Meeting Notice

June 13, 2013 • 5:00 PM
Business Committee Conference Room (BCCR)

Purpose: Small Business Project 2000 Amendments. The purpose of the amendments to the Small Business Project 2000 Policies and Procedures (Policy) is to change the Policy into a law and revise the terms under which small business loans are provided to eligible Tribal borrowers. The amendments include:

- Clarifying that Bay Bank is the exclusive bank that provides Tribally-funded loans under the Policy.
- Disqualifying applicants who are in arrears on money owed to the Tribe or to any Tribal subsidiary, instead of only disqualifying applicants who are in arrears on any Tribal loan.
- Reducing the maximum loan cap from $300,000 to $200,000 for loans that do not include real estate.
- Increasing the borrower's minimum contribution from 5% to 15%.
- Removing a flat 5% loan interest rate and authorizing the interest rate to be set through resolution by the Oneida Business Committee.
- Expanding the maximum term of a real estate loan from 15 to 20 years, and allowing loans to be amortized over 30 years, instead of 25.
- Requiring the Loan Fund Manager to provide a borrower with 20 calendar days written notice of the documents that the borrower must bring to the closing.
- Revising the default provisions to provide the borrower with more information on how to cure a default, and to require a minimum of 30 calendar days following such notice whereby the borrower can cure the default.
- Updating the format of the Law.

Public Meeting Process

A. Oral: The presiding Legislative Operating Committee member(s) may impose a time limit for oral testimony. Any time limit imposed shall not be less than five (5) minutes. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within five (5) business days from the date of the public meeting to the below named individual(s).

B. Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public meeting or do not plan to speak at the meeting, written comments may be submitted within five (5) business days from the date of the public meeting to the Tribal Secretary (Patricia Hoeft), or Tonya Boucher in the Legislative Reference Office in person at the Norbert Hill Center, 2nd floor; by mail to PO Box 365, Oneida WI 54155; through interoffice mail; by email at tboucher@oneidanation.org; or by fax at (920) 869-4040.

OTIE Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises

Employment Opportunities

Electrical Design Engineer – Green Bay

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises (OTIE) is an engineering, science and construction services firm with offices nationwide.

We have an immediate opening for an electrical design engineer in our Green Bay office. Applicants must have a BS in Electrical Engineering, 10 years of electrical design experience and a Professional Engineer's license.

Job Description:
OTIE currently has a solid backlog of projects, an excellent staff of design and construction engineers, and a reputation for providing outstanding services to our clients. We are seeking a highly motivated professional to start an electrical design team out of our Green Bay office, and to coordinate with our other Wisconsin offices located in Milwaukee and Madison. This position offers an excellent opportunity for promotions and upward mobility within a growing firm that has a 20+ year track record of providing outstanding engineering services for federal, state, county, municipal and private clients.

Specific duties include:
- Provide immediate electrical design support to all OTIE offices as required
- Assist with business development activities to proactively market and win new electrical projects
- Actively manage projects to ensure that project deliverables and budgets are met
- Plan and develop an electrical design team
- Ensure that all services being performed out of this office exceed our clients expectations
- Attend and participate in meetings with clients and the general public
- Work cooperatively with other engineers, project managers and technicians
- Develop and promote a positive internal work environment that takes great pride in delivering outstanding electrical services to our clients
- Strategic planning to ensure the long term success of OTIE

Part Time Administrative Assistant

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises (OTIE) is a growing civil, environmental engineering and construction services firm with offices nationwide. We provide consulting engineering services to US Department of Defense (DOD), US Department of Energy (DOE), and US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). We have a new position open in our San Francisco Bay Area office for a part-time Administrative Assistant with 5 plus years of experience.

Job Description:
Provide administrative support inclusive of word processing; document production; forms, spreadsheets, memos, manuals and reports preparation (non-technical); proofreading and other administrative tasks. Personal flexibility a plus because there are occasional strict project deadlines requiring long hours and evening work.

Requirements:
- A.S. degree or higher preferred. Professional/technical certifications and/or additional training are pluses.
- Previous experience in engineering office. Experience with DOD (Navy, US Army Corp of Engineers, Air Force, National Guard) is a plus.
- Self- starting and detail oriented.
- Must be capable of precisely following written and verbal instruction.
- Thorough practical knowledge (i.e., advanced) of MS Word and Adobe Acrobat Standard or Professional.
- Basic practical knowledge of MS Excel, MS Outlook, Power Point, and internet browsers.
- Excellent spelling and written grammar.
- Typing capability of 60 wpm.
- Previous experience in document production/document assembly for complex reporting documents. Large quantities of hard copies and CDs are required for shipping, often by overnight service, to multiple recipients.
- Some experience with electronic and hard copy file storage and archiving.
- Punctuality and ability to complete assignments with little oversight.

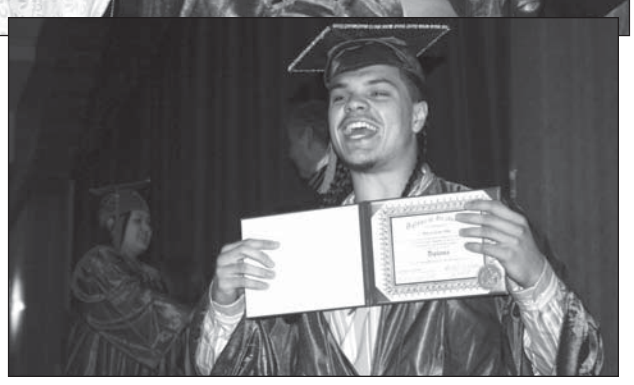
Seniors at Oneida Nation High School



By Jessica House
Thunderhawk Times

Almost every year, it seems that Oneida Nation High School starts a bit earlier than other schools. Usually, we start school at the end of August and typically have classes until June 6. That part seems to be pretty consistent with other schools.

The major difference at ONHS is that the senior class at the end of the year doesn't get out as early as other seniors at many other schools. The seniors at ONHS usually get out of school only one day before graduation.

"I don't mind that we don't get out of school earlier because my high school experience was a good one!" said senior Heather Stevens.

Actually, ONHS students get more off days than other schools due to our ceremonies and other cultural events. That is one of the reasons why ONHS seniors don't get out of school earlier.

Sticking Together

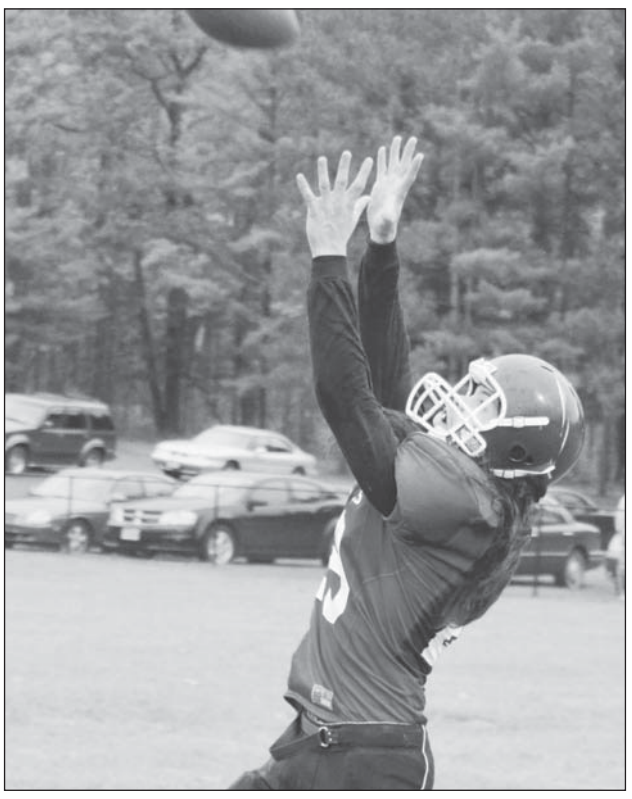
By Heather Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

We all have struggles, we all have heart breaks, and we all have things that we don't think we should have to experience. The creator has a plan for all of us. Some of us were put here to teach lessons, some to show us what a true blessing life is, and some to give birth to people that will teach us lessons.

Life is going to hand us excruciating things; things that we just wish would've never happened, things we wished we hadn't seen, done, or experienced – but it makes us who we are. It builds who we become as a person. We are pushed to our limits just to see how strong we really are.

It seems to be even harder when watching a loved one go through a tough time. As long as people stick together, support one another, and avoid the hardships they can, we can get through anything together, no matter how hard it seems to get. Stay strong, and keep on keepin' on.

8-Man All-Star Football Game



By Diego Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

This summer, on June 29th the first ever 8-man High School All-Star Football Game will be played. There are going to be five athletes from Oneida Nation High School on the roster for this game.

"It's a great honor to be able to play for the South All Star Team," said ONHS senior Michael Mills. All the athletes from ONHS are seniors this year and will be graduating June 6th.

A 5-day practice week is scheduled to get prepared for the game. The ONHS players will be staying in Madison throughout the week. Also, they will be having either two or three practices a day since there is little time to get ready for the event.

After the week of practice, they will head to Rice Lake, WI, and stay in a hotel to get a good nights' rest Friday night for the all-star game on Saturday.

Freddy Miller was a 12th grade student at in Oneida Nation High School until his graduation just a few days ago. Now he is considered an ONHS alumnus!

He has attended ONHS for his full four years of high school and has been enrolled in the Oneida School System for 11 years. He lives in Green Bay, Wisconsin. The activities Freddy participates in are football and lacrosse. His grades are outstanding considering that he has been on the honor roll for every grading period this year.

When asked about his personal life, Freddy said, "I have too many girlfriends to count. I like to listen to powwow and hip-hop, and Northern Cree is my favorite artist. They're great."

His favorite colors are black and red. His favorite food is wild rice. "It's real, traditional, Menominee food."

Freddy said, "My favorite sport is football because I can smash on some people. But I live thinking each day is a new one. As they say, another day another dollar. Well, that's how I live life. I never give up no matter what situation I'm in."

Packers arrive for OTAs

By Bryan Quella
Thunderhawk Times

The Packer OTAs are underway. They are looking for good performance from their players, coaches, and staff members. The fans have been able to see some of the OTAs, but the media has been able to watch it all.

The defense should be better with some of the rookies they drafted. Tramon Williams is reported to have been the standout for the defense so far. Also, Mike McCarthy has also said a lot of good things about Casey Hayward, who I really like. How many interceptions did the guy have as a rookie? He's a beast!

Johnny Jolly should be good when he comes back to the team. McCarthy said that Johnny Jolly would get a second chance with the team.

UFC: Aldo vs. Pettis

By Marcus Tucker
Thunderhawk Times

August could be the time when one of the mega fights in UFC against Jose Aldo and Anthony "Showtime" Pettis is held. Most UFC fans are on the "Showtime" bandwagon, but personally I don't think he stands a chance against Aldo.

People seem to be on the "Showtime" bandwagon because of his antics and crazy knockouts. Another reason some people, especially Wisconsinites, are on his bandwagon is because Anthony Pettis is from the southside of Milwaukee. But I feel that all of those things don't matter in the octagon.

"Showtime" has only faced wrestling-style opponents and has never faced the type of striker that Jose Aldo is. "Showtime" has won every UFC fight he has been in, so Dana White feels he deserves a championship fight. People believe that he will be much stronger than Aldo because Pettis is dropping from 155 to 145 lbs. I feel differently though, I feel he doesn't have an advantage because Aldo is a big, muscular, 145 pounder.

I can't wait for this fight; Aldo is one of the top pound-for-pound fighters in the UFC and has won all of his title defenses and fights. I personally feel that Aldo will knock Pettis out or win through a technical knockout. If the decision should go to the judges, I think Aldo will win the fight hands down. Aldo is too much for Pettis, and Pettis' shining lights will soon be knocked out.

Going Through a Seizure

By Bryan Quella
Thunderhawk Times

I am the guy who has had two seizures during the school day at ONHS recently. Maybe you've heard about this.

A lot of people have asked me what it feels like to have a seizure, especially at school. I don't really remember a lot, except some minor things before the seizure and some things after.

I guess I would have to say that it feels like having a heart attack; at least that's the best I can compare it to after hearing other people describe a heart attack. Half my body went numb before I had the seizure.

I remember telling our computer teacher, Mr. Lancelle, and one of the other students that I was going to have a seizure. That's about it. The next thing I knew, I was in the hospital.

Treasurer's Report

By Cristina Danforth
Oneida Tribal Treasurer

Recently a request was made for an external audit of the Department of Land Management (DOLM). After much discussion, the Business Committee (BC) approved this request with the stipulation that all land acquisition will cease until the audit is complete. There were many reasons why the suspension of land purchases was initiated. To name a few, farm land is purchased and not developed, homes are purchased and torn down, the quality of some of the purchased homes is questionable and there appears to be no relevance to long range plans based on housing needs.

Regardless of the rumors around the community and what is being said about me or the Finance Department, I did not make this decision alone. Five (5) BC members voted for the suspension of purchases, two (2) voted against and one (1) was not present. The Chairman only votes in the case of a tie. The BC members made the decision together. Personally, I felt the decision was appropriate. An audit was called for into the purchasing practices of DOLM. If there are problems, we should not continue to make purchases and it is that simple. The suspension is in place until the audit is complete and the appropriate responses are made either by DOLM management, the Land Commission or both entities.

Having been in the market to buy a home, I am aware of what is available within our reservation boundaries. Having been to many open houses I have seen both the good and the bad. Out of the houses I have seen, it is unfortunate that some of the worst ones are the homes offered through our DREAM program. I have been informed that there are policies and procedures in place that prohibit DOLM from just going out and purchasing homes, that the home owner has to contact DOLM or the home needs to be on the market for so many days before DOLM will consider it. I am not sure if these reasons are accurate because I have never seen a policy or procedure that addresses this issue. The question looms, why would we restrict ourselves to these types of constraints? This is housing for our people and making quality homes available for our buyers must be a requisite.

With this is mind who is responsible for choosing the homes we purchase? Is it DOLM or the Land Commission? Now that there is a suspension in place, are there other tasks for staff? I would ask these questions myself but when I do, I am accused of being involved with day-to-day decisions and am told "it is not within my purview to ask". As Treasurer the authority to ask questions on behalf of the General Tribal Council (GTC) is my responsibility. Perhaps it is time DOLM made a presentation to the GTC and address these issues. This would be a great opportunity to get membership feedback.

Since I am on the subject of housing, the five (5) duplexes located within the Green Valley Subdivision are still not complete. The last tour I went on was in late February and at that time, we were told they would be finished in two weeks. It is now three months later and still there is no siding on any of them, the driveways are not complete, and no landscaping has been completed. At least one does not even have an official front door. This is very disturbing considering again the Finance Department and I are rumored to be the blame for these units not being complete. I and the Finance Department do not have any control over how these homes are built. If the approved policies and procedures are adhered to then approval for payments are made.

I will continue to support the Finance team and address relevant issues. Regardless of what people believe I am one person and do not have the authority to act alone. I stand behind the decisions I make and have no problem defending my position on issues. My job has always been to look out for the best interest of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin as a whole and to ensure our purchases are appropriate. In doing so, I get blamed a lot but I am willing to rise to the challenge.

In retrospect, the Anna John Nursing Home (AJNH) celebrated their ribbon cutting on February 8, 2013 in anticipation of moving into their new home. The AJNH residents have reported they will be moving to the new Anna John Resident Centered Care Community (AJRCCC) on June 12, 2013. Although official word has not been received by the BC and it has been four months since the ribbon cutting and I am hopeful this move will occur on schedule. This is great news and I hope the entire BC will join me in welcoming the AJNH patients to their new home.

Happy Father's Day to all the Dads and Grandpas. You are all needed and encouraged for the wellbeing of our families. Spring is supposed to bring renewal and I am still hoping that will occur for all of us and our organization. Until next time I wish everyone health and prosperity.

OBC Forum...

Vince DelaRosa
Councilman

I hope as we head into summer that you and your family are doing well. My office has been working on various policy matters and I have remained interested in seeing room in the budget for pay raises for the Oneida employees and new homes constructed for the homeless.

We have also been working on trying to tackle a few tough internal issues. One such issue is the Land Management changes which are occurring. The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) on Wednesday, June 6, 2013 took action to appoint an Interim Director for the Department of Land Management in response to the resignation of the previous Land Management Director. This issue and that department have been under an on-going audit so I cannot comment at this time on where this is all going. I will say the OBC is interested in seeing a newly updated set of policies for the department to emerge through this process. Stay tuned.

The Duck Creek International Carving Competition is coming to Oneida on August 2nd through August 4th. This is a great event for our community as a minimum of 100 hotel stays will be realized throughout the event weekend. I want to thank Michelle Danforth, Mike Metoxen and Richie Figueroa for their work on this event.

Turning my attention to some internal politics, I wanted to share a correspondence I released on a few areas that continue to be controversial, I call the piece "Choices." Strangely there seems to be an under-current of criticism and a lack of support for new housing, even though we need it, and various budget choices seem up in the air, even though we are financially at risk. Also, SEOTS has been a subject of debate even though it was approved by the last OBC and supported by the GTC. It seems politics runs so heavy here that progress cannot occur, and truthfully, that is a choice.

"CHOICES"

All I can say is, we are years behind on housing, and we're missing real opportunities for the Oneida people to capture new business and jobs for our people. Also, investors whom at one point may have viewed us as a worthy investment opportunity are now shying away. If choosing not to build SEOTS makes people happy and solves some larger problems then that is a choice we can make.

There are three things that drive some of these larger issues we're taking about. I feel the larger issues are the "prosperity" of the Oneida people and the vibrancy of the Oneida economy. I will also touch on the SEOTS Building issue below.

1) Budgets: We have to get our budgets in a better place. This requires a major change which we seem unable to pursue. Wage increases and other real opportunities for the Oneida people are not possible in the current financial environment. If we do not care to reset our economic path, that is a choice. Restructuring is one of those matters which need attention; I have developed a memo with suggestions on the subject, which was released to the OBC in January of this year.

2) Housing: We've missed bringing well over $70,000,000 million dollars here over the last few years for housing. We should have advanced programs for our people so that we could offer significantly more financially sound housing solutions. We have a 24 year housing plan which we are totally out of compliance with.

Housing equals economic power to our people, if Oneidas do not want professional housing delivered in a more timely fashion, than that is a choice. Actually, more of the same can be in order. On housing, the Chairman is working on this project. I will no longer be involved on housing, maybe then the politics can calm down and maybe someone can get housing moving. I care less about who builds it and care more about doing something for the 900 plus Oneidas who desire help around housing. Our people need housing assistance; will we ever come to their aid?

3) Business: We have had people interested in pursuing investments with us, but just look at the way we operate, no professional business person would want to invest in this environment. We really need outside money to help grow some of those things that we are not doing and have failed to do! We have not built a stable basic economy. We cannot continue to rely on cigarettes, gasoline sales and gambling as our economy. Two out of three of those sales rely heavily on habits and this is simply not a stable economic base. Do we really find all of this acceptable?

Side note: We have spent hundreds of millions of dollars on economic diversification since the 1970's were is that money? What did it build? Where did those investments go? Do we really believe there is no room for improvement here?

4) SEOTS: This was asked for by the bosses, the GTC. The idea of buying, leasing, or renting, can be debated along with the economics of it however, the last OBC supported building a building; we, as tribal members, supported that idea, now it's controversial? The building project was supposed to have been built last year, nothing has been done. We were only trying to move a project that the last OBC was trying to move on. On the Indian preference issue, they have already been met with, compliance will be assured there. On using some departments, they have had years to complete the project; it is projected that a staffer will be used.

If SEOTS moved forward, it would be positioned to possibly help advance the cause of Indian health care in Milwaukee for our people (2,000 plus), the potential is there. But if none of that matters, let's not build SEOTS.

Before I close, the people that want to complain about my work, that is one approach. But, if this same level of energy was put towards offering ideas and solutions that might be more helpful. List those ideas and solutions and submit them to someone. All I am hearing about are the attacks and I choose to believe we are better than this.

In closing, I guess none of these things could be addressed. Maybe none of this is important. The future here can be what the past has been; "falling behind in all the major categories that a society needs for vibrancy!" Housing, new money, business growth, new jobs and pay raises for our employees, maybe none of that is worthy of addressing. We can make the choice to advance towards prosperity on all fronts or we can choose to do more of the same.

I am trying to come at these various issues from multiple angles for the benefit of the Oneida people. We have choices to make here and if we choose to do nothing that is a choice! Thanks for reading.

Respectfully,
Vince DelaRosa

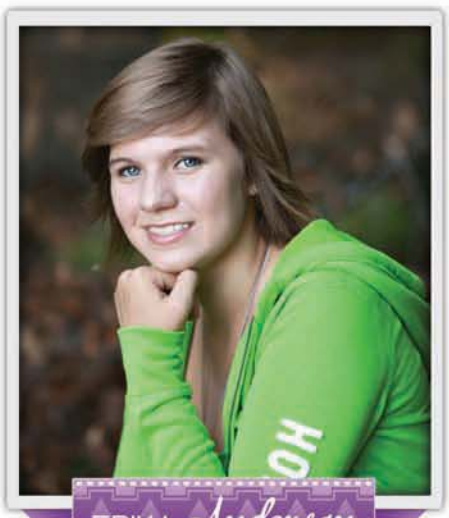
Public Hearing Notice

JUNE 20, 2013 • 5:00PM
3759 W. Mason St., Ridgeview Plaza – Suite 4

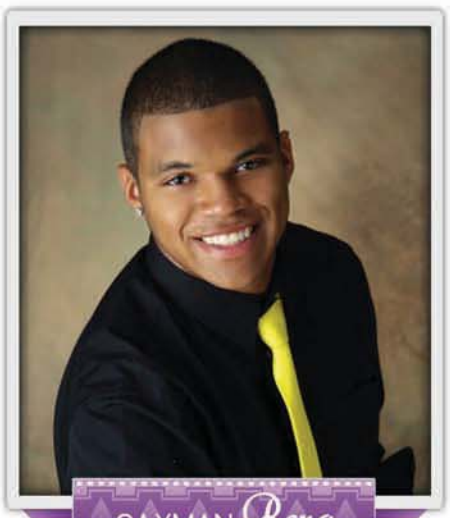
Purpose:
Land Access Designation for Oneida Parks
The Environmental Resource Board (ERB) is identified in the Public Use of Lands and Trespass Law as the body to determine the designations for Tribal Land.

The purpose of this hearing is to identify the proper land access designations for Oneida Park lands for different land uses. Land Access shall be created which designates these Parks as one of the following: Limited Access, Oneida Community Access, Oneida Tribal Member Access, or Open Access. The ERB together with the EH&SD shall, after holding a public hearing and reviewing any comments received, make written findings of fact and determine the designations towards the creation of a Land Access map.



I. Testimony:
A. Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.

B. Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Environmental Resource Board encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of five (5) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to Eugene Schubert, Policy Analyst, eschuber@oneidanation.org or Chad Wilson, Project Manager, cwilson1@oneidanation.org at Environmental Resource Board, 3759 W. Mason St, Ridgeview Plaza Suite #6, Oneida, WI 54155



If you would like to obtain a copy of the Parks under discussion, the land access designations under the Public Use of Lands & Trespass Law, or have any questions as to the public hearing process you may contact Eugene Schubert at ERB, via email at: eschuber@oneidanation.org or call (920) 496-5362.*

Issues

Milwaukee Oneida Community Issues: On May 20th, two petitions were submitted to the Tribal Secretary's Office. The first petition is asking the General Tribal Council to eliminate the Milwaukee Polling site in Milwaukee. The second petition is requesting the General Tribal Council to (1) review, amend or overturn its 2004 decision to provide a more permanent home for the Southeastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS) program and, (2) to review possible violations of Tribal law by the Oneida Business Committee in its attempt to build a new SEOTS facility.

Regarding the Milwaukee Polling Site, for many years, the Business Committee would go to Milwaukee for support and informational reasons. The people would request that they be able to vote, in Milwaukee, once every three years in the triannual elections. They said that a polling site in Milwaukee would greatly improve their ability to vote in that it takes five hours to travel back and forth from Milwaukee to Oneida and back home. The Business Committee would always agree that such a polling site would be a good thing, but that the Constitution prohibited it in that the Constitution said that in order to vote for the Business Committee, one must present themselves at the polls. Tribal member Fred Muscavitch, at one of the meetings in Milwaukee, then provided a simple solution.

Chairman's Report

By Ed Delgado
Chairman

The solution was to create an election site (poll) in Milwaukee. Soon after, that site became a reality and now Milwaukee area residents can now more fully participate in the selection of Oneida Tribal elected leaders. In 2011, more than 200 Oneidas voted in Milwaukee. That, I believe, is a good thing as the decisions we make have an impact on all Oneidas.

Regarding the petition to review, amend or overturn General Tribal Council's directive to create a more permanent home for the SEOTS program and to review possible violations of Tribal law in the attempt to build a new facility, I offer the following: Since 2004, the Tribal officials, including SEOTS board members and staff, have been on a search for a more permanent home. At one time, it was thought that the facility at 6811 Morgan Street would work, but it was soon found that to repair the aging facility would be far too expensive. So the search continued for years. There were other facilities that were looked at but they were in unsafe neighborhoods, too far away from where the majority of Oneidas lived, or simply the facilities were in poor shape or too small. By 2010, the decision to build a new facility was explored that would be funded by issuance of a bond. To date, not a cent of that bond money has been spent, not for construction, not for land purchase, not for any contract to build.

On June 11, the Milwaukee Oneida community met to discuss the petitions. The Milwaukee Oneida community is a strong and tight community. I've attended weddings there, and I've attended funerals there. Often the life for Indians living in Milwaukee is hard. In a passionate presentation by Oneida community member Deb Ushakow, she described the many needs of so many Oneidas living in Milwaukee. "We have families living in their cars, we have Oneidas in need of counseling for addictions, we have Oneidas needing help finding jobs, and we have so many elders in need of medical services and prescription drugs." She asked, she pleaded, for support for her community.

Thank you for reading this.

Blackjacks start strong in summer season

Special to Kalihwisaks

As the standing champions of the Northern Lights Football League (NLFL), the Green Bay Blackjacks continue a winning streak into the 2013 season. They are 4-0 as of Memorial Day. They are now in their sixth week of their season and coming off a bye week. The Blackjacks home field, BS's Bar, 4054 Shawano Ave Green Bay WI, about three miles north of the Thornberry Golf Club.

A semi-pro team, the Blackjacks has 12 Native American athletes on its roster of 54 players. There are 10 Oneida men with one on Injured Reserve, and 2 Potowatomi men. The Native players are on both sides of ball in positions from QB, RB, TE, LB, OL and DL. The Oneida members of the team are: Dylan Benton, Joe Christjohn, Roland Christjohn, Bobby Danforth (IR), Joshua Easlick, Jason Laluzerne, Tyler Laluzern, Aaron Mancheski, Isaiah Smith, and Kyle Smith. Other Native athletes are Kyler Hartl and Sapatis Menomin both Potowatomi. Head Coach Paul Mertens is confident the Blackjacks are an even better team this year. "We have a lot of good talent on this team. A lot of other teams folded last year, and we got a lot the best talent from those teams," Mertens said.Head Coach Paul Mertens is confident the Blackjacks are an even better team this year. "We have a lot of good talent on this team. A lot of other teams folded last year, and we got a lot the best talent from those teams," Mertens said.

Jason LaLuzerne, QB, an Oneida tribal member, said the team is way ahead of where they were at this time last year. The season starts off the first Saturday in May and runs through July.

According to Coach Sean Schroepfer, the Blackjacks are a running team. In their first year, they had a great season, but the Blackjacks are a better team this year.

"We have a have a pro-style offense. We don't use trickery like a lot of other teams do," he said.

At the end of their season, last year, they were 6-2 and won the league championship game. Many of the Blackjacks were selected to play in the All Star game last year.

There are 6 teams in the NLFL including the Blackjacks, Esacanba Bandits and Milwaukee Co. Renegades in the northern division; and Janesville Nighthawks, Milwaukee Mayham, and Lake Co. Honey Badgers in the southern division.

The Blackjacks hold on to their raveling trophy against the Joliet Buccaneers from Illinois because the Buccaneers cancelled their trip for the May 27th game. This inter-league rivalry will go on next season.

Oneida Powwow a culmination of family and labor

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

As the 41st annual Oneida Powwow weekend draws near one can start to smell the fry bread in the air, feel the vibrations of the drums, and heat from that unavoidable humid Saturday. No doubt a few days out of the year that many Oneida citizens look forward to. But what of the rest of the year? How do the vendors prepare their booths? How do dancers ready their mind and body to endure a weekend of dancing?

For one of the Oneida Powwow's most popular booths the preparation begins months beforehand.

Doreen Perrote, whose family operates the Cornelius Clan Booth, begins meeting with her sisters in April to discuss costs and supplies.

"We have lists of what needs to be purchased. Those lists call for prices. We call Woodmans, Sam's, or Maplewood and we order our food ahead of time. Then we call and reserve the Cannery to cook our meat there. Then we schedule someone to do the picking up and ordering also cleaning and cooking," Perrote said.

As food prices steadily ascend the task of pricing and planning food purchases presents new challenges every year.

"Last year side pork was 3.89 and this year it is 4.29 so we try to adjust our prices to what we are going to sell. It seems like every year we go up a dollar on something because the prices keep going up. But we try to keep the prices as reasonable as possible," Perrote added.

Meat used in the booth must be cooked at the Oneida Cannery, the Civic Center, or the County H building per health codes. In addition at least one person working in the stand must be a certified food handler.

In an effort to increase customer traffic and ease through transactions the Cornelius Clan looks to improve from year to year.

"We used to do hamburgers but they didn't sell so we got rid of that then we did nachos and those sold well. We used to sell tea but that didn't

The Miss Oneida Pageant was held on Wednesday, June 19th at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center. For the first time the Lil' Miss Oneida category was included in the pageant and featured four contestants. Riley Aguirre, far right, was awarded the title of Lil' Miss Oneida. The Junior Miss Oneida category featured three contestants, with the crown going to Tianna Hackett, above. Heather Stevens, top right, was the lone contestant for Miss Oneida. Stevens performed an Oneida song and eloquently answered her impromptu question on her way to being named Miss Oneida.

Oneida and NWTC sign charter, establish relationship

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

Oneida Area Manager of Education and Training Norbert S. Hill and Northeast Wisconsin Technical College (NWTC) President Dr. H. Jeffery Rafn signed a charter on Thursday, June 20 that will build a working relationship between the two entities. Hill stated he was thrilled with the agreement.

"This builds on a relationship with an institution and a nation and that we have mutual interests," said Hill.

According to Hill, NWTC averages 100 Oneida students per year leading all other higher education entities. Said Rafn "We've been either #1 or #2 in where you send students, and we're very proud of that fact. And we talked about how we could do more together, and that's something that we're always looking to do. We sit right on reservation land, right across the street is the Oneida Nation, and it seems to me that we have a great opportunity to do some really good things together."

Some of the goals laid out in the document are the measure satisfaction of Oneida students with NWTC classes, work towards improving higher education policy and pro-sell so good but lemonade and water did. We used to do soda but you need some many containers and ice that it wasn't worth it. Every year we think of something different to make it more efficient," Perrote said.

The stand sees a steady flow of customers on Friday, but Saturday is by far the busiest day, with Sunday being relatively slow.

"This will be our 30th year that we have a stand. We always tell everyone to focus on cleanliness, hands washed and gloves, hair tied up, no sandals, and to be friendly and smile. We get pretty busy so it's important to work together," Perrote said.

While vendors sell food, drinks, and handmade items around the outside of the arena, dancers don traditional regalia in the center.

For Oneida Smoke Dancer Kanani Nunies, the Oneida Powwow is a time for excitement.

"When I am around other dancers I get energetic because you just kind of pick up other dancer's energy and energy from the crowd so it is a good feeling," Nunies said.

Nunies dances regularly in traditional socials and ceremonies throughout the year.

"For me all the socials throughout the year are a sort of preparation for the powwow. But I always like to speed it up and try and be creative with different moves to add to my dancing for the powwow," said Nunies.

Enduring the July heat in layers of traditional regalia, dancers have to provide their bodies with the sustenance it needs to stay active.

"I have one outfit that is velvet, the material is kind of thin, but the thing is it has backing on it to hold the beadwork. So that makes it thicker and heavier. I wish they were a little more breathable because it gets hot. After one dance it gets drenched and it is even heavier. But you get used to it. You just have to make sure you're hydrated because it always seems like Saturday is the hottest day," Nunies said.

Nunies aims to place in Smoke Dance competition, but regardless of the outcome she values the time spent with friends.

"I always like to find a really nice piece of jewelry that I want and I dance really hard so I can place and get that piece of jewelry. But I always like to be with friends who travel from far away and eat lots of food. It's always more fun than competitive for me," said Nunies.

The 41st annual Oneida Powwow will begin on July 5th with grand entry at 7:00pm. On Saturday July 6th grand entries will take place at 1:00pm and 7:00pm. Sunday features a grand entry at 12:00pm. Advanced tickets are now available at the Oneida One Stop.

gramming, and increased employment of tribal members.

"This really kind of commits us to increase in the educational level, making sure people have the access that they need, and probably even more importantly that they're successful," said Rafn.

The charter formalizes the partnership Oneida and NWTC have developed by working together on the Food Summit held last April and a mobile class room providing high tech training for student at the Oneida Nation High School.

"Every year there is an action plan that is laid out for the year, and it is much more than a memorandum of agreement, it's an action orientated document. I think that will make it very exciting and productive," said Rafn.

"It's really more than just sending kids to school and achieving a diploma or a two year degree. It's just much more than that, it's saying 'how do we make this work?' and it could be a model for other tribes across the nation," said Hill.

A board of six people will oversee the charter. For NWTC there will be Vice President of Human Resources Sandy Ryczkowski, Dean of Student Success Vicki Lock and Dean of Business, Information Technology Randy Smith. For Oneida it will be Internal Affairs Division Director Joanie Buckley, Planning Area Manager John Breuninger and Governmental Division Director Don White.

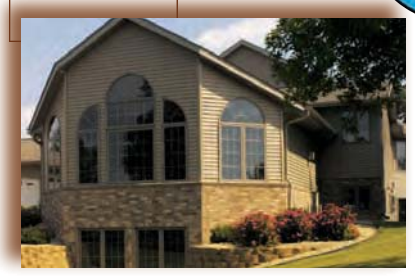
"Every year there is an action plan that is laid out for the year, and it is much more than a memorandum of agreement, it's an action orientated document. I think that will make it very exciting and productive," said Rafn.

Court: Child isn't required to go to father

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Supreme Court says a Native American child doesn't have to be taken away from her adoptive parents and given to her biological father.

The justices ruled 5-4 Tuesday in a case about a federal law intended to keep Indian children from being taken from their homes and typically placed with non-Indian adoptive or foster parents.

South Carolina courts said the 1978 Indian Child Welfare Act favored the biological father of the girl. The South Carolina couple who raised her for the first 27 months of her life appealed that decision.



State courts have been at odds on the law's application but justices said a ruling giving the father a "trump card at the eleventh hour" to get the girl might not be in the child's best interest.

Passing On...

Blackbull, Rosa K.
May 16, 1970 – June 14, 2013

Rosa K. Blackbull, age 43, of Seymour passed away peacefully surrounded by her family on Friday, June 14, 2013 following a courageous battle with cancer. She was born May 16, 1970 to Harvey and Ruth (Metoxen) Melchert.

She worked for the Oneida Tribe for over 13 years.

Rosa loved her husband, children and grandson and spent a lot of time with them. She was known as "Do" to her grandson.

Rosa was always momma's little girl.

She enjoyed being around family and friends at barbeques, watching Packer games, and various celebrations. Rosa was filled with a good sense of humor and loved making people laugh.

In her final days on earth she accepted her illness and it's progression. She wanted her family to stay strong and continue to be close to one another. At the moment of her passing there was a wonderful rainbow around the sun as a sign that everything was going to be "ok".

She is survived by her husband Edgar Sr.; daughter Juanita (Andrew); son Edgar Jr.; grandson Axiver; mother Ruth Melchert; four sisters: Patsy (John), Brenda, Kitty (Barry), and Bonnie (Kevin) five brothers: Harvey Jr. (Sue), Tony, Daniel, Adam (Karen), and Alvin (Amanda). Also survived by mother-in-law Winifred Blackbull; in-laws: Robin, Matthew, Duane, Travis, Shirley, Collette, Melinda, and Trudy. Further survived by many nieces, nephews, aunts, uncles, other relatives, and friends.

Rosa was preceded in death by her father Harvey Sr.; two brothers: Donald and Terry; brother-in-law Brad; and grandparents.

Friends may have called Muehl-Boettcher Funeral Home, Seymour, on Monday, June 17, 2013 from 4 to 8 pm with the Oneida Hymn Singers at 6:30 pm. Visitation continued on Tuesday, June 18, 2013 at Oneida Assembly of God Church from 9:30 am until services at 11 am with Pastor Lonnie Johnson officiating. Burial took place in the church cemetery.

Online condolences may be expressed at www.muehlboettcher.com

Special thanks to all of Rosa's caregivers throughout her illness.

Tonnon, Roberta "Bird"

Roberta "Bird" Tonnon, 49, of Chicago, passed away Thursday, May 2, 2013 from health problems that only God could heal in the spirit world. The daughter of the late Betty J. (Stevens) Tonnon, Guillermo "Willie" Garcia and Robert L. Tonnon, was born on March 18, 1964.

Roberta was a person who enjoyed her life with her children and grandchildren and spent as much time as possible with each of them. She loved to make dream catchers, toilet paper holders, puzzles and most of all thrift store bargain shopping with her favorite auntie Lil' Gal Marie Moreno. She was very proud of her American Indian culture and often wore jewelry, hats and boots that showed her love and passion for her culture.

Roberta is survived by her partner of 25 years, Jesus "Jesse" G. Valdez, her children, Tannara and son-in-law Fabian Reyna, Sr., Christopher, Michael (Senia) Tonnon, Abraham "Tootie", and Jesse "Jay" Valdez; her grandchildren, Fabian Jr., Isaiah Reyna, Neveah Tonnon, Christopher Tonnon, Jr., Leah Valdez and an unborn grandchild of son, Michael and Senia; three brothers and their families, Lyle Q. Tonnon Sr. (Michelle) and his son Lyle Q. Tonnon Jr (Lydia), Gerald W. "Sonny-Boy" Tonnon and his daughter Samantha N. Tonnon (Teresa) and Paul A. Tonnon and his sons Paul A. Tonnon (Burton) and Anthony P. Tonnon (Jessica).

She was preceded in death by her parents, Betty J. (Stevens) Tonnon, Guillermo "Willie" Garcia and Robert L. Tonnon; her grandparents, Louie Webster and Mary Stevens; several aunts, uncles and cousins in Oneida, WI.

She is no longer suffering and is a 'Free Bird' as she would call it. She is loved by many and will be fondly remembered for the rest of our lives…until our chain links us again. We love you Mom!

Sturgeon Bay bridge open to traffic Friday, June 28

Bayview Bridge improvements finished on time

Green Bay, WI – The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) NE region office in Green Bay is announcing the Bayview Bridge (WIS 42/57) in Sturgeon Bay, Door County will open to vehicular traffic Friday, June 28 at 6 a.m. The sidewalk on the Bayview Bridge will remained closed until the July 28, 2013 for finishing work.

When the bridge opens, WisDOT will restore the traffic signal at Michigan St. and WIS 42/57 from its current red-flashing mode. The department will also turn off the temporary signal at Egg Harbor Road and WIS 42/57 and place a bag over the lights until the temporary lights can be taken down.

The Bayview Bridge closure was part of a $4.8 million project to upgrade the bridge. It finished on time and on budget. The project included structural steel repair, bridge painting, electrical and machinery system upgrades, and an overlay of the bridge deck and approaches. This work was done to extend the life of the bridge.

The Bayview Bridge was opened in 1978. The last major bridge repairs were done in 2004.

With Sincere Appreciation…

To all our Friends and Family for the love, support and prayers,

We apologize for not giving our heartfelt thanks sooner. It's been a very difficult time but as you all know our family has lost not only Mom (G-ma) but four other family members we loved so dearly all within a month before her passing. The heartache of living Groundhog Day over and over again before she was finally put in her proper resting place and Mom's stone was complete.

Special thanks to Southern Care Hospice and Dr. Flood for her excellent care, Father Robert Clarke, Aunt Blanche, Oneida Singers and Ryan's Funeral Home.

To the Fire Keepers for enduring snowstorms, wind, below zero temperatures, hail and rain (yes, rain) to keep her fire going 10 days strong – You boys ROCK.

The donation of the Teddy bears. The final 50 became "Pay it Forward" bear giving to those dealing with illness. May they give comfort to all that receive these special bears."

There was a lot of LOVE surrounding her which gave her comfort and loving thoughts before she closed her eyes the final time.

God bless and thank you all!

With much love

Thank You

The family of Lee Domencich would like to thank our family, friends and community for all the loving care, kindness, prayers and support we received during this difficult time. Words cannot express how grateful we are for each and every one of you.

We truly appreciate all those who made monetary donations, brought food, and sent the many beautiful flowers and plants. A special thank you to the pallbearers and the individuals who helped to prepare and serve the food during the wake and funeral.

Thank you again for your continued support, kindness and prayers.

Mobile Farmer's Market networks Native products

White corn among top selling items

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

The season of outdoor food markets has arrived. Local food producers offer their homemade products at community gatherings throughout the area. For the Mobile Farmer's Market the goal is to specialize in selling Native products.

The Mobile Farmer's Market is a project geared toward strengthening regional American Indian food economies by enhancing the area's food distribution network.

Project Leader, Dan Cornelius, recognized an opportunity to spread Native produced foods to larger markets.

"A couple of years ago, just in the course of my job with the Intertribal Agriculture Council in the region, I saw a need for more local Native foods. More participants with marketing, distribution, helping to develop markets, and so I put a grant in about two years ago," Cornelius said.

Cornelius then applied to receive federal grants to acquire the funds needed to jumpstart the project, but was denied. After resubmitting for the grant a year later the project was awarded the grant.

Cornelius bought a fuel-efficient van which is used to transport bulk amounts of Native-made food products to a variety of regional tribes.

"Right now we are exclusively carrying Native produced products, there's a chance at some point that we may carry non-native products if needed, but as much as possible we are focused on only carry Native products," Cornelius said.

The Mobile Farmer's Market covers Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan.

"The project is based in northeast Minnesota. The Project Coordinator Bruce Savage is a member of the Fon du Lac Band so that is where the van is headquartered," added Cornelius.

One of the most popular products sold by the market is the Oneida Dehydrated White Corn from Tsyunhehkwa.

"We were just at Saginaw Chippewa Tribe in Michigan and we pretty much sold out of all of the corn and sold a large amount of wild rice. For the folks here it is difficult to get that kind of product. So it goes fast," Cornelius said.

In addition to selling food products the project also encourages areas to start local farmer's markets if they are lacking in that area.

Making their selling debut at the Oneida Food Summit held in April of 2013 the market has seen early success.

"Our success is going to be measured in our sales of coarse, but also in our ability to bring products to communities that don't have access to healthy and traditional foods. Another big part of this project is building interest in food production and eating healthy. We want to keep as much money as possible in Indian Country, which will translate to more income for tribal producers," said Cornelius.

To view a schedule and stay updated on the Mobile Farmer's Market's various stops visit their website at www.nativefoodnetwork.com.

What is Blood Quantum?

And what does it mean for the future of Oneida?

By The Oneida Trust and Enrollment Committee

This article will explore the history of using blood quantum to categorize American Indian tribal identity. The measuring of blood and the concept of 'Indianness' is a complex and difficult subject. What is blood quantum and where did it come from? In the United States, "blood quantum" is the degree to which an individual can prove a certain amount of Indian blood. This amount is used to determine the individual's tribal belonging and legal rights. Blood quantum is a measure of the amount of Indian blood, expressed as a fraction such as one-half or one-fourth.

What many people don't know is that blood quantum laws have been in effect for about three hundred years. In 1705, when the slave trade was at its height, state governments to begin "cataloguing" non-white people into three categories: "Negros, Mulattos and Indians." Each category of person had different rights. Racial categories were further defined during the Civil War where "…every person have one-fourth or more Indian blood shall be deemed Indian." The U.S government began taking census rolls in the 1800s and 1900s. These census rolls define the genealogical ancestry on which blood quantum is based. When tribes began to create their own enrollment rules, many based them on the Dawes Act of 1887 – also known as the General Allotment Act – and used blood quantum as a requirement. The purpose of this act was to assimilate Indians into white American society by breaking up tribal lands into individually owned plots of land or "allotments."

preserve who we are
SUSTAIN ONEIDA

Over time, competition for governmental resources placed greater importance on Indian blood as a way to qualify for aid. In 1906, in order to control who received aid, the U.S. Interior Department began to issue Certificate of Indian Blood (CDIB) cards. In this way, American Indians are unique – no other group of human beings is required to carry a racial membership card. This mathematical racism continues into the 21st century and has become a deeply ingrained tool used by tribal governments. Over 70 percent of existing tribal constitutions contain citizenship requirements involving blood.

The use of blood quantum as a genetic cut-off point for Indian people is viewed by many as an instrument of assimilation and extermination. The reasons are as follows: first, blood quantum can never be increased; only decreased. Even if a full-blooded Oneida marries a ½ blood Oneida, their children will only be ¾. And if their children have children, they will only be a further divided fraction of "Indian enough." As Lakota elder Gilbert Walking Bull has said, when Native nations adopt blood quantum, we can "never restore the rock, we can only pile stones upon one another." Second, blood quantum is also radically different from traditional Native values of family and inclusion. In the past, cultural practices such as adoption and intermarriage allowed greater flexibility in determining the boundaries of the social group. Not so today. By using blood quantum, concerns over eligibility determined benefits and services make this traditional flexibility impossible. In this way, some argue that the use of blood quantum may be more harmful to Native cultural survival than any other federal Indian policy.

Today, tribes across the United States face a difficult problem: the blood dilution over generations has decreased the number of Natives who meet the minimum blood requirement. Why is this happening? One reason, according to the 2010 US Census, is that Indians marry more non- Indians than any other ethnic group. Indians are the group most likely to identify as more than one race. There are many historical reasons for this pattern that are too complex to dig into here. We know that Indians and white Americans have been intermarrying for centuries and there have been many political and economic reasons for doing so. For example, at the end of the 19th century, the federal government, in the hopes of assimilating Indian culture into "mainstream U.S. society," promoted Indian/white intermarriage. This trend continues into the 21st century; census data shows us that Indians are just as likely to be married to white Americans as they are to other Indians.

So the question today is this: do tribes continue to use blood quantum as an enrollment requirement or do they change their constitutions and create an alternative set of requirements to define tribal citizenship? Belonging and citizenship are much more than a mathematical fraction. And culture is not a biologically defined characteristic. Today, the Oneida have the opportunity to have a conversation about the many possibilities for future Oneida generations if we change our criteria for citizenship. Alternative requirements for Oneida citizenship can be generated by having Oneidas of all ages, from children to elders, participate in creating ideas on the possibilities.

Step to Heal - Good Medicine For Everyone

By J. Amanda Jean Gerondale
Special to the Kalihwisaks

Nearly 200 people participated in the very first "Step To Heal" awareness walk that took place on Saturday, June 15, 2013. The walk was created in response to the recent tragedies and losses in our community and to bring about awareness concerning the everyday struggles our people face. The walk recognized, but was not limited to, Suicide, Sudden Loss, Autism, Diabetes, Various Types of Violence, PTSD, Cancers, and Depression.

The walk started out with an opening prayer that was followed by an honor song and drumming. The Veterans, elders, families and community members began the walk from the Oneida Recreation Center with a special Quiver honor song and dance. Together they walked along the new beautiful pathways under and over the new bridge, up the hill, through the wooded area and down to the Arbor behind the Norbert Hill Center where there was food, speakers, interactive activities, a closing prayer and drum.

I greatly appreciate Tribal Chairman Ed Delgado's full support to bring the community together for this very important cause and for allowing his Senior Policy Advisor Linda S, Dallas help me coordinate everything and everyone.

I would like to thank the following people for their contribution and hard work that made the event so special: Culture Heritage (Opening & Closing Prayers) – Ronnie Hill, Eagle Singers Drum Group – Pork John, KC Smith, Ike Jordan, Shawn Jordan, Ted Skenandore, Kenny Skenandore, Lee Skenandore, Shane Skenandore & Fuzzy Miller, Quiver Song & Dance – Bradley Granquist, Eddie Powless Crouch, Emergency Management/Homeland Security (Medical & Communications) – Marty Antone, Conservation Department (Tables, Garbage/Recycle Bins & Traffic/Transport) – Harvey Kosowski & Dan Brooks, Oneida Police Department – Eric Boulanager & Eddie Metoxen, Wisconsin DOT – Daniel Sergerstrom, Environmental Department (Big Grill), Wise Women Gathering Place (Feelings Expression Board, Supplies, Presentation, Survey & Raffles) - Bev Scow & Stephanie Ortiz, Tourism (Raffle Item) – Michelle Danforth, Retail Division (Water & Ice) – Michelle Doxtator, Jack Denny & Angela Parks, Oneida Apple Orchard (Buffalo Burgers) – Jeff Schofield, Oneida Transit (Transport NHC/Civic) – Don White, Brandon Cooper, Neva Cahill & Robert Detrie, NHC Maintenance (Building Prep, Electrical Support & Construction of Expression Board) – John Christjohn and James Powless, Set Up & Clean Up - NHC Custodial Team, NHC Cafeteria (Refrigeration, Freezer, and Preparation Area) – Jesse Padron, DPW (Tables & Chairs) – Craig Clausen, Behavioral Health (Survey, prizes, and information materials) – Judy Jordan, OCHC Health Promotions (Corn Soup from Oneida Cannery, Water, Mailout & Signs) - Tina Jacobsen, Oneida Nation School System (Distribution of Event Flyers to families) – Yvetter Peguero and Dennis Gullickson, Oneida Recreation (building, coolers, tables, chairs & registration) - Arloquine Bain and Inegail Bain, Veterans (Flags)– Kenny Metoxen, Teddy Christjohn, Wes Martin & Curtis Ninham, Purple Heart Transport Vehicle & Sound System – George Greendeer, Grill Masters – George Graham and Greg Goetz from the Oneida VFW Post 7784, Donations for the Kiddie Bags - Oneida Behavioral Health, Linda Figuroa & the Purchasing Team, Julie Clark, Oneida VFW Post 7784, Wisconsin Indian Veterans Association (W.I.V.A), Kiddie Bag Coordination – Dorothy A. Danforth, I would like to thank Vange Danforth and Ronnie Hill, Sr. for their meaningful & creative input.

A special "Thank You" to everyone who participated in the "Step to Heal" Awareness Walk. None of this would have been possible without the contribution, support and participation of the community! Thank you all very, very much

2012/2013 Contract Health Services Bill Submission Deadlines

If you're requesting Contract Health Services to assist in payment of your health related bills you must submit all bills to the Contract Health Service Department. It's best to submit your bills as soon as you receive them to prevent them from being turned over to a collection agency. The Contract Health Service fiscal year ends September 30th of each year.

Below is the bill submission deadline dates:

Date of Service 4/1/13 – 6/30/13, Submission deadline: 9/30/13

Date of Service 7/1/13 – 10/31/13, Submission deadline: 1/31/14

Date of Service 11/1/13 – 12/31/13, Submission deadline: 3/31/14

Please be sure that your insurance has been billed and made a payment determination on all your claims. If your insurance requires additional information you must respond within the specified timeframes. Once your bills are received CHS will determine your CHS eligibility and pay or notify you if your claims are not eligible for payment.

For inquiries regarding your bills please contact the Contract Health Service Department at (920) 869-2711.

When you are out of town and need medical attention

During regular business hours

Please call the Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711 to speak with the triage nurse. The nurse will assess your symptoms and recommend care. If you need further evaluation and treatment, the nurse will direct you to the appropriate healthcare facility. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to an urgent care clinic or emergency room (ER). Please present your healthcare insurance card and a list of your current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need. However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services (CHS) for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to CHS for payment. Your telephone call and recommended care by the nurse will be documented.

After regular business hours

Please call Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711. If you are certain that this is a life threatening emergency or injury and you need to go to the ER, please leave a message with the after-hours CHS notification line. The message should include the patient's name, birthdate, phone number and reason for ER visit, name of ER and healthcare insurance information.
If you need to discuss your symptoms with the nurse, stay on the line for the Answering Service. Those representatives will gather your contact information and have a nurse call you back. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to either an urgent care clinic or emergency room. Please present your healthcare cad and list of current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need.
However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to Contract Health Services for payment.

Greetings to the Oneida People,

My name is Mark A. Powless, and I am a candidate in the upcoming election for Oneida Gaming Commission.

My Family…
My parents are John and Lois Powless. My fraternal grandparents are the late Mark and Margret Powless, and my maternal grandparents are the late Simon and Irene Moore. I am married to the former Debra House and we have two children.

I have over 25 years of experience in the gaming industry.

- Served on the Oneida Business Committee for nine years, 1978 to 1987
- Served on various boards, committees, and commissions during my employment with the Oneida Tribe.
- I previously served on the Oneida School Board as Chairman, and the Oneida Land Committee as Chairman.
- I also served as the Chairman of the Cemetery Board

My gaming experience is extensive.

- Previously served on the Oneida Gaming Commission as Chairman and also served as a Gaming Commissioner.
- Served the Oneida Gaming Commission as a Project Manager.
- Served the Oneida Gaming Commission as a Project Manager.
- Served as the Executive Director of the Oneida Gaming Commission.
  - I have also worked at the Oneida Bingo and Casino in the Security Department as a Security Officer, and worked as an Internal Investigator within the Security Department.
  - I have a certification as an Investigator.
  - Involved and participated in the drafting of the current Oneida Gaming Ordinance.
  - Familiar with the Policies and Procedures of the Oneida Bingo and Casino.
  - Familiar with the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, which is a Federal Law that all gaming tribes are required to follow.
  - Familiar and have worked with the Oneida Tribal/State Gaming Compact of Wisconsin.
  - While on the Gaming Commission we supervised the Surveillance Department and the Oneida Backgrounds Department.

I have also served other gaming tribes in California

- The Tule River Tribe / Gaming Commission as the Gaming Commission as its Executive Director.
- The Big Sandy Rancheria Band of Western Mono Indians the Gaming Commission Director and Gaming Commissioner for the tribe.
- I have been recognized as one of the Co-Founders of the National Indian Gaming Association, I currently serve as the Vice Chairman of the National Tribal Gaming Commissioner/Regulators Association. The Association is made up of all the Indian Gaming Commissions in the United States.

It would be and honor and my privilege to serve the Oneida people as a Gaming Commissioner.
I am seeking your vote and support in the upcoming election in July. Please take the time to come out and vote for the candidate of your choice.

Authorized and paid for by Mark A. Powless Thank you!

Higher Education outreach and events

By Cheryl Van Den Berg
Higher Education Manager

The Higher Education Office is awarding for spring and summer semesters. Grades are continuing to arrive daily and staff are busy updating files. Applications are being processed for the 2013/2014 school year. Graduation verifications are being made, awaiting verifications from colleges/students. To date, we have 124 confirmed graduates.

Spring "Adult College Fair" was held at the Radisson, May 30, 2013. Colleges and Universities throughout Wisconsin set up informational booths that were of interest to our working, adult population. We will have more information in our next issue with the details on attendance, after reports are finalized.

The "Teen Health Fair" was held at the Oneida Community Health Center, April 17, 2013. The Health Fair was very well attended with 62 students participating. Y.E.S. Advocates and Specialists attended as well as the Guidance Counselor from O.N.H.S. Students were able to visit with various colleges and visit medical departments to explore careers. Students were also able to tour a Rescue Helicopter!

Participating High Schools:
- Oneida Nation High School
- West De Pere
- Seymour
- Pulaski
- Southwest

Participating Colleges:
- Bellin College of Nursing

Child Care handbook

By Dorothy Skenandore

Child Care is in the process of updating our Parent Hand Book. The parents and staff were provided three opportunities to provide recommended changes, with justifications. The Child Care Policy and Procedures team will review the suggestions and justifications. They will be looking at how the changes will affect the whole center and its programming. Further, the team will look at best practices in the Child Care field.

Some of the suggestions to be considered: print the handbook's full pages instead of half pages. Justification: the print ends up so small on the half pages. Okay, we will consider that as it will make it easier for all to read. Another suggestion is to revise reasons for sending children home to include with no other symptoms. This may not be accommodated as Group Child Care State Licensing regulation 251 may state otherwise. Finally, Child Care will be including suggestions we have received from YungStart to include in the handbook.

The Oneida Child Care Department appreciates the time and effort parents and staff have put into making our handbook user friendly. We expect to have the updated Parent Handbook completed and ready to print by June 15.

Loretta Says...

Who is an Elder?

Ongoing Column • Providing a connection to the past

Loretta Metoxen,
Oneida Tribal Historian

Do we become an Elder when we reach a certain age, a threshold in our lives recorded by the calendar? Or do we become an Elder because of the many events we have experienced and learned from? Or are we Elders because we are the parents of one or several children and they, in turn, have children of their own that we call grandchildren? Perhaps the grandchildren also have families and we can be proud to be great grandparents.

I would suppose that I am an Elder because of my calendar age of 81 years on June 8. But I am not so sure that I have learned the lessons of life that were put before me during those years from the Great Depression to the present. Did I listen well to those things my father and mother (and aunts and uncles) were telling me as I moved from a toddler to a very spunky child? Did I heed my grandparent's words? I was fortunate to know both my maternal and paternal grandparents. Did I meet my teacher's expectations in elementary and high school? I know I was a confident student and cared very much for the books and most of my teachers.

Do we have any regrets? Most certainly, all of us do, because life is not perfect. What would we do over, if we could? Or better yet, how could or should we coach the younger generations that look to us for support and guidance?

The Elders of the Oneida Tribe of Indians should really take stock of where they are now compared to their younger lives and past living conditions. I know I do. I grew up on a farm on Second Ridge (Seminary Road) in a log house with no indoor plumbing or facilities. Neither was there any electricity in the house nor the barn. So, the order of the day was kerosene lamps and lanterns. Burning wood for heat and cooking meant that wood had to be felled, sawed into lengths and then split with much physical effort and piled for curing. There were many other daily chores, like watering and feeding the animals (always before we children were fed), cleaning the barn, making sure the water pail in the kitchen was full.

Mom was a good cook and we always had a lot of food. Most of it we produced ourselves—fruit and vegetables from the garden, milk from the cows, eggs and meat (beef, pork, chickens) that we raised and processed ourselves.

Today, for Elders, the Oneida Tribe relieves much of the caring that we would ordinarily put into our daily lives for shelter, food, transportation and services like snow plowing, grass cutting and even daily household chores. Much of the burden of providing a good living has shifted to the Tribe. The Tribe has provided a number of Elder housing units and is planning for more. Our health needs are looked after. The pharmacy sometimes delivers prescriptions and medical supplies to those who need that service.

I wrote this to reflect on our lives and look forward to the future for the entire Oneida Tribe of nearly 18,000 members. What can we do to assist the Tribe to make the best decisions? Elders have the wisdom of the ages. They have much to contribute—not only as advisors to much younger leaders in the community, but to the young families who are often struggling in today's world and to our youth who are fascinated with electronic games and texting.

There are those Elders from the school of thought that say: What? We have worked all our lives and are now retired. We have paid our dues. We have earned the rest and comfort we now get. Many of us are United States Veterans. Well, all that is true. We have experienced much and received much and now maybe we can give back to our community some bit of the good minds we were gifted with.

Application Deadline – Friday, July 26, 2013

The Dollars for Arts Program (DAP) is a re-granting program funded by the Wisconsin Arts Board and the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin. DAP provides funds to support excellence, innovations and the development of the arts in Oneida. The arts include both traditional and contemporary styles in dance, literature, music, theatre, and visual arts. There are three funding areas in DAP:

Community Awards - are available to community groups or tribal programs for arts projects that are new and innovative or significantly enhance an existing program in the Oneida community.

Oneida Fellowship Award - is a $1,000 cash award to an Oneida artist for artistic excellence in the Oneida community. There is a maximum of one Fellowship available per fiscal year. If you have received a Fellowship from the Oneida Nation Arts Program in the last 3 years or received an Artist Development Award in the current fiscal year, you are not eligible for this award in fiscal 2014.

Artist Development Awards - are available to artists in the community who have identified a special project that will enhance their professional development and benefit the Oneida community.

The deadline for submitting grant applications is Friday, July 26, 2013, for activities occurring October 1, 2013, through September 30, 2014. The applications are available through the Oneida Nation Arts Program's website oneidanationarts.org. If you have any questions or wish to receive a hard copy of the application, contact Christine Klimmek via email at cklimmek@oneidanation.org or call 920-490-3831.

Letters & Opinions...

False Rumors

I would like to share with you the three (3) primary reasons why I filed the petition to make all elected and appointed positions on all Oneida Boards, Committees and Commission limited term positions. They are 1) Complacency, 2) Collusion and 3) Corruption.

I would also like to take this opportunity to address the idiots and cowards from the Oneida community and organization who have started some false and very vicious and malicious rumors about me in the community. I work for Oneida Tribal Chairman Ed Delgado's office as a Senior Policy Advisor. I am an elected official of the Oneida Trust & Enrollment Committee. I am running in the upcoming election. I believe these people are attacking my character, credibility, and image and standing both in and outside of our community. I already face a hostile work environment each day I go to work. Now I have to deal with personal attacks, harassment, finger pointing, intimidation, bullying, threats that feel like extortion and exploitation, to name a few. I have nothing to hide. I respectfully request people to come and talk to me instead of whispering behind my back and spreading the lies, deceit, dishonesty and deception that originated on Elaine Reed-Doxtator's Facebook page called "Community Chat", a modern day computer generated gossip rag. No facts and/or evidence were required to be provided. But Elaine has allowed the full blown personal attacks to continue since June 7, 2013. Shame on all of the elected officials, Oneida Business Members and their staff, tribal employees, "Christians" and community members who have worked so hard to attack, defame, and slander me and other innocent parties with their libelous statements. The adolescent and disrespectful behaviors and conversations are distractions.

I apologize to my family and friends who have been subjected to hostile confrontations and verbal attacks and demands at on the "Community Chat", other social media sites, at the casino, at the One Stop Store, at the Oneida Methodist Church, during Hymnal practice, and other places. I am not going to hide from false rumors and innuendos or allow people to make me feel bad by their ignorance, disrespect and inappropriate activities. If you want to know the truth about all the rumors flying around about me, find the courage within yourself and come talk to me. I am willing to talk to you about whatever it is you want to know about me. If you would like to know something/anything about me, please do not hesitate to contact me and ask me. We can arrange a time to meet and/or talk and you can hear the truth and the rest of the story. I thank and sincerely appreciate my family, friends and the community members who came to me and talked to me and showed support in the face of such extreme drama and distraction. I appreciate your time. Have a good day!

SEOTS Facility

RESPONSE TO MARK POWLESS:

In the June 13, 2013 issue of Kalihwisaks, Mark Powless wrote a significant article about SEOTS finding a permanent home in Milwaukee. Why didn't he write such an up-beat article after the Business Committee voted to move forward with a contract to build a beautiful new SEOTS building on Electric Avenue on January 10, 2013?

It the June article, Mr. Powless states "SEOTS recently viewed an existing facility that meets many of the criteria established for the building search." He gives no further details. Is this his level of excellence, meeting "many" of the criteria?

Questions now come to mind:

First, who is this SEOTS that recently viewed an existing facility?

I am a tribal community member and I am served by SEOTS, but I am not SEOTS. Mr. Powless and the SEOTS advisory board are not SEOTS.

Second, what did this SEOTS think of the building that was approved by the OBC in January that met ALL of the criteria established for the building search? Why did they not embrace it?

Third, what about the positive feedback from the community meeting in February regarding moving to Electric Avenue into a building that met ALL search criteria? Why has that been ignored?

Last, why did Mr. Powless request a facility that was nearly 10,000 sq. ft. to seat about 100-150 people but now is willing to settle for a facility that is barely 6,000 sq. ft? What does that say about his business plan and vision?

We have spent nearly six months working with a real estate professional that was delivering ALL that we wanted (and more) and now we cast him out for an alternative that "meets many of the criteria?" No wonder we are going nowhere as a community.

Mike Debraska

Seven Gens is Alive!

On 05.28.13, Seven Gens filed an appeal (2013AP000591) in the Wisconsin Court of Appeals District 111 against the City of Green Bay and spent over $300,000.

There are rumors that Seven Gens was trying to use Oneida as an example to sell the gasification idea to other tribes. Using one in Green Bay and one in Oneida as examples. They want to find more answers and bring it back again – AT WHAT COST?

Is the Business Committee going to give them more money to lose like they did on Nature's Way? Millions lost and they see it coming! Does the GTC have to do the BC's work? They are getting paid and they each have an assistant. Top heavy? The BC also has 11 – yes, eleven – attorneys working for them AND SIX (6) other contracted attorneys. 17 in all to hide behind, 11 to work on small day-to-day stuff and if they have to go to court, they use 6 others. Now at $40,000 each, it totals $680,000. Where is our $750,000 to fight Green Bay? Ask a 12 year old!

On May 5 at 1:00 p.m., the supreme governing body of the tribe met at the Radisson. Over 1,800 members who hold the best interest of the tribe at heart came together to hear and support our young new leaders and attempt to give guidance and direction to the Business Committee. The dedicated members came on a Sunday afternoon, all the way from Milwaukee to tell the Business Committee what they want for our Oneida Reservation.

Why wasn't the BC carrying out the wishes of the people? Why was the BC trying to impose their wishes on us – instead of representing the very people who elected them to carry out the day-to-day tribal operations, which would be a benefit to all tribal members and not just blindly support Seven Gens and their secret backers?

The resolution that they must now enforce is to stop Seven Gens.

If the good attorneys would read Article III, Section 1 of the Oneida Tribal Constitution which was established in 1936, and amended in 1969, they would find that all other Tribal law and all actions taken by the Tribal government cannot violate or conflict with the Tribal Constitution or with the rights guaranteed to tribal members under the constitution, to include all their new legislation.

What will the BC do now with the hundreds of thousands of dollars set aside to fight Green Bay about building a dioxin-emitting incinerator in Green Bay, which they will lose? We can't tell other people what to do in their own home. It was adjudicated once already, and Seven Gens lost. Are they going to throw away good money? Money the BC says we don't have? Does the GTC have to meet again to set them straight? Did our good attorneys advise them to appeal? The GTC must correct the BC, restore our reputation and defend our Tribal Constitution.

Guest Editorial: OTJS

July 8th GTC Meeting Petition To Immediately Dissolve the Oneida Tribal Judicial System

OTJS Response

A petition to dissolve the Oneida Tribal Judicial System/Oneida Appeals Commission (OTJS) is scheduled to be heard by the General Tribal Council on July 8, 2013. By virtue of an earlier General Tribal Council resolution on January 7, 2013, the current OTJS will be officially dissolved as of March 15, 2015. A newly elected Oneida Tribal Judiciary will assume their duties and begin hearing cases in November, 2014.

In addition, a new Family Court as directed by the General Tribal Council is set to begin hearing cases in September of this year. Detailed transition plans are already in the works.

Dissolving the current OTJS now would be disruptive to the lives of hundreds of Oneida tribal members, children, families, employees and elders.

The OTJS has issued thousands of orders and judgments over the last 22 years. Oneida Tribal community members, tribal employees and tribal departments rely on these orders and judgments in many ways.

For example, over the last few years the OTJS have issued numerous guardianship orders to grandparents who are taking care of their grandchildren due to the unavailability of the parents. Grandparents rely on these orders to enroll these children in school, take them to the doctor, etc. These orders allow legal permission to the grandparents to act as parents for their behalf.

Dissolving the OTJS immediately would put a cloud over the validity of these orders and all other orders and decisions of the OTJS.

Since 2009, there have been over 2000 Family Court cases transferred from surrounding counties into the OTJS, Family Court. Of the 2000+ transferred cases, over 1,100 hearings have been conducted involving child support and placement modifications. Of the 1,100 hearings held, only 6 parties have appealed their decision.

That is a very small fraction of the total number of successful cases - less than 1%!

Since 2009 there have been 587 cases of Tribal Debt, 451 Garnishments, 75 Trial cases and 94 cases for Appellate review.

The newly enacted Oneida Tribal Judiciary begins in March, 2015. If immediately dissolving the OTJS occurs, there would be no other judicial body backing up existing orders. Parties to current cases would have to seek new orders from state court; which is a complicated and potentially costly endeavor.

If the OTJS is dissolved immediately, every aspect of Oneida law would be affected:
- Workers Compensation claims that have been denied by the claims administrator would not be able to be appealed.
- Employee employment disputes (disciplinary actions of suspension or termination) would not be able to be appealed beyond the Personnel Commission.
- There would be no tribal forum for hearing requests for temporary restraining orders against pending evictions from Oneida Housing Authority or Division of Land Management.
- There would be no tribal forum for the membership and the employee to appeal any decision made by a Tribal department or body (Personnel Commission, DOLM, Oneida Police Commission, Land Commission, Oneida Business Committee, Oneida Housing Authority, Indian Preference, etc.).
- Debts owed to the tribe could not be collected.
- Per Capita Distribution disputes.

These are just a few examples of the losses that would occur if the OTJS is immediately dissolved prior to the transitioning already in motion into the new Judiciary and as directed by the General Tribal Council on January 7, 2013.

We recommend tribal members look carefully at the proposal. Who benefits and who will be hurt? Will dissolving the Oneida Tribal Judicial System now benefit all tribal members? Or is the proposal driven by one or two people for the benefit of their own interests, and/or personal agenda to the detriment of entire membership and tribal employees? The petition does not even offer a reason or rationale for the dissolution!

The OTJS has been delegated the Judicial and adjudicatory responsibility of the Oneida Tribe since the General Tribal Council enacted resolution 9-19-91-A almost 22 years ago. The General Tribal Council has strongly supported tribal sovereignty by establishing the OTJS then, and now the new Oneida Tribal Judiciary.

It would be a mistake to turn away from that commitment now by dissolving the current OTJS just 20 months before the new Oneida Tribal Judiciary is scheduled to go in effect, and 2 months before the new Family Court is implemented. The GTC has already directed an orderly transition process that is underway. This petition compromises that directive, and creates an immense hardship on Oneida people, Oneida employees, and the entire tribal organization.

How to Stay Cool Without Air Conditioning: 5 Simple Tricks

It's hot out there and you don't have air conditioning. What can you do? You need some ways to stay cool.

#1. Start out by making sure all the curtains are closed. If you have blinds on the windows, close them by flipping the slats up instead of down; this works to block out more sunlight and heat.

Keep unnecessary lights off. Lights produce heat and if you have lots of them on, your home can to warm up quick. The same goes for TV's and computers, especially desktop computers with CRT monitors (the big boxy monitors). They produce a lot of heat, and if they're left on you're going to feel it.

#2. Avoid cooking with the oven as much as possible. This is especially the case during the day when it's the hottest outside. The oven puts off a tremendous amount of heat and can make your home even hotter. Try to prepare meals that don't require baking in the oven, or that you can prepare in the microwave. Another plus to this is that cold meals will help keep your body temperature down, while eating hot meals will make you even hotter.

#3 Avoid wearing tight clothing. Wear light fabrics such as cotton. It will allow your skin to breath and won't trap as much body heat, so you'll stay a lot cooler. Another thing you can do to keep cool is wear a damp bandana on your head. If you're at home and have nowhere to go, this is an excellent way to stay cool if you don't have air conditioning.

#4. Avoid hot beverages such as coffee and tea. Try drinking iced coffee or ice tea instead. The main thing is to make sure you are getting plenty of fluids, especially water. Put ice in your drinks to keep them even colder. Cold beverages is another great and important way to keep your body temperature down, and stay cool.

#5. You can also use a freezer pack instead of a bag of ice, or if you do not have sandwich bags or a freezer pack, put the ice in a bowl and place it in front of the fan. This is a really good way to stay cool without air conditioning.

As you can see you don't have to suffer in the heat just because you don't have air conditioning. With these suggestions, you'll stay cool all summer.

Sump Pump Problems…Augh!

6 Common Sump Pump Problems and What to Do About Them-by Basement Systems

By Justine Hill
Maintenance Supervisor

Sump pump failure is the cause of many basement floods. Pumps can run nonstop or too often, regardless of the weather conditions or season. It may be a sign of a few different problems. Here are some you may run into:

Stuck Sump Pump Switches

Sump pits should have a cover to prevent dirt and debris from getting in. The debris can cause the "float switch", which causes the pump to turn on and off as the water level in the pit changes, to clog or jam. Sometimes the vibrations of the sump pump as it runs can cause it to begin to lean on the edge of the sump pit disabling the sump pump switch.

The Sump Pit is Too Small or Too Big

Sometimes the sump pump is just not big enough to handle the job, so it keeps running to keep up. Or, the pump may be powerful enough, but the sump pit is small, and fills up so quickly that it triggers the sump pump to work more often than it should which could cause the pump to burn out.

The Check Valve is Missing or Broken

Because the sump pump is installed below floor level, the discharge pipe goes up until it exits the basement above ground. The check valve, installed in the discharge pipe, prevents the water from coming back into the pit. A broken or missing check valve will cause water to flow right back into the sump pit.

Continually Flooding Sump Pit

There could be a constant flow of water into the sump pit due to high water table or an underground spring. If the water table is too high, raising the sump pit a bit could help. Upgrading the system or adding an extra sump pump on another corner of the basement might help.

Power Loss

If the pump stops working, check if it has power. Check the circuit breaker, it might have tripped and may just need to be reset. Storms that knock out the power and substantial rain can cause a basement flood. In the winter, the discharge pipe could freeze and clog the system that gets rid of the water being pumped.

If your sump pump is not running properly, contact us and we can find out the problem. Call us at 920-869-2448.

How To Prepare for Tornadoes, power outages, thunderstorms and flooding

By Jessica Mitchell
Lead Disability Integration Advisor
Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA)

Storms can develop quickly. Do you know the best way to get emergency alerts and warnings? If you have a disability that affects your communication, identify the best ways for you to access emergency information in advance. What television stations in your area offer live captioning? Can you sign up for text, email, or telephone alerts through your municipality? Keep phones and communication devices charged, and always have a backup way of learning about emergencies. Some options for alerts and warnings are listed below

- Television stations with live captioning
- Emergency Weather Radio (some can support strobe lights, bed shakers and text readouts)
- Wireless Emergency Alerts – If you are in an area where the alerts are available and have a cell phone that is equipped to receive them, you may automatically receive a text message when an emergency alert is issued. See the FEMA IPAWS website for more information.
- Smartphone applications – Many smartphone apps will provide text and audio weather alerts. You can set the locations and types of alerts you would like to receive.
- Social Media – If social media is accessible for you, look for local emergency management agencies and news stations that also use social media to broadcast alerts and warnings. Save these organizations to your 'favorites' or begin 'following' them in advance.
- Local warning systems – Many localities have emergency alert services that will provide alert information to you in a format of your choice. Most locations can send messages to email addresses, mobile phones (text or voice), landline phones, TTYs and Braille readers. Contact your local emergency management agency to learn what options may be available in your community.
- Community organizations- Some community organizations may translate alerts and warnings into American Sign Language Videos or formats that can be accessed via Braille readers (visit the DeafLink website for one example). Others may offer email services or visual alerts to those at their facilities (see the Gallaudet University website for one example).
- Support network- Talk to trusted friends, family and neighbors and create a plan to notify each other of emergency information.

Oneida Family Fitness Member Spotlight Summer 2013

Sandra Charnon

Sandra Charnon

Although Sandra has been a member of Oneida Family Fitness for about 10 years this is not where she started her exercise program. She started it all long ago. Sandra started with walking. She dropped two sizes in clothes and then was able to start participating in volleyball, dancing, hiking and traveling. Then she added water aerobics and has continued with that for the past 35 years! Sandra has arthritis and has been diabetic since 1962. She says "Exercising has been a way of life. It's something you don't do once in a while! So if the weather is bad I get on a treadmill or walk on the track. I also exercise with weights (it can be done while watching TV.)"

When asked what Sandra likes about working out at Oneida Family Fitness she said that she liked the hours of availability and the friendly staff, who are never too busy to accommodate whatever questions she might have.

Sandra enjoys spending time with her grand kids from playing cards to watching their games, recitals, concerts, parades, etc. She likes to travel, go to music festivals-especially Bluegrass music and Sandra Loves to enter Jigging contests!

Sandra's advice to someone who wants to exercise and get healthy is: "Start slowly, don't let it be a burden. It should be enjoyable! Try to do something every day and hopefully it will become a habit. Dancing is a great start, right in the kitchen. I've even jitterbugged with the refrigerator!"

Congratulations to Sandra for your hard work and dedication! Keep up the good work!

Congratulations Team Oneida!

By Amanda Riesenberg
Fitness Specialist/Team Oneida Captain

Congratulations to all participants who signed up and completed the Bellin Run with Team Oneida. We had a total of 250 employees, tribal members and their family and friends sign up to participant in the 37th annual Bellin 10K Run. The Bellin Run reached a milestone of exactly 20,000 participants sign up for the Friday and Saturday racing events. The Bellin Run is currently the 7th largest 10K event in the United States. As a team we came in 4th out of 13 in the XXL Corporate Challenge Division. There were a total of 90 Corporate Challenge Teams with over 8,600 participants.

Everyone who participated in the Run/Walk should be very proud of yourself. You were dedicated enough to train your bodies through cold, wind, snow, rain, and maybe even some sunny days in between, to reach your goal. GREAT JOB to everybody who accomplished the feat of running, walking or doing a combination of both, for a total of 6.2 miles on a perfect weather race day.

We would like to also thank the departments of Health Promotions/ Disease Prevention, Oneida Community Health Center, Oneida Nation Tourism and Oneida Family Fitness for sponsoring TEAM ONEIDA! Without the generosity of our sponsors, Team Oneida would not be possible.

We would also like to recognize the Top 5 Male and Female runners as these runners help put us in an overall finisher spot for the Timing Division awards. Our Top Male Finishers are as follows: 1. Drew Pyatskowit 41:13; 2. Jonathan Rath 43:59; 3. Ted Sutrick 44:16; 4. Mike Coenen 44:58; 5. Eli Metoxen 46:29. Our Top Females Finishers are as follows: 1. Alison Rath 50:49; 2. Eva Powless 51:35; 3. Heather Lee 52:20, 4. Christina Coenen 54:43, 5. Alice Jordan 55:18.

Tsi?niyukwaliho·tʌ́ Our Ways CULTURAL HERITAGE

Summertime

By Loretta V. Metoxen
Oneida Tribal Historian

The beginning of Summer is June 21, officially. But a lot of folks in Oneida have already started their gardens this year. That is very encouraging because home grown fruits and vegetables taste better and are much better for improving our health than is produce shipped from across the country or from other countries.

The Cultural Heritage Department, with the assistance and advice of SugarBear Paul Smith, has planted a plot of white corn, some fruit trees and rhubarb near the log homes at Salt Pork Avenue. A fence was installed to deter the many deer in the area as they love to eat corn at any stage. The garden will require several weedings and loosening of the soil as it matures. If sufficient rain falls at appropriate intervals, the garden will not need to be watered. Extended dry spells is another matter, which will cause the plants to be watered. In that case, water could be hauled from the pond. When we give our gardens tender, loving care, we can expect great results. Our strawberries will be big and juicy. Radishes, lettuce and onions will provide tasty and nourishing salads and potatoes will be a major staple addition to any of our meals.

In subsequent years, the CHD could expand the garden area and rotate the crops for maximum fertility.

When Joshua and Christine Skenandore's log home was finished on the Salt Pork Avenue Site, I asked Winslow Warrington to build me a trellis for the side of the house. He built a fantastic trellis. This year, I planted bear beans there, as I had several years ago. They are also known as scarlet runner beans. The seed is very large, black and purple in color. These beans can be eaten when the pods are green and tender or we can eat them when they are ripe and dry, just like any other dry bean that we would use in soup or for baking slowly in the oven.

I also planted old-fashioned irises on the side of this house. It occurs to me that any person could help beautify the Salt Pork Avenue area by contributing perennial plants or by contributing some work time to the total effort. If you want to help out, call CHD at 920-496-5385.

June, the Strawberry Moon

June is referred to as Awʌ́hehte? Wehní·tele? or the Strawberry Moon. In many versions of the Creation Story it is said that the strawberry plant is from Skyworld. Skywoman fell from the Skyworld and when she fell she grabbed for help and took some plants with her as she fell, such as tobacco and the strawberry plant. Oneidas consider the strawberry to be a great medicine and dedicate an annual ceremony to give thanks for them. Be sure to give thanks to the strawberry plant for continuing its job!

Awʌ́hihte? tʌknuhwela·tú·
I'll extend my greetings, thankfulness and love to the wild strawberry.

Ta· o·nʌ́ kʌtyóhkwa? né· aeswatahuhsi·yóste? né· ka?niyolihwés.
Now then people for all of you to listen intently for a short duration.

Ta· o·nʌ́ né· í· sʌ́· wá·kelhe? tahinuhwela·tú· né· Shukwaya?tísu.
So now it is me also I thought that I would extend my the Creator love to him.

tsi? shukwa·wí· né· ka?niyohutés né· awʌ́hihte?. that he has given us the short plant wild strawberry.

Ta· o·nʌ́ né· kato·kʌ́ kwí· né· lawelu·hné né· yukwanúhkwa?t
Now then indeed it is certain he had intended it is our medicine ʌkʌ́hake. Né· to·kʌ́ske? kwí· yukwatla?swiyohátyehse? tsi? she·kú it will be. Now truly indeed we are fortunately progressing along that still yotú·u ʌwatunhísane? né· ka?niyohutés né· awʌ́hihte?. Ta· tho it's possible it'll create itself the short plant wild strawberry. Now there niyohtúhak né· yukwa?nikúhla?. Táne? tho.

is how it shall be our minds. That's it.

Book Review: Nasty People

Author: Jay Carter
Copyright date 2002
Subject Matter: Practical Psychology

The author is pointing out the invalidators in our lives which tend to raise havoc on our self- esteem and our general well-being. The author also gives us strategies to protect ourselves from these invalidators.

Narrative examples:
Definition Invalidators:
Anyone who puts other down to lift themselves up through comment, bullying, insinuation, intimation, mockery and or unjustified oversight through work systems, relationships, such as siblings, so called best friend, husbands, wives, bosses, anyone of a number of people who quietly gain your confidents, then see to it that others suffer or at very least feel bad about themselves like he or she does.

Invalidators strategies:
" He or she pretends to acknowledge something you are proud of, then later makes some negative insinuation about it. He feels out what you think your shortcomings are and then exploits them at calculated times when he knows you are vulnerable. He or she has to control you because he perceives you as being superior to him."

Invalidators have many ways to chop away at your self- esteems, judging, manipulation promises (broken), projection. An example of projection, a person that does not like you will say "I don't think you like me?" This statement perhaps gets you questioning yourself. It thereby puts the attention on you and you start looking at your own feelings instead of noticing the other person's feelings. The one doing the accusing is often calling you to task for things she herself is doing.

Narcissistic behavior may be present.

People who get invalidated allow themselves to be invalidated, and they are just as responsible as the people doing it are.

This book is a short read and very informative especially if you are one the millions whom are being validated without strategies to defend oneself.

Governor Walker approves WIS 29 improvements in Brown County

(Green Bay) As part of his efforts to create jobs and make sure Wisconsin is open for business, Governor Scott Walker has approved $17 million to improve the WIS 29 and County FF intersection in Brown County. Work begins Monday, July 1, 2013.

The contractor is Hoffman Construction Company, Black River Falls, WI.

The project includes:

- A diamond interchange at WIS 29 and County FF/Sherwood Street/Hillcrest Drive, with a bridge carrying the local traffic over WIS 29.
- Reconstruction of County FF/Sherwood Street/Hillcrest Drive between Shawano Avenue and Navajo Trail with roundabouts at the intersections.
- Extension of Sunlite Drive to meet County FF at Navajo Trail, providing improved east-west access in the village of Hobart.
- Aesthetic enhancements include decorative retaining walls, bridge features, railings and lighting.

While WIS 29 will remain open during construction, motorists should expect lane closures and some delays on the highway starting in July 2013. During July, the intersection of WIS 29 and Sunlite Drive will be closed for two weeks to construct a temporary connection with the new frontage road. During this time, motorists will be able to access areas south of WIS 29 via County FF/Hillcrest Drive. Sherwood Street between WIS 29 and Woodland Road and County FF between WIS 29 and Golden Pond Court will be closed once the temporary connection at Sunlite Drive is completed. Additionally, there will be no access from WIS 29 to/from County FF/Sherwood Street/Hillcrest Drive during construction. Traffic should use alternate routes to access WIS 29. Sunlite Drive, Woodland Road and Greenfield Avenue access to WIS 29 will be maintained until the new interchange is opened in 2014.

In spring 2014, the construction area will expand north to include the sections of Sherwood Street between Woodland Road and County C/Shawano Avenue, and south to include the sections of Hillcrest Drive/County FF between Golden Pond Park Court to south of Navajo Trail. Traffic that uses these routes will also need to find alternate routes.

The new interchange at WIS 29 and County FF/Sherwood Street is scheduled to open in July 2014. When the interchange opens, the intersections of WIS 29 and Sunlite Drive, Greenfield Avenue, and Woodland Road will be permanently closed.

This project is being built to improve safety and mobility on WIS 29.

Portion of 9th Street in Green Bay to close

(Green Bay) The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) Northeast Region office in Green Bay is announcing construction work at 9th Street under US 41 in Green Bay begins Monday, June 24, 2013, as part of the US 41 Project. The construction is for the removal and replacement of the concrete pavement, sidewalks, storm sewer, and other incidental construction items on 9th Street. WisDOT expects the work to be complete by mid-August, 2013.

Traffic impacts at Ninth Street:

- 9th Street under US 41 will be closed to vehicle traffic through mid-August
- At least one sidewalk will remain open for pedestrians

Alternate routes:

- Use Lombardi Avenue or Mason Street as alternate routes across US 41

All lane restrictions are weather dependent and subject to change.

Estate Claims Assistant
Oneida Enrollment Department

Shekolih Swakweku
(Greetings to all)

Finally, summer has officially arrived and I hope the membership is doing well and enjoying the nice warm weather! As your Estate Claims Assistant, it's been a very busy time in the Enrollment Department. I continue processing life claims, entering Beneficiary Designation Forms, oversee the Oneida Tribal Cemetery and administer the Children's Burial Fund.

OLIPP INCENTIVE UPDATE

Thank you to all the members whom submitted their Beneficiary Designation form in. We received over 400 forms before the June 5th deadline. Everyone whom submitted their forms by the deadline and all those whom previously submitted when OLIPP began in 2009, were eligible for incentive prizes. Thanks to Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee and EPIC Life Insurance Company for providing prizes.

ONEIDA TRIBAL CEMETERY

Is located on west Adam Dr, just east of County Rd. U and west of S. Overland Rd. Oneida Enrollment Department is responsible for carrying out the provisions of the Cemetery Law. It is the policy of the Oneida Tribe that all enrolled tribal members, their spouses, parents and children may be buried in the cemetery.

CEMETERY LAW-CHAPTER 75

The purpose of this law is to establish the Oneida Tribal Cemetery on the Oneida Reservation and to govern the sale of burial plots, burial eligibility and the maintenance of the grounds within the cemetery. The Cemetery Law can be located at www.oneidanation.org. Click on "government" and scroll down to Cemetery Law.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE FOR BURIAL IN CEMETERY?

Enrolled Tribal members, their non-Oneida spouses, parents and children may be buried in the cemetery.

BURIAL REQUIREMENTS

Burials are permitted on any day. All burial orders must be presented to the Enrollment Department at least 24 hours before a scheduled burial. Cement liners or vaults are NOT required in our cemetery.

WHO CAN PURCHASE PLOTS?

According to the Cemetery Law only individual tribal members, non-Oneida spouses of tribal members may purchase plots for their Oneida spouses, children and themselves. Also, non-Oneida children of a tribal member may purchase a burial plot for their self, their tribal member parent or their non-Oneida parent who is a spouse of a tribal member.

OWNERSHIP OF PURCHASED CEMETERY PLOTS

According to the Cemetery Law, ownership of purchased burial plots may only be willed to family members. In the event a plot is inherited by an individual who is not a family member as defined in 75.4-5, the plot shall be resold to the Enrollment Department in accordance with 75.4-7.

WHAT IS THE COST OF A PLOT?

Current plot fee is $100. Plot must be paid for before a burial can occur. Proceeds of plot sales shall be used for the care and maintenance of the cemetery. Plot fee is subject to change and will be assessed at time of purchase.

IS THERE OTHER COST ASSOCIATED WITH A BURIAL?

Yes, a plot opening fee (actual digging the grave), plot closing (covering plot backup) and marking fee. If the Oneida Dept. of Public Works is available for this services our current rate is $200 for opening/closing and $50 fee for marking. All fees are subject to change and will be assessed at the time of burial. If Oneida Dept. of Public Works is not available for this service, the local funeral home who is handling the arrangements will outsource this duty.

CAN I SELL MY PLOT?

Plots may only be resold through the Enrollment Department. Plots shall be purchased at the original purchase price.

PERPETUAL CARE

All plots are sold with perpetual care. Perpetual care means the mowing and trimming of lots during the growing season. In no case shall this mean the maintenance, repair, or replacement of any grave stones, monumental structures or memorials.

Oneida Enrollment Department entered into a Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) with Oneida Department of Public Works (DPW) in October 2010 for the purpose of maintaining the grounds of the cemetery which currently includes; mowing and trimming of trees/shrubs and mounding burial plots. DPW marks all plots for burials and marks when monuments are installed on burial plots.

RULES & REGULATIONS OF THE ONEIDA CEMETERY

The Oneida Trust Committee approved having "Rules & Regulations" signs placed in the cemetery. The signs will be posted in three (3) areas within the cemetery grounds. I strongly encourage family members who have loved ones in the Oneida Tribal cemetery to review the rules and regulations.

The most common items we've removed from plots are glass containers. The reason we don't allow for glass is because it can easily break and once broken, it's a hazard to others who maintain and visit the cemetery.

Shepard Poles are allowed for hanging floral baskets /wreaths but they need to be placed directly behind the monument or on the corner of monument. Don't place them outside the plot confines.

If you're placing dusk/dawn lights, please place them at the corners of the plot or next to the monument, don't place them outside the perimeter of the plot. The reason we want all decorations/memorabilia at the very front of the plot/monument as, it's much easier to cut the grass and trim when items are placed closer to the monument.

There is absolutely no planting allowed behind any monument as this interferes with the maintenance of the cemetery. For those that have planted behind the monument, the plants needs to be immediately removed or you may transplant them directly in front of the monument.

I would recommend any family member with a loved one in Oneida Tribal Cemetery to call me if you're unsure if an item(s) is allowable or I can send you the cemetery brochure. Cemetery brochures are also handed out at the time of each plot purchase and again, shortly after time of burial.

ESPN ranking shines spotlight on Sandy Cohen

By Dawn Walschinski

dwalschi@oneidanation.org

Sandy Cohen is garnering a lot of attention after being ranked number 70 on the 2014 ESPN Recruiting Basketball Top 100 list.

"I get phone calls, text messages every day from multiple college coaches. Sometimes it's a lot but it's a good thing," said Cohen who will be a senior at Seymour High School. "Before the recruiting season I wasn't even ranked top ten in my grade. So I was really excited when I saw that, I was really happy. I always go on that website and I was just hoping I could get on there … It's like a dream come true."

Cohen is a 6'6" all-conference point guard for the Seymour Thunder, as well as an all-conference wide receiver in football. He also won Division II track in the triple jump, but by far Cohen says basketball is his favorite sport.

"Ever since I was little I've always loved basketball," he said.

Cohen hasn't committed to a college yet, though he says Marquette University in Milwaukee is a front runner. He plans on getting a four year degree.

"If it works out the way I want it to, maybe when the in the class of 2018 I will be able to go to into the NBA Draft, that would be my dream," he said.

Cohen is working on his ball handling skills and defense ahead of the next basketball season.

"Ball handling skills makes the game easier, makes everything easier, passing, scoring, just ball handling is one of the main things that you would need to be a great player."

He stated his favorite NBA player is Carmelo Anthony of the New York Knicks.

"I like how easy it is from him to score, he's the leading scorer in the NBA this year, his offence is just so fluid, it looks so easy from him, but honestly it's not, it takes a lot of hard work," said Cohen.

Cohen took a moment to thank friends and family who got him to this point.

"I would like to thank some of the people who helped me along the way: my mom Linda King, and my grandma Lillian King, and my coach Jon Murphy, and Kurt Justin and Chad Oskey," he said.

Seymour High School athlete Sandy Cohen was ranked 70th on the ESPN Recruiting Basketball Top 100. Cohen plays point guard for the Thunder as well as football and track.

One injured in Milwaukee casino shooting

MILWAUKEE (AP) ~ One person was injured in an early-morning shooting at the Potawatomi Bingo Casino, Milwaukee police said.

Sgt. Mark Stanmeyer said the 23-year-old Milwaukee woman was shot in the leg at about 1:30 a.m. Sunday during a fight inside the casino. Her injuries were not life threatening.

A 27-year-old Wauwatosa man from arrested at the scene, Stanmeyer said. He was not immediately charged.

Police did not disclose either person's name.

The casino said in a statement that it closed temporarily after the shooting, but reopened at 9 a.m. Sunday. The statement called the shooting an "extremely isolated event."

Cheryl Anderson of Milwaukee told The Associated Press she was at the slot machines when she heard a shot, which she said was fired at the nearby table games, followed by more shots.

"We all of a sudden heard a bang," Anderson said. "It was a shooting, you could tell. It was so loud like a cannonball. We hit the floor, everybody was panicking. We just stayed there because we didn't know what the heck to do. We saw a guard running, everybody running."

Stanmeyer said the case will be referred to the Milwaukee County District Attorney's Office in the coming days for possible charges.

OBC meets with Oneida Nation on the Thames

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

Amazing, heartwarming, beautiful – those were some of the words used by members of the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) to describe their trip to Oneida Nation on the Thames in Ontario, Canada June 20-22.

Making the trip out for the OBC was Chairman Ed Delgado, Treasurer Tina Danforth and Councilmembers Paul Ninham, and Melinda Danforth. Also attending for the Land Claims Commission was Vice Chairwoman Loretta V. Metoxen, Secretary Reginald Doxtater, Commissioner John Powless III, and Executive Assistant Jennifer Stevens.

The group made the journey in response to an invitation issued by the Band Council in Oneida Nation on the Thames. Councilman Paul Ninham stated he thought it was important to attend the meeting.

"We had decided that it was time to … rekindle that fire and rekindle that relationship between Oneida, Wisconsin and Oneida, Canada," he said.

Both Ninham and Councilwoman Melinda Danforth remarked on how similar both Oneida communities are.

"I hadn't been to the Oneida community in many years. This trip was amazing and an experience that I will never forget. I felt welcomed and at home the entire time I was there. The elected Council greeted us like none other, and the community embraced us very quickly. We saw people who looked exactly like people from here.... and meeting new people there with the last names Cornelius, Christjohn, Doxtator, etc. was an experience in itself. The commonalities amongst are people are almost exactly the same. The government and people face the same challenges we do here in our community," said Councilwoman Danforth.

Members of the Oneida Business Committee and Oneida Land Claims Commission traveled to Oneida On the Thames in Ontario, Canada to meet with their Band Council June 20-22.

Treasurer Tina Danforth noticed that there were more privately owned businesses in the Thames community than in Oneida, Wisconsin.

"Their tribal enterprises are primarily individual entrepreneurs where here in Oneida we a have a vast array of business with financial support, technical assistance and a high degree of employment opportunity. Their businesses are small mom and pop shops with limited resources of human capital and government support," said Treasurer Danforth.

While they had a full agenda of topics to cover, according to Ninham the bulk of the discussion was dominated by the New York land claim.

"Whatever we do going forward to rectify the wrong doing done to the Oneidas, we'll keep them clued in," said Ninham.

Another topic of mutual concern is the Oneida Language. Ninham stated that one of the Band Councilors lamented that their community only had 60 fluent speakers.

"That really hit me kind of hard. … I said I wish we were in your situation. All our fluent speakers we can count on one hand. The sooner we start a joint effort around revitalization of the Oneida language we'll be a lot better," said Ninham.

The OBC members said they look forward to working with the Oneida Nation on the Thames more in the future.

"We have invited them to visit our community here and I look forward to further dialogue on how to create synergies and relationships that will enhance both of our existence," said Treasurer Danforth.

17th Annual Oneida Nation Relay for Life set for July 26, 27th

Departments, community members encouraged to participate

Oneida, WI – The Oneida Nation of Wisconsin has teamed up with the American Cancer Society for the 17th Annual Oneidas Relay for Life on July 26 & 27, 2013. This event is held at the Norbert Hill Center N7210 Seminary Road, Oneida. We are encouraging all departments and community members within the Oneida Nation to enter a team in this event to help make this community event a success!

Oneidas Annual Relay for Life is a 16-hour event in which teams walk the track to raise money for American Cancer Society. All these funds raised stays in the Brown County area. At the Oneida Relay for Life you can enjoy camaraderie with other teams, music, testimonials and good food, all in an effort to help fight cancer. You are welcome to camp overnight or just come out for the day. We will be releasing an event schedule closer to the event. This year's theme is Fiesta.

Wis. DNR wants to increase wolf hunt limits

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. ~ Hunters and trappers would be allowed to kill dozens more wolves this fall under new quotas released Tuesday by Wisconsin wildlife officials.

The Department of Natural Resources has proposed a statewide quota of 275 wolves across six zones for the state's second hunt, which begins in mid-October and runs through the end of February. The state's Chippewa tribes would be entitled to 115 of those wolves, leaving 160 for nontribal hunters and trappers. The agency wants to issue 2,750 permits, or 10 permits for every wolf.

That compares with a statewide total of 201 wolves and 2,010 permits for last year's inaugural hunt. The Chippewa were entitled to 85 wolves, but the tribes are adamantly opposed to hunting wolves and didn't kill a single one. The DNR closed the season two months early in December after nontribal hunters and trappers took 117 wolves, one more than their quota.

The DNR estimated as many as 834 wolves roamed the state this winter, down from as many as 880 last winter. The agency's wolf management plan calls for a total population of 350 animals. If the new quota is reached, the number of vehicle collisions and illegal kills remain unchanged from 2012 and depredation kills decrease by half to reflect fewer wolves, humans would have killed about 44 percent of the total population in 2013, the DNR estimated. Achieving the kill quota alone could reduce the population by up to 23 percent, according to University of Wisconsin-Madison models.

DNR Ecology Section Chief Bill Vander Zouwen said last year's hunt did little to shrink the population and the agency wants to move closer to its 350-animal goal.

"We do want to make some progress reducing the wolf population," he said. "A quota of 275 would do that."

The proposal mirrors recommendations from the DNR's wolf advisory committee, a group of stakeholders that guides the DNR's policy team. The Natural Resources Board is expected to vote on the quotas and permit levels at a June 26 meeting in Wausau. Board chairman Preston Cole didn't immediately return a telephone message seeking comment on the proposal Tuesday.

Republican Gov. Scott Walker signed a law in April 2012 establishing a wolf hunt in the state. The hunt quickly evolved into one of the most contentious outdoor issues Wisconsin has grappled with since the discovery of chronic wasting disease in its deer herd in 2002.

Farmers tired of wolves preying on their livestock applauded the hunt. Conservationists and animal rights advocates complained the state's wolf population is too fragile to support a hunt and Wisconsin hunters already have enough animals to kill and should leave the majestic wolf alone. A group of humane societies filed a lawsuit challenging provisions of the law that allow dogs to track wolves.

Sue Erickson, a spokeswoman for the Great Lakes Indian Fish and Wildlife Commission, which oversees the Chippewa's off-reservation rights, declined to comment about the new quotas Tuesday, but she said the tribes believe people shouldn't kill wolves for sport.

Melissa Smith, organizer of the group Friends of the Wisconsin Wolf, called the quota reckless in an email to The Associated Press. She said she supports targeted hunts in areas where wolves threaten livestock, but she believes wolves are "too delicate of a species to have a general hunt."

She also maintained that the DNR hasn't consulted any people `"who wish to see wolves alive rather than dead." She said the agency simply wants to protect the state's deer herd from wolf attacks in order to ensure the state's billion-dollar deer hunting industry remains viable.

"The hatred for this animal all comes down to them being 'competition' for deer," she wrote. "What a joke ... I guess having an ecological disaster is worth it so some slob can get that 'trophy buck.'"

The DNR's Vander Zouwen, who leads the wolf advisory committee, said the group wants a sustainable wolf population.

"I would consider that pro-wolf," he said, "but I understand some people don't think any should be killed."

New Oneida ID Cards Available

Beginning June 1st there will be a new Oneida ID card available at Enrollment office. The new card looks much like the old cards with one exception, it will have a bar code on the back of the card. This bar code allows for faster Gas Tax exemption service for the customers at the Oneida One Stops. It also a more accurate way of tracking the transactions so the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin can be reimbursed from the State more efficiently.

In the future it will also assist with the processing of tribal members who attend GTC meetings. Getting a new card today will require a fee of $3.50 or $1.50 if you are over 55. The only exception to the bar coded cards are youth 15 or younger who will not receive bar coded ID cards.

A new ID card can be obtained during regular business hours at the Enrollment office with the exception of Mondays – No ID cards are processed on Mondays between June 1-Sept 2.

If you do not need a new card right now, you may opt to wait until October 1, 2013, at which time, you may exchange your old card for a new card with bar code at NO cost to you.

Wis. DNR suspects virus killed hundreds of carp

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Wisconsin fisheries experts suspect a virus played a role in the death of hundreds of carp in Iowa and Dane counties this month.

David Rowe is the Department of Natural Resources' fisheries team supervisor. He says carp in Ludden Lake near Mineral Point and Marshall Millpond in Marshall started turning up dead around the middle of June. He says hundreds died in both locations.

Rowe says the carp likely became infected with koi herpes virus during spawning and developed a secondary bacterial infection that did them in. Results from testing at the Wisconsin Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory are pending.

Rowe says the agency is unsure how the virus got into the water bodies. The DNR advises anyone cleaning up the dead fish to use a shovel or gloves.

Vice-Chairman's Corner...

Greg Matson
Vice-Chairman

The Necessity of a Simple Basic Plan Unique for Oneida

A simple basic plan. That's what we need. I have been approach dozens of times over the last few months from Tribal members that have concerns about the actions, behavior and accountability of some of our elected officials. This is not out of the ordinary, it happens all over the country at different levels whether it's Federal, State, or local politics we can see it on the news or the internet. However, it should not be happening here in Oneida. I have asked for action and improvement on many issues and topics and I get very little response. So, I just want to bring some thoughts to you and let you know that some elected officials are trying to put the people first...in a good way with the good mind.

Communication with the Membership

We need to increase clear, concise information to the membership as we increase our use in the social media area. I think we can improve communication between the BC and the membership with simple efforts. One thought is that this could be done by utilizing individual pages similar to FaceBook or You tube on the members only site that is on the Oneida Tribes main webpage. The individuals participating would need to take ownership of statements or activities which would increase accountability and let the members get to know their BC members individually.

A "question of the day " could be formulated by members or staff and be addressed by the BC members on a regular basis which would again increase individual accountability.

Also it appears there seems to be no clear way to hold individuals responsible for their individual behavior or actions. On a similar note there needs to be some accountability within the membership that can provide accountability for individual members that continue to focus on disruption or distortion of the facts. Also our current system does not have a code of ethics for members. We can only encourage each other with our Core Values as Oneida People and the Good Mind.

Strengthen and Diversify Our Economy

We should strengthen our economy by using our land in a more meaningful way. We can begin this by planting crops for human consumption. There is effort being done right now to get this started and followed through instead of just talking about it and sending out memos By initiating this we will become 'suppliers' instead of just consumers. This would also lead to more jobs instead of downsizing our workforce. A lot of jobs could be created in building the required infrastructure such as roads, drying areas, processing areas, housing, store fronts, etc. using workforce development dollars or grants for skill trades. This would also initiate a healthier diet for our children, our Elders, and our community. I disagree with the thought of downsizing. I believe my job and responsibility as an elected official is to create opportunity for the membership to become employed not threaten lay-offs. I feel if we are not growing, we're dying and I like many others refuse to accept that as an option. With that said please let me encourage you all to help as it will take all of us to continue our growth. We can no longer wait for the problems to go away, we need to ALL improve our understanding of our responsibilities to each other and do it with a Good Mind.

Create Our Own Customer Base

Create our own customer base at areas of retail such as 29/32 center, by building apartments in these areas as well as establish new businesses that are focused on everyday needs, as much as cutting edge technology. There is opportunity to develop in so many areas such as food, consumer goods, and service providers that would build a solid foundation for us to grow from, rather than relying on a limited revenue source that we are currently faced with. I understand there was a targeted industry study done some time ago for a base for such development. These efforts are also being worked out on various topics from various BC members, because that's what we should do as elected officials with the Good Mind.

Transfer of Jurisdictional Oversight

Aggressively begin meaningful conversations with the Federal Government to transfer jurisdictional oversight on entire Oneida Territory in regards to EPA standards, and DNR regulations by acquiring "Management Unit status" within our Reservation boundaries. This type of effort also needs to be done in providing mail service to the entire Reservation. This would result in jobs, a savings to the Federal Government, as well as improve jurisdiction. I bring this topic up each and every time I meet with Federal Representatives, because that's my job that I use the Good Mind.

Design a Solution Formula for Indian Housing Inefficiencies

Begin a solution formula to all Indian Housing insufficiencies by partnering with component building companies, training our own people and buying in bulk with other Tribes. All infrastructure should be done with Higher Ed dollars or training dollars. Possibly allow the membership to invest with Per Cap dollars. Once a training crew is established it can become available to other tribes throughout Indian Country and other areas that request service. Because that's what Indians do, help and support each other, not undermine each other, by using the good mind.

Create Partnerships with Other Tribes

Build and create partnerships with other tribes to start light manufacturing within our foreign trade zone as well as assign a tribal focus group to develop a master plan of business in our business parks. Because that's what Indians do, help and support each other, not undermine each other, by using the Good Mind.

OBC Organizational Needs

OBC NEEDS: restructure the former GM position with a Financial Officer, a Strategist, and a Legal Counsel. This would address the barrier of day to day between the OBC and the Division Directors and it could also serve as the CDPC (community development planning committee). It would then be made up of individuals that understand the subjects being discussed as well as free up the BC to be more effective in their daily responsibilities, which is to legislate, and protect, the rights of the Oneida People with the Good Mind.

Design an Appropriate Structure for the Oneida Voice

Develop neighbor hoods or districts to better engage the voice of the Oneida peoples. Example: based on population, all BC members serve as district facilatators, organizers, managers and meet once a month at places like OLC, County H Building , Civic Center, and Thornberry to listen to the concerns of the members and bring those concerns to GTC twice per year (the annual and semi-annual meetings). Throughout the year the concerns could be vetted at the monthly meetings. The members that choose to collect a stipend would be paid that stipend at the semi-annual and the annual if they participate throughout the yearly meetings. Details need to structured for responsible participation by all. The primary goal would be to talk things out to the point of a solution, because that's what we should do, solve issues not create more confusion due to the lack of communication by using the Good Mind.

Access to BC Members Travel Schedule

There should be a way for members' access to the BC members' travel schedule. Example: load up the individual BC members schedule for the next week on the web page. This would allow the members to know if the BC is in their area or where they can participate in meetings with their elected officials. The typical conference attended by BC members ends around 4:00pm so their time could be spent with membership in the area. This will create accountability as well as better communication throughout the structure using the Good Mind.

Urgent Immersion Camp for Language and Culture

Create an immersion camp for language and culture with the ability to use Higher Education dollars to fund the participation of members. If an individual can receive these dollars for studying the English language and culture to become a teacher, they should be able to study the Oneida language and culture that they may not have daily access to.

Now What?

In closing I would like to say that I have consistently brought these and many other ideas to the BC as well as our present directors and management areas and have not been able to get the momentum needed to really move forward. I think one of the major problems we face is the loss of financial creativity and the related focus on strengthening our Tribal members' ability to become self-sufficient. Some past GTC directives that requires the Tribe to keep providing money to the membership in ways that do not create long term opportunity to the membership need to be reviewed and talked about with the GTC using the Good Mind.

Our CFO, Larry Barton and his staff do a wonderful job of maintaining our dollars, they know how to keep them flowing but we cannot expect his staff or Louise King's talented staff throughout Gaming to fix our financial 'hiccups' that we bring upon ourselves. I heard sometimes if you take a real deep breath and hold it, you can get rid of the hiccups. Perhaps that is what we need to do, take a deep breath, followed by some real good conversation without accusations and finished with some encouragement without discouragement and we will "get gooder" at recognizing how much we have to give thanks for and how much more we can give each other that doesn't have a dollar amount attached to it by using the Good Mind.

Remember we all can have eight hours to work, eight hours to play, and eight hours to sleep every single day. Let's try to do that. For ourselves and for each other and those seven generations in our teaching by using the Good Mind.

Please note these initiatives are not in any specific order of urgency ... Because as some say they are all urgent.

Gaming Expansion

This project was originally presented at the Semi-Annual GTC Meeting on July 4, 2011 as informational and again on November 28, 2011 during the budget meeting.

At that time this proposal gave specifics on why the expansion was needed, mainly to increase revenue. A feasibility study was done by Davis Marketing and recommended to the casino what they thought would enhance the customer's experience, build our revenues and continually meet the needs of the Tribe. Those recommendations included expanding the gaming floor; add a food court and sports themed restaurant; relocate the Valet area and Smoke Shop; as well as relocate poker from the Mason Street facility and relocating the craps pits within the facility.

Although there was no discussion on the floor by the members on this item, it did pass as part of the Budget Resolution as CIP Project #10-008.

The proposed expense schedule for all gaming facilities is $2.8 million in FY12; $16 million in FY13; and $8.9 million in FY14 for a total cost of approximately $28 million. This project is to be done in phases, with the Main Casino being Phase I. The overall cost for Phase I is estimated at $12.3 million dollars.

The original request in the FY12 Budget meeting was for $28 million dollars for the expansion project with the monies in the first year to start the groundwork of requesting Request for Purchases (RFPs) and architectural drawings. The remainder of the cost of the expansion will be paid from tribal contributions in FY13 and FY14.

Oneida Airport Hotel Corporation

The OAHC is under new management. Earlier this spring Aimbridge Hospitality was brought in to oversee the property and Steve Ninham was hired as the General Manager. Occupancy levels are on the rise as well as streamlining some of the employees at the Radisson. The Wingate has steadily improved over the four years of operation and is now a sustainable operation.

David Jordan
Councilman

Thornberry Creek

Earlier this spring, the Thornberry Creek Golf Course Board was dismissed and this operation placed under new management. I want to commend Janice Skenandore-Hirth for stepping in and taking charge on an Interim basis. She has identified several key areas wherein steps need to be taken to streamline the day-to-day operations at this facility and getting them back on track. Through her report to the Business Committee she has given us a better insight into how this operation works and the goals that can be achieved with proper management and staff.

Anna John Resident Centered Care Community

In mid-June the residents of this Anna John Nursing Home were transitioned to this new facility. I know this has been a long time coming and even though there were many pitfalls along the way, all the patients are in their new surroundings and the facility is opening up new areas within this operation. In mid-July the elder meal site will be moved from the County J location to this facility as well.

GTC Meeting

On Monday July 1st at 6:00 p.m., the Semi-Annual General Tribal Council meeting is scheduled to be held at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center.

One of the agenda items I am responsible for is the update on the Child Care Complaint Process. A new policy is being developed. Also, several meetings have been held with those individuals involved in operating the child care facility, upper management, as well as those parents who first brought their concerns forward. We are striving as a team to put in place a better communication tool, working with the parents to voice their concerns, and also making the child care facility an environment where parents can rest assured their children are being cared for in a most outstanding manner.

Happy Birthday

Congratulations are in order to Maria Hinton for achieving a highlight in her life in turning 103 years of age. A party was held earlier this month to honor this achievement. Maria is a lifelong resident of the Oneida community and her many accomplishments are to be commended. She is a beacon to many of the children who went through school who had her as a teacher. Again, join with me in wishing a Happy Birthday to Maria.

Again I want to thank you, the general membership, for taking the time to read these articles and as always I am available to meet with you, should you so desire. I can be reached at 920-869-4482 or you can e-mail me at djordan1@oneidanation.org.

The GBSO announces Centennial Season programming

Local themes and talent featured throughout season

GREEN BAY, WISC. (June 12, 2013) – GBSO Music Director Donato Cabrera and Executive Director Dan Linssen jointly unveiled the details for the 2013-2014 concert season. This will be the orchestra's 100th season, which means it has been entertaining local audiences even longer than the Green Bay Packers. To celebrate the Centennial, Linssen said, "This season will emphasize themed concerts with related activities and displays. Moreover, we will showcase an amazing range of musical talent from right here in northeast Wisconsin. Every concert will be a blockbuster event."

The season will kick off with Oktoberfest! on October 12 featuring three great German masterworks by Wagner, Strauss, and Beethoven. Before the concert, ticket holders can enjoy beer tasting, Bavarian travel information, and German folk music in the Weidner Center lobby. Two of Green Bay's most famous German's – Schmitt and Streckenbach – will launch the concert with a joint proclamation honoring the Centennial.

In November, GBSO will celebrate three key periods in the history of Northeast Wisconsin. First, in honor of our area's first nations and Native American Heritage Month, Oneida Nation soprano, Jennifer Stevens, will perform three of her compositions arranged for orchestra by local composer Alaric Coussons. Subsequent French exploration and settlement of this region, plus the European immigration of the late 1800s will be reflected in works by Bizet and Dvorak.

In addition to the annual Holiday Pops and small ensemble Christmas concerts, winter will bring concerts of Great Music from Around the World, featuring world-renowned ehru instrumentalist Jiebing Chen who recently moved to Green Bay, and Great Music from the Olde World featuring acclaimed violin soloist Samantha George, a northeast Wisconsin resident, leading works by Vivaldi and Bach.

The season will conclude with Beethoven's epic 9th symphony with its famous "Ode to Joy" movement. For this concert the GBSO will be accompanied by a 220 voice choir consisting of the Dudley Birder Chorale and the St. Norbert College Chorus. "This concert will be the most spectacular performance GBSO has undertaken in perhaps its entire 100-year history," said Linssen.

About Donato Cabera: Donato Cabrera debuted as music director with the Green Bay Symphony Orchestra during the 2011/12 season. He joined the San Francisco Symphony (SFS) conducting staff in 2009 and continues in his current role. As Bruno Walter Resident Conductor Chair, he works closely with SFS Music Director Michael Tilson Thomas and leads the San Francisco Symphony Youth Orchestra as Wattis Foundation Music Director.

Cabrera is dedicated to music education and community outreach and has worked with members of the young artist programs of the San Francisco Opera, Lyric Opera of Chicago, and Portland Opera. He was also a frequent conductor of Young People's Concerts with the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra.

A champion of new music, Cabrera was a co-founder and music director of the New York-based American Contemporary Music Ensemble (ACME), and has led that ensemble in works of John Adams, Jacob Druckman, Donald Martino, Frederic Rzewski, and Elliott Carter.

The Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin - Legislative Operating Committee

Notice of Public Meeting

Topic: Amendments to the Comprehensive Policy Governing Boards, Committees and Commissions

When & Where:
Thursday, July 18, 2013 at 12:15 p.m.
OBC Conference Room
Second Floor, Norbert Hill Center—Oneida, WI

Public Comment Period:
June 27, 2013 to July 25, 2013
Those who cannot attend the Public Meeting may submit written comments regarding this legislative proposal. Those who attend the Public Meeting may also submit written comments and/or a written transcript of their testimony from the meeting. All written submissions must be received by the last day of the Public Comment Period.

Summary of the Proposal

The amendments would retitle the policy as "Board, Committees and Commissions" (Law) and enact it as a law. The amendments would also:

- Govern the creation and dissolution of boards, committees and commissions; and the appointment of persons to boards, committees and commissions;
- Set out the type of information required to be contained within bylaws;
- Determine how official records are maintained and compensation is paid;
- Limit a Tribal member to one (1) appointed position on a Board, Committee or Commission. Tribal members will not be allowed to hold more than one Board, Committee or Commission position and Tribal Corporation Board position at the same time.
- Limit a Tribal member to serve a maximum of two (2) consecutive full terms in any one (1) appointed position. Upon adoption of the Law, the resolution will contain a grandfather clause to allow all elected persons serving in an office on the effective date of this amendment to have their current term counted as their first term, regardless of the number of terms previously elected to that office.
- Prohibit Tribal members from serving as an elected or appointed official and as a Tribal employee.

The Public Meeting materials, including the draft proposal, legislative analysis and any other relevant documents, will be made available at the Public Meeting, or can be obtained in advance through the Legislative Reference Office. Summer Fun

Oneida Recreation

Monday, June 10th kicked off the start of the Oneida Recreation summer program for youth ages 7-8. The total enrollment for the 1st session nearly maxed capacity with 49 Oneida youth members.

This year the staff wanted to try something a little different for the kids. Previously, a special field trip was coordinated each Friday of the week. Now every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday the kids are able to venture out and explore local parks, wildlife, and other children friendly facilities. The remaining days are reserved for team games, arts & crafts, and skill-building activities at the Civic Center.

The first day of the summer program consisted of a trip to Pamperin Park where the kids played kickball, tag at the park, and went on a hike through the trails. The following day the children were busy creating a dragonfly using materials from nature, playing summer bingo & "pass the chicken," competing in an egg drop contest, as well as helping to clean up trash around Site One. Wednesday was spent at Ashwaubenon Lanes for a fun-filled day of bowling and a competition to get the most strikes!

The next day participants were able to adopt their very own pet rock, play soccer, jump rope with rhymes, and Guesstures.

Friday the kids were taken on a special trip to the Mulberry Lane Farm located in Sherwood, WI. The group had the opportunity to engage and interact up close with many farm animals. You can imagine how exciting it was for the kids to be able to hold and pet chickens, baby goats, calves and a one-month old colt named Fresco. Everyone was also given the chance to milk a cow, ride a horse, and enjoy a hayride circling the farm.

Overall week one was a huge success and the group continues to look forward to the program's upcoming events and activities.

Three Sisters Community Center

By Isabel Parker

The Summer Program 2013, sponsored by the Oneida Housing Authority, has begun this June from 12:30pm to 4:30pm daily. Isabel Parker has lunch right on 12:30pm and an afternoon snack before the youth go home. The summer program will run till August 22 ending with a family field trip to Wisconsin Dells.

Parker has 16 youth ages 7 to 11 that are participating daily. They participate in crafts, art projects, bowling, movies, swimming and trips to local parks. The youths' favorite is the spider park. They love climbing the web.

In July we will be going to Badgers Sports Park, hosting intergenerational Bingo with the elders, and educational presentations on safety with TRAILS and the Environmental Department. Reading is important so we will be having special reading days in the park.

Last year Parker did the ABC Countdown, so this year the countdown is Z to A, so the youth Zoomed right into the summer program and are hoping to have an Awesome summer.

OTIE sponsors engineering program at Oneida High School

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises LLC (OTIE) is pleased to announce the sponsorship of the Oneida Nation High School (ONHS) Summer Session 2013 program , Engineer A Credit, for students entering grades 9-12.

OTIE is sponsoring the program so that Oneida high school students have the classroom opportunity to explore engineering concepts and design projects through math, science, engineering and technology instruction, and earn credits at the same time.

The OHNS Summer Session 2013 program takes place at the Oneida Nation High School June 10 - June 27, 2013, under the instruction of Primary Instructor Mike Hanke from the ONHS teaching staff.

The three-week summer session program is designed to provide hands-on activities that have the students designing and building projects such as bridges, towers, and catapults using their creativity and math skills knowledge in the design process.

This is the first year that OTIE is sponsoring the ONHS Summer Session 2013 program, to bring a focus and emphasis to science, technology, engineering and math studies that may inspire Oneida students to study engineering in college. The sponsorship is part of the OTIE education outreach program, and reflects the OTIE commitment to providing education enrichment opportunities for Oneida youth and their families.

If the ONHS Summer Session 2013 program concept, Engineer A Credit, is successful and effectively plants the seeds of engineering and science interest in the minds of Oneida youth, OTIE will continue to expand the program over the next few years.

OTIE is an engineering, science and construction management services company owned by the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin.

Summary of the Proposal

The Amendments limit Tribal members to serving 2 consecutive terms per position; limit Tribal members to run for 1 elective seat per election; prohibit any Tribal member from serving in more than 1 any elected or appointed position at any given time; prohibit Tribal members from being Tribal employees while serving on an elected board, committee or commission; and include enforcement provisions for campaign violations. The Amendments also:

- Update the duties of the Election Board.
- Streamline the caucus process by making the Election Board, instead of the Business Committee responsible for calling a caucus and decreasing the time frame for when a caucus can be held.
- Clarify where campaign activities can occur.
- Require a polling site be located on the Reservation and in Milwaukee.
- Require video surveillance of all ballots and voting devices when the polls are open.
- Allow voters to have one person of their choice assist them with marking their ballots.
- Allow election observers and set out requirements regarding the observers' actions.
- Require the Election Board to document election day incidents and other irregularities and include them in a report to the Business Committee.
- Increase the time frame for filing a challenge of the election results – from 10 to 30 days. Amends the section on "Referendums" to clarify the parameters and process for referendum questions to be placed on a ballot

The Public Meeting materials, including the draft proposal, legislative analysis and any other relevant documents, will be made available at the Public Meeting, or can be obtained in advance through the Legislative Reference Office. Petition process questioned after GTC agenda gets cancelled

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

The General Tribal Council (GTC) took the rare action of deleting the entire agenda during the July 8, 2013 Special GTC meeting.

The agenda featured three petitions surrounding child laws within the Oneida Appeals Commission along with a referendum question asking if tribal members should be allowed to withdraw their custody cases from the Oneida Child Support Program and move them to the County system. The petitions were submitted to the tribal Secretary's office in February of this year.

The GTC felt the agenda items were already addressed when they took action by adopting the proposed Judiciary Law during the GTC Annual Meeting, Monday, January 7. The Judiciary Law establishes a court system with two branches, the trial court and court of appeals. The new judicial system will start accepting cases November 1, 2014. The amendment to delete the entire agenda was made by Councilman Brandon Stevens.

The move has some asking for the current GTC petition process to be reviewed.

A GTC meeting can be called by 50 verified voters serving a written notice or by the tribal Chairman.

GTC member Kaylynn Gresham felt petitioners along with the petition process should be examined to make better.

"I just think that we need to start looking for options on how to fix things instead of complaining about what is wrong, I realize that everyone has a story and wants to be heard. Many people are not satisfied with how things are but its difficult to support something when there are no options of how to fix a problem. I believe that if people leave their personal issues out of it we would get much more accomplished. Had the petitioners come with some sort of potential solutions I believe more people would have been in support of staying at the meeting and listening to possible solutions," said Gresham.

"Perhaps it is time to consider changing the petition process to require more signatures, although that would require that we amend our constitution, the 50 signature requirement was established when the 75 member to create a quorum was established. As a result of the large number of members that now attend the meetings it may be time to consider an increase of the number or required signatures to call a special meeting. If more signatures are required it demonstrates that there are a larger number of members in the community that support an issue. I believe that if the number was increased it would likely alleviate problems in the future so that what occurred last night does not occur again in the future," she added.

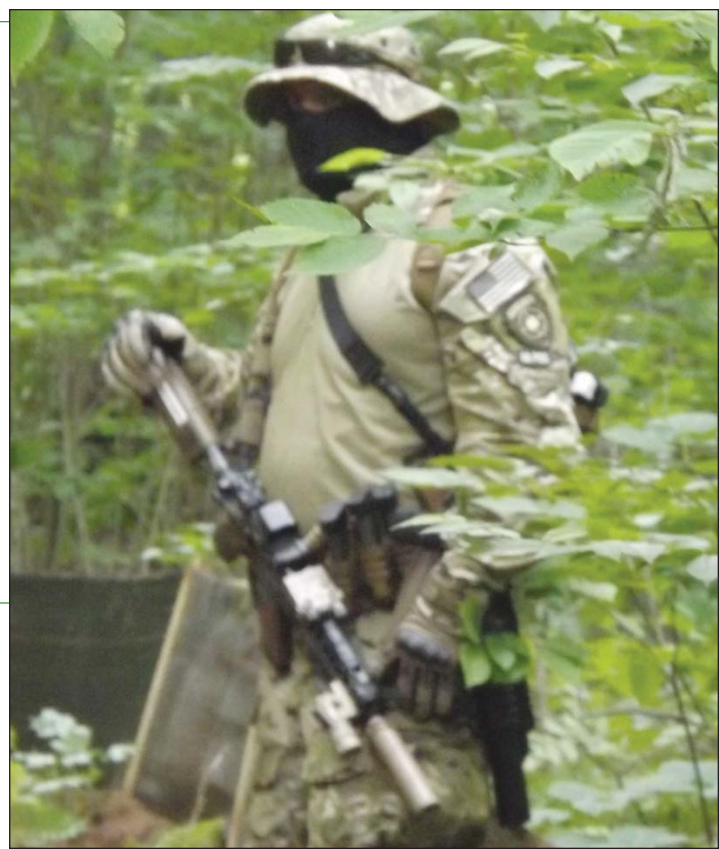
Paramilitary-style guards 'going to stay,' mining company vows

Two legislators seek removal of armed security



By Ron Seely
Wisconsin Center for Investigative Journalism

Despite harsh criticism from two northern legislators and an outcry from anti-mining activists, a spokesman for Gogebic Taconite said Tuesday that armed, paramilitary-style guards will continue to patrol the site deep in the Penokee Range where the company wants to build a large open pit iron mine.

Bob Seitz, a Madison lobbyist representing Gogebic, said the guards are necessary because of a confrontation between 15 to 20 protesters and an unknown number of mine workers a month ago.

From 1A/Mine Guards

"The guards are going to stay," Seitz said. "We have a responsibility to provide a safe workplace."

But others say they fear Gogebic Taconite's hiring of the guards only serves to escalate the already heightened tension over the company's plan to build a 4 ½-mile-long open pit iron mine in northwestern Wisconsin.

And critics of the company say the guards, especially those wearing tactical gear and armed with semi-automatic weapons, are unnecessary because protesters' activities have been almost entirely peaceful.

Since the dustup between protesters and mine workers on June 11, the ongoing protest against the mine — centered largely in an encampment of Chippewa tribal members in the woods not far from the mine site — has been peaceful, according to Iron County Sheriff Tony Furyk.

Furyk said that in the incident, one woman was charged with robbery with the use of force, a felony, after she forcibly took a camera away from a Gogebic employee. Organizers of the Chippewa educational encampment — which is modeled on the harvest camps used by tribal members in the past to fish, gather food and harvest maple syrup — say those protesters acted without their knowledge and added that they have since established strict rules to prevent such individuals from using the camp.

Mel Gasper, a Lac Court Oreilles tribal member who oversees the camp, said he now interviews and screens anyone who wishes to stay at the camp. He said the camp is being used not only to monitor mining company activities but also to educate people about the wild landscape of the Penokees.

Furyk said there have been no problems with the harvest camp or with any protesters since the June confrontation. "I've talked to the permit holders at the camp and they've been very cooperative," he said.

But emotions continue to run high. On the night of July 4, Furyk said, tribal flags were stolen from the entrance to the harvest camp. And Seitz said anti-mine activists continue to walk from the harvest camp to the mine site.

> "There is no reason for them to Rambo up the way they have because things are peaceful."
> – State Rep. Janet Bewley, D-Ashland

"They come down in the middle of the night," Seitz said. "It's an ongoing security risk." He added that the company may seek to restrict access to the area in the future.

State Rep. Janet Bewley, D-Ashland, said the company is overreacting.

"There is no reason for them to Rambo up the way they have because things are peaceful," Bewley said. "After a month of peace, why bring in a paramilitary group? We are not lawless up here. We are not Deadwood where there is no law and you need the Pinkertons."

Bewley joined state Sen. Bob Jauch, D-Poplar, in writing a letter this week asking the company to remove the guards, who are from an Arizona private security outfit called Bulletproof.

"The images are horrifying," wrote Bewley and Jauch, "and the action by the company to hire this high security Arizona firm is appalling. These kinds of security forces are common in Third World countries but they don't belong in Northern Wisconsin.

"We cannot begin to describe how upset the citizens of Northern Wisconsin are at the sight of our forests being patrolled by masked soldiers carrying military style assault weapons like mercenaries in a time of war. While no one can argue that your company does not have the right to protect your private property, these armed guards serve no purpose other than to intimidate local citizens and increase local tensions."

The guards were first photographed by Rob Ganson, a mine opponent who regularly visits the harvest camp and takes frequent walks to the mine site to monitor activity. He was shocked to see the armed guards in tactical gear with face masks. Ganson, who is not a tribal member, said he has been spending time at the harvest camp to learn more about the tribal view on the mine and has in the past brought his wife along. Now, with the presence of powerful weapons in the woods, he is reluctant to bring her along anymore.

"It has definitely ramped up the tension," Ganson said. "The last thing we need is a Kent State up here in the hills."

George Meyer, executive director of the Wisconsin Wildlife Federation, has been heavily involved in mining issues for years. He worked as a lawyer for and served as secretary of the state Department of Natural Resources during the controversial and eventually failed efforts of Exxon Minerals to build a mine near Crandon. That project died largely due to tribal opposition.

Meyer, who has recently given presentations in Iron County on the need for local mining impact regulations and zoning, said the company's heavy-handed approach, including not only hiring the paramilitary guards but also resisting local zoning laws, could be causing some — including previous supporters — to question the entire mining project.

"This is the kind of thing that backfires," Meyer said of the guards. "They're (Gogebic Taconite) losing the goodwill of the public."

History of Lacrosse opens at the Neville Museum

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

The Neville Public Museum recently unveiled an exhibit highlighting games played by the Oneida and Menominee Nations, with an emphasis on the game of lacrosse.

The exhibit is called Native American Games: the History of Lacrosse.

Louise Pfotenhauer, Curator of Collections at the Neville Public Museum, worked with Oneida and Menominee to get the display installed at the museum.

"The planning for this exhibit began, I would say, about six months ago. Michelle Danforth contacted us about a project, the Sacred Stick documentary that she had already done. So we started talking about different things. It is really based on her vision as to what it would look like. Scott Elm did the display design. We provided the exhibition space and the forum; we did the installation, and provided some pieces from the museum's permanent collection," Pfotenhauer said.

The exhibit features large wallboards that layout the history of lacrosse, beginning with the start of the Creator's Game and its importance to the Iroquois Confederacy to the current Iroquois Nationals team, an all-Native American lacrosse team playing at the world level. Along with the wallboards are video clips from the Sacred Stick documentary.

Kali photos/Travis Cottrell

Above: Nine panels span a hallway inside the Neville Public Museum composing the History of Lacrosse exhibit.
Right: Artifacts on display from the Oneida and Menominee museums and the Neville museum's permanent collection.

"The videos consist of five-minute clips from the Sacred Sticks documentary, each highlighting a different aspect of lacrosse," Pfotenhauer said.

Also included in the exhibit is a case of artifacts from the Neville's permanent collection as well as items borrowed from the Oneida Nation Museum and the Menominee Indian Tribe Cultural Museum.

"The Neville Museum has pieces on display in the exhibit and the museum has had them since the 1920s to the 1930s. We became a museum in 1915 so these are some of the earliest pieces obtained by the museum. Some were purchased by early directors and others were donated," said Pfotenhauer.

The lacrosse exhibit gets added to a long list of projects in which the museum has highlighted or collaborated with Indian Tribes of Wisconsin.

"We haven't done an exhibit on lacrosse per say but we have done a few projects with Oneida in the past. Some that stand out are the basket display that was here the same time as the wolf display about 15 years ago. Around five years ago we had an art exhibit that incorporated some Oneida pieces and some Menominee pieces," Pfotenhauer added.

The museum is hopeful that the exhibit will be made into a traveling display where it would be able to travel to places like Canada and New York once its time at the Neville Museum is over.

Native American Games: the History of Lacrosse is open now through October 20th.

Swallows put casino expansion on hold

Progress on the Oneida Casino expansion has abruptly come to a halt in terms of the exterior demolition of the canopy. A nest of swallows under the east entrance canopy prevents the demolition of the canopy. According to Federal provisions which protect migratory bird nests, they must not remove or destroy the nesting as long as the birds are using the nest. It is estimated the birds will vacate the nest within the next 28 days, depending upon when they actually hatch their eggs.

The Oneida Conservation Department advised the Casino Construction team of the tribal and federal provisions to protect the swallow nest. An Oneida Conservation Officer advised, "The swallow nests are protected by federal law until the eggs have hatched and the birds no longer use the nest." The Oneida construction crew will work around the nest for the time being.

Our turn to care and share

By Rose Kerstetter
Oneida Citizen

I would like to share this story with all Oneidas and friends everywhere on Mother Earth.

On a summer day approximately fifteen years ago there was a knock on the door of my apartment on Artley Street in Oneida, Wisconsin, where I lived at the time. It turned out to be Joanne Doxtator, Coordinator of the Southwold Oneida Long Term Care Program. I invited her in when she mentioned she was visiting Oneida with a group of Oneida of the Thames from Southwold in Ontario, Canada. We had a delightful visit, and in that short time we became good friends.

Joanne invited me to visit her since I was thinking about joining a busload of our people who were planning a get-acquainted visit to Southwold in the fall. I was a bit hesitant, I told her, because I would miss my September birthday dinner at our meal site; Joanne promised a birthday dinner at their elders' meal site if I made the trip. Little did I realize what was in store for me in deciding to visit the Oneida of the Thames.

Talk about hospitality! I sat down to an excellent dinner, finishing off with birthday cake. And then Joanne brought out a birthday present: A beautiful traditional dress made for me by the women who worked at their Long Term Care Program. I was asked to wear the dress to the meeting after the dinner, and I did so with pride and gratitude to these women for their willingness to share so much with this now 94-year-old elder. To this day, memory of the event brings joyful tears when I think about how the qualities of caring and sharing remain strong in the human heart throughout the challenges we faced and are facing in our history as a nation.

My thank-you note always seemed inadequate to show my heartfelt appreciation for this gracious gesture. Today I have found a good way to express appreciation to my Oneida relatives in Southwold. Today it gives me great pleasure to send a contribution representing "my best possible and a little bit more" to help with expenses of the event being planned for the reciting of Kay^tlakowa, or the Great Law, which will take place in August at Southwold.

Please join me in supporting this important upcoming event by sending your "best possible and a little bit more" to:

Oneida of the Thames Hospitality, an Experience to Remember

By Loretta V. Metoxen
Oneida Tribal Historian

Last week four Business Committee members, three Land Claims Commissioners (including myself) and the Land Claims Coordinator traveled to the Oneida of the Thames Community. Their hospitality was something to experience and be remembered. One young man invited us to his house for corn soup and strawberry drink. He also showed us a "standing stone" in his back field which had five distinct stripes on it–representing the Five Nations. Then, he showed us the following message that he had written. I asked his permission to print it in our paper. Anthony Ireland is a member of the Elected Band Council for the Oneidas of the Thames.

"When I deal with everyday life in my community I think about the different ways we corrupt our Nation and about the outside communities. I think of how the non-native people treat us, roll their eyes when we use our status cards, and how I sense that they feel we are trespassing on their land. Yes, it does get me down. Sometimes I wish that I were not part of this nation. However, that feeling changed when I went on the "Walk for the Moving of the Fire" for the Longhouse, which I almost didn't go because of the rain and long walk especially for someone who doesn't walk everyday. That morning I thought of my mother, who was doing a lot of cooking for the ceremony, and when she asked me to take some food over to the new Longhouse, I did. When I arrived there I saw all the cars and looked at all the license plates and noticed that people drove from all over Turtle Island. When I saw the bus transporting people to the old Longhouse I decided to go and when I arrived I noticed people I knew and people I didn't know. When everyone started to walk I couldn't believe how many people were walking and it felt so good to get to the new Longhouse. Later that evening I came back for the social, I was talking to some friends outside the Longhouse, and I couldn't hear the singer's sign, the dancers dance like there was no tomorrow, the drum, the rattles, and the beat of about a hundred feet all making one soothing sound. I finally got to step inside the Longhouse and when I did the sounds of the signers, the sight of the drummers with the rattles, and the hundreds of people participating sent chills down my spine and a tingle through my body. During that time in the Longhouse I never once thought of all the things that get me down and this was a reminder to me of who I am and I am proud to be a part of the Oneida Nation. All of the money in the world can't buy the feelings I got when I stepped into the Longhouse."

Section 184 Indian Housing Loan Guarantee Program Available at Bay Bank

Homeownership in Indian Country

In 1992, Congress established the Section 184 Indian Housing Loan Guarantee Program. The program was designed to offer homeownership and housing rehabilitation opportunities for eligible Native American individuals, families, tribes, and Tribally Designated Housing Entities. (Including Indian Housing Authorities) on their native lands and within and approved Indian area as defined in HUD P.I.H. Notice 2004-19.

Section 184 Program Highlights
- Nationwide program on trust land, allotted trust, or fee simple land. In the State of Wisconsin, Tribal Members may obtain financing through the 184 Program for properties located on or off the Reservation.
- Refinancing available
- Purchase and rehabs
- New construction including manufactured homes
- Low down payment
- No maximum income limits
- Flexible underwriting
- 1% guarantee fee at closing can be financed into loan
- No private mortgage insurance required
- Up to 30 year fixed rate financing at conventional rates!

Any Native American or Alaskan Native that is a member of a federally recognized tribe or an Alaskan village is eligible for a Section 184 loan.

Behind the Naming of Structures in Our Community

Embracing the Life Achievements of those Honored

Norbert S. Hill

Who was Norbert S. Hill? He was the son of Charles and Dr. Rosa Minoka Hill born January 18, 1912. He was also a boxer and an engineer of political initiatives. Most memorably, Norbert S. Hill was a Tribal leader who championed a cause to recover tribal lands which rightfully belonged to the Oneida Nation.

Elected as Chairman of the Oneida Tribe in 1966, Norbert served one year then subsequently served as Vice Chairman for 6 years following his Chairman's term. He served the Oneida Nation with honesty and integrity until he passed away in 1975.

Norbert was married to Eileen Johnston Hill and together they raised a family of six children. Norb and Eileen had two daughters, Barbara Hill Author and Rosa Hill Coenen and four sons, Norbert Jr, Charlie, Rick and Jimmy. Rick followed passionately into the footsteps of his father and served as Vice Chairman and Tribal Chairman for many years.

Most of the adult years spent on the Oneida Reservation by Norbert were as a politician in a very young Indian Reorganization Act Tribe. The Oneida Nation morphed from a very traditional form of government into a system that was forced upon the Tribes in the 1930's. It was the BIA way or the highway.

As with every initiative in Oneida, no one is solely responsible, our people are most remembered for their accomplishments in different ways. Norb was engaged in many passionate fights while serving on the Oneida Business Committee. Preserving and protecting tribal sovereignty was a goal the entire Business Committee shared. While the Oneida Business Committee was at odds over many issues, they always stood united in protecting land and treaty rights.

One issue Norb was well respected and remembered for was the fight to regain title to the lands where the Norbert Hill Center is now located. Previous to being the NHC, it was the Sacred Heart Seminary. The Seminary was located on land where the Catholic Diocese built a large school, church and well protected wild life refuge. Somehow these lands were lost to the tribe and illegally acquired by the Catholic Diocese. Long story short… Oneida Business Committee, attorneys and Tribal members fought the battle to regain title to the land. It was a good fight, very civil and in the end, the Catholic Diocese agreed, the land belonged to Oneida. They asked only that Oneida pay for the improvements they made to the property, which in essence was the buildings constructed.

As a charter member of the Great Lakes Inter-Tribal Council, Norbert was a strong advocate for the power of unity amongst sovereigns. He worked to unite the eleven Tribes in the state of Wisconsin under one umbrella, he believed the strength in their numbers would greatly benefit all Wisconsin Tribes. This organization is over 40 years old. Throughout the Great Lakes Inter-Tribal Council, he was instrumental in securing our first grant for the Oneida Headstart program, still thriving today.

Passionate about land claims, treaty rights, sovereignty and land acquisition, Norbert was a man who could provide a brief history lesson on any of the aforementioned subjects at the drop of a hat. That means if you asked, he could go into detail about the history of the Oneida Tribe and talk at great length.

Like most of our early Oneida politicians, Norbert was dedicated to advancing the quality of life on our reservation, most of the time without any compensation. He was driven by a vision he inherited from his parents and grandparents. Back in those days visions were inherent, they were not results of tedious sessions of discussion for days, weeks and months. Those who knew Norb will remember how he crept through the halls of the Norbert Hill Center when it was the Sacred Heart Seminary and stopped to visit in offices daily.

Face to face communication was the rule for Norb. He stepped gingerly like a boxer in a bout, but was usually dressed in dress slacks, clean well ironed shirt, bolo tie, suit jacket and tennis shoes. Norb was a leader that showed up everywhere on the reservation, attended every event he could, especially if it was pot luck. He was always engaged in some activity to advance education, recreation, athletics and employment, and of course, economic development.

The Oneida Economic Development Corporation was another project Norb championed. Establishing the first Oneida Industrial Park was an initiative he strongly advocated for. Today there is a Walmart, Sam's Club and other thriving businesses located in the Oneida Industrial Park. A dream come true.

These are just a few of the recollections about Norbert S. Hill Sr. that should provide some insight as to why there is a facility named in his honor.

Seven Generation Visionaries

This is a series I am composing to profile our past leadership for their contributions to the Oneida Nation and their efforts that will impact our lives for the next seven generations and perhaps beyond. These are recollections that I have about the people I have known throughout my life, my earliest recollection is Oscar Archiquette who was my first teacher of the Oneida Language. Others include, Irene Moore, Lee McLester II, David "Sonny" King, Norbert Hill and others.

The first in my series is Anna John, an elder whom I respected and admired for many years. Her grandson Allen, entered a comment on facebook about the new Anna John Nursing Home and felt there was very little attributed to the namesake of that beautiful state of the art facility. That inspired me to begin to write short recollections about all the Oneida people who have places named in their honor. We need to keep their memory alive, but more importantly, Oneida people need to know the spirit that lived in each of these leaders which inspired them to create a better quality of life on our reservation.

I hope you enjoy my memories.

American Care Act and Native Americans

Insurance exchange plans to begin enrolling October 1

Administrators at the Oneida Comprehensive Health Division (OCHD) have important information concerning the Affordable Care Act (ACA) to share with the community.

The Affordable Care Act (ACA) permanently reauthorized the Indian Health Care Improvement Act, and provides new opportunities for health insurance coverage.

The ACA will start the open enrollment in the Health Insurance Marketplace or the Federal Marketplace on October 1 of this year. Most Americans will be required to get health insurance or pay a tax penalty, but there is an exception for Native Americans due to federal treaty and trust obligations.

According to Danforth, Operations Director and Dr. Ravinder Vir, Medical Director, Oneida's current employee health insurance carrier, UMR is the leading insurer for patients of the OCHC followed by medical assistance. OCHC staff members want to help Oneida citizens to begin enrolling in health insurance plans this fall however the path to take is not clear at the moment.

"When Wisconsin had the option of becoming either a state exchange or a federal exchange, Governor Walker made the decision to not accept the Federal funding for the development of a State Exchange and determined that the State would move ahead with the federal exchange," said Danforth. The federal exchanges are still in the works.

"We're providing information as we receive it. It's still basic information. For Wisconsin, we are moving forward as a Federal Marketplace. Once that detailed information becomes available, we will help people understand what they need to do," said Danforth.

Wisconsin is not the only State that has chosen to go with the Federal Marketplace. There are a total of approximately 16 states overall that will be implementing Federal Marketplaces vs. Individual State Exchanges.

According to HealthCare.gov, the Federal Marketplace will offer health insurance plans that meet the needs of your family and your budget. If you are a member of a federally recognized Tribe, or are Alaska Native or you currently receive your health care through an IHS or Tribal facility (this is defined as minimum essential coverage) you will receive benefits and protections through the Marketplace which include Cost-sharing reductions on deductibles, co-payments and coinsurance. There will be special enrollment periods for Native Americans and or Alaska Natives allowing you to get health insurance or change insurance in any month not just the yearly open enrollment period.

There will be insurance exchange plans that will be based on income such as Medicaid or the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP). If you already have health insurance through your employer, you will not have to enroll in an additional plan. Oneidas or any American Indian/ Alaska Native who enroll in health insurance exchange plans do not have cost sharing.

Cost sharing is the term used for both the deductible and co-pay. A deductible is the amount most consumers pay each year before the insurance company pays for health services. A co-pay is the amount most consumers pay at each visit. For Oneidas or any American Indian/ Alaska Native with health insurance, there is never any cost sharing when you receive your services from a Tribal or IHS clinic.

"There will be significant changes, and the challenge really is … those changes are going to impact us in less than six months, probably less than three months when they start enrolling in the exchanges and we don't have the specifics of what that change is going to be," said Dr. Vir.

2012/2013 Contract Health Services Bill Submission Deadlines

If you're requesting Contract Health Services to assist in payment of your health related bills you must submit all bills to the Contract Health Service Department. It's best to submit your bills as soon as you receive them to prevent them from being turned over to a collection agency. The Contract Health Service fiscal year ends September 30th of each year.

Below is the bill submission deadline dates:

Date of Service 4/1/13 – 6/30/13 Submission deadline: 9/30/13
Date of Service 7/1/13 – 10/31/13, Submission deadline: 1/31/14
Date of Service 11/1/13 – 12/31/13, Submission deadline: 3/31/14

Please be sure that your insurance has been billed and made a payment determination on all your claims. If your insurance requires additional information you must respond within the specified timeframes. Once your bills are received CHS will determine your CHS eligibility and pay or notify you if your claims are not eligible for payment.

We advise you to turn the bills in personally so we can give you a receipt for them. In this manner, we and you have a good record of what you submitted and when you submitted them. This will avoid confusion when a bill is not paid for whatever reason. Your Contract Health Services Department tracks your bills submitted for payment in case an outside healthcare provider disputes receiving payment of a bill that you may owe.

For inquiries regarding your bills please contact the Contract Health Service Department at (920) 869-2711.

When you are out of town and need medical attention

During regular business hours

Please call the Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711 to speak with the triage nurse. The nurse will assess your symptoms and recommend care. If you need further evaluation and treatment, the nurse will direct you to the appropriate healthcare facility. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to an urgent care clinic or emergency room (ER). Please present your healthcare insurance card and a list of your current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need. However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services (CHS) for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to CHS for payment. Your telephone call and recommended care by the nurse will be documented.

After regular business hours

Please call Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711. If you are certain that this is a life threatening emergency or injury and you need to go to the ER, please leave a message with the after-hours CHS notification line. The message should include the patient's name, birthdate, phone number and reason for ER visit, name of ER and healthcare insurance information.
If you need to discuss your symptoms with the nurse, stay on the line for the Answering Service. Those representatives will gather your contact information and have a nurse call you back. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to either an urgent care clinic or emergency room. Please present your healthcare cad and list of current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need.
However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to Contract Health Services for payment.

CMN Offers Special Program for New 'STEM" Majors

Students interested in science, technology, engineering or math – known as STEM programs – are invited to apply for the STEM Scholars Program at the College of Menominee Nation.

Students chosen as STEM scholars participate in education opportunities designed to increase their academic success. For example, math and English classes taken during the first semester are preparatory in nature to help students be successful when taking college-level math and English during the second semester. The peer-group component of the program is designed to increase student success by helping participants build relationships while supporting each other in the learning process.

The program is open to new students who are enrolling at the College of Menominee Nation in any of the STEM majors: biological science, computer science, microcomputers, math, natural resources or sustainable development. In addition to having a STEM major, applicants need to achieve an Accuplacer test score within a specific range, be enrolled members or descendants of an American Indian tribe, and complete the CMN admission process. The College's selection team will consider prior coursework and grades, essay and interview results, and applicants' commitment to maintaining the schedule of STEM classes.

The program is available at both the Keshena and Green Bay/Oneida campuses of the College. STEM Scholars' coursework is conducted during daytime hours Mondays through Fridays.

Financial stipends may be available for students who maintain high attendance levels.

Applications are available at both campuses. At the Keshena campus, contact Academic Adviser Becky Zimdars by phone at 715-799-5600 or by email at bzimdars@menominee.edu. At the Green Bay/Onedia campus, contact Academic Adviser Mike Faulds by phone at 920-965-0070 or by email at mfaulds@menominee.edu.

The College is an accredited institution of higher learning now celebrating its 20th year of operation. CMN offers classes leading to Bachelor's and Associate degrees, and also to diplomas in technical and trades fields, at N172 Highway 47/55 in Keshena and at 2733 S. Ridge Road, Green Bay.

ONEIDA
Trust Scholarship

The $3,000 lifetime scholarship shall assist with:
Required prerequisite credited classes,
Post graduate preparation and admission exams or related preparatory courses.
The lifetime gives the student the ability to utilize the scholarship as they progress throughout different levels of their educational degrees. e.g. Associate degree, Bachelor degree, Masters and Ph.D.
The Scholarships will remain dependent on the student being in good standing with Oneida Higher Education office. Students must abide by the established Higher Education program guideline.
The Oneida Trust Committee (the donors) requests that all recipients of the Oneida Trust Scholarship keep in mind the prospect of returning to the Oneida Tribe to share their acquired knowledge, experience, and education.

The application is available at UW-Green Bay admits first Master of Science in Nursing students

GREEN BAY – The University of Wisconsin-Green Bay Professional Program in Nursing has announced that 19 registered nurses (RNs) have been accepted to the first cohort in the new online Master of Science in Nursing (MSN) Leadership and Management in Health Systems program. Living in 16 cities and six states across the country, with undergraduate degrees from four universities (most are UW-Green Bay alumni), the new admits will begin online MSN courses in Fall of 2013. The average age of those admitted is 42 years old, and the average grade point average is 3.6 (on a 4.0 scale).

The newly admitted RNs aspire to management and leadership roles and practice in diverse areas ranging from the intensive care unit to home care and public health, long-term care, surgery, cardiac care, mental health, emergency services, oncology and correctional nursing. Many already hold managerial or leadership roles such as directors, team leaders, quality measures, vice presidents of business — and even a hospital chief nursing officer.

The UW-Green Bay faculty and staff consulted with nurse managers and leaders across the nation in developing the curriculum for the MSN program. The curriculum covers 34 credits in 12 online courses delivered over two years (six consecutive academic periods). Students will participate in practicum placements during the second year at sites close to their homes.

For more information regarding the UWGB MSN Leadership and Management in Health Systems, visit the program website at http://www.uwgb.edu/nursing/msn/, email nursingmsn@uwgb.edu or contact Jan Malchow, (920) 465-2722 or mail to: malchowj@uwgb.edu

College of Menominee Nation

Accreditation Comment Period

The College of Menominee Nation is seeking comments from the public about the College in preparation for the periodic evaluation by its regional accrediting agency. CMN will host a visit Oct. 23-25 by a team representing the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association.

The College was accepted for candidacy in 1996 and has been accredited by the Commission since 1998. The team will review the institution's ongoing ability to meet the Commission's Criteria for Accreditation.

The public is invited to submit comments regarding the College to:
Third-Party Comment on the College of Menominee Nation
The Higher Learning Commission
230 South LaSalle Street, Suite 7-500
Chicago, IL 60604-1411

The public may also submit comments on the Commission's website at:
www.ncahic.org.

Public comments must be in writing and must address substantive matters related to the quality of the institution or its academic programs.

Comments must be received by Sept. 20, 2013.

Oneida reaching for the clouds

James Wildenberg, far left, and MIS Manger Dave Cluckey, standing, present Office 365 to Oneida supervisors, managers and directors at a meeting held Thursday, June 27 at the Radisson Hotel.

The Oneida organization is moving to the cloud.

According to Application Services Manager James Wildenberg Oneida is updating its software to Office 365 which will allow employees to work on their documents almost anywhere on almost any device.

"(We're) Making more of those services available to you outside of these four walls so you can conduct business not only with your customers but with your employees and your colleagues and your business partners," he said.

This feature will be made possible by utilizing Microsoft "cloud" servers which saves data at a remote location.

"Being able to access certain information, whether it's your documents, your contacts, your calendar, those types of things, from not having to be in the building and connected via wires," said Wildenberg. "It makes for a more connected world."

More features are being added such as instant messaging, web conferencing, and document sharing as well as adding Wi-Fi to all tribal buildings.

"We're spread out over 60 buildings, and we don't always have to hop in the car to conduct business … We're able to pull up video conference meetings, voice conference meetings, simple chats and those types of things, sharing documents and working collaboratively at the same time," he said.

Wildenberg anticipates that Oneida will be able to reduce the costs of employees traveling within the area for meetings. Also, utilizing the Microsoft servers allows for savings in infrastructure costs.

"We manage a couple 100 servers now, and if you expand that by say another dozen or so, you have more costs and resources to manage those things," he said.

One more savings will be the move to a subscription service instead of buying licenses for software for three year terms.

"By moving to Office 365 we're changing that whole model and moving into a subscription mode which is more pay as you go," said Wildenberg. He explained that the subscription model is more flexible especially when dealing with personnel changes or changing needs in software.

Currently, the tribe's Management of Information Services (MIS) Department is beginning its training phase for employees, and will fully implement the change before October.

"It's exciting from a technology standpoint for the organization that we're joining the ranks of a lot of other tribal governments, city governments, even state governments that have already moved to Office 365," said Wildenberg.

The City of Chicago, State of Minnesota and the Seminole Tribe are some of the organizations that have switched to Office 365.

ONAP Dollars for Arts

Application Deadline – Friday, July 26, 2013

The Dollars for Arts Program (DAP) is a re-granting program funded by the Wisconsin Arts Board and the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin. DAP provides funds to support excellence, innovations and the development of the arts in Oneida. The arts include both traditional and contemporary styles in dance, literature, music, theatre, and visual arts. There are three funding areas in DAP:

Community Awards - are available to community groups or tribal programs for arts projects that are new and innovative or significantly enhance an existing program in the Oneida community.

Oneida Fellowship Award - is a $1,000 cash award to an Oneida artist for artistic excellence in the Oneida community. There is a maximum of one Fellowship available per fiscal year. If you have received a Fellowship from the Oneida Nation Arts Program in the last 3 years or received an Artist Development Award in the current fiscal year, you are not eligible for this award in fiscal 2014.

Artist Development Awards - are available to artists in the community who have identified a special project that will enhance their professional development and benefit the Oneida community.

The deadline for submitting grant applications is Friday, July 26, 2013, for activities occurring October 1, 2013, through September 30, 2014. The applications are available through the Oneida Nation Arts Program's website oneidanation-arts.org. If you have any questions or wish to receive a hard copy of the application, contact Christine Klimmek via email at cklimmek@oneidanation.org or call 920-490-3831.

Oneida Mail Center

The Oneida Mail Center is located at 2701 W. Mason Street and we are an internal service for the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin. We currently operate with a total of four employees which includes three Mail Clerks and one Supervisor. The Oneida Mail Center has numerous responsibilities with our main focus being the processing all inter- tribal mail.

One of our most important responsibilities is processing all GTC mailings without delay. A GTC mailing can consist of as little as one hundred mail pieces per mailing up to fourteen thousand mail pieces per mailing.

The Oneida Mail Center assists the General Tribal Council in making sure the mailings are processed in the most efficient and cost effective mailing method possible. This process is based on many variables including the weight of the mail piece, the due date, the quantity, the piece size, and the type of mail piece. With following the United States Postal Service (USPS) regulations a decision is made on how the GTC mailing will be sent out to the Oneida enrolled tribal members. At times, the GTC mailings are sent out via United Parcel Service (UPS) for cost savings purposes; generally the USPS is the best option for the GTC mailings.

The Oneida Mail Center, on average, processes 350 mailings per year for all tribal departments, 20 of which are GTC mailings.

The Iroquois Clan System and Blood Quantum

By Oneida Trust & Enrollment Committee

Do you know what your clan is? Turtle, Bear or Wolf? We say today that we have three clans but really we don't have three…we have nine. Due to boarding schools, acculturation, and assimilation many of us have forgotten that there are three different Wolf Clans, three different Turtle Clans and three different Bear Clans. The Wolf Clans are the Grey Wolf, Red Wolf, and Timber Wolf. The Turtle Clans are the Snapping Turtle, Mud Turtle and Painted (or Sun) Turtle. The Bear Clans are the Brown Bear, Black Bear, and Yearling Bear. Our traditional Oneida governing system includes nine Clan Mothers, nine Chiefs, and so on due to the fact that we have nine separate clan families.

Clan identity is perhaps one of our most basic and ancient ways of belonging and identifying ourselves. A long time ago, to be Oneida meant you were part of an Oneida clan. You were born or adopted into a clan. Adoption was a common practice then, and still happens today. Over the years, we have turned to other ways to identify ourselves. When the United States Congress passed the Indian Reorganization Act (IRA), Native Americans were "encouraged" to abandon traditional governments and adopt a more Euro-American style of government.

Oneidas in Wisconsin voted to adopt an IRA government. From that time going forward, we began tracking the Oneida blood quantum. Blood quantum is a way of identifying someone's lineage and measuring the portion of it that is Oneida. Under the IRA, we began "enrolling" ourselves as "members" of a tribe. Knowledge of the clan system and traditional understandings of identity were often set aside or forgotten.

It is ironic that the federal government intentionally encouraged Oneida and other Native nations to identify themselves through blood quantum considering nowhere in the United States Constitution does it encourage or even consider tracking blood quantum for American citizens. The concept was borrowed from the past. European royal families struggled for centuries over the custom of intermarriage and designed systems to document bloodlines to prevent infighting and corruption.

Oneida, as a community and over time, adopted policies and ways of thinking that emphasize blood quantum. Today, enrollment is necessary to receive most of the tribe's benefits, and enrollment is contingent upon having at least 1/4 Oneida blood quantum. This is a concept that would be foreign to our ancestors. Our ancestors identified fellow Oneidas by clan identity, by family connection, by a common language and by shared values, beliefs, and more.

The Oneida Nation cannot be sustained tracking lineage by blood quantum; it is a system destined to fail. In a few decades, the population of the Oneida Nation will be only a fraction of what it is now. This crisis cannot be avoided unless we redefine ourselves according to our own terms; not those of the federal government. Whether we look to our past for a more traditional definition of identity, or look forward to something different, we cannot stay as we are. How do you identify yourself?

LEGAL NOTICE:

ONEIDA CHILD SUPPORT AGENCY
ONE TIME NOTICE OF PER CAPITA ATTACHMENT CLAIMS FILED

Re: Child Support Agency(s) vs. Various Individuals

A diligent attempt was made to notify the following individuals of claim(s) filed by child support agency(s) and the Oneida Tribe for interception and attachment of per capita payments to satisfy outstanding orders for payment of child support to the custodial parent and state of Wisconsin.

Sarol H Cadotte, Eric A Edwards and Rebecca M Osswald

Our records show that you owe child support arrears pursuant to your account statement. Arrears may include child support, medical expenses, interest, costs and/or fees.

Your current balance and any increases will remain subject to collection by per capita attachment until the arrears are paid in full pursuant to 9.4-6(a)(1) of the Oneida Per Capita law.

You may volunteer to have federal taxes withheld prior to the attachment. The form following this notice must be completed and returned to the Oneida Child Support Agency within ten (10) business days if you want federal income tax withheld before your per capita payment is attached. Once returned, the federal tax withholding will remain in effect until the Agency receives written notification stating otherwise. A member can also change one's voluntary tax withholding status at any time by submitting a written request to the Agency.

If you have questions regarding your account please log in on-line to view your account balances at http://dcf.wi.gov/bcs/payments/logon.htm or contact your appropriate local child support agency.

For specific questions about this claim, settlement or payment arrangements, please contact the appropriate child support agency. If you have questions on the process, feel free to contact the Oneida Child Support Agency at (920) 490-3701.

Voluntary Federal Income Tax Withholding Request

I hereby request the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin to withhold 20% of my Membership, and future year payment(s), if eligible, for my Federal Income Tax Account. This withholding request shall remain in effect until a new payment form is submitted to the Oneida Tribal Child Support Agency.

I hereby absolve the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin of any liability for honoring this federal income tax withholding request.

Food for Thought

In the June 13, 2013 Kalihwisaks articles from the Treasurer, Cristina Danforth and Vince DelaRosa, Chairman of Community Development Planning Committee, it appears that both want to blame the Oneida Housing Authority for the lack of housing progress. Linda Dallas complains about rumors that attack her character, credibility and image by false statements that are very vicious and malicious rumors about her in the community. I find it ironic that these are the same people along with Ed Delgado who have spread false claims about me during OBC meetings and in the paper. Ed Delgado placed a restraining order against me in Brown County Court on September 14, 2012. Brown County Court has since dismissed that restraining order. I wish to thank the Vets and Elders who showed up to support my day in court.

Facts about OHA under Dale Wheelock leadership

- OHA had an average of 22 new housing units each year for the past three years through new construction, and acquisition/rehabilitation.
- $3.7 million was made available to OHA from HUD each year since 2009 in the Indian Housing Block Grant (IHBG).
- Dale Wheelock's leadership brought in over $5 million in additional competitive grants since 2009. These grants included the $3 million dollar ARRA grant, $1.8 million in Indian Community Development Block Grants (infrastructure) and the $243,000 ROSS Grant.

Facts about OHA under OBC leadership

- The FY 2013 Indian Housing Block Grant was reduced by $195,000. Check with OHA for verification of grant amount.
- The 2013 ROSS grant of $243,000 was lost by Ed Delgado because he failed to notify OHA of the two deficiencies in the grant application. I believe an internal audit is needed to determine accountability for that loss of housing funding.
- In September 2011 Dale Wheelock was notified by his supervisor Ed Delgado to stop the development of 22 units on County FF and 16 apartment units on West Mason St. This can be verified by Oneida Land Committee minutes which approved holding the land at these sites for OHA development.
- In December 2011 the Oneida Business Committee took action to stop OHA from the purchase of homes/land on the reservation. This can be verified in the OBC minutes of January, 2012.
- In March 2012, Vince DelaRosa proposed a joint venture with HomeWay Homes out of Peoria, Illinois. Read the April 5, 2012, page 2A article in the Kalihwisaks for verification of OBC debate on the housing proposal. Vince DelaRosa has been the OBC liaison to OHA for the past two years. He has traveled to Chicago and Milwaukee to meet with the new housing Czar, Fred Busch. Fred Busch reports to Vince and has not produced a single new housing unit this past year.

The OBC has accomplished going over budget in their travel and delayed housing progress. Housing development contracts were delayed for months by OBC involvement in day to day housing operations. No reorganization plan and no balanced budget as promised by the OBC.

Shock and Gall

At the July semi-annual GTC meeting many were surprised to find the Treasurer's report did not mention the 7 Gens corporate report. A crime was committed by omission. Our Oneida Constitution requires it. Article 1 section 4. Treasurer of the Tribal Council shall accept, receive, receipt for, preserve and safeguard all funds in the custody of the Council, whether they are tribal funds or special funds for which the Council is netting as trustee or custodian. He shall deposit all funds in such depository as the Council shall direct ad shall make and preserve a faithful record of such funds and shall report on all receipts and expenditures and the amount and nature of all funds in his possession and custody, at each regular meeting of the General Tribal Council, and at such other times as requested by the Council or the business committee."

Have any of you received the required report? Is the Treasurer violating the Oneida Constitution? You decide.

To hide behind a corporate board is wrong. The BC created the corporation. The corporate charter Article XIII reports section 3(b) states: disclosure report content: The disclosure report shall include, but not be limited to, the following detailed information: (a) Names and titles of all the Corporation's Board members' names, time in the position, ad date when position shall be up for renewal or replacement (if applicable). (b) Names and title if all of the Corporation's key management personnel, with length of service in that position, and if under contract, when that position is up for renewal or expiration of the contract term. (c) Summary of any financial or familial relationship between any of the people in part a. or part b. in this Section, as well as any relationship financial or familial with any current member of the Oneida Business Committee or any member of any regulating the Corporation's industry or activities. (d) Names of any other person whether it is a business in any legal form or an individual, doing business with the Corporation for purposes or mutual enterprise (i.e. including but not limited to: joint ventures; membership in an LLC together; acquisition as a subsidiary, partnership). (e) Summary of the financial transactions or relationship between those listed in d. above in this Section and Corporation, including the purpose of mutual enterprise, legal relationship, or other connection Between the Corporation, its Board or its key management personnel and this other named entity or person.

I am outraged when I see our money being wasted. On May 5, 2013 the GTC voted against 7Gens. The BC had given them $750,000. This abuse and inefficiency must stop.

You must pitch in and help the people trying to protect the tribe for your children and your grandchildren.

I was shocked to find out that "Green Bay Renewable Energy LLC" was established recently and that they were registered in Delaware. Greater still was when the treasurer was asked, "Who are the owners?" She gave no answer!

Does It Matter Where You Were Born or Raised? Should it?

Once again, Oneidas are under attack—but only certain Oneidas. The attack is not from an outside source either. Now our own people are attacking Milwaukee with petitions. Some individuals born and raised in Oneida believe that Oneidas in Milwaukee should not be entitled to, or receive the same things as those who are born, raised, and living on the reservation.

More disturbing is the fact that the individuals who submitted the petitions to possibly get rid of the SEOTS facility and the Milwaukee polling site work for the tribe. One heads up the Oneida Trust Committee as an elected position and the other is an employee working at the Turtle School. Isn't that a "conflict of interest"? I thought those individuals were supposed to be working on behalf of all Oneidas and not just a select few. Is this the same individual who headed up our Children's Trust accounts a few years back? Does anyone remember that? When your child turned 18 and was supposed to get their entire per cap distribution, did they get it all, or was there some missing because of bad investments? Remember, these are the same individuals who now want you to believe what they are saying—that by taking away having a permanent facility or removing the polling site is a positive thing because of its cost or some other lame excuse. A few in Oneida still feel Milwaukee should not get a new facility or have a new polling site even after 20 years.

I know—let's have all the Milwaukee elders drive up to vote, even if the weather is bad or they have medical issues. Or, better yet, let's have Milwaukee people take a day off of work and not get paid to drive up and participate in an election that is supposed to benefit everyone. Does that make sense?

The percentage of Oneidas who now reside off-reservation represents about 70% of the tribe. By taking away the Milwaukee polling site, is it simply voter disenfranchisement? Do certain Business Committee members support this idea, and, if so, which ones? Shouldn't Oneida be making it easier for individuals to vote and participate in elections? Who stands to benefit from not having a permanent facility or polling site? Is someone trying to fix or rig next year's triannual election, again?

Will someone take the ballot box home in the trunk of his/her car, again? Will the wrong address of the polling site be used, again?

Some Oneidas who reside in Milwaukee now feel like we are nothing more than a whipping post for all of Oneida—being treated unfairly, differently, or cast aside like garbage. Based upon ideologies like the submitted petitions, we can now see the systematic erosion of our constitutional rights and liberties and "our ways". Only this time, it is not by the outside source but, some of our own people who believe we are "not all equal".

Seven Generations Corporation is Not Your Friend

They pay themselves $200 or more each time they meet (pg. 1 of the corporate report). Last year alone they spent $16,437 for their meetings (pg. 7). Check who is on their Board, who is getting all the money while the GTC cuts back on our per capita. Paying for projects even before they are approved and buying items has put them in the hole for 2012. Now in 2013, according to BC members, $750,000 was set aside to fight a losing battle with Green Bay. Why? The BC also gave 7 Gens a Tribal grant for $334,000 for a feasibility study (pg. 22). Why?

How many LLC's does 7 Gens have and who is each director, CEO, manager, what is the salary, how much did each receive, and how much did each spend? Who are the shareholders, who are the outside investors, how much did each receive for meetings?

BDO's Independent Auditors' Report says: "Management has omitted the Management, Discussion and Analysis that accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires to be presented to supplement the basic financial statements" (pg. 4) It further states: Such missing information, although not a part of the basic financial statements, is required by the Governmental Accounting Standards Board, who considers it to be an essential part of financial reporting for placing the basic financial statements in an appropriate operational, economic, or historical context" (pg. 4).

Because many years of insubordination, 7 Gens should be abolished in accordance with their By-Laws and their Charter (Article XV. Dissolution).

Why do we spend all that money for audits when 7 Gens does not provide all the information for a complete audit in accordance with their Charter (Article XIV. Audits)? Concerning 7 Gens "internal control over finance reporting" BDO said, "we express no such opinion" (pg. 3) and the Business Committee let them get away with it.

Beverly Somers

Seven (7) Gens

The Business Committee must understand that there is a debt crisis that will continue draining our economy, if they do not get spending under control. If this BC does not do this we will feel hardship beyond imagination. If the BC can't make tough choices, they were elected to do, to GTC must take a stand to re-establish sound policies for our existence.

This BC is endangering our tribal sovereignty the 7 Gens fight with the City of Green Bay, Wis., by giving them our money even though some may say the attorney is already being paid. Where is our money being spent? Let's not forget the 7 Gens calamities to the tune of $4 million with not only Nature's Way, but that 7 Gens failure to collect on the large sum of back rent with Nature's Way also including others.

The BC reports this type of activity to the GTC, right? Should we, or do we have to have an outside audit, or should we just abolish the 13-year drain on the tribe? If 7G's ask the BC and/or Trust committee for money and getting it, it appears with very little accountability.

If it's true that 7 Gens refuses to provide detailed reports requested by the BC, and requests by the GTC, and do not comply with the auditor's recommendations, I believe that our attorneys ignore the constitution and provide wrong advice to the GTC.

All tribal members are entitled to this information. We need to bring this issue to the forefront of the GTC agenda before it's too late.

According to our constitution, the Treasurer: shall report on ALL receipts and expenditures and the amount and nature of ALL funds in his/her custody, at each regular meeting of the General Tribal Council, and at such other times as requested by the council of the Business Committee.

If we don't work together, if you don't protect our money, it may just be a matter of time before the tribe is hit by a devastating financial crisis. The tribal members giving out this information, handing out petitions, and questioning the activity by 7 Gens, are a group who have proven themselves to be politically engaged, well informed and have the ability to recognize the seriousness of these issues by being attentive.

The BC does not seem to be able to see it or the ability to grasp it that way. That is why we need to support the effort of all the GTC members to bring the 7 Gens' shady operation to the forefront of the tribal agenda.

The irresponsible action by those who left our tribe vulnerable to those willing to enrich themselves with our money and leaves the BC to appear fearful of taking action, only shows a reluctant BC in need of being forced to protect the tribe, unless the GTC forces them to chain their thinking of our children, grandchildren, our future, not just their families and friends.

Milwaukee Community Garden Revitalizes Native Cultures

By Mark W. Powless

Submitted photo
GLIIHC Community Wellness Representative, Angela Kingsawan, shows the Three Sisters mounds growing in the Native Wellness Garden.

Located at 125 West Saveland Avenue in Milwaukee, the Gerald L. Ignace Indian Health Center (GLIIHC) Native Wellness Garden offers weekly activities every Friday at 4:00pm.

The 2013 Garden Club is an opportunity for Indian people from all Tribes to learn about Native cultures and traditions. The activities are fun for all ages, but specifically target the youth of the community. According to the GLIIHC Community Wellness Representative, Angela Kingsawan, the Friday afternoon get-togethers are "Native inspired with a modern twist", blending education with fun.

Upcoming Garden Club doings include painting on birch bark, dream catcher making, creating and learning about herbal bundles, sweet grass braiding, storytelling, and information on Native history and culture. In addition, lively games are planned to draw excited youth and their positive energy to the plants and herbs.

The make-up of the garden is as diverse as the Native cultures participating. Mrs. Kingsawan has focused on not only indigenous plants and herbs from Wisconsin, but also plants and herbs used by different Tribal communities. The Tribal diversity of the garden includes Hopi Red Dye Amaranth, Cherokee Trail of Tears Beans, Oneida White Corn and much more. The veritable potpourri of remaining plants include strawberries, cantaloupe, peas, black berries, sun flowers, Echinacea, acorn squash, and catnip, to name a few.

The harvest will be used for Elder group meals, community education, herbal bundle handouts, home planting, and to disperse to the Milwaukee Native community. Various programs through GLIIHC focus on healthy eating and the benefits of traditional diets.

This garden is an opportunity to "revitalize our culture by remembering and learning about our past", expressed Mrs. Kingsawan. "I think that is really important for our kids!"

All community members are welcome to participate in the Friday afternoon Garden Club. No RSVP or appointments are necessary, although a good mind and willingness to have fun are!

Paddling Camp!

Campers gained skills in sea kayaking, recreational kayaking, and canoeing. Canoeing seemed to be a favorite amongst the campers! While accomplishing certain paddling skills is one of our goals, instilling confidence and personal self-esteem is of our highest priority in all our camps. This was not only felt by our campers, but reported by their parents. Amongst the comments of our parents were, "I love that he is exposed to such positive experience; it really helps him expand his horizon. I think it also helps boost his self-esteem."

Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems

Farmer's Market Season is open

Buy local; save oil – shop the Oneida Farmers' Market. Transportation costs are driving up the price of food and beverages, says the Grocery Manufacturers Association. Transportation expenses have risen 32 percent in the past three years and now accounts for 69 percent of all logistic costs.

The Oneida Farmers' Market located at Hwy 54 in the Oneida Business Park by the water tower open every Thursday from 12pm to 6pm. What a great way to spend a nice summer day; buying fresh produce right from the farmer, having a brat or a burger and taking a little time to socialize with the people around you. The Farmers Market started on Thursday, June 27th and runs every Thursday throughout the summer.

New this year is the 'Vendor of the Week'. Each week one vendor will offer a special where if you purchase $10 work of product you will get $5 Oneida Farmers' Market dollars back to use at one of the other many vendors. The Information section is designed to inform and educate our local community about what the Oneida Nation has to offer and the various events going on in our area. The demonstration area of the canopy will be for departments or Market vendors to demonstrate various health needs or useful skills (e.g. Early Head Start Program on July 11, Green Cleaning Make it and Take July 25, beading, basking making, etc).

Be sure to mark your calendar for the two Oneida Farmers' Market Bashes which are on July 18th and then on August 15th. We will have live music, games and prizes, youth events, balloon animal making and a free horse drawn wagon ride. So, grab the family and come on down to another great season of the Oneida Farmers Market.

You can keep updated on what is happening at the Oneida Farmers' Market by subscribing to our weekly newsletter. If you are interested in getting the newsletter via email just contact Bill at Wvervoor@oneidanation.org or call 920.496.7423. You can also get the newsletter on our website at www.oneidanation.org/ocifs. We hope to see you down at the Oneida Farmers' Market.

Skenandore selected as emerging Indigenous leader

Candice Skenandore, an enrolled citizen of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin, was recently selected to be a part of a cohort of 18 emerging Indigenous leaders from around the world to participate in a one of a kind leadership development initiative, the Ambassadors Program. Americans for Indian Opportunity (AIO) spearheads the program in the belief that today's Indigenous communities and tribal governments require strong leadership to ensure their cultural, political, and economic growth and well-being. The Program is unlike any other leadership initiative in the country insofar that it draws upon traditional Indigenous values to empower a new generation of Indigenous leaders.

Candice Skenandore works as a legislative analyst in the Oneida Legislative Reference Office. She holds a B.A. in Political Science with a minor in International Studies from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater and an Associate's Degree and Post-Baccalaureate Certificate in Paralegal from Northeast Wisconsin Technical College. In pursuit of her B.A., Candice interned with the Oneida Legislative Affairs Office where she worked to build and sustain good-working relationships with local, state and tribal governments. She went on to intern for the PACE, LLP Government Relations firm in Arlington, VA where she assisted in federal lobbying efforts pertaining to Native American issues. She has volunteered with the Girl Scouts of Northwestern Great Lakes and the Green Bay Packers' program First Down for Trees and actively volunteers for the House of Hope.

"Our applicant pool was especially competitive this year, especially with first ever cohort that includes international participants," said Laura Harris, Executive Director of AIO. "The 18 individuals chosen already exhibit exceptional leadership skills, so AIO's program aims to further strengthen their talents by reaffirming their cultural values, cultivating their community organizing skills, and building a network of people and resources they can utilize throughout their careers."

During the two-year Program, Skenandore will meet with leading Native decision-makers, national policymakers and international dignitaries. She will develop and implement a community-based initiative, explore family and tribal histories, expand her knowledge of personal medicine, and gain a more global perspective. "In today's globalized world, the challenges we face are complex and carry dangerous ramifications if we don't develop Indigenous leaders with the skills to build politically sustainable communities," said LaDonna Harris, President of AIO, who helped create the Ambassadors Program in 1993 to nurture culturally grounded Indigenous leaders and strengthen their self-determination capabilities. The Program is designed around four core cultural values: Relationships, Responsibility, Reciprocity and Redistribution.

News Around Wisconsin

Judge blocks new Wisconsin abortion law

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ A federal judge issued a temporary restraining order Monday evening to block enforcement of a new Wisconsin law that bans doctors who lack admitting privileges at nearby hospitals from performing abortions.

U.S. District Judge William Conley granted the order following a hearing in a lawsuit filed Friday by Planned Parenthood of Wisconsin and Affiliated Medical Services. It alleged the requirement would unconstitutionally restrict the availability of abortions in the state, violates the U.S. Constitution's due process guarantee and unconstitutionally treats doctors who perform abortions differently from those who perform other procedures.

The restraining order will remain in place pending a "Moreover, the record to date strongly supports a finding that no medical purpose is served by this requirement," he said.

The bill was introduced in the Legislature on June 4, passed nine days later and signed into law Friday by Gov. Scott Walker. It took effect Monday. The law also requires women to obtain an ultrasound before getting an abortion, but that provision is not being challenged.

"This ruling is a step in the right direction for the women of Wisconsin who can now continue to make their own personal, private health care decisions," Terry Huyck, president and CEO of Planned Parenthood of Wisconsin, said in a statement. "We are confident that the Court will ultimately recognize if ACT 37 is not blocked, it would unconstitutionally restrict the ability of Wisconsin women, including victims of rape and incest and women who are in need of an abortion to preserve their health, to access safe and legal abortions."

Attorneys told Conley that if the law wasn't put on hold, dozens of women with abortions scheduled in the coming week would have had to cancel their appointments. Those appointments are at a Planned Parenthood clinic in Appleton and the Affiliated Medical Services clinic in Milwaukee, where doctors performing abortions do not have admitting privileges to hospitals within 30 miles as the new law requires, attorneys said.

Wis. could be only state to have 1-term justices

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Wisconsin could become the only state to limit its Supreme Court justices to a single term if a proposal put forward by a task force of attorneys becomes law.

The task force has recommended amending the state constitution to limit justices to a single 16-year term, in part as a way of stemming the flow of money into judicial elections. The amendment would have to be approved by the state Legislature and voters.

Sixteen years is about the average length Wisconsin justices have served in recent years.

No state currently limits justices to a single term, according to the American Judicature Society, which advocates for judicial ethics and merit-based appointments of justices.

"It would go some way to curing the perception that judges were looking for handouts," K.O. Myers, research and program director for the group, told the Wisconsin State Journal "If they aren't up for election again, it removes the perception that they are ruling to get someone to donate in the future."

Sixteen years is longer than the set terms in other states, but Rhode Island appoints justices for life and Massachusetts and New Hampshire have appointments until mandatory retirement at age 70.

Joe Troy, a former circuit court judge who chaired the task force, said there has been no political support in Wisconsin for appointing, rather than electing, justices. However, he said political leaders from both parties have said they would consider term limits.

GTC zips through agenda at semi-annual meeting

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

The General Tribal Council (GTC) rejected two referendum questions and a petition at the Monday, July 1 Semi-Annual GTC Meeting held at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center. 1932 Oneida citizens attended the meeting.

A referendum question and petition were both about term limits for boards, committees and commissions and were presented together. The first referendum question from the 2012 election read "Should there be term limits for all board, committee and commission positions including the Business Committee?" The question was disregarded by GTC and accepted as For Your Information (FYI) because adding limits to the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) candidates would take an amendment to the Oneida Constitution.

The petition, presented by Linda Dallas, read "Direct that all elected and appointed positions for all Oneida Boards, Committees and Commissions, excluding the Oneida Business Committee, shall be for a four (4) year term, with a term limit of two terms (totaling eight years), a two (2) year waiting period before running for the same board, committee or commission, and shall be effective for the elections of 2013 and all future elections." The motion was later amended to the 2014 elections and excluded the Oneida Nation Commission on Aging (ONCOA) and the Oneida Nation Arts Board as both programs receive state funds.

"People are in those positions for a very, very long time, and elected and appointed position are not intended to be careers," said Dallas in her presentation.

However, GTC member Elijah Hill stated he disagreed with the petition during discussion.

"People have the right to vote for whoever they want in a position," said Hill. "If you're in a position already, you've gained all that experience and then to me it seem it's almost got to work backwards to put someone new in."

The motion to accept the term limits would have needed a two thirds majority to pass, but OBC Chairman Ed Delgado stated it was clear during the hand vote that the petition didn't have enough support, and the motion failed.

The second referendum read "Should school board members have educational backgrounds?" Councilman Brandon Stevens told the GTC members that they would have to define "educational background." Stevens also noted that other area school boards had no such requirement, and it is currently difficult to attract people who want to serve on the school board. Currently the only requirements are that the nine member board all be Oneida citizens and that at least seven members are parents or guardians of a student in the Oneida Nation School System.

GTC member Linda Powless argued against the referendum during discussion.

"The whole point of parental involvement was to get control of our education so that we could support the cultural knowledge that we hold within our communities," said Powless.

The GTC denied the referendum.

Earlier in the meeting, the GTC approved minutes for the July 2, 2012 semi-annual, the September 17, 2012 FY2013 Budget, and the November 19, 2012 special meetings.

Treasurer Tina Danforth gave her semi-annual report. She explained that the tribe was working on paying down debt and had created set asides to do so.

The GTC accepted the Treasurer's Report, however, the body tabled a request to accept the 2013 Semi-Annual Report when some members of the GTC complained that they hadn't received the packet and didn't know what they were approving.

Secretary Patty Hoeft explained that Oneida citizens needed to return their postcard to receive the annual and semi-annual reports in the mail, and that the material was available online at the members' only website (https://oneida-nsn.gov/MembersOnly.aspx).

GTC member Diane McLester-Heim admonished the other attendees to be prepared for meetings.

"Take responsibility and seek out the information?" she said.

Councilman David Jordan gave a report on plans to implement a new parent communications and grievance process for the Oneida Childcare Department. He stated that the policy was moving forward and they are creating a parent-teacher association. The report was accepted by the GTC.

Councilwoman Melinda Danforth gave status report on conducting a US Department of Interior Secretary election to vote on changes to the Tribe's constitution.

"We think we're close, but we've been close for a long time," said Councilwoman Danforth.

She pointed out that voting might be limited to people who live on the reservation, and that she was working to fight that limitation.

The five proposed changes to the constitution would be to change Oneida's official name from "Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin to "Oneida Nation, lower the voting age from 21 to 18, remove language referring to the Department of the Interior (DOI) Secretary of Interior, include a judiciary, and remove the first Monday of January and July requirement for the Annual and Semi-Annual GTC meetings. The report was accepted by the GTC.

Councilwoman Danforth also gave an update on the Judiciary Act, stating that elections would be held in the July, 2014 election and the court would be in place in November 14 of 2014.

"We are on schedule,' she said.

The GTC accepted the update and passed a GTC resolution that would allow language in existing laws to be changed from referring to the Oneida Appeals Commission or the Oneida Tribal Judicial System and replace with terms consistent with the Judiciary Law. The resolution passed with the required two-third majority.

Dad in Indian child case seeks Oklahoma adoption

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) ~ The biological father of an American Indian child who is the center of a custody suit that went to the U.S. Supreme Court has now filed to adopt the child in Oklahoma.

The Post and Courier of Charleston reports that Dusten Brown and other relatives filed the court papers in Oklahoma on Monday.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled last month that South Carolina courts should decide who gets to adopt the 3-year-old named Veronica. South Carolina courts originally said the federal Indian Child Welfare Act favored her living with her father and Brown took custody in 2011.

Matt and Melanie Capobianco of James Island, S.C., who raised Veronica for the first 27 months of her life, appealed. Their attorney says the Oklahoma filing will further delay South Carolina proceedings.

American Indian staff remains outside civic center

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) ~ The American Indian staff, vandalized three times, will remain outside the Duluth Civic Center until the city and tribal leaders can discuss its placement.

The staff is made of ironwood with eagle feathers and ribbons tied to the top. It's considered a flag to the Anishinaabe people and was planted during a rally in November of 2011. It was replanted during a recent spiritual ceremony after it was vandalized for a third time.

Mayoral spokesman Daniel Fanning says questions have been raised about whether the staff's placement is legal. Fanning tells the Duluth News Tribune the staff won't be moved until a discussion is held with tribal leaders about what to do with it.

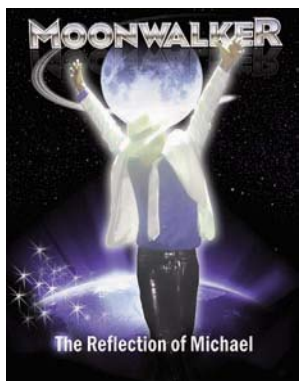
CMN's Theatre Production Tells the Story of an Oneida 49 Gone Wrong

College of Menominee Nation (CMN) again invites you and yours to the Norbert Hill Center Auditorium in Oneida, WI to enjoy another original one-act play staged by their summer Theatre Production course. The play, "Reservation Interrogation", is a comedy that uses dark humor to talk about land ownership issues, and it was written by CMN students, Anthony Hernandez, Shanae Hickman, Sapatis Menomin, Elizabeth Rice, Quinton Schuyler, and Kayla Thomas in a playwriting course at CMN this past spring. This production also marks the sixth time CMN has collaborated with the Oneida Arts Program's Dollars for Arts Program, which provides funds to support excellence, innovations, and the development of the arts in Oneida for individual artists and community groups.



The play, "Reservation Interrogation", depicts an episode of the fictional news program "Wisconsin Justice" to recap the mysterious events stemming from a 49 that occurred after the Oneida Powwow. It seems that sometime during that night someone snuck into Hobart and left their mark on the Village Office. Four people were accused of the crime and brought into the Oneida police department for questioning. There's more at play than there initially appears, and the production uses a series of flashbacks to uncover the truth. The play talks about contemporary issues for Oneida people specifically, and American Indians in general, but it does so in a way that is both engaging and entertaining.

CMN students and community members involved in the play included: Elizabeth Rice, Nathaniel Madsen, Brooke Metoxen-Smith, Louis Cottrell, Wauneka Powless, Jessica Buettner, Kiara Dorner, Amber Webster, Geoffrey Madsen, Marlow Dorner, Mason Powless, Amanda Stevens, Jaime Wheelock, and Quinton Schuyler.

The play, edited and directed by CMN faculty member Ryan Winn, has two showings, one on Tuesday, July 23rd and the second on Wednesday, July 24th. Both shows begin at 7:30 and admission is free. The production runs just under an hour in length, and there will be a reception following both shows where the audience will be able to meet and greet the production's cast and crew. The play is perfect for all ages.

Children enjoy activities at Oneida Recreation

Submitted By:
Chrisstara Cornelius
Recreation Intern

Since the first week was completed the seven and eight year old participants have continued to have many positive experiences.

The second week began with a field trip to the 1000 Islands Environmental Center located in Kaukauna which is a public recreational and nature area open to all. The nature resource center provides educational programs that teach children and adults the importance of the relationship between them and the environment. While there the youth got the opportunity to hike a portion of the many miles of trails. They also had the exciting chance to catch crayfish in the river which flowed between the 1000 islands.

The following day was reserved for making sun catchers and designing their own puzzles, along with playing games to build their team skills.

Wednesday was spent enjoying the amusement park rides out at Bay Beach.

The next day entailed a "Not So Tough Mudder" competition. The relay consisted of multiple water obstacle stations that the participants had to complete as a group.

On Friday the youth took an exciting trip to Funset Boulevard in Appleton which concluded the second week.

Watch for updates on the Oneida Recreation Summer Program in the next Kalihwisaks.

New Oneida ID Cards Available

Beginning June 1st there will be a new Oneida ID card available at Enrollment office. The new card looks much like the old cards with one exception, it will have a bar code on the back of the card. This bar code allows for faster Gas Tax exemption service for the customers at the Oneida One Stops. It also a more accurate way of tracking the transactions so the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin can be reimbursed from the State more efficiently.

In the future it will also assist with the processing of tribal members who attend GTC meetings. Getting a new card today will require a fee of $3.50 or $1.50 if you are over 55. The only exception to the bar coded cards are youth 15 or younger who will not receive bar coded ID cards.

A new ID card can be obtained during regular business hours at the Enrollment office with the exception of Mondays – No ID cards are processed on Mondays between June 1-Sept 2.

If you do not need a new card right now, you may opt to wait until October 1, 2013, at which time, you may exchange your old card for a new card with bar code at NO cost to you.

Incredible Edible Garden Tour

New Leaf Foods, Inc. invites you to join us as we visit some of Green Bay's "Incredible Edible" gardens.

From front yards to school yards and everywhere in between, communities are beginning a Growing Trend, growing their own food that is. Green Bay is no exception! We are joining this growing food revolution and urban agricultural trend.

The Incredible, Edible Garden tour will be a two-day event. First, on Saturday, July 27th, we will be visiting five gardens on the east side of Green Bay.. Starting with an edible yard garden, the tour will then travel to the Gathering Place Victory Garden, an apartment building community garden, a neighborhood garden, and the SLO Food garden at UWGB. Two weeks later, on August 10th we will be visiting five more gardens on the West side. The tour will begin with Tsyunhehkw^ Oneida Community garden, proceed on to the Seymour Park Community garden, West High Schools Wildcat Community Garden, The New Community Shelter Community garden, and UW extension community garden on Maple & Augusta.

Come and visit these gardens and find out more about how they are empowering their communities and supporting people to embrace healthy food habits. Learn how you can become part of a sustainable local food system that supports healthy eating and healthy living.

New Leaf Foods, Inc. is a 501(c)3 non-profit community organization working collaboratively with New Leaf Market Cooperative to promote "healthy people nurturing and nourished by a thriving, sustainable local food system." New Leaf Foods' educational and charitable mission is to improve the health of community members, cultivate access to local and regional food, promote sustainability of natural resources and nurture community food security.

Discounted telephone service available to some low-income consumers

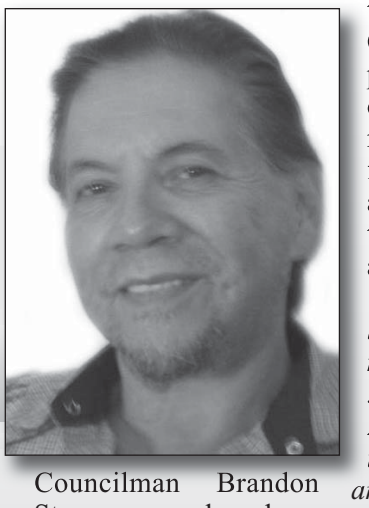
Telephone service is considered a necessity, yet the cost of activating and maintaining the service may be too costly for some consumers. For this reason, the government provides two low-income programs for qualifying customers through the federal Universal Service Fund – Lifeline and Link-up.

These programs provide discounts on initial connection fees and monthly service for qualified telephone subscribers.



The qualifications for these programs vary by state. To find out if you qualify or for more information, please contact Nsight Telservices – Pulaski at 920-865-7000.

Residents of Oconto, Oconto Falls and Abrams can reach Nsight Telservices at 920-826-5215.

Chairman's Report

By Ed Delgado
Chairman

Dear General Tribal Council,

On July 8, 2013, once again, the Supreme Governing Body of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin, the General Tribal Council spoke and the directive was swift and short leaving many, including myself, to ponder and reflect. The General Tribal Council, in accordance with all the rules of our governmental system, determined that an entire agenda would be dismissed. In effect, the mechanisms of the regulation of GTC decision making is continually "making history."

Three petitions sponsored by Linda Dallas and Kerry "Bug" Danforth were on the agenda for the GTC meeting addressing the issues of the Appeals Commission in decision making on child support, custody, transference of cases to Family Court in the County circuit system, and the dissolution of the Appeals Commission. The impetus for generating the petitions was first and foremost for the "protection of Oneida children within the Family Court system in the Appeals Commission and the wishes of the signers to protect Oneida children were expressed in the support of the signers of the petition. As a Councilman and as Chair, my record and the record of the Business Committee on protecting the Oneida people and their resources is strong and the protection of our precious children is beyond a priority, it is the great act of love by parents and grandparents, and the entire extended Oneida family to "grow" and protect our children.

As a people, providing for the wellbeing of all our people is reflected in our laws which govern all tribal members. Indeed, the passage of the Judiciary Act in January, 2013, to create a newer and better system to adjudicate matters for all Tribal members was a giant step forward in that effort to protect our people and our resources; it included the creation of a Family Commission and the dissolution of the current Appeals Commission process. In fact, the motion to dismiss the agenda by Councilman Brandon Stevens was based on the position that all of the items in the petitions on the agenda had been addressed in the Judiciary Law passed in January, 2013. The General Tribal Council passed the motion to dismiss the agenda; The decision of the General Tribal Council is the law of our tribe.

In fact, the Legislative Reference Office is now working on refining and explaining the issue of transfer of cases under the stipulations to the Counties, and this process has the support of my office and the matter will be closely followed by this Chair and staff and information transmitted to tribal families.

Please note that the last three GTC meeting mail out booklets (May 5, July 1, and July 8, 2013) have contained the published petition and the names of the signers on the petition. While this falls under the Public records law, it was done without notice to the GTC and has caused questions regarding the fact that just because a record can be published, should the record be published. It is equally important to note that the tribal members should be advised that just because you sign a petition does not necessarily mean that you are going to vote for or against it; it significantly means that you as a tribal member see merit in the issue being brought before the GTC.

This power of the General Tribal Council and the work of the General Tribal Council is a binding commitment by all Tribal members and elected and appointed officials that this body is the highest authority of our Tribal government.

While our governmental processes are often cumbersome, the Oneida Tribe continues to remain steadfast in both the survival and the will to thrive as a strong and sovereign people. In the end, as we all, as a Tribe, humble ourselves to the power and the direction of the General Tribal Council, the Chairman and the Business Committee continue to work as directed to move forward in the protection and wellbeing of all of our people.

Treasurer's Report

By Cristina Danforth
Oneida Tribal Treasurer

With a majority of General Tribal Council members not in receipt of the 2013 Annual Report I am taking the opportunity to highlight the Finance Division of the Tribe. The mission of the Finance Division is "to provide exceptional financial management and support while safeguarding the assets and ensuring financial integrity." These words are very important to us and we take our mission seriously.

Over the past year we have accomplished many things. Chief Financial Officer Larry Barton was named CFO of the Year by the Native American Financial Officers Association. It was truly an honor to present this award to Larry as I know how diligently he works to ensure the Tribe is receiving the best value for our money.

Another accomplishment was being able to self-fund the new Larsen Road One Stop and Oneida Market meaning we did not have to take out a loan or bond to build the facility. Considering just how much it costs to build a building this was a great achievement. We did ask the organization to tighten their belts and complete more with less which resulted in this new facility

Finance and Purchasing worked diligently together to keep the costs of the new Anna John Resident Centered Care Community project below budget. Rae Skenandore and Dave Bischoff were instrumental in ensuring all the project needs were met while working meticulously to negotiate the best prices possible. Through this joint effort, we were able to finish the project well below budget.

The Finance Committee meets twice per month on the first and third Friday's of each month. During these meetings we address requests from various departments as well as community requests. The Community Fund is funded through the rebate we receive from our soda vendor. Tribal dollars or Tribal contribution is not used for this fund. These dollars are used to pay for a variety of events such as sport fees, music lessons, educational camps, special needs supplies and classes. The Community Fund does not pay travel expenses of any kind nor do they pay for anything related to personal business.

So far this year we have received thirty-six (36) requests in the amount of $12,377 which is an average of $343.80 per person. The limit is $500 with a 10% participant match. For the complete guidelines of the Community Fund please visit the Tribe's website.

This same fund also allows us to donate soda and water. To date we have donated one hundred sixty-seven (167) cases of product to various Tribal events. These two funds are very important to many people throughout our community and we are very glad this opportunity is available to any Tribal member.

Over the past two years of this term, I could not be happier with the Finance Division as a whole. They are very ethical people who I can rely on for any financial information I need at any time. Combine that with how carefully they have worked to ensure we have the appropriate policies and procedures in place to ensure each department is treated fairly is essential. By mandating the three bid process, we have saved millions of dollars. The same is true with the changes that occurred to the Tribal Preference Law. While Finance cannot take the credit for those changes, we have implemented and enforced the new law which also has resulted in millions of dollars in savings. All these small things add up to heaps of dollars, dollars we used to fund the new Larsen Road One Stop, the Casino expansion and pay down over $11M in debt.

All of these accomplishments would not have been made without the persistent attention to detail made by the Finance Division, namely Larry Barton, CFO, Ralinda Ninham-Lambries, Assistant CFO and Terry Cornelius, Chief Financial Advisor. They could not be as effective in their jobs without Denise Vigue, Administrative Assistant who not only coordinates them but everything relating to the Finance Committee. Without these individuals and their respective teams I truly believe our financial situation would not be as bright as it is today. Thank you for all your hard work!

On that note, I wish everyone a safe, happy, and healthy summer filled with fun and new experiences. Thank you all for your support at the July 1, 2013 GTC meeting and I look forward to our next meeting together.

Summary of the Proposal

The amendments would retitle the policy as "Board, Committees and Commissions" (Law) and enact it as a law. The amendments would also:

- Govern the creation and dissolution of boards, committees and commissions; and the appointment of persons to boards, committees and commissions;
- Set out the type of information required to be contained within bylaws;
- Determine how official records are maintained and compensation is paid;
- Limit a Tribal member to one (1) appointed position on a Board, Committee or Commission. Tribal members will not be allowed to hold more than one Board, Committee or Commission position and Tribal Corporation Board position at the same time.
- Limit a Tribal member to serve a maximum of two (2) consecutive full terms in any one (1) appointed position. Upon adoption of the Law, the resolution will contain a grandfather clause to allow all elected persons serving in an office on the effective date of this amendment to have their current term counted as their first term, regardless of the number of terms previously elected to that office.
- Prohibit Tribal members from serving as an elected or appointed official and as a Tribal employee.

The Public Meeting materials, including the draft proposal, legislative analysis and any other relevant documents, will be made available at the Public Meeting, or can be obtained in advance through the Legislative Reference Office. Notice of Public Meeting

Topic: Amendments to the Oneida Election Law

When & Where:
Thursday, July 18, 2013 at 12:15 p.m.
OBC Conference Room
Second Floor, Norbert Hill Center—Oneida, WI

Summary of the Proposal

The Amendments limit Tribal members to serving 2 consecutive terms per position; limit Tribal members to run for 1 elective seat per election; prohibit any Tribal member from serving in more than 1 any elected or appointed position at any given time; prohibit Tribal members from being Tribal employees while serving on an elected board, committee or commission; and include enforcement provisions for campaign violations. The Amendments also:

- Update the duties of the Election Board.
- Streamline the caucus process by making the Election Board, instead of the Business Committee responsible for calling a caucus and decreasing the time frame for when a caucus can be held.
- Clarify where campaign activities can occur.
- Require a polling site be located on the Reservation and in Milwaukee.
- Require video surveillance of all ballots and voting devices when the polls are open.
- Allow voters to have one person of their choice assist them with marking their ballots.
- Allow election observers and set out requirements regarding the observers' actions.
- Require the Election Board to document election day incidents and other irregularities and include them in a report to the Business Committee.
- Increase the time frame for filing a challenge of the election results – from 10 to 30 days. Amends the section on "Referendums" to clarify the parameters and process for referendum questions to be placed on a ballot

Community Feedback from the Wise Women Gathering Place Treasure Hunt during the Step 2 Heal Walk!!!

O- What is one word or phrase to describe what stood out during the WWGP Treasure Hunt?

- Enjoyable
- Need clipboards!
- Hurting, coming together
- Believe victims
- Sense of togetherness
- Unity
- Where to find help
- Respect
- Helping others
- Offer
- Togetherness
- Nice day out for a walk and good cause.
- Believe victims

R- What past experiences does this event, Step 2 Heal, trigger or you?

- I've lost a lot of family to suicide and other reasons for this walk.
- To remember what abuse and problems I went through and these same steps I took to get help.
- Camp U
- Going to marathons to support family members who have overcome diseases or are struggling with a disease.
- Memories of those passed on in my family from cancer, suicide, and diabetes.
- Run for Life
- Being together and helping each other.
- Loss of loved ones.
- Clarity of what happens to others.
- Physical Touch
- Cancer, suicide, and car accidents
- Helping others.
- Always leave up building words with those you leave after a conversation.

I- What have you learned from participating in this community awareness walk?

- A lot of people are affected in the same way -- need more awareness.
- We need more Natives to get together and be aware of what's really going on.
- It's better to come together.
- These "unseen" illnesses are more common than we think. People shouldn't be so judgmental towards others who are dealing with these illnesses.
- We are not alone.
- How nice Oneida is becoming
- Be kind to one another.
- Who and where to call for help.
- Even though you think you've fallen down a hole there's always a latter.
- 7 truths about Domestic Violence
- People do care.
- Who to call for help.
- To be aware and ask questions if I think, see, or hear someone talking about suicide.

D- How will you use this information the next time you or someone you love needs support with the healing process?

- I know numbers to call to help someone now.
- Wisely and provide as much help as I can.
- Stay calm and QPR.
- Listen with an open heart and encourage and promote the resources that are available to help someone overcome their struggles.
- Share all what I know them.
- Go for a walk.
- Call and talk with services that will help support me.
- To call someone to get help for self or others.
- I'll try to give my moral support.
- Explain how this may help.
- Come and talk, I will listen.
- Information and numbers to call.
- Definitely ask questions and become more involved.

QPR: Question – Persuade – Refer
For Suicide Prevention
ask a Question: save a Life.

- ✓ QUESTION THE PERSON ABOUT SUICIDE. Do they have thoughts? Plans? Don't be afraid to ask.
- ✓ PERSUADE THE PERSON TO GET HELP. Listen carefully. Then say, "Let me help." Or, "Come with me to find help."
- ✓ REFER FOR HELP. If a child or adolescent, contact an adult, or parent. Or call your minister, rabbi, tribal elder, a teacher, coach or counselor.

TO SAVE A LIFE. . .

- ❖ Realize someone might be suicidal.
- ❖ Reach out. Asking the suicide questions DOES NOT increase the risk.
- ❖ Listen. Talking things out can save a life.
- ❖ Don't try to do everything yourself. Get others involved.
- ❖ Don't promise secrecy and don't worry about being disloyal.
- ❖ If persuasion fails, call your mental health center, local hotline or emergency services.

- Amazing artwork under the Oneida bridge
- Everybody was friendly
- Our community coming together as one
- Signs
- Positive energy
- All ages involved
- So many people came to walk and stay healthy.
- Places to get support

R- What are some feelings that came up?

- A lot of thinking
- Confusion
- Sense of Pride and Community
- That there were lots of people looking in wonder and awe at their beautiful community. Feels good just to see that!
- Broken heart
- I thought I wouldn't make it the rest of the way but I did!
- Togetherness
- Happiness
- Love and Miss you boys – BJ, Josh, and Jerry
- Happiness and memories – Rest in Paradise Uncle Tony
- Happiness and Pride
- Goosebumps
- Why, why, why
- I Love you
- Memories – Josh and BJ

I- What are some needs in our community?

- To gather together as one strong people
- New playgrounds for the kids.
- More events like today.
- The community needs more social events, ice cream socials, potlucks, dances, picnics. It seems like we've forgotten who we are and who our neighbors are!
- To be united like this again.
- Ears – people need someone to listen.
- Support avenues
- Supporting each other/ social-local events
- Let's talk about those we miss – I miss my dad, my son, my grandpa, grandma, and my friends.
- Escalators for the bridge ☺
- More walks and community stuff to do together.
- Pride – lots of people showed up.
- Support and more events like this!
- We need trees
- Plants
- More events/opportunities like this one!
- We need to stop judging each other and come together/unite!

D- What are other steps to heal we can take?

- Have compassion for one another
- Break the Silence, End the Violence
- Forgive and Forget
- Love one another
- Let's talk about it (abuse, sexual assault, etc)
- Eat, music (stress relievers)
- Sit down and talk
- Be kind to others
- Have rec centers open when kids aren't in school all the time!
- Renew our sense of identity as a family, community, and being Oneida.
- Love and accept yourself
- Workout!
- Stand up and speak the truth!
- Talk and be with family and friends
- Listen
- Talk more often to your family members to make them feel good!

Home Building Opportunity – Residential Vacant Land

If you are in the market to build a home and looking for land, you may want to consider the Home Building Opportunity (HBO). The HBO is a means for enrolled members of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin, to obtain a Residential Land Lease for a vacant residential lot.

A good place to start the research for your home building project is to find out how much financing you will be able to obtain. A pre-qualifying letter from a financial institution is required at the time of application.

Lots 7, 14-17 of Green Valley are new postings therefore will be advertised for the 30 days above before applications will be accepted. Applications for the Green Valley Sites will ONLY BE ACCEPTED from August 13 – August 27. 8AM – 4:30PM Monday – Friday, at DOLM front desk.

Application packets can be obtained at the Division of Land Management.

Please feel free to contact the Division of Land Management at 920-869-1690 or 1-800-684-1697 and speak with Diane Wilson, Tina Hackett, or Michelle Hill with questions about the HBO.

Home Building Opportunity (HBO) Build & Occupy Process

1. Obtain Pre-qualify Letter from Financial Institution
Financial institutions will provide a pre-qualify letter that will reflect a maximum loan amount and often a maximum PITI (principle, interest, taxes, and insurance) payment.

2. Submit Complete HBO Application Packet to DOLM
An HBO Application Packet consist of a Residential Vacant Land Request Application, Residential Vacant Land Request Letter of Intent, and a pre-qualify letter from a financial institution.

3. Obtain Residential Lease offer from Division of Land Management
Pending a qualifying Residential Vacant Land Request Application, Division of Land Management will provide a Residential Lease offer letter that will reflect the desired lot and tax status of the property. The specified lot will be held for the applicant pending formal loan approval.

4. Obtain Contractor Contract and Home Building Plan
Finalize a home building plan with a contractor of your choice. Contractors and sub-contractors must be licensed and insured.

5. Obtain Formal Approval from Financial Institution
A contractor's contract, building plan and Residential Lease offer letter are all required to obtain a formal approval letter from a financial institution. This letter ensures the applicant is confidently approved for the loan.

6. Resolve Any Unpaid Bad Debt with the Oneida Tribe.
Repay any unpaid bad debt owed to the Oneida Tribe.

7. Obtain Residential Lease from Division of Land Management
With a formal approval letter from a financial institution, Division of Land Management will issue a Residential Land Lease.

8. Obtain Residential Lease approvals from Oneida Land Commission and/or Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA)
Financial institutions require that all leasing documents be signed and approved from Oneida Land Commission and Bureau of Indian Affairs.

9. Obtain Oneida Zoning Approval of Home Building Plan
With a signed Residential Land Lease, Oneida Zoning can approve the home building plans. For plans to be approved the applicant must submit the following: Residential Land Lease, Lot Survey, Home Building Plans, and Zoning Permit application.

10. Initiate Loan Proceedings
This is the point where the loan is actually signed and accepted by the applicant. All of the above must occur before a loan can proceed and be finalized.

11. Commence Construction
Ensure all necessary permits are obtained through Oneida Zoning Department and begin construction.

12. Obtain Occupancy Permit
Oneida Zoning will provide an Occupancy Permit upon final inspection.

Wis. lottery players targeted by scammers

MADISON – The Wisconsin Lottery and the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection (DATCP) are urging players to think twice before giving out personal information to anyone who contacts them and says they have won a lottery prize.

The Lottery has heard from several players who recently have been contacted about supposedly winning a special drawing associated with the Mega Millions jackpot game. The caller has attempted to get them to provide money and personal information in order to "process" their prize claim.

The special drawing does not exist. The caller is a thief.

"Be suspicious of calls out of the blue that seem too good to be true," said Mike Edmonds, Lottery Director. "Don't let the idea of a big prize cloud your judgment and lead you into a big mistake."

Lottery, prize notice and sweepstakes scams are a significant issue for Wisconsin consumers. Among all consumer complaints logged by DATCP in 2012, the "Contest / Sweepstakes / Prize Notices" category received the tenth most complaints of all categories.

"Identity thieves often pretend to represent an institution you trust, and trick you into revealing personal information by phone or email," said Sandy Chalmers, DATCP's Division Administrator for Trade and Consumer Protection. "Legitimate sweepstakes and lotteries do not require winners to pay an upfront fee to collect a prize."

There are ways you can protect yourself from prize scams:

- Be wary of anyone who says you've won a prize in a game or drawing you never entered.
- Know that legitimate lotteries and contests will NEVER ask you to pay a fee to collect a prize.
- Think twice before providing bank account numbers, credit card numbers or Social Security numbers over the phone, especially to someone you don't know or on an unsolicited call.
- Be suspicious of "urgent" solicitations that suggest that you will lose a prize if you don't act immediately.

The Wisconsin Lottery will never contact players to tell them they've won a prize, unless they have entered a second-chance or special event drawing. The Lottery will never ask for personal bank information as a prerequisite to claiming a prize or require players to pay a fee or make special additional purchases to claim a prize.

If you're suspicious of a caller, please contact the Lottery at 608-261-4916 or send an email to info@wilottery.com.

For additional consumer information or to file a complaint, visit the Consumer Protection Bureau at http://datcp.wisconsin.gov, send an e-mail to datcphotline@wisconsin.gov or call the Consumer Information Hotline toll-free at 1-800-422-7128.

Editor's Corner

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks Managing Editor

To my fellow General Tribal Council (GTC) members, I've asked you in the past to make decisions based on reason and facts. Now I ask one more thing from you, come to work prepared.

If a slots employee showed up to work without steel toe shoes, she would be sent home. If someone from the Department of Public Works (DPW) assigned to cutting down trees showed up at the site without a chainsaw, he would be sent to base in a hurry. If I rambled into the Skeandoah Complex wearing my PJ's, people would say I was unprepared for work.

GTC, when more than half of you show up to the meeting without a meeting packet, I have to say you are not ready to work. You do not have the facts; you are not prepared to discuss the issues and are certainly unprepared to vote. Why, if I was a cynical person, I would almost say you're there to just collect a meeting stipend.

GTC, we are looking to you for leadership. How can we expect high work standards from our employees, managers and elected officials if we ourselves don't set the example? Without leadership what will happen? Pandemonium! Chaos! 70's Night every Monday! That last one sounds like fun! Why am I yelling!

What I'm trying to say, GTC, is that you expect a certain level of professionalism from the people who work for you. You expect the person who pushes the soda cart at the casino to have soda on a cart. You expect the cashier at the One Stop to have access to a cash register and be able to use it. You expect me to be able to wrap up this thought in some clever way. Sometimes you're disappointed, almost as disappointed as the 800 people who managed to get a hold of a Semi Annual meeting packet. They came ready to work. Why should they have to sit through this item again because a bunch of people showed up to the meeting without the intention of earning their pay?

And speaking of earning pay, what the heck happened at the Monday, July 8 meeting? Can't we at least pretend to be interested in listening to a petition before shooting it out of the sky? I'm all for efficiency, but wow, deleting the entire agenda brings up all kinds of metaphysical questions like did we really sit through a half-hour prayer or was it a group delusion? Did I really lose money at the casino waiting for the meeting to start? Is my meeting fee deleted as well? Ok, that one is less trippy, but is maybe worth asking.

I'm not faulting the GTC on that move, obviously the petitioners didn't have the support they needed to move forward so why not cut to the chase. Still, the meeting costs pretty much the same if it lasts two hours or six hours. I guess meeting goers prefer to make $50 an hour than $17.

BayBank Community Banking the Way it Used to Be.

Bay Bank Presents:

Summer Fun on a Budget

Temperatures are high, kids are out of school and the family needs something fun to do! However, keeping everyone entertained can put a strain on your wallet. Water park excursions, grill-outs and Fourth of July parties can all add up to an expensive summer! Here are a few ideas to keep your budget from exploding this summer:

Research alternative activities. Many towns and cities in Wisconsin offer inexpensive or free activities during the summer. Your city's Chamber of Commerce or Travel & Visitors Bureau will have a full list of movie theater specials, park activities, zoo schedules and outdoor concerts. Many local libraries also have free reading sessions for kids on weekdays during the summer, which can be a nice break from the heat if the rest of your time is spent outdoors.

Create a spending plan. As with any budget, creating a plan for how you will spend your money and when is critical to enjoying a cost-effective summer. One method is to allot each child a specific amount of "fun money" for each week. The kids can then practice good financial habits by determining how they will spend their portion. A spending plan also helps reduce spontaneous purchases that can add up throughout the summer. For example, planning meals the week before a picnic can prevent the potential cost incurred by ordering pizza or fast food during the week.

Independence Day celebrations are fun for the whole family, but it can be very pricey to feed everyone, especially if you're hosting lots of guests. Consider having this year's event be a potluck to bring costs down. You can also make your own decorations rather than buying them. Also, skip the backyard fireworks show. Watch your local newspaper or search the internet for times and locations of public fireworks shows in an area near you. Professional fireworks are safe, free and bigger than anything you can set off on your own.

With a little research, careful planning and some creativity, you can have an exciting and enjoyable summer without squeezing your budget.

Skenandore learning to lead as AIO Ambassador

By Dawn Walschinski

dwalschi@oneidanation.org

Candice Skenandore was selected to be part of the Americans for Indian Opportunity (AIO) Ambassador Program, and hit the ground running at a week-long training held July 6-12, 2013 in Albuquerque, New Mexico

"We've been going nonstop all week," said Skenandore who is a legislative analyst in the Oneida Legislative Reference Office (LRO).

The AIO selected 18 indigenous people from around the world to develop their leadership skills in order to strengthen their communities. The AIO spearheads the program in the belief that today's Indigenous communities and tribal governments require strong leadership to ensure their cultural, political, and economic growth and well-being.

"They've been around for 20 years. This is the first class that has international students," said Skenandore. The ambassadors hailed from Peru, Japan and Bolivia.

During the two-year Program, Skenandore will meet with leading Native decision-makers, national policymakers and international dignitaries. She will develop and implement a community-based initiative, explore family and tribal histories, expand her knowledge of personal "medicine" (or inner strength), and gain a more global perspective.

Skenandore enjoyed her week of training where she did presentations on Oneida and learned about the other ambassadors' communities.

"We did this family history project where we explained the history of our tribe, and our community and our families and then talked about the values," she said. "To see how everyone else, like the obstacles they've overcome and about their other tribes, has made me want to learn more about our tribe, so I'm going to take some cultural classes at Cultural Heritage and then try and take some language classes."

Skenandore was recommended to the AIO program by an alumnus Jennifer Hill-Kelly who used to work with Skenandore in the LRO. The intense week of training and self-examination created a bond between the ambassadors and other people involved in the program. The bond is heightened by the participation of previous ambassadors to the program.

"It's nice to see that the alumni come back every time. So it's not just your ambassadors, but it's like a family. LaDonna Harris, we all call her Momma LaDonna and she calls us all her children, so the people we meet, they're not like Jim or Bob, they're like brother or sister," said Skenandore.

The ambassadors will meet three more times, the next meeting taking place overseas, over the two-year program.

"I'm thankful for the opportunity," said Skenandore. "It's just a really great experience, very rewarding."

Children howled in delight, literally, to welcome five wolf pups to their new home at the Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary Wolf Enclosure on Friday, July 19.

Director of the sanctuary Mike Reed said the pups will take the place of an older pack in the newly revamped exhibit.

"Our old pack was aged and gone, and we really wanted to be able to tell the story about wolves in Wisconsin, how important they are to the environment and also the cultural aspect, how wolves are viewed in different cultures, emphasizing the Oneida culture and how they have worked the wolf into their clan system," said Reed.

Winners of the naming contest were announced at the rededication ceremony.

Court awards American Indian child to SC couple

By Meg Kinnard
Associated Press
http://twitter.com/MegKinnardAP

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) ~ An American Indian child at the center of a custody suit that went to the U.S. Supreme Court should be returned to the Charleston-area couple seeking to adopt her, South Carolina's highest court ruled on Wednesday.

In a 3-2 decision, the state Supreme Court ruled that Matt and Melanie Capobianco are the only party properly seeking to adopt the 3-year-old girl named Veronica in South Carolina and ordered a Family Court to finalize the couple's adoption.

"We are thrilled that after 18 long months, our daughter finally will be coming home," the couple said in a statement Wednesday. "We look forward to seeing Veronica's smiling face in the coming days and will do everything in our power to make her homecoming as smooth as possible. We also want to thank everyone who has supported us throughout this ordeal. Our prayers have been answered."

South Carolina courts originally said the 1978 Indian Child Welfare Act - a federal law intended to keep Indian children from being taken from their homes and typically placed with non-Indian adoptive or foster parents _ favored her living with her biological father, Dusten Brown.

A member of the Cherokee Nation, Brown had never met his daughter and, after the girl's non-Indian mother rebuffed his marriage proposal, played no role during the pregnancy and paid no child support after the girl was born. But when Brown found out Veronica was going to be adopted, he objected and said the law favored the girl living with him and growing up learning tribal traditions.

Brown took custody in 2011 and has been living with his daughter in Oklahoma since then.

But the Capobiancos - who were present at the girl's birth and raised Veronica for the first 27 months of her life - appealed that decision to the U.S. Supreme Court. Last month, the nation's high court ruled that South Carolina courts should decide who gets to adopt the girl, a determination the state court made Wednesday.

"We think the Supreme Court plainly contemplated an expeditious resolution of this case, and we believe the facts of this case require it," the South Carolina high court wrote, ordering a Family Court to finalize the Capobiancos' adoption and to terminate Brown's parental rights. "There is absolutely no need to compound any suffering that Baby Girl may experience through continued litigation."

Earlier this month, Brown

Hoffman exhibit and apprentice

Karen Ann Hoffman is getting a chance to share her beadwork with the public, and share her skills with an aspiring raised beadwork apprentice.

Hoffman's work will be featured in the Wisconsin Historical Museum's exhibit Sisters in Spirit: Native American Stories in Rocks and Beads until November 2.

"It include flute bags, it includes whimsies, it includes more contemporary examples of Iroquois art," said Hoffman.

Also featured in the exhibit is Wisconsin artist Geri Schrab's petroglyph- and pictograph-inspired watercolors.

"Rock art has been just so tragically defaced, it's a crime, but Jerri can reproduce that with her water colors and take away all of that graffiti, and then we get a chance to look at what the original artist intended," she said.

Hoffman hopes the exhibit will help foster a better relationship between Native Americans and the State of Wisconsin.

"I hope, truly, truly hope that that bridges a little bit of understanding between the Native community and the non-Native community," said Hoffman. "It seems to me that the state and the tribes exist in a sometimes a contentious, sometimes an adversarial, sometimes a complicated relationship, and this, the opening of the state museum to Oneida art I think is a great statement that we can coexist, that we can find common ground, that there is a place for the tribe and the state to come together in beauty and harmony and look towards the future."

Hoffman has also been awarded won a competitive grant award for a one-year long Folk Arts Apprenticeship Grant administered by the Wisconsin Arts Board through funds provided by the National Endowment for the Arts. The year-long-grant will help with expenses to teach Iroquois raised beadwork techniques to fellow Oneida citizen Rod Elm.

"He's been coming to my house every Wednesday for a year and a half out of his own pocket and out of his own interest, so I think it's really tremendous that the state can support him, buy him a little velvet, get him some beads, get him a better light," said Hoffman. "It shows a lot of courage for a young man to wade right in there and admit what he doesn't know, apply the skills that he does have, and ask to learn. To me that's huge."

Folk Arts Apprenticeship Grants are designed to strengthen and preserve Wisconsin's traditional folk arts by supporting the direct passage of knowledge and skills filed a petition to adopt the child in Oklahoma.

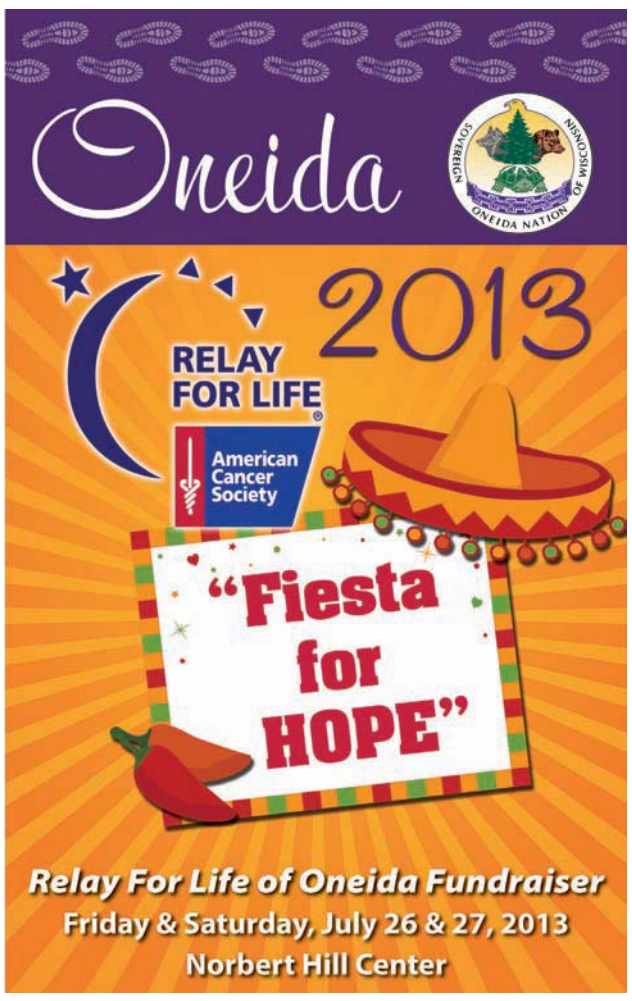
"As you can imagine, we are shocked and saddened at this development," John S. Nichols, a South Carolina-based attorney for Brown, wrote in an email. "There is no mention, or apparent consideration, in the majority decision of the child's best interest, as the dissenters point out."

Separately, Justices Costa Pleicones and Don Beatty wrote that, while the case's details should be hammered out in Family Court, the transfer of the girl should be handled delicately so as to be least disruptive to her.

"The majority orders the immediate transfer of the child, no longer an infant or toddler, upon the filing of the family court's adoption order, without regard to whether such an abrupt transfer would be in the child's best interest," the two justices wrote. "This is a situation where the decisions that are in the best interests of this child, given all that has happened in her short life, must be sorted out in the lower court(s)."

Cherokee Nation wants rehearing in adoption case



TAHLEQUAH, Okla. (AP) ~ The Cherokee Nation in Oklahoma says it's filed a petition for a rehearing of the South Carolina Supreme Court's decision allowing the adoption of a girl of Cherokee heritage by a Charleston, S.C.,-area couple.

The Tahlequah-based tribe said Monday that the court's decision was "troubling."

Several American Indian groups are also preparing to sue over the decision.

The Native American Rights Fund, National Congress of American Indians and National Indian Child Welfare Association said Monday they want to try to protect the best interests of the now-3-year-old girl named Veronica.

The girl has been living in Oklahoma since 2011 when South Carolina justices said a federal law favored her being raised by her biological father, a member of the Cherokee Nation who has been pursuing custody of Veronica in Oklahoma.

Morgan, LaVerne
November 14, 1920 – July 13, 2013

LaVerne (Reinert) Morgan, 92, passed away at San Luis Manor on Saturday, July 13, 2013, surrounded by the love of her family. She was born November 14, 1920, in the Township of Seneca, as the oldest of 5 children of Ida and Art Reinert. She was married to John "Bill" Morgan in June, 1941. Bill and LaVerne's family grew with the births of 2 girls – Judy and Jean "Punch".

In 1945, Bill and LaVerne assumed ownership of the House of Morgan Grocery Store in the heart of the Village of Oneida. As they were some of the founding members of the businesses in the Village of Oneida, Bill and LaVerne wore many hats – including running the telephone company, fire department, and small lumber yard. What Bill and LaVerne were best known for was being purveyors of fresh bakery products – including homemade bread, donuts, and the forever famous Sticky Buns (pecan rolls), and LaVerne was the baker for the years the store was open. They ran the store together until Bill's death in 1982. After that time, LaVerne continued to run the store for approximately 5 years until she decided to lock the doors and enjoy her retirement. She lived in Oneida for a while after her retirement before going to live with her daughter and son-in-law, Punch and Tom, for over 20 years.

LaVerne enjoyed golfing and she even won a championship trophy at a golf tournament in the Bahamas. She also spent many hours doing counted cross-stitch creations and reading autobiographies.

She was preceded in death by her parents, brothers and sisters, her husband, and her daughter, Judy. She is survived by her daughter, Jean "Punch" (Tom) Clark; her son-in-law, Gary Seidl; her brother-in-law, Gerry Arnold; her 7 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren, 1 great-great grandson and 2 great-great granddaughters; and many nieces, nephews, and friends.

LaVerne's family would like to extend their sincere thanks to the wonderful staff and caregivers that were part of LaVerne's life in the past years. This includes staff and medical professionals at San Luis Manor Nursing Home and Heartland Hospice. Additional thanks go to the Kurt and Joel at Muehl-Boettcher Funeral Home for their assistance.

Friends may have called at Muehl – Boettcher Funeral Home, Seymour, from 4-8 on Wednesday, July 17, 2013. Oneida singers 6:30 p.m. and prayer service at 7 p.m. Visitation continued on Thursday, July 18, 2013, at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Oneida from 9:30 until services at 11 a.m. with Fr. John Chrysostom Katamba and Deacon Bobby Doxtator officiating. Burial in St. Joseph's Cemetery, Oneida. Online condolences at www.muehlboettcher.com

In Loving Memory

In Loving Memory of
Irene "GMA" Elm-Hill
August 18, 1926 – February 5, 2013

God saw she was getting tired,
A cure was not to be.
So he put his arms around her and whispered,
"Come with me".

With tearful eyes her family watched,
And saw her pass away.
Although we loved her dearly,
We could not make her stay.

A golden heart stopped beating,
Hard working hands to rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us,
He only takes the 'Best'.

Forever missed and deeply Loved,
Your entire Family

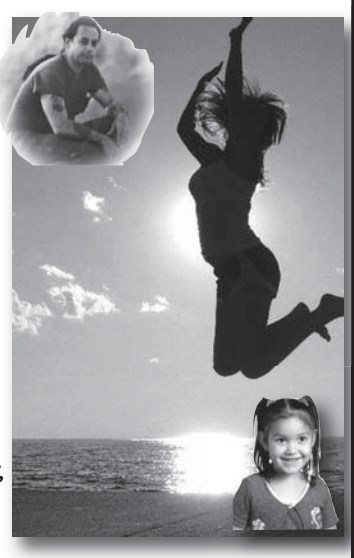
In Loving Memory of
Louis A. Moses Jr.
August 24, 1945 – July 27, 1995

You'll always remain in the hearts and souls of those who love you!

Gone, but Never Forgotten!
Your son Trevor and your grandsons Ayden and Preston

In Loving Memory of
"Judy Jones"

Happy Birthday!



To my beautiful sister and auntie
On her 60th birthday (July 19)
Although you are gone
from this earth
Your spirit lives on.
Your physical presence is missed
At every family gathering
Though I see and feel your love.
Your humor, your strength, your
Wit and charm, I see in others
Yes you are sadly missed, but
There are many happy memories of you.
I know you'd want us to continue to
Celebrate your life with love and laugher.
Perhaps a few tears 'cause we miss you so…
So, I'm sending you this special
Birthday Wish with all our love

Happy birthday, Judy (AKA Jude)

Sadly missed, fondly remembered always!
Love, Joanne, Melissa, Sonya, Aaron

In Loving Memory of
Louis A. Moses Jr.
August 24, 1945 – July 27, 1995

My Wish…

There've been so many times I've thought of you
So many times
I've sighed
Only because I missed out on so much
When you were called upon,
before I arrived.

I'm your daughter,
the one you never met
The one who missed out on all the Love and Hugs, from the man who is my dad,
The one, who I wish was still here yet.

I have pictures and stories
Shared with me by family
But it's not the same as having you here
To hug and hold me, like it should be.

My wish is simple and I hope it comes true
That you'll come to me in my dreams
whenever I think of you,
That way, you'll be with me all year through!

There's not a day that doesn't go by
When thoughts of you come to me.
So when you visit me in my dreams…
To comfort, hold me and to calm my fears,
I'll embrace your loving touch
Like it should have been all these years.

Forever in my heart! Deeply Missed,
Deeply Loved, Your daughter Liana

Loretta Says...

POW WOW Days

Ongoing Column • Providing a connection to the past

Loretta Metoxen,
Oneida Tribal Historian

I attended the Oneida POW WOW this year, in my capacity as an Air Force Veteran, Chairwoman of ONVAC (Oneida Nation Veterans Affairs Committee) and my duty as one of the many members of the Color Guard. My physical limitations prevented me from participating in the extended march to bring over 600 dancers into the Arena, but I did assist in raising and lowering the American flag with five other Vets who assisted with the Oneida Nation flag and the Wisconsin state flag.

Sitting in the Veterans tent area gave me a great opportunity to observe all the various proceedings. For instance, the Bear Heart Drum was right next to me. Their songs were inspiring. It was obvious that several of the singers were young fathers and their little boys wanted to sing and drum, so they helped themselves to the drum sticks in the lulls. I believe they were Ho-Chunk. Those very little boys were well behaved and happy. One little guy ran and ran until he was so tired out that he nearly dropped in place. His Dad put him in a chair when his eyes closed and there he slept for about two hours right next to the beating drum.

The myriad designs and brilliant colors of all the dance regalia, from the babies to the Elders, never ceases to amaze me. Tribal folks are imaginative, creative and, obviously, extremely patient because the outfits are put together with time consuming great care. Colors need to be chosen for the dancer and the maker of the regalia. Perhaps many of the dancers have made their own. There is beadwork galore, from the Woodlands to the Plains styles. Fringes abound, in buckskin, yarn and cloth. And, of course, feathers are always a major attribute, eagle feathers and other feathers. All in all, we can only wonder if the handiwork will be more exciting and colorful next year.

The POW WOW is a great time for families to get together. Relatives come to Oneida, at this time, from all over the United States. Some come from other countries. I know I met one of the Little Charles Cornelius family from England. The Wheelock family seems to have made their Reunion a yearly tradition. Several persons, who were either adopted out, or their parents were adopted out, stopped into the Cultural Heritage Department. They were overjoyed when seeing Carlisle photos of their Oneida grandfather or a lineage printout identifying their family. At another powwow, I witnessed four sisters meet together for the first time since they were babies. I knew about their family and could tell them a few tidbits. They were my cousins.

Two sisters from the Manitowoc area always look me up. I live on their grandfather Moses Summer's allotment. We took down the original house and on a short piece of board under the shingled siding was written: I, Moses Summers built this house with my own hands, age 35, 1905. His granddaughters and I are connected through their grandfather's note.

Debra Marcisz, a first cousin from Chicago, does not miss the powwow. Barbara Ruth Skenandore was the oldest of three orphaned girls, whose parents were my uncle Dewey Skenandore and his wife, Adelle King Skenandore. Dewey and Adelle both died in 1938 of tuberculosis. She died in the spring and he in the fall. Debra's mother was the middle girl, Dorothy. Harriet was the baby. They are all laid to rest in the Holy Apostle's cemetery. Debra visited her cousin, Diane, (Barbara Ruth's daughter) while she was here.

Terry Moericke, a Veteran, participated in the Color Guard, but he also looked up some history on his Great Grandfather Jonathan Denny. There was plenty to look up. Jonathan told a lot of stories to the WPA interviewers. We also found some pictures that Terry had never seen before, so he and his wife, Linda went back to North Dakota with additional family information. They are both recently retired teachers. One of Jonathan's sons, Dewey, was my father's best friend. They worked together for years at a paper mill in Green Bay.

And then, of course, there is the food. I had my yearly side pork sandwich from the Cornelius Clan stand. I don't know who makes their Fry Bread or if they all have their fingers in it, but it is outstanding. Noreen Metoxen honored the meal tickets for several Veterans. I advised her how that system worked and she said she would not require any payment. That she would give back to the Veterans for everything they had done. So with this, Noreen needs to be recognized for her generosity. Thank you, Noreen. But I didn't stop with the side pork sandwich. I had a taco, too.

Lately, we have family members doing business from their stand. Mirac and Kwaklit have a line of T-shirts and jackets. The baby boys, Markane and Mason, along with Marjaria were also part of the scene. Sister Yoneh tried her moves in the Smoke Dance with a different dress every day. Shannon's kids did well in their categories.

Every family who attended the powwow has their remembrances and stories to tell. I would like to hear a lot more of them.

Invitation for veterans

Dear Fellow Veteran:

I would like to invite you to join the Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs at the Wisconsin State Fair Military and Veterans Recognition Day ceremony on Sunday, August 11 at 11:00 a.m. at the Cousins Amphitheatre Stage.

The ceremony this year will commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Vietnam War and our keynote speaker will be Lt. Governor Kleefisch and our featured speaker will be Richard Lindbeck, President of the Vietnam Veterans of America Wisconsin State Council. As part of this, the Lt. Governor and I will also be honoring those groups and individuals who have partnered with the Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs on veterans various initiatives.

Veterans, military personnel and their families will receive free admission to the Fair on Sunday, August 11 from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. In addition to the Recognition Day ceremony, there will be a Recognition Day parade and a resource fair in Central Park.

Again, I hope you can join us and allow us to thank you for your service and sacrifice.

Sincerely,
DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS

AlterNative Ways of 'Belonging' Around the World

By The Oneida Trust and Enrollment Committee

The Oneida are not alone in their struggles to define 'who belongs.' These struggles can be seen in indigenous cultures around the world: Aborigines in Australia, Maori in New Zealand, and Natives in Hawai`i. With how fast the modern world is changing, defining the boundaries of a cultural group can be like drawing a line in the sand. However, there are some inspiring examples of indigenous communities that are defining belonging in new ways: through language, land, and legal battles.

Language – The Maori of New Zealand

The Maori ("MAOW-ree") have lived in New Zealand for over 7,000 years. New Zealand is an island country east of Australia. Think Whale Rider. For the Maori, language defines a people, and to keep a language alive, it must be used in every-day life. Today they have one of the best language recovery programs in the world. New Zealand's 1987 language policy has increased usage of the Maori language in education, government, and business. Maori children, beginning in preschool, must demonstrate language proficiency. As a result, enrollment and honors graduation rates in Maori bilingual schools have significantly increased over the last decade. There are also two television stations that broadcast in 100% Maori. Today, more Maori can speak their native language. Most importantly, the language policy has fostered a positive attitude toward the language and culture among both Maori and nonMaori people. Bilingualism (speaking both Maori and English) is becoming a valued part of New Zealand society.

Cultural Connection to Land – Australian Aboriginals

As of 1998, anyone in Australia can legally label themselves "Aboriginal", as long as that person is "accepted by their community." Land, rather than blood quantum, gives Aboriginals a sense of belonging. Aboriginal peoples are called the "traditional owners" of the land. Connections to land are ranked by the person's "cultural association" with land. Registration as a traditional owner is strict; limited to those who are directly descended from the original Aboriginal inhabitants of the area and have rights to their land that come from their traditional laws and customs.

Traditional owners receive land rights and traditional "membership." This system excludes "historical peoples;" those who were removed from their original lands by Europeans. Historical peoples occupy a space between worlds. However, the entitlement system has improved. Although traditional owners still rank first, historical peoples' claims to land now rank higher than claims to land for economic reasons. Though imperfect, this ranking system shows there are multiple origins, rights to land, and therefore, multiple ways of belonging as an Aboriginal.

Legal Battles – Native Hawaiians

The state of Hawai'i currently defines "Native Hawaiian" by the "50 percent rule" which is "…a descendant with at least one-half blood quantum of individuals inhabiting the Hawaiian Islands prior to 1778" (European arrival). This definition stems from when the U.S Congress leased small plots of land to "eligible" Native Hawaiians. Many believe that the 50 percent blood quantum rule was made in the hope that someday no one would be "Hawaiian enough" to hold onto the plots. To date, less than 6,000 Native Hawaiians hold leases to these lands, and over 30,000 people have died while on the waiting list. But there is hope: in 2009, Native Hawaiians won a class-action lawsuit against the State of Hawai`i for failing to award land lots. As a result 2,700 Native Hawaiians will receive land allotments owed to them.

preserve who we are
SUSTAIN ONEIDA

The "50 percent rule" is a divisive issue for Native Hawaiians. One response is the Kana'iolowalu petition; a year-long campaign to bring Hawaiians and non-Hawaiians together to create a base roll of Native Hawaiians to participate in the formation of a sovereign government. Supporters see it as the next step in self-determination. Critics say the initiative is a scam because it attempts to "give" Hawaiian sovereignty. But you can't give what was never taken away. In any case, the initiative is a game-changer because it stresses citizenship over blood quantum. Roll signers formally declare: 1) their intent to participate in the process of self-governance; 2) a significant cultural, social or civic connection to the Native Hawaiian community, 3) lineal descendency to people who lived in Hawai'i prior to 1778 (the year Europeans arrived). 14,800 have registered and that number is rising.

Examining these different cultures is a good lesson for Oneida. There are many definitions of "belonging" and Oneida must decide which approach works best.

What's the Best Time to Buy?

By Dianne Zubella
Bay Bank

Savvy shoppers know there's a best time to buy everything. Winter coats, swimsuits, and electronics, furniture... Knowing when to shop for specific items (whether they're obviously seasonal or not) can be a very effective way to stay on budget and save money. Here's the quarterly breakdown of what items to shop for.

First Quarter:
January – March

Late winter is the best time to buy gas grills and air conditioners as manufactures and retailers get rid of last year's stock in preparation for spring and summer sales. It's also a good time to buy water sports equipment (including boats) as well as winter apparel. The later into winter you get, the better the prices on hats, gloves, coats and boots.

Second Quarter:
April – June

Japanese manufacturers' fiscal year ends in March and they're eager to get rid of old stock, so spring and early summer is the best time to purchase TVs and other electronics. Spring is also peak home buying season, so if you're shopping for a new house be prepared for fierce competition. Spring is also a great time to shop thrift stores. After spring-cleaning, many households donate their unused or unnecessary items, so thrift stores will have lots of new inventory.

Third Quarter:
July – September

Summer is peak sale time for furniture, kids' clothing and school supplies. New furniture inventory comes out in August, so July is the best time to look for on-sale home furnishings. Retailers are also preparing for back to school sales, so children's clothing and school supplies will be cheapest this time of year. Third quarter is also the time to book your holiday travel tickets. Plane tickets should be purchased two months in advance, especially for peak travel times such as Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Fourth Quarter:
October – December

Fall and early winter is the best season to purchase a car, because the new models roll out in late summer. That means the older models are on clearance to make room for the brand-new vehicles. Grills and other summer appliances also start to go on sale this time of year. Christmas sales start early and continue through most of the holiday season. For most toys and games, now is the time to buy.

In addition to shopping during the right time of year, savvy shoppers also know the benefit of buying on the right day of the week. For example, appliances tend to be cheaper on Sundays and major holiday weekends, like Memorial Day or Independence Day. Computers and other electronics are typically less expensive on Mondays, when manufacturers apply their rebates.

By planning ahead and shopping at the best time you can stretch your budget a lot more!

ACA: Native descendants and health care

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

An ambiguity at play in the Affordable Care Act (ACA) is the status of descendants and people who are eligible to enroll in a tribe but have not done so. Oneida Community Health Center Medical Director Dr. Ravinder Vir states there are conflicting definitions on the federal level.

"There is a bit of a controversy there, and the controversy really is how do you define Native American? That definition is defined differently in the Affordable Care Act than it's defined within the I.H.S. (Indian Health Services)," said Dr. Vir.

Because of this controversy regarding the definition of Native American, Tribal leaders have been providing consultation to urge the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS), IHS, and the Obama Administration to agree on a definition and/or take legislative action.

On June 26, 2013, the Obama administration issued a final rule allowing all American Indians and Alaska Natives who are eligible to receive services from an Indian health care provider to receive an exemption from the shared responsibility payment if they do not maintain minimum essential coverage under the Affordable Care Act. Prior to development of the final rule, only a portion of the American Indian and Alaska Native population – members of federally recognized tribes – would have access to an exemption from the requirement to maintain minimum essential coverage under the law. The final rule reflects these comments and feedback received from Indian Country through rulemaking and the tribal consultation process.

"The Department of Health and Human Services Secretary Kathleen Sebelius announced a final rule that American Indian/Alaskan Natives eligible to receive care through the Indian Health Service will be exempt from the minimal essential coverage requirement in the affordable care act. Basically what that means is those individuals who are currently receiving care are going to be exempt."

However, this coverage could be temporary.

"That's just her ruling, it's not legislation ... Once the administration changes, that role can go out the door," said Danforth.

Oneida Comprehensive Health will be submitting a series of articles to the Kalihwisaks concerning ACA and getting health insurance to begin in August.

When you are out of town and need medical attention

During regular business hours

Please call the Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711 to speak with the triage nurse. The nurse will assess your symptoms and recommend care. If you need further evaluation and treatment, the nurse will direct you to the appropriate healthcare facility. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to an urgent care clinic or emergency room (ER). Please present your healthcare insurance card and a list of your current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need. However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services (CHS) for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to CHS for payment.
Your telephone call and recommended care by the nurse will be documented.

After regular business hours

Please call Oneida Community Health Center at (920) 869-2711. If you are certain that this is a life threatening emergency or injury and you need to go to the ER, please leave a message with the after-hours CHS notification line. The message should include the patient's name, birthdate, phone number and reason for ER visit, name of ER and healthcare insurance information.
If you need to discuss your symptoms with the nurse, stay on the line for the Answering Service. Those representatives will gather your contact information and have a nurse call you back. Depending on the urgency of your symptoms, your healthcare insurance, and your current location, you may be sent to either an urgent care clinic or emergency room. Please present your healthcare cad and list of current medications. You are responsible to pay for any prescriptions you need.
However, you may turn in your receipt into Contract Health Services for reimbursement. Any bills received from the healthcare facility can be submitted to Contract Health Services for payment.

2012/2013 Contract Health Services Bill Submission Deadlines

If you're requesting Contract Health Services to assist in payment of your health related bills you must submit all bills to the Contract Health Service Department. It's best to submit your bills as soon as you receive them to prevent them from being turned over to a collection agency. The Contract Health Service fiscal year ends September 30th of each year.

Below is the bill submission deadline dates:

Date of Service 4/1/13 – 6/30/13 Submission deadline: 9/30/13
Date of Service 7/1/13 – 10/31/13, Submission deadline: 1/31/14
Date of Service 11/1/13 – 12/31/13, Submission deadline: 3/31/14

Please be sure that your insurance has been billed and made a payment determination on all your claims. If your insurance requires additional information you must respond within the specified timeframes. Once your bills are received CHS will determine your CHS eligibility and pay or notify you if your claims are not eligible for payment.

We advise you to turn the bills in personally so we can give you a receipt for them. In this manner, we and you have a good record of what you submitted and when you submitted them. This will avoid confusion when a bill is not paid for whatever reason. Your Contract Health Services Department tracks your bills submitted for payment in case an outside healthcare provider disputes receiving payment of a bill that you may owe.

For inquiries regarding your bills please contact the Contract Health Service Department at (920) 869-2711.

Shana Parker joins OCEC

The Community Education Center Announces Personnel Changes

After a long search, the Oneida Nation Community Education Center has found the right person to fill the position for the GED Instructor Supervisor. Shana Parker, who has been teaching in the public school system for the past 6 years, is excited to accept this position. The Community Education Center is more than just another job for her. Shana gained her start at this center and was able to acquire her High School Equivalency Diploma (HSED). Shortly after, she attended the University of Wisconsin Stevens Point to earn her Bachelor degree of Science of Special Education ages 6 through 21, and St. Norbert College for her Master of Science in Education degree.

As a tribal member she feels a great sense of pride being able to give back to the community that helped her get started.

"My goals for the ONCEC are to provide a kick-start to a person's independence by ensuring that they have what they will need to be self-sufficient adults and achieve their education and employment goals regardless of skill level, age and background. As the newest team member to the ONCEC, I will strive to maintain the guidance that assisted me as a young adult and play a part in the learning opportunities that are currently offered through the ONCEC. I am also delighted to serve here as more learning opportunities arise for people of all ages and to help facilitate the progress necessary to keep up with the growing expectations and technology integration in education."

With as much excitement about receiving Shana Parker, the Community Education Center is sad that they have lost a valued team member, Office Manager, Connie Danforth. Connie has taken a new position at the Oneida Community Health Center where her CEC friends wish her great success and happiness. Katherine Melchert, who has been serving as Connie's administrative assistant will fill the position as the Interim Office Manager.

Get GED tests done soon

Scores from partially-completed tests will expire in 2013

Getting a GED or HSED is the opening of a doorway for many people to a successful career and life. Changes in the current testing process will require people that have not completed all five examinations by the end of the year to start over. The Oneida Nation Community Education Center will be sending out letters to over 80 people that have signed up for GED/HSED in the past year but have not completed their testing to inform participants of the urgency to finish the process.

According to one study, high school dropouts that complete the GED/HSED testing process successfully can expect to earn up to 20% more than those who do not. That is assuming they can find work in an increasingly more competitive job market without the GED/HSED or traditional diploma. Participants can avoid additional hardship by completing the process as soon as possible. Delaying to the last minute could void all progress if they have problems completing a single area, causing them to have to start over.

Below are the testing deadlines to complete GED/HSED tests before changes take effect:

- Language Arts, Writing, Part 1: December 5, 2013
- Language Arts, Writing, Part 2: December 5, 2013
- Social Studies: December 13, 2013
- Science: December 13, 2013
- Language Arts, Reading: December 13, 2013
- Mathematics: December 13, 2013

If you know someone that has started or would like to obtain their GED/HSED credential, please have them contact the Shana Parker at the Oneida Nation Community Education Center at (920) 496-5260.

Pulaski Community School District Hires Milt Thompson

Pulaski, Wis. ~ The Pulaski Community School District has reached an agreement with Milt Thompson to be its superintendent for the coming year. He will officially begin working in the school district on August 1.

The finalization of the hiring process occurred at the July 17 School Board Meeting held in the Pulaski High School library.

"The Pulaski Community School District is very fortunate to have Mr. Thompson joining our team. We look forward to his leadership and working with him as we continue to do great things for the children and families of our outstanding school district," said Bec Kurzynske, Director of Personnel and Employee Growth.

Milt Thompson

The close relationship between the Pulaski Community School District and its communities is what drew Thompson to apply for the position. "I look forward to being the voice and meeting the unique people of this wonderful community," explained Thompson.

Thompson is a former Superintendent of Beloit Public Schools and North Chicago Public Schools, and has 26 years of experience. He is replacing Mel Lightner, who left to become the superintendent of Grafton School District.

Thompson's wife, Peggy, is a teacher in Kenosha, and they have four adult children. Thompson stated, "I will do my best to make this already great district an exceptional district."

There will be a meet-and-greet ice cream social to get to know the new superintendent from 6-8 p.m. on Tuesday, August 13 at the Pulaski High School concourse.

College of Menominee Nation

Accreditation Comment Period

The College of Menominee Nation is seeking comments from the public about the College in preparation for the periodic evaluation by its regional accrediting agency. CMN will host a visit Oct. 23-25 by a team representing the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association.

The College was accepted for candidacy in 1996 and has been accredited by the Commission since 1998. The team will review the institution's ongoing ability to meet the Commission's Criteria for Accreditation.

The public is invited to submit comments regarding the College to:

Third-Party Comment on the College of Menominee Nation
The Higher Learning Commission
230 South LaSalle Street, Suite 7-500
Chicago, IL 60604-1411

The public may also submit comments on the Commission's website at: www.ncahic.org.

Public comments must be in writing and must address substantive matters related to the quality of the institution or its academic programs.

Comments must be received by Sept. 20, 2013.

Estate Claims Assistant
Oneida Enrollment Department

Shekolih Swakweku
(Greetings to all)

I hope everyone found ways to stay cool during last weeks "dog days of summer"! The Estate Claims area has been very busy this past month. First and foremost, thanks to all who submitted their Oneida Beneficiary Designation forms. Oneida Life Insurance Plan Plus (OLIPP) is a $15,000 term life insurance plan which was approved by General Tribal Council in January 2009. It's a free benefit for the membership; the monthly premiums are paid for by the Oneida Tribe. All it requires while you're living is to designate at least one (1) primary beneficiary who you trust to pay your final expenses.

OLIPP Incentive winners

I'm very excited to report we currently have 57% returns on the Oneida Beneficiary Designation forms. We still have 5813 members who haven't completed a Beneficiary Designation form. I encourage those members to please submit their forms as soon as possible.

During our incentive roll-out, we received 408 Beneficiary Designation Forms the winners of the prizes are:

- 1st place winner of the I Pad- Jamie Voet
- 2nd place winner of $100 Oneida Retail Gift Card - Pamela Williams
- 3nd place winner of $50 Oneida Retail Gift Card - Tammy Thomas
- 4th place winner has until August 10th to claim the remaining $50 gift card.

We've updated the Oneida Beneficary Designation Form

We feel this version is more user-friendly. One important change to is: your signature will now give Oneida Enrollment Department permission, upon your death, to release the named beneficiary (ies) on your form to only your designated beneficiary(ies) and/or the funeral home handling your funeral arrangements.

What is the role of a primary beneficiary?

When someone designates you as a primary beneficiary, it's an honor as that person trusts you'll carry out their final wishes, so please, remember to tell people when you've designated them. Upon your death, the primary beneficiary(ies) are the only people who should be signing for any funeral expenses.

Where can I get an Oneida Beneficiary Designation Form?

There are several ways!

1. You can stop at the Enrollment Office office located at 210 Elm St. in downtown Oneida. Our office hours are Monday thru Friday from 8am-4:30 pm.
2. You can call me at 920-869-6212 and I can mail one to you or,
3. You can visit our page on the Oneida Nation website at www.oneidanation.org/enrollment/olipp. Just be sure to print off and send in both sides of the form!

What's the difference between a Primary Beneficiary and a Contingent Beneficiary?

A primary beneficiary is the person whom EPIC Life Insurance Company will distribute your life insurance policy proceeds to. If you designate more than one person, it's recommended you designate a percentage to each name. (All percentages for your primary beneficiaries must equal 100%. Example: If you list two (2) beneficiaries and you give one 75%, then the other can only be given 25%. The two combined equals 100%.

If you are listing Contingent Beneficiaries please follow the same percentage practice). If no percentages are listed, EPIC Life Insurance Company will distribute the proceeds equally to the beneficiaries.

Designating a Contingent Beneficiary is optional. EPIC Life Insurance Company will only go to the Contingent Beneficiary section when everyone whom you listed in the Primary Section is pre-deceased or disqualified by law at the time of your death.

Keep your Oneida Beneficiary Form up to date

We recommend you review your beneficiary designations at least once per year. Some life changing events such as a marriage, divorce, birth of a child or any of your beneficiaries pass away are reasons to make changes to the form.

How often can I make changes?

You can change the form as often as you wish.

Living Benefit

The OLIPP Benefit offers a "Living Benefit." The living benefit provision provides the membership with an option to apply for up to half of the life insurance benefit minus a $300 processing fee. To be eligible a member must be diagnosed with a terminally ill condition which results in a life expectancy of 12 months or less to live. Example: you request half of the OLIPP benefit which is $7500. EPIC will charge $300 to process this claim. If the request is approved the member will receive $7200.

Then at the time of your death, there will only be $7500 left of the OLIPP benefit for your final expenses.

How do I apply for the living benefit?

- Step One: contact the Oneida Enrollment Department for the application.
- Step Two: Complete Section B on the Living Benefit Form.
- Step Three: Provide the paperwork to your medical doctor/doctors for him/her or them to complete.
- Step Four: When your doctor(s) have completed and returned the paperwork to you, REVIEW that all sections of the form have been completed.
- Step Five: Mail all pages of the Living Benefit form, including the Certificate of Tribal Membership and any medical records or other applicable documents to EPIC Life Insurance Company (the mailing address is located on the form instructions).

EPIC Life Insurance Company will review your request and will notice you of their decision. If approved, EPIC Life Insurance Company will process the claim promptly and mail the check to address indicated on the form.

There are no questions asked about how you wish to spend these monies. Delays can occur if the application is incomplete or when EPIC requests additional information from your medical team.

Additional information will be required if a Living Benefit request is for a minor child.

How do I make sure my funeral expenses are paid?

You have the opportunity on the Beneficiary Designation Form to designate the Oneida Enrollment Department as a primary beneficiary. This means when your claim is processed, the Oneida Enrollment Department will complete an "Assignment of Proceeds" form instructing EPIC Life Insurance Company to pay your funeral costs first. That's the only role the Oneida Enrollment Department has if assigned as a primary beneficiary.

Are you single and have minor childen and haven't completed your beneficary form?

If this description fits you and you unexpectantly pass away—there will be NO monies available for your final expenses. With no beneficiary form on file, EPIC Life Insurance Company will follow the naming sequence and pay the first living survivor(s), who might be your minor children. If minor children are determined to be the beneficiaries of your life insurance policy, EPIC will cut a check to the custodial parent or guardian of minor child(ren). Those monies must be spent on the child(ren) and those monies can't be turned back over to pay your funeral expenses.

Who will pay for my funeral related expenses if I don't designated a beneficiary?

Whoever signs the funeral home invoice. Taking a few moments time today could be the difference between having OLIPP monies available for final expenses or putting a financial burden on your family at the time of your death.

LEGAL NOTICE:

ONEIDA CHILD SUPPORT AGENCY
ONE TIME NOTICE OF PER CAPITA ATTACHMENT CLAIMS FILED

Re: Child Support Agency(s) vs. Various Individuals

A diligent attempt was made to notify the following individuals of claim(s) filed by child support agency(s) and the Oneida Tribe for interception and attachment of per capita payments to satisfy outstanding orders for payment of child support to the custodial parent and state of Wisconsin.

Sarol H Cadotte, Eric A Edwards, Rebecca M Osswald and Dakota K House

Our records show that you owe child support arrears pursuant to your account statement. Arrears may include child support, medical expenses, interest, costs and/or fees.

Your current balance and any increases will remain subject to collection by per capita attachment until the arrears are paid in full pursuant to 9.4-6(a)(1) of the Oneida Per Capita law.

You may volunteer to have federal taxes withheld prior to the attachment. The form following this notice must be completed and returned to the Oneida Child Support Agency within ten (10) business days if you want federal income tax withheld before your per capita payment is attached. Once returned, the federal tax withholding will remain in effect until the Agency receives written notification stating otherwise. A member can also change one's voluntary tax withholding status at any time by submitting a written request to the Agency.

If you have questions regarding your account please log in on-line to view your account balances at http://dcf.wi.gov/bcs/payments/logon.htm or contact your appropriate local child support agency.

For specific questions about this claim, settlement or payment arrangements, please contact the appropriate child support agency. If you have questions on the process, feel free to contact the Oneida Child Support Agency at (920) 490-3701.

Voluntary Federal Income Tax Withholding Request

I hereby request the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin to withhold 20% of my Membership, and future year payment(s), if eligible, for my Federal Income Tax Account. This withholding request shall remain in effect until a new payment form is submitted to the Oneida Tribal Child Support Agency.

I hereby absolve the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin of any liability for honoring this federal income tax withholding request.

CAUTION! SIGNING HERE AUTHORIZES FEDERAL INCOME TAX WITHHOLDING CAUTION!

Special to Kalihwisaks

Thanks to 24 children and 42 adult and teen volunteers, we had a 4 day session of fun and blessings. The schedule included bible encounter, games, arts and crafts and Oneida hymn singing. The event included something for everyone. Grandma Betty Doxtator was the oldest and most appreciated volunteer. She has been helping in the arts and crafts area for three of the past 4 years. She has truly been a blessing. The team is fortunate to have the excellent spiritual leadership of 3 local spiritual guides, Pastor Lonnie Johnson, Pastor Earl Smith, and Deacon Debbie Heckel. We also were blessed to have the puppet expertise of Dean LaFlex and his team from the Oneida Apostolic Church to entertain and reinforce the bible study lessons each morning. Children ages 5-12 participated in the program and teens assisted the adult leaders.

The specialized learning and fun areas lasted only 20 minutes each but the learning and fun that takes place in that short time is amazing said one of the participants. The spirit filled songs that we sing throughout the day stay in our heads throughout the week and help keep our minds focused on Jesus and our purpose in life. The fun, nutritious snacks that emphasize our memory verses are outstanding pieces of art we sometimes don't want to eat because they are so beautiful. The extra effort of people bringing ice water, snacks for the volunteers, helping with prep like cutting cardboard shields, filling water balloons, going back to the store for extra juice, helping to clean up, just to name a few, does not go un-noticed. Without the help of all the volunteers whether on site or off site, this program would not be possible. You know who you are…You are a truly blessing! THANKS!!!

This year a team of 7 mission workers from Louisiana helped with the activities. There were 2 women, 5 men and one 10 year old boy that also participated in the program. They shared some music from their Philippine culture and enjoyed camaraderie with our local volunteer team.

The annual event was held at the Assembly of God Church in Oneida. The event is hosted alternately at the Holy Apostles Episcopal Church the Methodist Church and the Assembly of God Church. Next year we will be celebrating our 5th year. Vacation Bible School will be held at the Methodist Church from Tuesday through Thursday, June 30 through July 3, 2014. All are welcome from 5 years (Post kindergarten) through senior citizens. The theme will be Christmas in July. We will study the real meaning of Christmas from the bible.

Anyone interested in joining our volunteer team please contact Emily at 920-869-2325 or Edi at 715-524-3194 for more information.

From 1A /Hoffman

from a master artist to a talented learner. Grants are limited to the authentic traditional folk arts of Wisconsin.

The Oneida are one of the six nations of the Iroquois Confederacy and were resettled to Wisconsin during the early 1800's.

Iroquois Raised Beadwork is a rare style of Woodland beadwork. Noted for its designs drawn from nature, the beadwork is also unique because of its embossed, or raised, three dimensional nature.

Hoffman will instruct Elm in Iroquois Raised Beadwork's techniques as well as the historical and cultural context which infuses the art. At the conclusion of the apprenticeship, there will be a public display of the artwork produced by Rod Elm during the grant period.

"I'm excited to pass on the lessons that have been taught to Me." says Karen Ann Hoffman. "My teachers, Sam Thomas and Lorna Hill were very generous to me. I'm privileged to find a student with the skills, enthusiasm of Rod Elm. It's going to be a great year!"

In 2006 Hoffman was declared a Master Folk Artist by the State of Wisconsin for her Iroquois beadwork.

July is O?yhotshi? Wehnitale? Green Bean Moon

Shekoli swakwek (Hello everyone)!

The month of July is known as O?yhotshi? Wehnitale? (Green Bean Moon) and in celebration of the Green Bean Moon the museum would like to give our thanks to the three sisters, áshʌ na?tekutʌhnu·téhle? by retelling their story.

The story begins with a young boy. While he was hunting, he came across three beautiful girls in a field. The youngest girl was wearing bright green colors, the middle girl wore vibrant yellow, and the eldest girl wore green but she had green silky hair. The boy watched the sisters play together and tend to their garden in the field. Before he knew it, the day was coming to an end and he had to go home. His parents scolded him for not bringing back any game. The next day, the boy could not resist going back to the field to watch the girls from a distance. The boy went back to the field day after day to watch the girls play and garden, after a time he began to care for all of the sisters even though they had never spoke.

One day, the youngest sister came across the boy hiding in the grass. He took her home to his family without telling the other sisters. When the sisters noticed their youngest sibling was missing, they were overcome with grief and loneliness. The boy returned after a while and met the middle sister, she too went back with the boy to his village; leaving the eldest sister totally alone and full of sadness. When the boy finally came back to the field, he told the eldest sister where her siblings were and she gladly returned with him to his village where she was reunited with her sisters. The three sisters were so happy to be together. The boy and his family sheltered the sisters during the winter months. The sisters repaid the family by providing them with corn, beans, and squash.

The eldest sister is the corn spirit, the middle sister is the squash spirit, and the youngest sister is the guardian of the bean. When the three spirits are close together, the three plants grow better. This is why Iroquois people give thanks to the áshʌ na?tekutʌhnu·téhle? each year, to ensure that the sisters keep carrying out their responsibilities.

The museum staff hopes everyone has a wonderful summer. We invite you to stop by the museum for our Super Saturday kids activities or just to walk through our exhibits. More information is available on our facebook page! The museum is open 9am-5pm, Tuesday through Saturday until August 31st.

News Around Wisconsin

Lawyer: Tribes increase night deer hunting safety

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Wisconsin's Chippewa tribes have beefed up safety protocols for night deer hunting, a tribal attorney testified Monday as the bands tried to convince a federal judge to allow the practice despite state wildlife officials' concerns.

Kekek Jason Stark, an attorney and policy analyst with the Great Lakes Indian Fish and Wildlife Commission, which oversees the Chippewa's off-reservation rights, was the first witness to testify in a trial in front of U.S. District Judge Barbara Crabb.

He said the tribes proposed revised safety requirements in March that call for hunters to use lights, submit more detailed shooting plans and moving the season's start back from Oct. 15 to Nov. 1.

The tribes also have increased the length of mandatory advanced hunting training from four hours to 12 hours and adopted tougher marksmanship standards, requiring permit applicants to hit targets eight out of 10 times in the dark as opposed to seven out of 10 times in daylight.

"The tribes throughout the evolving process were open to making changes to make it as safe as possible," Stark testified.

The trial comes as tensions continue to percolate between the Chippewa and the state. The two sides have been sparring for the last several months over a number of issues, including a Republican bill clearing the way for a gigantic iron mine near the Bad River Band of Lake Superior Chippewa's reservation, the state's wolf hunt and the tribe's walleye spearing goals.

In November, the commission authorized Chippewa hunters to hunt deer at night in the ceded territory, a massive swath of northern Wisconsin the tribes handed over to the federal government in the 19th century. The Chippewa retain the right to hunt and fish in the territory.

Walker's approval rating drops below 50 percent

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Gov. Scott Walker's approval ratings have dropped below 50 percent based on a new poll.

The Marquette University Law School poll released on Tuesday shows that 48 percent of respondents approve of the job Walker is doing in his third year in office, compared with 46 percent who disapprove.

That's down from May, when his approval rating was 51 percent.

However, the shift is within the poll's margin of error which is 3.7 percentage points.

Walker's approval rating has hovered around 50 percent since the June 2012 recall election that he won.

Similarly, President Barack Obama's approval rating dropped from 50 percent in May to 47 percent in the latest poll.

The poll interviewed 713 registered votes between July 15 and Thursday.

Wis. school district votes against changing mascot

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ A southeastern Wisconsin school district has formally refused to change its American Indian nickname, openly defying state education officials' order to dump it.

The Mukwonago Area School District's sports teams are known as "The Indians." The district also uses a logo depicting an American Indian man wearing a feather headdress. The state Department of Public Instruction contends the nickname and logo promote discrimination and have ordered the district to remove it by this fall.

The district's attorney, Samuel C. Hall, said the board voted 8-1 Monday night to adopt a resolution stating the district would take no action to change the name. The resolution notes that the district has used the nickname for more than 100 years and has taken "special care" to treat American Indians with dignity, including teaching incoming freshmen about the area's American Indian history.

"The use of the 'Indians' nickname and associated logo have been and continue to be a source of pride related to the local history of the Mukwonago area,'" the resolution said. "Further, the District believes that decisions regarding the use of nicknames and logos are best left to local elected officials who better understand local history."

The resolution marks another chapter in a long-running fight between the district and DPI over the nickname and logo. The battle began in 2010, after Democratic legislators passed a bill allowing DPI to force schools to drop race-based nicknames, logos and mascots if someone complains about them and the tribe the mascot or nickname references hasn't given its consent. A Mukwonago-area resident filed a complaint about the district's nickname two months after the law passed.

DPI consultant Paul Sherman held a hearing and determined the nickname and mascot were raced-based, the district didn't get permission from any tribe to use them and they promote discrimination. In October 2010, the agency ordered the district to drop the nickname and mascot within a year.

Two parents in the district sued, contending DPI was biased because the agency had advocated against race-based nicknames. They also argued that changing the nickname and logos would cost them money as taxpayers.

Hall has estimated the changeover for Mukwonago would cost $100,000. The school district sent a list of expenses to DPI in January 2011 that included $30,000 to change uniforms, $1,200 to change its diplomas, $1,000 to change banners and $2,050 to change academic medals, among other costs. According to the latest figures on the district's website, more than 5,200 students attend the district's six elementary schools, middle school and high school.

Judge Donald Hassin Jr. sided with the parents, concluding the law was unconstitutional. But a state appeals court ruled in January that the parents had no standing to sue. The district appealed to the Wisconsin Supreme Court, which announced last month it wouldn't take the case.

That triggered a letter from DPI on June 28, ordering the district to remove the Indians name and logo from all documents and handbooks by Aug. 15 and from all other tangible district property by Sept. 2 ahead of an on-site inspection later this fall.

DPI spokesman Patrick Gasper said in an email to The Associated Press that the agency has to enforce the law. He said the agency gave the district a tiered plan to help it come into compliance.

The district board's resolution bars staff from doing anything to change the nickname and logo. Hall said the district believes the circuit court's finding that the law is unconstitutional is still valid because the appeals court ruling dealt only with the parents' legal standing.

According to the state law, any district that refuses to drop raced-based nicknames can face daily fines ranging from $100 to $1,000. Hall promised to fight any fines in court.

"This is not a case of there being a case of racial harassment or racial discrimination," Hall said. "There's nothing going on in the school like that at all. There's just a group of individuals out there who object to using Indian names in any context."

DPI also has ordered the Osseo-Fairchild school district to drop its Chieftains nickname and Berlin High School to ditch its Indians moniker. Parents in that school district have challenged the order in court, but Hall, who also is representing those parents, said he has agreed to drop that lawsuit in light of the Mukwonago appeals court ruling that parents lack standing.

'Lone star' ticks have increased in Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Bug experts say an aggressive tick that can trigger a disease causing fever and fatigue has an increased presence in Wisconsin.

University of Wisconsin-Madison health officials say a person in Barron County has contracted a type of ehrlichiosis (ehr-lihk'-ee-OH'-sis) that is relatively new to the state.

UW-Madison entomology professor Susan Paskewitz says a dozen ticks have been found, despite no formal effort to find them. Paskewitz says there may actually be thousands and thousands of the ticks that are capable of making it through Wisconsin winters.

The State Journal says other cases of ehrlichiosis were reported in Chippewa County in 2008 and Eau Claire County in 2011. The disease can cause fever, fatigue, headache, muscle pain, confusion and a rash, among other symptoms.

EPA to award grants for Great Lakes projects

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) ~ The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has $9.5 million to distribute for Great Lakes projects and is looking for takers.

EPA's regional office in Chicago says it's soliciting grant proposals from states, cities, Native American tribes, universities and nonprofit groups.

The money comes from the Great Lakes Restoration Initiative, an Obama administration program to clean up and protect the lakes from a variety of threats.

Regional program manager Susan Hedman says this round of funding will be used for projects that reduce exposure to toxic substances from fish consumption, control invasive species and improve water quality.

Congress has appropriated more than $1 billion for the initiative and Obama is asking for more.

A webinar explaining the application process will be held July 30.

American Indian artist takes modern view

By Sara Shepherd
Lawrence Journal-World
http://www.ljworld.com

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) ~ Jodi Webster's art seeks to portray American Indians in a way she says can be hard to find: the way they really are.

Indians aren't always standing in a field in full ceremonial regalia. And they definitely aren't running around with their hands in front of their mouths yelling, "woo, woo, woo, woo, woo."

Webster's Indians live in cities, wear sports jerseys and are involved in economic development and, sometimes, environmental controversy.

"This is who I am," she says. "And this is just a way of showing you all this diversity that's in these tribes."

Webster, a Lawrence resident who expects to graduate from the University of Kansas this fall with a bachelor's degree in drawing and painting, is starting to get some traction in the Indian art world, highlighted by an upcoming artist's residency at the Santa Fe Indian Market, the Lawrence Journal-World reports.

More than 150,000 visitors and hundreds of artists are expected to attend the annual market, organized by Southwestern Association for Indian Arts. Webster, one of two artists chosen for residency fellowships, will spend August and September in Santa Fe interacting with and learning from other artists while pursuing her own work.

Especially for an artist who usually creates at her kitchen table - when she can get her husband, two kids and pet Chihuahua out of the way - the residency is a welcome opportunity.

Webster, a Ho-Chunk and Prairie Band Potawatomi Indian, grew up in Wisconsin, homeland of the woodland Ho-Chunk people.

While most of the other Indians there lived in the country, Webster's family was one of only a handful living in town, Wisconsin Rapids. Her family was poor, she says, and racism was prevalent - she remembers white kids taunting her with those "ugly" woo, woo, woos.

"The art was one of the things I could kind of revert to, because it doesn't take a lot of money to create my artwork," she says. "It was a really good escape, a good way to center myself."

Some of Webster's pieces are more serious than others.

A small, multi-colored screen print titled "I'm Not That Kind of Indian" depicts a woman in traditional - and accurate - Ho-Chunk dress surrounded by feather-headdress-wearing, woo-woo-ing cartoon characters. She loved cartoons as a child, and still does, but remembers the sting of seeing the characters she was so fond of making fun of her heritage. In another piece, she comments on a planned mining operation by showing Indians harvesting wild rice in the traditional way while wearing gas masks.

Some juxtapose old with new in a lightheartedway.

A pair of portraits show her children - son Wabansi, 13, and daughter Shyla, 7 - in city settings with part traditional, part urban clothing. In "Bozho Kitty," a smiling Shyla wears a traditional Ho-Chunk appliquéd skirt with a bright-pink Hello Kitty T-shirt. In "Wabansi: Lakeside Chicago-Beyond Swag," her son wears a Chicago Bulls jersey with Potawatomi leggings and a traditional decorative bandolier bag.

Some of Webster's work is less of a statement and more of an embrace; she's especially passionate about the bright colors in traditional costumes.

"Fancy Dancer," a stylized dancing figure repeated in different colors, captures the traditional garb's vibrant colors and the stamina it takes to perform in hot sun and heavy costumes.

John Torres Nez, chief operating officer of the Southwestern Association for Indian Arts, says the 92-year-old Indian Market traditionally has focused on Southwestern art. Leaders are now trying to diversify and attract artists like Webster from other regions.

"They bring an aesthetic that is different from the Southwest," he says.

Torres Nez says the residency, a partnership with the Santa Fe Art Institute, enables artists to focus on their work, interact with other artists and soak in Santa Fe's rich art culture with an extended stay in a city that could otherwise be cost-prohibitive.

After the residency and finishing her undergraduate degree, Webster says, she'd like to pursue a master's. Her goal is to continue making art that helps celebrate her people and break stereotypes.

"It's important for me ... to show my children that if I'm really into something, if I'm talented, to take that as far as I can," she says.

Oneida model finds success

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

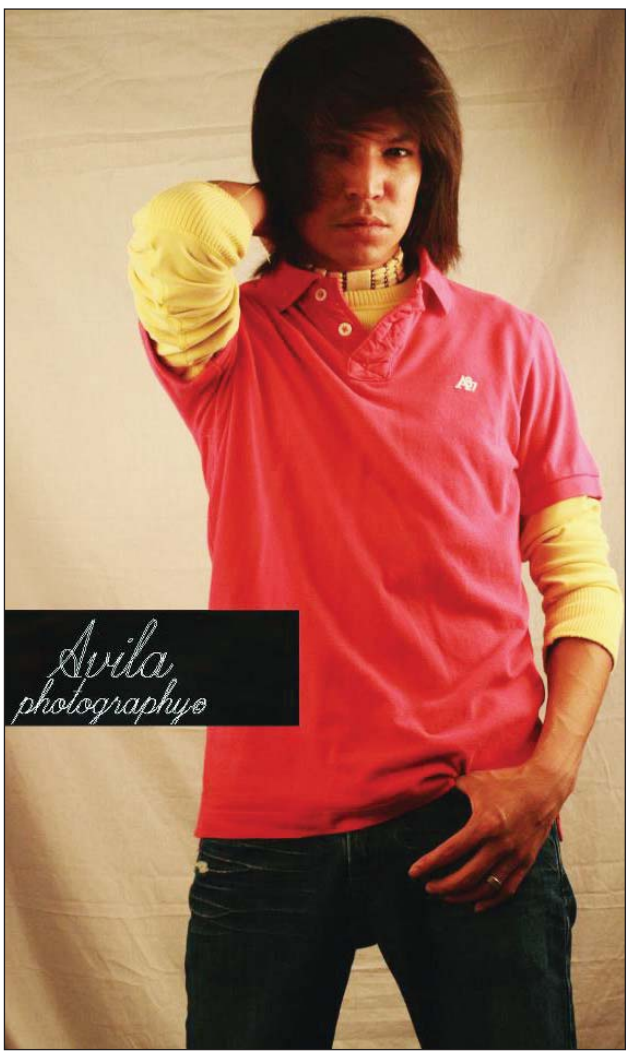
Richard Delabreau began modeling on recommendations from friends; little did he know that his modeling career would showcase his Oneida culture and lead him to a new career path.

"Right after high school I moved to San Antonio. I had some good friends that modeled in New Mexico and they are the ones that recommend I get into modeling with the Native Talent Network that is based in New Mexico," said Delabreau.

Delabreau began this venture by modeling for various photography studios to acquire experience and construct a worthwhile portfolio.

"When I got my portfolio put together there was a new agency that formed called South Texas Native American Modeling Agency; they hired me so I did work with them. I also ran into a few models that work with Abercrombie & Fitch so I was able to work with them and became one of the first Native American models that signed with Abercrombie & Fitch," Delabreau said.

Along with the well-known clothing company Delabreau has also modeled for Tommy Hilfiger and an international catalog.



Despite modeling for 11 years Delabreau still regularly fields questions about his ethnicity.

"Every time I do a shoot everyone is always asking where I am from or what my nationality is and I tell them, 'Oneida Nation Indian from Wisconsin'. They look at me and say 'all the way from up north?'" Delabreau said.

Delabreau was born in Green Bay, WI but grew up on the Menominee Indian Reservation in Keshena, WI. His father, Keith Webster, is Oneida and his mother, Andrea Klitz, is Menominee.

"I get a lot of respect from people when I tell them where I am from and how proud I am to be a part of the Oneida culture. They are always quick to ask questions like 'What's it like to be Indian?' or 'are you into your culture?' I love my culture but I wish I was into it that much more because it's different being separated from the area where the culture is practiced," Delabreau said.

Despite spending a large amount of time in front of cameras Delabreau's interests peaked at the artistry behind the camera. As a result he enrolled at San Antonio College and is in the process of earning a major in Radio, Television, and Film Production with an emphasis in Photography and a minor in Liberal Arts.

Michael Delabreau can be seen next on the cover of Current Magazine. Delabreau will also be featured in a four-page spread and the back page of the Texas-based publication.

"Photography has always been something that I had a passion for and doing modeling work has gotten me into that subject. After my schooling is finished I hope to get into behind-the-camera work because it's more interesting to me and I am not going to be young forever," Delabreau laughed.

Delabreau's next big project is for Current Magazine out of San Antonio, Texas. In it he will be featured in a four-page spread along with the front cover and back page. That magazine gets distributed throughout the San Antonio, Austin, Houston, and Dallas areas.

King sisters showcase horse racing skills

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

Sisters Lexus and Jazmine King have been riding fast on their grandfather's horses as long as they can remember. Now that speed has brought them to the National Barrel Horse Association Youth World Championships in Georgia.

Jazmine (19) and Lexus (16) rode five days a week in preparation for their race schedule.

"In the summer we're there everyday but Friday and Sunday. We take off to give the horses days off," said Lexus.

Both sisters have memories bringing them back to four or five years old and riding horses.

"I love the thrill of it, you can control an animal with a mind of its own. You are going so fast," said Jazmine

"It's such a rush," added Lexus.

The sisters will run their second go on Friday, July 26 to determine if they can qualify for the finals on Sunday, July 28.

"I'm just hoping to have a qualifying run," said Jazmine. "We're more comfortable with our horses."

"I'm just hoping for a clean run. Last time I tipped, which means I was disqualified," said Lexus. "We have products for their muscles so they're not as sore. We're a lot more knowledgeable."

Sitting on top of a horse running full speed does have its fair share of danger. Both admit to falling a few times.

"The worse I've done is stitches, I was at district finals but then I tipped the metal barrel and ended up getting stitches in my knee," said Lexus.

"I fell off and woke up being put in a wheelchair," added Jazmine.

Indian Preference in Contracting Law - Chapter 57

Yukwat^has Ukwehuwe Kayanl^hsla
Laws Concerning the Hiring of Oneida/Indian People

By Marj Stevens
Indian Preference Manager

The new Chapter 57 Indian Preference Law was passed to increase economic benefits of the Tribe and Tribal members by providing for the maximum utilization of Indian workers and businesses on Tribal projects which occur on or near the Reservation. In addition, Rider I, a standalone under the old law, was incorporated in the new Law thereby ensuring that the Law is easier to read and interpret. Certain key features of the new Law allow for an increase in the use of Indian Owned Businesses and trade workers.

One such key feature is the ability of the Indian Preference Office, here after (Office), to require submission of specifications to the Office prior to the posting or announcement of a contract for any Tribal Project. This will allow the Office to ensure there are no unnecessary or unjustified restrictions preclude preference vendors from bidding. In addition, the Office will now have the ability to "unbundle a contract" if it is in the best interest of certified entities, qualified trades workers and the Tribe. See §57.5-5.

The Law strengthens the goal of 100% participation of qualified trade workers by requiring the Indian Preference Office to provide training to increase the pool of qualified trade's workers. Specifically, the Law requires the Office to" identify, initiate, and sponsor training, internship, and apprenticeship opportunities necessary in order to increase the pool of qualified trades workers and to assist Indians in becoming qualified in the various job classifications used by employers." See §57.5-2(b)

The certification process for Indian owned businesses now requires the Office to determine whether the business is operating as a "front" as defined in §57.3-1(o). Under § 57.6-11, the Office is prohibited from certifying a business operating as a "front". The section goes on to identify examples of "fronts" to include, a management title without the correlating knowledge or qualifications to hold the title and forming a company for the benefit of non-Indians. Enforcement of this provision will reduce costs to the Tribe and allow preference entities to benefit from increased opportunities.

The enforcement sections of the Law have been reworked to allow greater understanding of what constitutes a violation of the Law on the part of individuals or entities or those aggrieved by a perceived act of noncompliance with the Law. The complaint process now includes an appeal process. See 57.10-1(b) and 57.10-8.

The Office is confident the new Law will provide increased economic benefit for the Tribe and Tribal members. The key features discussed the Oneida Tribe will have competitive bidding thereby increasing the economy of the Oneida community. The Indian Preference Office looks forward to serving the people of the community.

Speed up the wait at Clean Sweep

By Amy Spears
Environmental Specialist

Although the Household Clean Sweep is wildly successful and is bringing in more and more participants each time we have one, the long wait to get a vehicle unloaded is a drawback for some. On average the wait time at the clean sweep is an hour. An hour is a long time, and it seems like no matter what is done to try to shorten the time from changing the layout, increasing the amount of workers, to changing the location; the wait time really does not change all that much. The wait times for the past four household clean sweeps have been about an hour at each event. How could this be?

If we run the numbers it may put some things into perspective. At this last event, we were open for 5 hours. During the five hours, we had 300 registered vehicles. Now if we figure out how many minutes we were open for, 5 hours x 60 minutes in an hour = this equals 300 minutes. So we took in 300 participants in 300 minutes....that is an average of one vehicle per minute! I'm not really sure if the wait time will change for future events no matter what is done to try to speed it up.

But no matter what the numbers say, we will still try to get people in and out faster. So for this event we are advertising for more workers and are opening it up to all tribal employees. If you are a tribal employee and would like to help us out, contact us at the number below to sign-up. You will receive lunch, refreshments and a t-shirt just for working the event. You will need to ask your supervisor, area manager or division director about flexing the hours.

Also we will be doing a new layout for the containers/collectors at the event. To try and help speed things up, we are suggesting that when you are packing up your vehicle, truck and/or trailer, please pack in this order so items will be able to unload faster by our workers.

- Bottom (least accessible): Trash, Scrap metal and Lead-acid batteries
- Lower Middle: Construction and Demolition
- Middle: Goodwill and Restore Donations
- Upper Middle: Tires
- Top (most accessible): Electronics, light bulbs, and Household Hazardous Waste

You can keep your standard batteries-alkaline and rechargeable with you in the car for those who are doing the registration.

With smart packing, we might be able to decrease the wait time and increase the number of vehicles unloaded per minute! For questions or to sign up to volunteer, please contact Amy Spears at 920-869-4549 or aspears@oneidanation.org

DOLM gets onsite training

Divisions of Land Management's (DOLM) employees were very fortunate to have the opportunity to participate in two onsite realty trainings. This included a weeklong training that ran June 24-28, 2013. Fourteen of DOLM employees participated in both trainings along with two Law Office employees. The first training was Principles of Real Estate on Federal Indian Lands, containing information on Land Descriptions, Land Title & Estates, Contracts, Transfer of Title, Leases, Real Estate Financing and Rights-of-way. This training started June 24, 2013 and ended with a test on June 26, 2013.

On June 26, 2013 the Indian Land Title, Deeds and Encumbrance Training began. It was designed to help understand Indian Land Titles consisting of terms, type of titles, history of Land Title Recording Office, various Congressional Acts and examination of court cases, decisions and the laws. This training ran until June 28, 2013 and also ended with a test. All employees passed both trainings.

Besides the employees of DOLM, also attending were two Mohawk employees, from New York who run their Land Office and an employee from the Lac Courte Oreilles Band of Chippewa's Land Office, in Wisconsin.

This training was done by the Indian Country Consultants Indian Enterprises (ICC). They are a leading realty service training organization for American Indian Tribes. ICC offers scheduled classes all over the United States and provides customized trainings on-site.

ICC method of instruction is accredited to the high level of knowledge and expertise of the instructors and the utilization of case studies that provide the trainees with hands-on experience in Federal Indian real estate.

The owner-trainers of ICC, Terry and Lela Beckwith, come with years of experience working with the Bureau of Indian Affairs and Several Indian Tribes throughout the United States. Their teaching style is very enthusiastic and they are both very knowledgeable. They have an abundance stories and examples of issues they've encountered working with Indian Land.

ICC has an award system and keeps track of all the trainings you may have taken. If you attend and pass three classes and tests you will received a Level 1 Indian Land Associates Certificate. After taking and passing seven classes you will received a Level 2 Indian Land Associates Certificate. During our training, the Beckwith's awarded twelve of DOLM employees with their Indian Land Associates Level 1 and three DOLM employees received their Indian Land Associates Level 2.

DOLM also received a trophy from the 15th Annual National Realty Awards for being 9th place of all participating United States Indian County Land Employees. This award is based on the overall test scores of the ICC trainings for the year. DOLM is extremely honored to receive this award and Thank all DOLM employees for their hard work.

Artstreet volunteers needed

GREEN BAY, WI – Artstreet is seeking volunteers to help celebrate 32 years in downtown Green Bay, August 23, 24, and 25, 2013. The time and energy that volunteers dedicate to the event helps to make it a great success year after year.

Volunteers are asked to work at least one (1) four-hour shift in event set-up, food and beverage operations, children's activities, artist relief and souvenir sales. Individuals that sign up to be a volunteer will receive a free Artstreet t-shirt.

Artstreet is a project of Mosaic Arts, Inc., a nonprofit organization that produces and presents cultural events of all disciplines; engages in marketing and promotional activities that create greater awareness and visibility to artists and arts organizations; and provides grants to individuals and organizations for community arts programming.

Artstreet is a designated project approved by the Green Bay Public Schools for service learning.

To sign up to become a volunteer individuals are asked to contact Mosaic Arts at: (920) 435-5220 or intern@mosaicartsinc.org.

Your Comments Are Needed

Please share your thoughts with the Environmental Resources Board during the Public Hearing Process for the proposed Land Access Law. This law authorizes the Environmental Resource Board (ERB) to designate categories of land access for Tribal lands.

The Land Access Law directs the ERB to develop the Land Access Map in coordination with the Oneida Environmental Health and Safety Division (EH&SD), the Oneida Division of Land Management, Geographic Land Information Systems and other such designated agencies of the Tribe.

The ERB shall hold public hearings to approve and amend the Land Access Map. The ERB together with the EH&SD shall review any comments and make written findings of fact and determine the designations and/or amendments for the Land Access map.

The enforcement mechanism for this Law is the issuance of a civil infraction by a law enforcement officer resulting in a fine. The ERB will conduct the hearings for all citations.

The four designations to consider for tribal land are:

(a) Limited Access: permission needed to access (such as a lease or permit) for specified purposes, or to manage, preserve, and protect for cultural or environmental significance

(b) Oneida Community Access: open to Tribal members, and their spouses and descendants; members of other federally recognized Indian tribes, bands or communities; persons who are accompanied at all times by a Tribal member or the spouse or descendent of a Tribal member; or authorized employees of the Tribe

(c) Oneida Tribal Member Access: open only to Oneida Tribal enrolled members

(d) Open Access: open to all persons for the land's designated use and enjoyment

Examples of land that will be designated are Fox Tails Wildlife Area, Coyote Run, the Future Lake site, and Rosehill Wetland Area.

The ERB will hold the next Public Hearing on Thursday August 15, 2013 at 5:00 pm at Ridgeview Plaza in Suite #4. Please send your comments to Laura Manthe, ERB Director PO Box 365, Oneida, WI 54155 by Thursday August 29, 2013.

J-turn project at Cty. U and VV on WIS 29 finished

Green Bay, WI – The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) northeast region office in Green Bay is announcing that the project building J-turns on WIS 29 at County U and County VV in Brown County is wrapping up. The $1 million project that began April 22 was built to improve safety while maintaining mobility for motorists at these locations.

Turns from County U and County VV are now restricted to right in/right out movements while still allowing left turns from WIS 29 onto the side roads. To accommodate the remaining turning movements, J-turns were installed. The J-turn intersection prevents direct crossing and left-turn movements from the side road, but accommodates these movements through a U-turn movement approximately one-quarter mile in each direction from the intersection. These side road movements are made indirectly by making a right turn, traveling about a quarter-mile on the divided main road, and then making a U-turn to proceed in the opposite direction on the main road toward the intended destination.

Here are some simple reminders for motorists when using the J-turns:

Vehicles in left turn lanes from WIS 29 making a J-turn are required to turn into the nearest lane safely

Watch for directional signs to help you navigate the intersection.

Shekoli Swakwek,

41st Annual Oneida Pow-wow

I would like to congratulate all the winners at the 41st Annual Oneida Pow-wow. I had the pleasure of watching our beautiful grand entrys as well as the contests. I would like to personally tell our community members "yoyahne (good job)" for taking the time to get your children dressed in their finest and represent Oneida in such a positive manner. Thank you to the Oneida Powwow Committee on a job well done again this year. Your hard work and dedication is appreciated by many, Yawʌ́ko.

July 8th, 2013 GTC Meeting

I have listened to the concerns of many Community members regarding the July 8th, 2013 General Tribal Council Meeting. There are a lot of mixed emotions out there regarding the meeting such as; frivolous petitions, wasteful spending, not listening to those on the floor, why did the BC have the meeting, etc. I would like to begin with citing our Constitution of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin, Article III – Governing Body, Section 4; The Chairman or fifty (50) qualified voters may, by written notice, call special meetings of the General Tribal Council. Seventy-five (75) qualified voters shall constitute a quorum at any regular or special meeting of the General Tribal Council. Our understanding of this section of the Constitution says that the Business Committee is obligated to bring forward all GTC petitions whether we feel they are frivolous or not.

Regarding my motion at the July 8th meeting, I asked the GTC to remove all items on the agenda for many reasons:

1. January 7 the GTC adopted the Judiciary Act establishing the Judiciary
2. GTC directed the Business Committee to establish a Family Commission that required the judge overseeing the family court cases held a Juris Doctorate and at least 5 years' experience in family law.
3. Petitioners expressed their concerns in the previous GTC meetings citing the need for more experienced judges. Thus higher qualifications were included and accepted by GTC when adopting the Judiciary Act. The BC immediately followed up with adopting the Judicial Cannons of Ethics that the Judges must abide by. The Judicial Cannons of Ethics was developed and approved by the Business Committee.
4. The petitioners sought to dissolve the Judicial System in its entirety; this would have reversed 20 plus years of work on the Judicial System and be a direct conflict with GTC action on January 7th.
5. Individual court cases cannot be heard by GTC or the BC
6. The petition had no specific detail on the allegations, nor any evidence to back up any claims.

Brandon Stevens
Councilman

These were the many reasons why I reluctantly moved to delete the items off the agenda. I hope that we can learn from this meeting as to Where/who are these petitions coming from? What is the real problem? How can we address the petitions before coming to GTC? I hope to offer some solutions to the General Tribal Council in order for us to be more responsible. During my explanation at the meeting I suggested that a new petition process be implemented. The current petition process is very simple: a petitioner fills out a petition form and gathers at least 50 signatures and a meeting is than scheduled. The Business Committee has taken the initiative to try to provide as much information for these meetings as possible. Unfortunately not all petitions have a clear purpose, and for some reason, the petitioners usually do not want to meet with the Business Committee to clarify or reach any type of understanding or compromise. Thus a meeting of nearly 2,000 members and costs close to $300,000 is held. In the days before the $100 stipend it was understood that a quorum of 75 was difficult at times, and that those 50 signatures to a 75 plus GTC meeting was sufficient at that time. Since the inception of the stipend our meeting attendance has increased by 25 times making 50 signatures a relatively easy threshold for a $300,000 meeting with 2,000 members.

My solution is simple, that the GTC give direction and authority to the Business Committee through the upcoming GTC Meeting Rules, to have a very narrow authority to deny petitions based on a very specific set of criteria i.e. violates the Constitution, or is against tribal law, or issues regarding personnel matters just to name a few suggestions. All other petitions would still be processed as usual and a report would be generated for GTC review that would allow an added oversight over the BC of the petitions denied.

I look forward to opening up discussions surrounding General Tribal Council meetings and stipends.

In this article I want to talk about a few issues which surfaced recently regarding Higher Education Policies, Housing and a recent regionalism event.

Higher Education

Through the Legislative Operating Committee (LOC) I am reviewing a forgiveness request in relation to the Higher Education Policies. On July 17, 2013 the LOC discussed these matters and the issue(s) have been sent back to my office for follow-up.

My office was originally requested to add a Forgiveness Policy to the Oneida Higher Education Policy(ies) that would allow up to twelve (12) credits to be forgiven for those denied higher education funding through the Tribe. In addition to this request there have been a host of issues which have surfaced regarding the policies and procedures overall. Therefore, I am proposing that we discuss, as a community, any issues with the existing Higher Education policies so that a solid recommendation can be made to the LOC on how to most effectively address Higher Education matters. The next Saturday Morning with the BC will be held on Saturday, August 3rd at 10 a.m. at Ridgeview Plaza Suite 4. I encourage everyone to join my office in a brief discussion regarding this important topic.

Housing Successes – "What is Success?"

In the July 11, 2013, issue of the Kalihwisaks, some information was presented to the membership regarding housing matters. By some measures there may be some level of basic success towards getting some housing up, but what is the standard for success? How do we get a true measurement of success around housing? Is it a short(er) waiting list? Is it clean(er) neighborhoods? Is it buying homes in other communities? The measure of success needs to be defined.

Housing is clearly important to this membership so I will respond to a few of the statements which were presented in a recent Kalihwisaks letter regarding my housing efforts. While some of the statements were certainly interesting, the truth of the matter is none of this energy helps us build one new home.

The author of the recent letter claims someone is blaming Oneida Housing Authority (OHA). No one is blaming OHA as a department; they have done the best they can. I continue to maintain that leadership needs to step-up and become more creative regarding housing in general. While I have continued to push for housing, my sense is that the interest is unfortunately very low. Part of my goal has been to create a housing movement here which could see Oneidas owning nicely designed and well-built new homes for around $500 to $600 a month.

Doing the bread-and-butter stuff that the fed's offer is marginal, these are the basics, what about doing more by reaching further? Good governments address basic needs like housing way more effectively, more aggressively, and more proactively than we do. For example, we are seven years behind in our very own 24 Year Housing Plan, why is that? Everything mentioned in the recent article is regarding standard federal stuff. One of my main drives has been to seek outside dollars, where are those funds at? We are hinging on the cusp of needing, for the first time, to allocate Tribal dollars to address these matters. Not that this is bad to put some of our money in, but our efforts to leverage are supremely marginal. Ironically, the OBC worked together and agreed on a vision for this term that focused on housing; I wish we'd honor our own vision. We have less than one year left in this term and we have not constructed one new home under our direction or leadership.

On the other issue of performance, HUD recently sent us a letter warning about unspent federal funds in excess of $12 million dollars which we had laying in the bank for years. How can anyone claim a victory on housing work while there are hundreds of Oneidas needing housing? How can we be proud that we have millions of unspent funds - laying in the bank - not working for the Oneida people while we have hundreds of people who need housing? A few years ago, the housing list was wiped-clean; however, hundreds of Oneidas are right back on the list. A recent internal report shows a need for hundreds of housing units, is this success? I encourage everyone to watch Green Valley, it has been two years to get five homes up - they're still not completed. Where else would this be acceptable? While we have been tinkering around with these five incomplete homes, Hobart has erected hundreds of new homes for their people! How is the performance and the ability to build new homes so dramatically different in Hobart?

Vince DelaRosa
Councilman

Joint Venture

I agree there was a debate regarding a housing plant proposal I brought forward. I brought this debate to the membership's attention numerous times in various articles. At the March 28, 2012, OBC meeting I was seeking approval to move ahead with the planning process for a joint venture. Several concerns were raised, in particular the financial forecast for the project and ultimately the OBC made a motion to send the concept to the CFO's Office for a financial review.

The idea was framed around a joint venture that would create a professional pattern of housing development. The dream was for timely and professionally built housing to occur in Oneida. This venture could have created well over 30 jobs here in Oneida, offered job training, job experience and affordable homes in our community. In turn, this project could have opened the door for us to create joint ventures and opportunities to partner with other Tribes to share resources. For example, the Menominee Tribe has a wood enterprise; this plant could have utilized their wood resources.

By partnering with a company that could produce quality customs homes in a timely manner we could have aggressively decreased our housing waiting lists while offering new jobs. I would add this building plant would have also been able to efficiently create other types of specialized structures like homeless shelters or Dodo modular add-on homes or room additions. We have been talking about homeless shelters for over 20 years, when do we stop talking and start doing? This was a major lost opportunity for all, not just for Oneida. This joint venture could have helped other Tribes address their housing needs as well.

Housing Units

On the idea that there we're doing 22 units on average a year, the majority of those are home ACQUISITIONS in other communities. These acquisitions contribute to local tax bases and do nothing to build Oneida neighborhoods. We should not be building local tax bases; these same tax dollars can meet us in local legal disputes. This strategy also creates long-term tax burdens for Tribal members. Hobart and Green Bay are not trying to buy homes amongst us; they're building viable neighborhoods for themselves and their communities. We should be developing our neighborhoods to the best housing standards while backfilling spotty neighborhoods that have empty lots and poor landscaping. We are behind in most normal development curves when it comes to setting standards for neighborhoods and communities. Do we really view this as a success?

Housing Consultant

A consultant was brought on through the CDPC with specific deliverables, none of which were to actually produce a housing unit. The consultant was brought on because the CDPC and many staffers here agreed that the Tribe needed assistance with the development of housing. Our housing programs are not growing and/or addressing the basic needs of the membership adequately. As a general rule of thumb, policies and activities of government should address the expanding basic needs of the community. Having hundreds on a waiting list and being years behind in our very own 24 Year Housing Plan is not acceptable.

I would note, when the new OBC came in we asked the former OHA Director for a comprehensive housing plan to be developed by March of 2012. That request is documented, and we also can show that this plan was never delivered. After we could not get staff to do the work, we took the work on through a consultant who was contracted to provide recommendations and action plans to accomplish five specific projects. Ironically, that contract has been terminated and the plans lay there with no energy around completion as of yet.

In closing on housing matters, I have reviewed a lot of reports regarding housing; very few homes are being built because there seems to be little to no support to pursue new housing options. There is a saying that you are what you do. All the talk has not resulted in newly built homes for the Oneida people.

Honestly, for some it may be personally satisfying to tear my efforts and work down but assistance and help would be more meaningful. Input and good suggestions provide a better opportunity to realize successes around housing.

Regionalism – Diversification and welcoming people in can go a long way!

I recently attended a conference in De Pere, WI regarding regionalism. Business growth is essential to our region and being able to learn from other regions that are succeeding in economic development is important. At the conference I joined 40 local, regional and statewide organizations who came together to present a dynamic program on "Making Regionalism Work for them."

I am hoping to bring some of these discussions to Oneida in September. The OBC wanted to have an economic summit so I am suggesting that this can serve to meet that purpose. I would like to see this type of session open to the Oneida people.

The idea of us being integrated and dialed into the larger business networks of the outlying regions really needs to be understood and realized. We cannot grow and function as a separate economic group going into the future. Isolation will result if we continue on a separate economic island. Going at this alone trying to rely on cigarette sales, gasoline sales, gaming and federal grants may create a bleak future; we need to seek meaningful and real diversification. We need to welcome other people here to invest in us and with us.

Thank you for reading my report. If my office can be of any assistance to you, please feel free to contact my assistant Cathy Bachhuber at 920-869-4426.

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, Paul Ninham
Abstained: Tina Danforth, David Jordan
For the record: Tina Danforth stated I'm abstaining because I thought this was a request for information and if it so, why is it being submitted as an FYI? It's an add on, if it's an add on I thought it needed some timely attention. Thank you.
For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated the Treasurer raises a good point for consumption of the public. We did have a discussion about policy related matters as it related to the nature of the request. We did that in executive session, I'm sure we can provide further follow up information to clarify those points.

Adjourn
Motion by Patty Hoeft to adjourn at 10:34 a.m., seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried unanimously.

Minutes Approved as presented/corrected on July 10, 2013.

The Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin - Legislative Operating Committee

Notice of Public Meeting
Topic: Oneida Trust Scholarship Fund Policy Amendments

When & Where:
Thursday, August 8, 2013 at 12:15 p.m.
OBC Conference Room
Second Floor, Norbert Hill Center—Oneida, WI

Summary of the Proposal

The Amendments were requested by the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee and Higher Education after the Area Manager for Education and Training overturned a decision by the Higher Education Manager to deny trust scholarship funds to an applicant. The Area Manger of Education and Training overturned the denial of trust scholarship funds due to ambiguities in the Policy's appeals process. These proposed amendments seek to clarify the appeals process by:

- Requiring the Higher Education Manager to handle initial appeals. The current Policy requires the applicant to file an appeal with the Department Director, however that position was changed to the Higher Education Manager position.
- Requiring the Area Manager for Education and Training, instead of the Trust/Enrollment Committee, hear appeals from the Higher Education Manager's decision.
- Extending some time frames from calendar days to working days. The current Policy requires an applicant to appeal to the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee within ten calendar days; however, the proposed amendments require an applicant to appeal to the Area Manager for Education and Training within ten working days

The Public Meeting materials, including the draft proposal, legislative analysis and any other relevant documents, will be made available at the Public Meeting, or can be obtained in advance through the Legislative Reference Office. The Public Meeting materials are also available on the Tribal Website at:

Letters & Opinions...

Image Concerns

My name is Mary Lee Prescott and I was set up on one of your tables under the Elders' tent this 4th of July Pow-wow to sell my artwork. I traveled from Indiana to be here along with my granddaughter, Saraya, her husband, and two small children (two years old and two months old). On Saturday morning before Grand Entry, Saraya's baby started crying. Before she got a chance to feed her, and Elder Services employee told her she had to take her crying baby and leave the Elders Tent. She just kicked her out. Saraya was completely embarrassed and hurt at being treated so rudely. Duane Prescott was setting up my paintings and witnessed everything. When I arrived a short time later, I couldn't locate Saraya. Calling her cell-phone I found out she went back to my sister's home to pack up and go home. I told Duane we were leaving too. My granddaughter is a tribal member and if she's not welcome, then I am not welcome either. So we packed up and left also.

Saraya was a paying guest at the pow-wow. What ever happened to the Oneida's "Seven Generations" philosophy? It sounds like all talk and no action to me. Saraya and her baby are the next two generations. This employee needs a few lessons in humankindness, compassion, and humility. Don't let her become a public relations ambassador for the Oneida Tribe. She'd fail miserably with her mean spirit and lack of compassion. This employee should be monitored when she carries out her job duties.

Thank you allowing me to air my concerns and grievances.

Most sincerely,
Mary Lee Prescott

Economics & Ethics

The Tribe's Code of Ethics (3.1-1. 'Policy and Purposes') says officials must "promote the highest ethical conduct" and "work toward improving the health, safety and welfare of the Oneida Nation."

Yet the Business Committee has twice taken official action (voting for Resolution 12-08-10-B in support of OSGC's dioxin-emitting projects) jeopardizing the health, safety & welfare of the Tribe, because as OBC Resolution 11-08-00-B notes: "[T]he ability of our Native Community to be protected from the effects of dioxin poisoning is critical to the future of our tribal nations and all life that sustains us[.]"

To understand the ugly reality of OSGC's plans to build & market dioxin-emitting incinerators look no further than the Dept. of Energy's 'Final Environmental Assessment for the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation: Energy Recovery Project, Green Bay, Wisconsin' found online. Specifically, these statements from the 'Summary of Cumulative Impacts,' pages 112-113.

This statement deflates economic/jobs claims: "Socioeconomics: The proposed project would have minor beneficial impacts on the area's economy due to the influx of construction monies and new jobs. The reasonably foreseeable projects could have similar beneficial impacts as a result [of] construction activities; however the cumulative impacts are expected to have minor positive effects on the area's economy."

What's meant by "reasonably foreseeable projects"? Once OSGC builds a demonstration model it would seek to implement other incinerators nearby. What would be the impact of multiple incinerators?

This statement hurts to read: "Environmental Justice: Because the reasonably foreseeable projects are reasonably distant from each other and from the proposed project, it is very unlikely that the same group of low-income or minority populations would be affected by more than a single project. Therefore, no cumulative impacts to environmental justice would be expected."

In other words, there's no denial OSGC's incinerators would negatively impact low-income & minority groups, but because different projects would supposedly be spread out among low-income and minority populations no single group could "reasonably" claim they're impacted by multiple incinerators.

No mention of the fact that, as Resolution 11-08-00-B notes: "[T]ribal communities and families continue to be disproportionately exposed to dioxin and other persistent organic pollutants. Many of our tribal members are more susceptible to these dangerous toxins due to our land based culture and subsistence practices[.]"

Another implication is that low-income and minority environmental groups would be less likely to unite efforts against OSGC because each group would be too busy fighting the individual incinerators planned for their own backyard.

This is OSGC's vision for economic development: spreading the negative impacts of dioxin-emitting incinerators among low-income and minority groups evenly enough to discourage collective self-defense.

It's just one of several reasons why OSGC should be dissolved. When the petition to do so is presented at a GTC meeting in the near future, it will again be time for GTC to defend itself against uneconomic and unethical actions that endanger the health, safety and welfare of the Oneida Tribe.

7 Gens Causing Financial Crisis?

If we don't work together, if you don't protect our money, it may just be a matter of time before the Tribe is hit by a devastating financial crisis. The tribal members giving out this information (handing out petitions, etc.) are a group who has proven themselves to be knowledgeable and well-informed on 7 Gens bankrupting the Tribe. The BC doesn't seem to see it that is why you must support the efforts of our tribal members to bring the 7 Gens' shady operation to the forefront of the tribal agenda. Please exercise your political right to protect out tribe – your tribe.

As I talk to other tribal members, they seem to be well-informed and recognize the seriousness and the lack of detailed reports from 7 Gens, which is crucial. Sometimes I wonder if our BC members actually understand how serious our tribal financial crisis is. Total dollars from the casino is down. We can't just keep on giving millions and seeing no results.

In October 30, 2008, auditors discovered misinformation from 7 Gens and gave their recommendations. Other auditors stated 7 Gens did not provide them with enough paperwork to make a finding.

It is our money – we must stop this waste. Again, the 2012 audit is the same – missing information.

I am concerned that the BC (who created this monster) is not addressing and not enforcing the Constitution and following the 7 Gen Charter wherein they could dissolve them. It is unbelievable that the BC has not taken any action to stop this irresponsibility and non-compliance by 7 Gens. Their misdeeds have been exposed, now they must act before the people do. We elected them to do their jobs.

The lives of our children and grandchildren depend on what we do today. Please take a stand and force the BV to take action Protect your family, standard of living, per cap, etc. Please do not ignore our financial crisis caused by 7 Gens. I'm afraid it is only a matter of time before out tribe is hit with another devastating surprise (like wasted legal money on Hobart and on smokeless incineration) right near our own reservation.

Your participation in this emergency will give support to your people's needs to confront the BC and force them to take immediate action. This could be our last chance to convince the BC to do something. BC seems blissfully unaware that 7 Gens may be quietly waiting for an opportunity to strike a massive blow to tribal finances. Some of our young, along with elders, have spent countless hours working to stop the irresponsible actions. Please help them.

Get Rid of Seven Generations

On November 1, 2012, the CEO of Seven Gens received a letter from the Green Bay City Attorney stating that he knowingly provided false information to the Green Bay Common Council in an effort to obtain a conditional use permit for the biomass solid waster facility. Statements that he made concerning hazardous waste, toxins the environment, and public safety were proven to be false.

Funding for this project can from two loans from the State of Wisconsin in 2010 and 2011. Each loan was for $2 million dollars that the Tribe has to repay. Also in 2010, they received a conditional use loan in the amount of $19 million dollars from the BIA Department of Energy. However, before any monies can be release to Seven Gens, the BIA wants proof that the biomass project will be profitable to ensure repayment of their loan. And, as we are all aware, the biomass project is a multi-million dollar failure with nothing to show for the millions invested and lost.

Since the inception of Seven Gens we did not receive a payment in 2011, 2012, and 2013. Seven Gens has proven to be doing nothing but a huge financial loss. Where are they going to get the millions to repay their existing loans and legal fees from the Green Bay lawsuit? Seven Gens is currently paying more that $600,000 a year in salaries to four employees.

We are losing money at the Hwy 29 Travel Center, the retail Packerland sire, the casino at E&EE is closed, Thornberry Creek is a money pit, the Radisson Hotel, etc., and don't forget about Nature's Way. And, our Business Committee gave an undisclosed amount of money to the Packer organization and now we are spending $26 million to renovate two casinos? Where is this money coming from? We voted to take a $200 cut in our per cap because we believed the BC when they said we don't have any money and can't afford to raise our per cap. I guess the joke is on us again. What they really meant was that they don't have any money for us and it's our money.

We must take control of our business and let's begin by shutting down Seven Gens immediately. Perhaps it's time to get rid of the BC who never out the needs of our people first and can't agree on anything other than to spend our money! Vote yes to close 7 gens and put us first and increase our per cap. Thank you!

What about the children?

The GTC Meeting held on Monday, July 8, 2013, was nothing short of a huge travesty to the tune of approximately $250,000. Shame on the people who would not even allow the issues and concerns regarding our Oneida children and families to be heard. I hope those people can sleep knowing our Oneida children and families are in detrimental and harmful situations. They came to the GTC looking for help and the GTC slammed the door in their faces by voting to clear the whole agenda without even giving the parents an opportunity to present their information and to ask for help! The meeting was not about me or Kerry "Buggs" Danforth. It wasn't about our agenda. It was about the children, the harm, the violations, and the presentation of facts showing the Oneida Appeals Commission's failure to follow and enforce the laws, the lack of enforcement mechanisms to ensure the children are properly provided for and the fact that our Oneida families are "TRAPPED" inside a system that allows these things to occur. This equates to a huge failure to protect the children and families.

In response to comments in the July 11, 2013 issue of Kalihwisaks, I would like it known to our membership that I have not spread false claims about you. I refuse to allow you and/or anyone else, to try to make me responsible for your actions, words and decisions and/or any other activity you're claiming. I know the facts involving my involvement in the process and my observations of what occurred. However, I try not to discuss you or the situations involving you unless something in my job requires me to discuss it. Chairman Delgado was one of your biggest supporters when you were the Executive Director of the Oneida Housing Authority. I always supported you and your efforts. I have always supported the intent and purpose for the Oneida Housing Authority. I have worked diligently with you and other Divisional Directors to create housing opportunities (rental & ownership) for our membership with an emphasis on units and homes for low and very low income people/families and our elders.

The housing team I was a part of, had a site plan ready for nearly 100 units to be developed and constructed in the spring of 2013. The housing team was in a grant application and finance packaging meeting with USDA the day we were notified the OBC had taken action on June 13, 2012, to dissolve the housing team's official capacity and ordered it to be "reassembled" into a new subcommittee and report directly to the "CDPC", a OBC subcommittee. The two housing development projects came to a halt. The rest is history! It is important for you to remember that I have no authority and no control over what the Business Committee does or does not do. Thank you for your time.

Active Files: Current Legislative Items

Since the last LOC Update, the Legislative Operating Committee has been hard at work processing several different legislative items. The following is a list of those items. Once the LOC has completed processing these items, they will be sent to the Oneida Business Committee for consideration of adoption, or for approval to be sent to the General Tribal Council for consideration. As always, the membership is invited to contact any of the LOC members to learn more about any of these proposals, or to provide information, suggestions or other feedback.

New Laws and Policies

The following proposals would create new Tribal laws and policies where none currently exist:

Budget Management and Control

To develop a law to provide a consistent manner to govern the Tribal budget process, establish a procedural framework, and oversee Tribal expenditures.

Children's Code

To develop a new law for a Children's Code which would set forth a mechanism to allow the Tribe to take jurisdiction of child welfare matters involving tribal children

GTC Meetings Law

This proposal is for a new law which would govern the scheduling and conducting of GTC meetings---including a standard agenda format and a code of conduct for those in attendance; outlining the duties of those preparing and assisting with GTC meetings, and establishing how petitions would be processed.

Guardianship

Currently, the Child Custody, Placement and Visitation Law permits a third party (i.e. a non-parent) to petition for custody of a minor child; but does not address third-party guardianships. Therefore, a guardianship law for minor children is being created.

Housing Legislation

To provide continuous improvements to the overall current housing services that we provide to tribal members. To also move us towards a comprehensive overhaul of all housing services we provide. Past related housing drafts from 2008 will be researched.

Human Resources Reorganization

Referred by the OBC on July 25, 2012 in order to develop legislation that sets forth an independent Human Resources Department (HRD) to properly address the delegations and restrictions in the proposed memorandum of agreement.

Leasing Law

Development of a new law would allow the Tribe to approve surface leases rather than have the Secretary of the Interior approve each lease; as well as other changes that would enable the Tribe to exercise a greater role in Tribal self-determination.

Peace & Homeland Security Codes

A request has been received to establish a framework of civil infraction, traffic, conservation and Homeland Security codes, including Peacemaking.

Public Use of Land and Trespassing Law

The Law would provide guidelines to prevent improper access, use, and trespass to Tribal lands, and would protect and preserve the environment and natural resources through appropriate uses of land.

Rulemaking Law

This law would provide a more streamlined and efficient process for the adoption of administrative rules to support Tribal laws.

Vehicle Driver Fleet Management

This law would combine and replace the Vehicle Driver Certification Policy and the Fleet Management Policy, governing employee/Tribal official use of vehicles while on Tribal business.

Workplace Violence Policy

This law would provide Tribal employees guidance that will maintain an environment at and within Tribal property and events that is free of violence and the threat of violence.

Amendments to Current Laws & Policies

The following proposals would make changes to current Tribal laws and policies:

Audit Law

Amendments would address compliance enforcement.

Cemetery Law

Revisions would generally update the Cemetery Law.

Child Custody, Placement and Visitation; Child Support; Paternity; and Divorce, Annulment and Separation Laws

Amendments to these laws would ensure these laws are consistent with the new Family Court.

Code of Ethics

Amendments have been proposed to strengthen the accountability of elected and appointed officials.

Community Support Fund Policy

Amendments would update the process for accessing community support funding.

Election Law & the Comprehensive Policy Governing Boards, Committees and Commissions

Amendments would prohibit employees from also serving on Tribal boards, committees and commissions unless required as part of their work duties; set term limits for elected and appointed positions, and limit elected and appointed officials to only serve on one board, committee or commission at a time.

Additional amendments to the Election Law would establish a referendum process as well as procedures which should be followed during the recount process, while maintaining the security of the ballots and ensuring the election is conducted in an open and proper manner.

Drug and Alcohol Free Workplace Policy

Revisions would ensure the policy is used effectively and consistently by Tribal supervisors and for proper flow.

Early Return to Work

Amendments would ensure that the law offers consistent options for supervisors when an employee reaches the 180-day limit of modified work duty.

Emergency Management and Homeland Security Law

The Police Commission has proposed revisions to this law that revise the reporting structure of Emergency Management.

Employee Advocacy Policy

Amendments would address the needs of employees to access advocates. It would also provide for the development of standards and guidelines which would allow for advocacy representation to meet the needs of employees.

Investigative Leave Policy

Changes to provide clarifying language regarding the alternative work assignment.

Law Enforcement Ordinance

Amendments would clarify the roles, responsibilities and grievance process.

Pardon and Forgiveness Law

Emergency amendments were recently approved in order to enable the Pardon and Forgiveness Screening Committee to implement the law by holding hearings, and thereafter make suggestions to the LOC as to further amendments to the Law.

Per Capita Law

Emergency amendments were adopted by the OBC to enable per capita payments to be made on or before September 30th, instead of only on the 30th—these changes were made to address a situation where September 30th fell on a Sunday, and the change is now being processed for permanent adoption.

Personnel Policies Amendments: Area Manager Appeals

Amendments would revise language regarding supervisors challenging an Area Manager's decision, add a complaint process for supervisors that do not agree with an Area Manager, and include a process to allow supervisors to challenge an Area Manager who fails to act.

Small Business Project 2000

Amendments would increase the required owner's contribution rate from 5% to 15%, and to decrease the loan cap amount from $300,000 to $200,000 for loans where no real estate was involved.

Sovereign Immunity Law

Amendments will allow for an automatic waiver of sovereign immunity to allow Tribal employees to testify on certain matters in the State court, such as, where the Tribe is a victim of a crime.

Trust Scholarship Policy

The Trust/Enrollment Committee has recommended language to address ambiguities in the Policy.

Worker's Compensation Law

Amendments will recognize the Early Return to Work Policy for efficiency of handling work-related injuries.

Other Projects

The LOC is also currently processing amendments to the bylaws that govern various Tribal boards, committees and commissions. Bylaws must be approved by the OBC.

Audit Committee Bylaws

Bylaws were requested to replace the charter which currently governs this entity.

Environmental Resource Board (ERB) Bylaws

These bylaws are being generally updated since they have not been updated since 2003, and to clarify ERB's authority as an Original Hearing Body.

Finance Committee Bylaws

Revisions would update the membership requirements by removing the General Manager as a required member and replacing that member with the Purchasing Manager.

The LOC is also processing various other legislative efforts, including:

- Processing several GTC petitions—providing a legislative analysis if applicable.
- Assisting with creating the process for implementation of the new Family Court, as adopted by GTC.
- Processing changes to various Tribal laws that would replace references to the Appeals Commission with references to the newly adopted Judiciary.

Magazine fights child obesity 1 recipe at a time

By Michele Kayal
Associated Press
http://www.americanfoodroots.com

For years, cookbook writer Sally Sampson had wanted to write for children. No one was interested.

But by 2010, the time was right. Alarm over rising rates of childhood obesity was reaching new heights, as was awareness of the importance of cooking and eating real foods, not just for children, but for whole families and communities. Sampson seized the moment, launching ChopChop, a cooking magazine for children.

And in the three years since, she has transformed a simple idea – that getting children cooking is good for them – into an award-winning quarterly that reaches some 2 million families.

The concept is straightforward – the magazine portrays real children eating real food that they can cook themselves with little or no help from an adult. The recipes are nutritious, ethnically diverse and inexpensive. Most of its circulation comes from free distribution by doctors during well child visits. It also is available by subscription, and in Spanish.

"We think about kids as beginner cooks," Sampson says, noting that her target audience is 5- to 12-year-olds. "We don't do 'kids' food.' We do simple dishes. If you had a 20-year-old who didn't know how to cook, you'd teach them the same thing."

The idea is that children who know how to cook and feed themselves will not have to rely on fast food and processed meals. And that families who cook and eat together have healthier lifestyles overall.

Since its launch, ChopChop – which is based in Watertown, Massachusetts - has become an industry darling. Renowned physicians stack its board of directors. The magazine relies on sponsorship, not advertisements, and receives its largest chunk of funding from footwear company New Balance, which has given more than $1 million. And in May the James Beard Foundation named ChopChop "publication of the year."

And this year, Sampson returns to her cookbook roots. Sporting more than 100 recipes, "ChopChop: The Kids' Guide to Cooking Real Food with Your Family," will be published in August by Simon and Schuster.

"This is like a magnet for kids," says Barry Zuckerman, professor of pediatrics at Boston University School of Medicine and a member of Sampson's board of directors. Zuckerman says that 20 years ago he saw maybe two obese children a week in his practice. Today, he sees two to four a day. A founder of Reach Out and Read, a 24-year-old program that promotes literacy by giving books to children during doctor's visits, Zuckerman responded immediately to Sampson's model.

"Advice is cheap," he says. "Giving a one- or two-minute lecture about healthy foods is nice, but when we give ChopChop it really amplifies the message in a way that words just don't."

Nothing in Sampson's public background would suggest that she was a nut for children's health. Many of her cookbooks tackled single subjects, including party dips, ice cream, cookies and burgers. But her views had been formed while tending to her daughter, who was ill through much of childhood. (Her daughter, now 20, is fine, Sampson says.)

Her "ah-ha" moment came seven years ago, when she read a newspaper article by Harvard pediatrician and medical school professor Donald Berwick that took the nation's medical system to task.

"It was like I was reading for the first time about somebody who cared about what I cared about," Sampson said. "I wrote an email to him and said, 'If I could work for you I would never write another cookbook again.'"

Berwick wrote back. After dabbling in various health-related work, Sampson began approaching pediatricians with an idea to prescribe cooking during appointments. The enthusiasm was fierce and immediate, she says. She received more than 140 requests from pediatricians for the as-yet unborn magazine. She began raising money, collecting enough from companies such as Stonyfield Farm, Oxo and children's hospitals to print 150,000 copies of her first issue. She parked her car on the street and kept 8,000 copies in her garage.

After that first issue, Sampson says, requests poured in from afterschool programs, YMCAs, Boys and Girls Clubs of America, Indian reservations, food banks, neighborhood health clinics and other organizations. New Balance came on board as the main sponsor and remains the biggest donor.

"We were really excited about being part of a movement to get kids cooking again," says Molly Santry, the company's charitable programs manager. "We had funded hands-on cooking classes and the magazine was another resource for kids and families to get inspired to cook."

Sure, Sampson would like to see every family in America cooking together or to have obesity eradicated by 2020. But her immediate goals are more straightforward: she wants "to make cooking cool" and to give children the skills to stay healthy throughout their lives. With the editorial machine in motion, she says only one obstacle remains.

"Money," she says definitively. "The demand for ChopChop is huge. We are only slowed down by money. The more money we get, the more people we can reach."

Oneida Tribe Encourages Youth to Develop Skills in Summer Internship

By Cheney Suri
Student Worker

(Oneida, WI) – Every summer, the Oneida Tribe of Wisconsin offer an eight week internship for young students to develop skills in selected jobs that can improve the future of Wisconsin's current unemployment rate of 7.0 %. The total purpose of this program is to abolish this unemployment.

The "Summer Youth Program", can employ up to 70 students from the ages of 14 to 18.

Every year, the Oneida Tribe experience success in this program by the number of applicants, revealing how willing our younger generation desires to work today.

Some of these jobs are secretarial, agriculture, food preservation, librarian assistant, janitorial, mechanics, and more. The internships help students to experience responsibility, good communication, social interaction and experience for future jobs.

What it also improves is the youth's knowledge of the culture of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin and provides a vision for future careers. The Oneida Tribe certainly has discovered the need for youth to be prepared for any job they will take on later in life.

Gaines proves he can play at high level

Submitted photo

Michael Gains will play in his first national tournament this fall as a member of the Max Bats 18u AAA National Team out of Minnesota.

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

Hitting a baseball is said to be the hardest thing to do in all of sports. Michael Gaines is doing at a high level with one major disadvantage, sight in just one eye.

Gaines, 17, attends Austin Senior High School in Minnesota pitches and plays third base.

"I started playing around five," said Gaines. "It's the sport I feel I can connect with the most. It really challenges me, it's not easy and it's something I had to work hard for. I just feel all the hard work can't go to waste. I put hard work into every sport I play but baseball keeps drawing me."

Gaines has also played football, basketball, and wrestled.

Gaines currently plays for the Max Bats 18u AAA National Team out of Minnesota.

"We won't play until this fall. My first national tournament is September 28 in Illinois," he said.

One national team isn't enough baseball for Gaines. He has his sights on the Blizzard Elite baseball team.

"We haven't found out if I have made my second national team yet. When I went to perform tryouts it was the best I ever played baseball, I feel confident enough that I made it but I also know that the guys were some of the best I've ever seen. That's hard to compete against," he said.

Gaines bats right handed and is blind in his lead eye for righties. He has been working on batting left handed but is not yet ready to try it in game situations.

"My depth perception is really bad, I have to spend more time in a cage to recognize a pitch than any other hitter. I have to think more and pay attention to smaller details like delivery points," he said.

As a pitcher Gaines throws four in game pitches while working on his fifth. He consistently hits upper 70 to 80 mph on his fastball.

"My best pitch is my curveball. I was put on a throwing schedule to hopefully by September hitting 85 mph," Gaines said.

Gaines has put in the time to succeed and has set lofty goals for his upcoming season.

"I'd like to have a really low (earned run average) under three, maybe even two," he said. "It's going to be a lot harder. I'm going to need to pay attention to hitters and know what their weak spots are."

Gaines does wonder where baseball would take him if he had sight in both eyes.

"I always wondered. This has always been a limitation for me. If I had depth perception I feel I could be a lot better but maybe I would be worse because I dealt with it my entire life," he said.

Gaines wants kids with limitations to know you control your destiny and not let others tell you that a goal can't be accomplished.

"People always look at me and look at what I can't do. I want them to look at what I can do overcoming the problem I have. Trust me, kids make fun of me all the time. For kids that have problems, people tell you can't but overall you get to dictate if you play sports," Gaines said.

Cardinals capture 3rd straight Little League Title

By Kyle Casper
Recreation Supervisor

For the 3rd consecutive season the Cardinals have captured the Oneida Recreation Little League Regular Season title. The Cardinals completed their season with a 17-1 victory over the Wildcats. Cliff Bodway and Elijah Metoxen led the way with 2 hits apiece for the Cardinals. Jordan DeGroot had a hit for the Wildcats.

The Bears wrapped up 2nd place with an 11-0 victory over the Hawks. Seth Charles and Darwin Isaac each had 2 hits for the Bears. Jack Mehojah doubled for the Hawks.

Final Standings
Cardinals 7-1
Bears 6-2
Hawks 4-4
Wildcats 2-6
Eagles 1-7

Cardinals Win Little League Tourney Championship

The Cardinals used a 7 run first inning to take an 11-3 victory in the Little League Tournament Championship game. Justin Hill hit an inside the park grand slam to cap the first inning. Fox Christjohn, Cliff Bodway, Ramon Neosh, and James Hill all added doubles. Darwin Isaac had 2 hits for the Bears.

The Hawks scored 7 runs in the second inning en route to an 8-4 victory over the Eagles for 3rd place. Jack Mehojah hit a triple to clear the bases to cap the big inning. Floyd Silas had 3 hits and scored 2 runs for the Eagles.

Semi-Finals

Seth Charles and Darwin Isaac had 2 hits apiece during the Bears 10-4 victory over the Hawks. Calvyn Grignon-Danforth had 2 hits for the Hawks.

Fox Christjohn, James Hill and Justin Hill had 2 hits apiece to lead the Cardinals to a 12-0 victory over the Eagles. Clifford Bodway and Justin Hill combined on a no hitter for the Cardinals. Floyd Silas struck out 5 Cardinal batters for the Eagles.

First Round

Floyd Silas had 2 hits while he and Chaske Jacobs scored 2 runs a piece in the Eagles 9-8 victory over the Wildcats. Tyson Webster and Emerson Ninham each had a hit for the Wildcats.

Petition filed looking to remove Chairman Delgado

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

Over 600 Oneida Tribal citizens made their voices heard as a petition calling for the removal of Chairman Ed Delgado was turned in to the Tribal Secretary's office on Friday, August 2.

The Oneida Tribe's Removal Law requires signatures totaling 30 percent of the previous general election. The petition was handed in with 623 signatures while 522 were needed.

Petitioner Brian Doxtator along with 20 others who supported his petition process claim Delgado ignored General Tribal Council (GTC) directives, tribal policies and procedures, and the tribe's Code of Ethics law.

"It goes back to 1982 and the (GTC) directive is very specific to stay out of day-to-day affairs. It's not just one scenario. We can't say getting involved in day-to-day affairs has not occurred over the last 20 years. To some degree, more with some Business Committees and less with others, but this is out right blatant," said Doxtator.

Doxtator cites a case where the Community Support Services Fund (CSSF) policy and procedures were not followed by the Chairman's office.

The CSS fund requires applicants to have less than three months of non-payment before assistance will be offered. The CSSF also has procedure allowing a $500 maximum payment amount.

Documents show after an individual was denied for not making a utility payment for at least three months and their appeal denied, the Chairman's office directed the CSSF administrator to make a $600 payment to pay a utility bill for an individual.

Doxtator also claims that Delgado circumvented the process regarding a tribal member needing assistance in Arizona.

A tribal elder needed medical attention but needed tires for his vehicle to return home and receive dialysis treatment. Delgado directed Don White, the tribe's Governmental Services Division Director, in an email to assist in repairing the tribal members vehicle.

"I know there is a fine line between day-to-day involvement and my responsibilities as the Chair, but without the General Manager there are instances where we need someone who can make a directive to get something done," said Delgado in the email. "I am accepting this responsibility at this time. I am directing you to assist this tribal elder in getting his car fixed so he can get his dialysis treatment here in Green Bay. If something happens to him as we try to manage this request through our process, we will all be ultimately responsible."

Doxtator feels this is over stepping his authority as Chair.

"He is actually telling them to go ahead and give this person or that person assistance. Not

WI Tribes come together to resist mining

By Sherrole Benton

In the spring of this year, some traditional Iroquois people in New York sent tobacco to Melvin Gasper, to show support for the Lac Courte Oreilles Harvest and Educational Camp (LCO-HEC). The Iroquois and Chippewa people still show goodwill toward each other as they have done since the early 1700s when the Iroquois gave them a wampum belt of peace and friendship.

This fall, the LCOHEC will host a Potluck Harvest Feast, Sept. 21st, at the White Cap Mountain Chalet and Resort in Upson, WI. The LCOHEC will provide the grilled venison. The resort is near Webster Lake and features an 18-hole golf course. The Red Cliff tribe will donate the fish, and the Bad River tribe will donate the wild rice.

The harvest feast is part of the first Penokee Hills Education Summit at the White Cap. Entertainers, vendors, and good company will gather Sept. 20-21st for informational and social events. The first ever Two Step and Square Dance might occur here with a drum and polka band in tandem.

The LCOHEC camp coordinators are Gasper and Felina LaPointe, both LCO Chippewa tribal members, and Paul DeMain, an

Maria Hinton, 103 Passes On

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

Oneida matriarch Maria Hinton passed away Sunday, July 28 at 103 years old.

Hinton's Oneida name was Yake yale, it translated into the English language as "She Remembers".

Hinton, whose first language was Oneida, didn't learn English until she was sent to a government school at the age of 10. She was raised by her grandparents who only spoke Oneida in the home. She was a faithkeeper of the Oneida longhouse and one of the first state certified Oneida language teachers in the country.

She was one of the first teachers at the Oneida Nation Elementary School in 1980. She taught language and culture classes.

During the second half of her life she passed on her knowledge of the language and created thousands of recordings and books as critical learning tools of the Oneida language. She taught three generations of Oneida students during her career. She taught at the Oneida Nation Elementary School until she retired at the age of 92, after which she continued to teach in her home.

She is applauded for her work to preserving the Oneida language by completing a verbal Oneida dictionary with the guidance of University of Wisconsin – Green Bay Linguistics professor, Cliff Abbott. She spent nearly 20 years along with her brother Amos Christjohn and Dr. Abbott to completing the dictionary to preserve the Oneida language.

"People are begging, they want to speak the language, so they say," Hinton said during an interview three years ago. "We thought that it would be important to have a dictionary that they could refer to."

"To develop the Oneida dictionary was a significant piece of scholarly work that transcends time and encourages people to learn the language," said former Oneida Tribal Chairman Rick Hill. "Her dedication and her efforts were extremely important and I want to thank her for her work."

"My grandmother was one of the most important influence's of my Life. I will always cherish her legacy. It is a great Honor to be one of so many grandchildren that she loved so dearly," said Hinton's grandson, Ernie Stevens, Jr. on Facebook early Monday, July 29th.

Fundraiser held for Rep. Moore

Oneida hosted a fundraising luncheon for Wisconsin's District 4 Congresswoman Gwen S. Moore (D) on Monday, July 29 at Thornberry Creek. Representatives from the Sokaogon Chippewa (Mole Lake), Ho-Chunk, Potawatomi and Oneida nations were on hand to meet with Rep. Moore who is the Vice Chairwoman of the House Native American Caucus.

Oneida tribal member. The LCO Tribal Governing Board gave its support to the camp so that more tribal members would make a presence in the Penokee Hills.

While all the Chippewa tribes in Wisconsin are part of the Lake Superior Chippewa Tribe, the LCO Chippewa are currently the most active in making a public stand with the Bad River to protest iron ore mining. The Gogebic Taconite, LLC, (GTAC) company has already drilled for samples near the headwaters of Bad River. They also left behind waste and environmental damage.

Wisconsin Governor Scott Walker signed, in March 2013, a new mining law that makes it easier and faster for mining companies to start extracting iron ore in Wisconsin. The new mining law allows for destruction and pollution of the Bad River headwaters. The tribes and most of their neighbors are opposed to the mining operation because of acid mine drainage, and water and air pollution.

Dubbed the, "Bad River Watershed Destruction Act," by environmentalists, it is described as special interest legislation designed to gut environmental regulations for Gogebic Taconite's iron mine proposal in Ashland and Iron Counties.

Dave Blouin, Sierra Club Mining Committee Chair, said, "The Senators who voted for SB 1… irresponsibly abdicated their responsibility to protect Wisconsin's resources, natural environment and taxpayers."

DeMain said the LCO tribal council wanted to get more Chippewa hunters and harvesters into the Penokee Mountain range to make a presence and witness GTAC drilling activities. They are also exercising their rights to hunt, fish, and gather in the region according to the federal treaties between the US and the Lake Superior Chippewa people.

"The LCO Council liked the general approach to getting people in and out of the range to harvest, learn about harvesting, looking for historical marks, and doing an of inventory the natural resources. They authorized me to help set it up. I went to Melvin and asked for his assistance because he is a long time harvester in that region. He knows some of the key buyers of tree boughs, and other plants, and resources that can be gathered from there," he said.

Since the LCOHEC was set up in March, over 1,000 visitors have been there. One of the visitors came from England and another one came from Maui.

Senator Bob Jauch visits the LCOHEC camp often. In July, he and Senator Tim Cullen went there. DeMain gave Senator Cullen a tour of the camp. Afterwards, everyone enjoyed good conversation by the central campfire.

Many local families support the LCOHEC camp. The camp coordinators receive donations of locally grown fruit and vegetables from their neighbors. Other camp supporters forage in woods for edible mushrooms, berries, herbs, and medicinal plants.

The 1st Penokee Hills Education Summit will be Sept. 20-21, 2013 at the White Cap Mountain Chalet and Resort. Everyone is welcome to the Potluck Harvest Feast in the evening of Sept. 21st. Vendors can contact Barb With at 715-209-5471. Native American artists, other artisans, and organizations can set up there. Passing On...

Hinton, Maria Anastasia (Christjohn)

June 5, 1910 – July 28, 2013

Maria Anastasia (Christjohn) Hinton, 103 of Oneida, WI passed away peacefully surrounded by her loving family on Sunday, July 28, 2013. Maria's Oneida name was Yakeyale (yah-gay-yah-lay), which translates into English as "She Remembers." Maria was a Faithkeeper of the Oneida longhouse and one of the first state certified Oneida language teachers in the country. Born into the Oneida language, Maria spoke fluent Oneida her entire life. It wasn't until she began attending the local government boarding school as a young child did she begin learning to speak English.

In her life time Maria attended several boarding schools in Oneida, the Ho-chunk community and then later in Mt Pleasant, Michigan and at Haskell Institute. She finished her high school education in Kansas City, Missouri then returned home to Oneida. Maria later lived in Milwaukee and Chicago, then relocated to Los Angeles when her first grandchild, Kelly was born. Maria worked many jobs in her career, doing what she had to do survive and provide for her family during the Great Depression and forward.

In her early 1970's Maria relocated back to Green Bay and Milwaukee, once again working to help and provide for her family. It was in Milwaukee where she began her college and teaching career. Maria enrolled at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee along side other fluent speaking elders from all Wisconsin tribes, as a part of a now historic language preservation project. It was there where she acquired her state certification to teach. With the encouragement of both her family and the Oneida community Maria returned home to assist in revitalization of the Oneida language. Upon her return, she taught at the Soaring Eagle Community School in Green Bay and is considered one of the founders of the Oneida Nation School System.

In 1979 Maria graduated cum laude with her bachelors degree in Linguistics from the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay. She was passionate about teaching and preserving the Oneida Language. She worked for over 20 years with her brother Amos Christjohn, Dr. Clifford Abbott and others to preserve the language in an Oneida dictionary. She and Dr. Abbott would later adapt it into an online version, complete with her voice. the online dictionary was completed in 2008.

With Maria's passing, Oneida has come to the end of an era. There are very few Oneidas still alive who were born speaking Oneida as a first language. Maria lived through an era where government and poverty forced Indian families to send their children to boarding schools for months and years at time to learn English and be educated into the mainstream of American society. While this era was not looked upon favorably in history, Maria made the best of it. As an educator, Maria encouraged Indian Country to look forward and keep building upon the quality of education we see today. "The past is behind us, lets look to the future through the eyes of our children", said Maria.

The entire Oneida community mourns the passing of a truly gifted and loving grandmother that embraced everyone who sought her help in learning their language. During the second half of her life, for 50 years, she passed on her knowledge of the language and created thousands of recordings and books as critical learning tools for the Oneida language. She taught three generations of Oneida students during her career. Maria taught at the Oneida Nation Elementary School until she retired at the age of 92, after which she continued to teach in her home.

Maria Christjohn Hinton was an amazing woman who has left the Oneida Nation with a legacy of honorable work and undying love of the history, culture and language of the Oneida people. Her work will live on forever as a teacher and a linguist. She lived an amazing, full and meaningful life and will always be remembered as dignified. Maria was well known and loved dearly by the entire Oneida Nation, addressed by family and community members alike as "Aksot", which in Oneida means "grandma."

She was preceded in death by her Father, Paul Mose Christjohn, Mother, Lucy (Hill) Christjohn, siblings Anna John, Rosetta Huntington, Eva Cornelius, Elizebeth Ridgeway, John Christjohn, Frances Christjohn, Vernon Christjohn, Amos Christjohn, and grandson Coleman Stevens. She is survived by her sibling Mae (Christjohn) Baxter, and her son Ernest Lloyd Stevens Sr. Also survived are 8 grandchildren; Kelly (Shelly) Stevens, Ernest (Cheryl) Jr., Toni (Doug) House, Apache (Dewain) Danforth, Mike (Tommy) Stevens, Pam (Lester) Harms, David Stevens, and Jennifer Stevens. Maria also had 26 great grandchildren and 18 great-great grandchildren. She is also survived by numerous nieces and nephews, as well as countless students and other community members who looked at her as their grandma.

The wake was held on Wednesday, July 31 at Ryan Funeral Home 305 N. Tenth Street in De Pere. The funeral was held at 10 am Friday, August 2, at the Oneida longhouse.

It is the cultural tradition of the Oneida people to begin a fire to honor and offer prayers for an individual who has passed on, the fire was located at her original homestead located at 4204 W. Mason St (Hwy. 54) in Oneida.

Happy Birthday!

To my beautiful sister and auntie
On her 60th birthday (July 19)
Although you are gone
from this earth
Your spirit lives on.
Your physical presence is missed
At every family gathering
Though I see and feel your love.
Your humor, your strength, your
Wit and charm, I see in others
Yes you are sadly missed, but
There are many happy memories of you.
I know you'd want us to continue to
Celebrate your life with love and laugher.
Perhaps a few tears 'cause we miss you so…
So, I'm sending you this special
Birthday Wish with all our love

Happy birthday, Judy (AKA Jude)

CMN and Oneida partner for education

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

The College of Menominee Nation (CMN) and the Oneida Tribe recently forged a partnership to offer courses at no cost to the community. The partnership constructed courses that offer college credits or aid in finding employment.

The newly formed Oneida Workforce Development Group, which is an entity that helps people get the skills they need to have in order to gain employment, was formed after employment trends showed that some people didn't have the basic skills needed to gain employment.

Victrietta Hensley, Workforce Coordinator at the Oneida Human Resources Department (HRD) said, "We saw that we were weak in a lot of different areas within the tribal organization. It just so happened that the College of Menominee had approached us to see if we would be interested in having some classes with us. They would offer them free. I thought 'Yes! That would be great.'"

Conversational Oneida Language, Home Health Aid, Math, and Microsoft Word with Business Writing were the four subjects taught over the eight-week program. The classes were held at the Oneida Community Education Center (OCEC).

"We offered the courses based on need. For example the Home Health Aid course we offered because we know that the Oneida Health Center will be needing more people that are certified. We also have a lot of individuals who were unable to pass a HRD math test so we offered that course to strengthen their abilities and boost their confidence so that they may pass the test and find employment," Hensley said.

Jacob McLester, a sophomore at Iowa State University, participated in the Oneida Language and Home Health Aid courses.

"I knew a little bit of Oneida before the class, I went to the Tribal school for a little while so I knew a little but not a whole lot. But after the course I had learned so much more of the language than I already knew. I learned a lot about how to take care of people in need. So it is good to go through and actually learn it and have that knowledge," McLester said.

The courses also educate those who may need medical knowledge on a day-to-day basis.

Lorena Castillo, a junior at Seymour High School, completed the Home Health Aid course.

"There were flyers that I seen around and then I saw the program and decided to take the Home Health Aid class. I thought it would be good to take the class because I get to help my mom because my mom is diabetic. So I can help her or if anyone else needs emergency aid like CPR or anything I know how to do it. I learned a lot of things. We also had a lot of fun," Castillo said.

An added benefit to completing a course is that the credits earned can be used at area schools such as the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay and Northeast Wisconsin Technical College.

"I would recommend these courses for anyone looking for some nice credits and is interested in the field; it is a good place to learn a lot of things. The instructors were great and they either currently practice what they teach, or have in the past, so they offer a lot of real world experience," McLester added.

Southbound US 41 exit ramp at Mason Street to close in Brown County

Traffic to use the southbound US 41 Shawano Avenue exit ramp

Green Bay - The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) Northeast Region is announcing the closure of the southbound US 41 off-ramp to Mason Street will begin Wednesday, July 31, until September 2013. The southbound US 41 Mason Street ramp closure is needed to complete paving needed on US 41, while maintaining traffic operations and keeping the interchange open. Physical access to Mason Street from southbound US 41 will not be closed.

From Wednesday, July 31, 2013, until paving operations finish in September 2013, southbound US 41 traffic will have access to the Mason Street exit by using the Shawano Avenue southbound off-ramp, crossing WIS 29 and accessing Mason Street from the southbound US 41 on-ramp from WIS 29. Expect significant traffic delays on eastbound and westbound WIS 29 while traffic crosses WIS 29 in route to Mason Street.

Future access to both Mason St. and Shawano Ave. via US 41 will be by new collector-distributor lanes between Shawano and Mason.

All lane restrictions are weather dependent and subject to change.

Visit us on Facebook and follow us on Twitter for additional details on US 41 traffic impacts and lane closures in Brown and Winnebago counties.

If you reside within the Oneida Reservation boundaries you can call 920-490-3939 to make a WHEAP appointment.

If you reside outside of the Oneida Reservation boundaries you must call your county's WHEAP office (for Brown County 488-6460 and Outagamie County is 800-506-5596).

The Wisconsin Home Energy Assistance Program (WHEAP) provides assistance for heating costs, electric costs, and energy crisis situations. Operating with federal and state funding, the program provides assistance to approximately 225,000 Wisconsin households annually.

Most types of fuel are eligible to receive assistance. Whether you use wood, propane, natural gas, electricity, or fuel oil to heat your home, energy assistance is available if you qualify.

Heating Assistance

WHEAP assistance is a one-time payment during the heating season (October 1 – May 15). The funding pays a portion of the heating costs, but payment is not intended to cover the entire cost of heating a residence. The amount of energy assistance benefit varies depending on a variety of factors, including the household's size, income and energy costs. In most cases the energy assistance benefit is paid directly to the household's energy supplier.

Electric Assistance

Your household may be eligible to receive a payment for non-heating electric energy costs through funding provided by Wisconsin's Public Benefits.

WHEAP electric (non-heating) assistance is a one-time benefit payment during the heating season (October 1-May 15). The funding pays a portion of the household's electrical (non-heating) costs, but the payment is not intended to cover the entire cost of the non-heating costs.

The amount of the non-heating assistance benefit varies depending on a variety of factors, including the household's size, income, and non-heating costs. In most cases the non-heating assistance benefit is paid directly to the household's energy supplier.

Crisis Assistance

A household may be eligible for crisis assistance if you have no heat, have received a disconnect notice from the heating vendor, or are nearly out of fuel and do not have the money to purchase more. Crisis assistance is available through local WHEAP agencies that provide a 24-hour crisis phone number to help with emergencies that occur after business hours. WHEAP crisis assistance provides both emergency and proactive services.

There are also non-emergency or proactive crisis services that include providing information on how to reduce fuel costs, counseling on budgeting and money management, providing payments to a fuel supplier, and co-pay agreements.

Furnace Assistance

WHEAP emergency heating system assistance can provide services to eligible home owners if the furnace or boiler stops operating during the heating season. Heating system assistance includes payment for repairs, or in some situations you residence may qualify for a total replacement of a non-operating furnace or boiler. Call the local energy assistance office immediately if you are experiencing a no heat situation.

How to apply

Your household may be eligible for Wisconsin Home Energy Assistance Program (WHEAP) services based on a number of factors. However, if the gross income for your household is less than the amount shown on the following chart, you might be eligible to receive assistance.

Get your vehicle registration notice via email

Go paperless with eNotify, a new electronic notification system

You get emails and text messages from your doctor's office, your hairstylist, and your favorite retailers; now you can add the Division of Motor Vehicles to that growing list. Part of a broader strategy to move toward electronic applications and online services, DMV launched eNotify to respond to the needs of its customers. "More and more, our customers expect to do business online. It's where they are, so it's where we need to be," says Mitchell Warren, DMV Bureau of Vehicle Services Director. "People are busy; we want to make their lives a little easier."

How eNotify works:

- Once subscribed, DMV will send you electronic license plate/registration renewal notices for all eligible vehicles. You can receive them in an email. A text message option is also available.
- Electronic license plate/registration renewal notices will include a link to renew your registration online (www.dot.wisconsin.gov/drivers/vehicles/renew/online/index.htm).
- You must subscribe at least three months in advance of the plate expiration to ensure receipt of an electronic renewal notice for a particular vehicle.

Find out more about eNotify at the official DMV web site: www.wisconsindmv.gov in the announcements section.

Summertime Home Cost Savings Tips

By Dianne Zubella
Bay Bank

When the temperature goes up, so do energy bills, water bills and a host of other home-related costs. Here are a few ideas for how to stretch your household home improvement budget this summer.

Invest in a programmable thermostat

Programming your thermostat is one of the easiest, lowest cost ways you can cut your energy bills. Installing a programmable thermostat prevents your home from going through large temperature swings and can save you up to 10 percent on your cooling bills. A homeowner can save as much as $150 - or even more - on air conditioning bills by setting a thermostat.

Turn down the heat on your water heater

In the summer, most households can function with the temperature on the water heater turned down to 130° F. This not only saves money on heating the water, it also reduces the risk of scalding and burns, especially for small children.

Upgrade your old air conditioner

A room air conditioner carries an energy efficiency ratio (EER), or the ratio of the cooling capacity to the power. If you have old air conditioners with an EER energy efficiency of 5, you can cut costs in half by replacing it with a new one with an EER of 10. So do a simple calculation: If your average annual bill is $260, your bill would become $130. Depending on the size of the unit and room (window units range from $100 to $500), your annual savings will pay for the unit in just a few years.

Clean or change filters

Appliances like furnaces and air conditioners function more efficiently and cheaply (and last longer) when you replace or clean their filters on a regular basis. Read your owners' manual to find out how often you should replace or clean filters.

Finally, unplug electronics when they're not in use. Even when electronics such as television sets, DVD players, computers and phone chargers are turned off, they can suck power out of outlets. Either unplug them when you're done using them or use a Smart Strip (which cuts power when it's not needed). One exception to this tip: overhead fans, especially at night, will cool air more cheaply than turning down the thermostat.

Connecting Voices for Change: youth vs adults views

A team of three Oneida Community members, who are also tribal employees from different program and department areas, have come together forming a collaborative team to help bring about positive community driven change. These three individuals came together with a common desire to work towards building a Healthier Oneida Community by assisting the community with taking ownership of itself for the purpose of designing and implementing positive community change for the benefit of all. This team, "Connecting Voices for Change" was accepted into a collaborative initiative that teaches facilitation skills and provides knowledge for leading positive community based change focused on listening to and implementing suggestions from the voices of the community. This collaborative initiative known as the Healthy Native Community Fellowship works with teams from tribes across the United States focusing on helping to build healthy Native communities. "Connecting Voices for Change" is made up of Kaylynn Gresham-Deputy Director of Emergency Management/Homeland Security; Sarah Phillips-Health Promotion Disease Prevention Program and Dianne McLester-Heim - Oneida Ombudsman.

As part of the initiative, "Connecting Voices for Change" conducted a Community Listening Tool Survey at the May 5, 2013 General Tribal Council Meeting. This same survey was also provided to the youth of the Oneida Natation High School and a Youth group program for the purpose of obtaining input from voices of our youth. The result of the survey's provided a great deal of information about the views of the Oneida Community at this point in time. Areas for which information was collected included: feelings about the importance of culture, thoughts on matters related to local youth, impact of local communication, feelings about the ability to impact the community by one's own actions, and the impact of community leadership.

Of those completing a Community Listening Survey, 45 came from Oneida Youth and 70 came from various community members providing input from a total of 115 Oneida Community Members. The information collected viewed the thoughts of youth and adults separately to allow for comparison.

More specifically; Oneida Youth and adults indicated the following:

Feelings about the importance of culture:

Both youth and adults indicated that it is very important for future generations to speak our Native language, they want to learn more of our 'traditional' language and culture, they know where to go to find information on our traditions and culture, having knowledge of our traditions and culture is a key component of a healthy Native Community, and that many of our community events currently incorporate cultural teachings. When looking at the importance of culture to the Oneida Community, youth and adults appear to hold very similar views and opinions, both suggesting it is important to our future.

Thoughts on matters related to local youth:

When looking at matters related to local youth, the youth and adults do not hold common thoughts and feelings. The community youth have identified that they feel there are enough recreational activities while adults do not feel there are. Youth stated that they can voice their concerns to tribal leaders and that they have good community role models while adults identified these as areas that need to be improved. Finally, both groups indicated that communication between youth and parents could improve and as well as the cultural sense of belonging held by the youth. Neither group gave these areas high ratings; however the youth indicated they view communication and a cultural sense of belonging at a better place than the adults do.

Impact of local communication:

As a general overall statement; youth find the current style, amount, and content of communication with in the community to be satisfactory or above; while adults find these communication areas to be very poor. Communication from tribal government, listening by tribal government, community or program leader's ability to bring people together to discuss concerns, find solutions, and take responsibility for themselves and their situations were among the areas assessed. Both the youth and adults surveyed rated, tribal government listening to the community, as the least successful area of communication at the local level.

Ability to impact the community:

When it came to looking at how the youth and adults felt about their ability to impact their community, there were some split feelings. Youth felt more able to speak up in disagreement when it came to impacting community change than adults. Both groups indicated they felt their suggestions could have a positive impact on making change and that the community can come together to make positive change. Both groups did indicate they felt as though 'leadership did not necessarily listen to or hear the suggestions they make'. While both groups feel that people in the community do come together to address issues, the youth were more optimistic about people working together to solve community problems than the adults were. Overall, the survey results suggested both youth and adults feel they have the ability to speak up, to come together, and create positive change for the community.

Impact of community leadership:

In looking at the concept of leadership, youth suggested that tribal leaders listen to the needs of the community while adults feel they do not. Youth see 'community leaders' as good role models making changes to programing based upon feedback from the community. Youth also felt that the community itself encourages community leaders and provides opportunities for people to gain leadership skills. Adults completing the survey suggested they do not feel that the community supports or encourages community leaders, nor do community members have opportunities to gain leadership skills.

This Listening Tool Survey provided an opportunity for "Connecting Voices for Change" to begin looking at positive community based change by first listening to what the community had to say. While not every single tribal member was able to provide input on these items, this is the beginning of listening to the unheard voices of the Oneida Community. Following this listening tool, "Connecting Voices for Change" conducted two community listening sessions called Rez Café's in order to hear more of what the Oneida Community had to say about growing a Healthy Community. These listening sessions were held to provide an opportunity for community members to have their voices heard, to look at how those of the community who participated see the community, and to begin to look at how the community can take ownership of creating some positive changes.

"Connecting Voices for Change" looks forward to sharing what occurred at the Rez Café sessions in the very near future. The community is always welcome to participate in any of the activities held by "Connecting Voices for Change" as every one's voice within a community is valuable and important. A sincere 'Thank You' to all those who have brought their voices to the table so far, and great anticipation awaits for all those who will bring their voices as we go into our future.

Parr awarded AICCW Scholarship

Oneida tribal member Monica Shana Parr has been awarded an academic scholarship from the American Indian Chamber of Commerce of Wisconsin (AICCW) in the amount of $2,000. The scholarship is awarded to Monica on behalf of Terry Ni, P.E., Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises, LLC, who has chosen to support Monica's commitment to use her future college degree to help improve tribal communities throughout Indian Country.

Monica recently graduated from Saint Mary's Catholic High School in Phoenix, Arizona, where she was actively involved in sports, community and church activities. During her high school years, Monica was able to see firsthand for herself the state of disrepair of many tribal buildings. She possessed the foresight to imagine that her talents related to art, math and science could be used to design buildings in Indian Country that are culturally relevant and aesthetically pleasing. As a result, Monica has chosen to study architecture and civil engineering for a career.

Monica has been accepted to The School of Architecture and Planning at The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. for Fall 2013. Through the scholarship, the AICCW and Terry Ni are pleased to support the academic and career goals of Monica that will make a positive difference in Indian Country. Congratulations to Monica on her accomplishments.

The AICCW is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that promotes economic development in Wisconsin Indian Country and also provides scholarships to American Indian students seeking a higher education who intend to be of service to tribal communities.

Monica Shanna Parr

Terry Ni wishes to express her appreciation for the AICCW's willingness to accept her personal donation for this scholarship award. Terry encourages other individuals to consider making a personal donation to the AICCW to help support American Indian students pursuing a higher education.

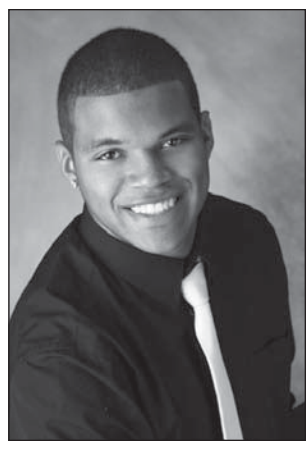
OTIE Scholarship Recipients



Awarded to Oneida students pursuing engineering career or related field

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises, LLC, is pleased to announce the 2013 recipients of the annual OTIE Scholarship for those Oneida high school graduates who intend to pursue a college education in engineering or a related field. This year's award recipients are Margaux Wheelock-Shew and Cayman Berg-Morales, who will each receive a $5,000 scholarship.

Margaux lives in the Washington, DC, area and recently graduated from The District of Columbia School Without Walls High School. Margaux intends to become an architect and has been accepted to study architecture this fall at The Irwin S. Chanin School of Architecture of The Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art.

Margaux Wheelock-Shew

Cayman Berg

Cayman lives in the Green Bay, WI, area and graduated from Notre Dame de la Baie Academy in Green Bay. Cayman plans to study structural engineering and has been accepted into The College of Engineering at Michigan Technological University this fall.

Both students were selected for their academic achievement, contributions to community service, and an interest in studying engineering or a related field as a career choice. The OTIE Scholarship is part of the education outreach program the company conducts to support Oneida high school students that demonstrate the ability to meet the rigorous standards for acceptance into engineering and related study programs.

OTIE congratulates all scholarship applicants on their recent graduations and acceptances to their college of choice, and wishes each student the best in their respective academic and career goals.

OTIE is an engineering, science and construction management firm owned by the Oneida Tribe.

Oneida Early Intervention Prepares for 2013-14 School Year

By Carla Witkowski
Oneida Early Intervention

Kindergarten Readiness, topic of Lunch and Learn

Oneida Early Intervention staff is busy planning for the upcoming, rapidly approaching, school year. We've had an increase of Birth – 3 year old referrals this summer and continue to screen children upon parents' requests. We're working on ways to increase collaborations within our Tribal network of programs servicing Birth to 6 year old children and reaching out to be a resource for families living in Outagamie County.

An informative event is happening in August:

August Lunch and Learn

This month's topic is on Kindergarten Readiness. Our presenter will be Ada Weber. Ada is a veteran teacher, currently teaching Kindergarten at King Elementary in Green Bay. She will have lots of tips and will answer those questions you may have in helping your child get ready for Kindergarten. The date is Tuesday, August 13, 2013 at noon. Please remember to register with Ana Balbuena at 920-490-3893.

Child care will be provided by Oneida Social Services but you must register in advance to secure a spot.

Early Education builds personal value

By Shannon Stone
Oneida Community Education Center
(920) 496-5260

What is the value of your education?

At younger ages it can be difficult to see the bigger picture and consequences when deciding to stay in school or not. The difference between completing high school and not completing high school can cost a person about $8,580 in lost earnings per year or $715 per month on average.

What could someone buy with an extra $715 per month? Many people could pay their rent or mortgage and utilities with that amount. At current interest rates of about 7% a person could afford to purchase a vehicle worth about $34,000 on a 60 month contract. College education comes within the reach of a person because they have a diploma and $715 more per month earning potential from completing high school. Now consider how each additional level of education contributes to a person's earning potential. The difference between a high school diploma and an Associate's degree is nearly $12,000 more per year. That's a lot of money for a small commitment.

Education Level	Mean Earnings
	Monthly	Annual
Elementary	2,136	25,632
Some high school	2,434	29,568
High school completion	3,179	38,148
Some college	3,598	43,176
Vocational certificate.	3,538	42,456
Associate's degree	4,166	49,992
Bachelor's degree	5,445	65,340
Master's degree	6,731	80,772

Source: U.S.Census Bureau, Survey of Income and Program Participation, 2008.

Sometimes circumstances don't cooperate and obtaining a traditional high school diploma might feel out of reach. There are alternatives that should be considered. A student that is near completion, needing only one or two credits to graduate could gain those credits through the PASS program at the Oneida Nation Community Education Center (ONCEC). This would allow the student to graduate with a traditional diploma. If this option is not suitable, individuals can acquire a GED or HSED by passing a series of exams which has become accepted by most employers and institutions as an academic equivalent to a high school diploma. Additionally, the ONCEC can also administer a special form of the GED called a 509. This GED is customized for individuals with special need such as language assistance.

Some things to keep in mind when considering an alternative to completing high school are the fact that while the GED can open doors the experience lost from not attending high school can make attending and completing higher education levels more difficult. High school can offer a variety of valuable life and educational experiences outside of the classroom, from hands-on study experiences to extracurricular clubs and activities. Furthermore, high school may provide social networks and development opportunities that will aid individuals through college and the workforce. Finally, there may be additional costs involved to participate in these programs. The instructors at the ONCEC can help understand these costs and the advantages of each program. To speak with one of our instructors call us at (920) 496-5260.

Pulaski Schools adopt new food policy

Pulaski, WI – The Board of Education came to a decision on the topic of food in the classroom for the Pulaski Community School District on May 1, 2013. The District as a whole is trying to move toward guiding the students to lead healthier lifestyles.

The District wants to take what the teachers, students, and parents are currently bringing to eat into the classroom and moving them in a healthier direction. It wants to make nutrition education an important piece of the school day.

The policy addresses the topics of birthday treats, holiday parties, rewards and incentives, vending and school stores, fundraising, and curriculum-based food.

There are other ways to celebrate the success of the students in the District, and it is trying to move toward non-food gatherings.

The new District policy states that non-food celebrations are encouraged in order to reduce the amount of high sugar foods consumed. Parents and guardians of children whose birthdays are being celebrated may bring in treats to share. The snacks are encouraged to meet the District Nutrition Standards.

For more information on the tools and resources of this "food in the classroom" policy, visit https://sites.google.com/a/pulaskischools.org/eat-healthy/parents.

Bay Bank offering financial services

Tribally owned bank offers full line of services

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

Anyone looking for financial literacy assistance needs to look no further than the tribally owned Bay Bank.

"We are a full service bank. We offer checking, savings, CDs, money markets. We also do mutual funds, stocks and bonds," said Dianne Zubella, Executive Vice President at Bay Bank.

Zubella feels creating a budget is the first step in personal financial success.

"We have a budget class and a whole library full of budget books. Pay yourself first and we teach them to save. I don't care if it's $20. You just have to teach yourself to save and save for a rainy day," she said.

Zubella also wants young people to utilize free money from your employer.

"Your 401(k) is a really good way to pay yourself first and maximize it. You won't miss it. It benefits you down the road when you're 25 that will be a lot of money when you're 65," she said.

Zubella refers to the per capita young tribal citizens receive as a gift needing smart management.

"We try to talk to them about investing. Every kid wants to buy the motorcycle or car and then it's gone. We try to get them in an investing instrument. I had some success with a young lady who was interested in buying stock. We bought stock in things she was interested in. It's still in there today so it proves that if they put it away they forget about it, it's difficult for them to see that," she said.

Services will soon be available to anyone seeking assistance.

"We're going to have days when we are available to anyone who wants to talk to us regarding how to balance your checkbook, how to get your credit score increased or get a loan," she said.

If you do need help Zubella asks that you don't utilize the corner stores that don't have your best interest in mind.

"The last thing we want is our customers to do is go to these check cashing places. They get in a lot of trouble and the rates are astronomical," she said.

Hyperbaric Oxygen returns to Oneida

The Mobile Hyperbaric Unit provided by American Hyperbarics will return to Oneida on the 27th of August 2013.

Located at the rear of the Oneida Health Center, treatments will be conducted daily from 7 AM through 6 PM. The Hyperbaric Chamber will be in the area through the middle of October.

This versatile therapeutic treatment allows oxygen to be delivered to tissues in critical need. Oxygen is the essence of life, its availability helps tissues to heal, helps the body's immune system to fight infection and in certain situations provides the body's cell the ability to produce energy allowing them to function efficiently.

Hyperbaric oxygen therapy centers are not new, in fact their emergence began in the early 19th century being seen first in Europe. More and more you are seeing its acceptance in hospitals through out the US.

Recent research with Veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan have shown its effectiveness in addressing lasting effects of mild traumatic brain injury or symptoms of post traumatic stress disorder.

In a recent study published out of Israel, Hyperbaric oxygen was instrumental in providing impressive improvements in neurological injuries even after decades. Patients with conditions such as stroke, cerebral palsy, traumatic brain injury have long reported the benefits of hyperbaric oxygen in providing significant positive changes in their qualities of life.

Among the conditions treated are the adverse effects of radiation following its use in treating cancer, selected problematic wounds. The Mobile Hyperbaric gives the opportunity to evaluate the effectiveness of this treatment for themselves.

It's Our Decision

You and I must demand that the Business Committee put aside politics in order to perform their constitutional duties and carry out the people's wishes.

In one of the latest assaults against you and me, the Business Committee lent 7 Generations money for a lost legal cause. This is a violation against the rest of our tribal members. We did not approve this. We voted to stop their gasification plans at the May 5, 2013 GTC meeting. Yet, they continue to subjugate you and me.

Unless immediate action is taken to stop their outrageous plans once and for all our Tribal Constitution could fail, and you and your children, along with all the elders, will face an even greater political oppression.

The question now: Is this what you want? You may yet face this avoidable situation if you stand around and do nothing. It is your decision.

Seven Gens continually comes back for more and more money and they will not stop until the Tribal members stop them. If we don't, they will run the Tribe.

The Business Committee seems to blatantly ignore the will of the people. We must continue to fight diligently for the rule of law instituted in our Oneida Constitution. You can tip the scales toward justice by helping to dissolve 7 Gens and put an end to their fiscal strain on our tribal budget.

Make No Mistake: GTC Runs the Tribe

The Oneida Tribal Constitution is the highest law on the reservation.

The General Tribal Council is the governing body of the Oneida Tribe.

In 1949, the GTC passed a resolution delegating authority to the Business Committee to handle business to benefit ALL the tribal members. Through this delegated authority, the BC manages the regular tribal operations, however, the authority of the BC is subject to both the Constitution and the GTC. The GTC can review any actions taken by the BC, and can issue a directive to the BC to be carried out! In other words, ordering the BC to take certain actions or to implement or change a specific policy. The Business Committee must carry out the directive from the GTC. It is NOT up to the BC to question or revise a directive from the GTC

A directive was issued on July 9, 2013: a petition with over 360 signatures was given to the BC to dissolve Oneida Seven Generations Corporation. It is now up to the BC to take action in accordance with Article III, 'Governing Body,' Section #, paragraph I, which states in part: "[T]he Business Committee…shall perform such duties as may be authorized by the GTC."

The By-Laws of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin, Article IV, 'Powers of the General Tribal Council,' Section 3, 'Reserved Powers,' states: "Any rights and powers heretofore vested in the Oneida Tribal but not expressly referred to in this constitution shall NOT be abridges by this article, but may be exercised by the people of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin through the adoption of appropriate By-Laws and constitutional amendments."

If the BC fails to act, they are in violation of the Oneida Constitution.

If the BC tries to modify the requested petition, they are in violation of their Oath of Office.

If the BC holds secretive unannounced meetings like the one held on July 12, 2013 inconsistent with the Oneida Constitution, Article III, Section 3, paragraph 2, which states in part, "Special meetings of the business committee shall be held upon a three day advance notice by the chairman to all members thereof or upon written request of a majority of the Business Committee stating the time, place and purpose of the meeting," the BC is in violation.

Make no mistake: the tribal members (GTC) run the tribe!

Time to end Powwow Lacrosse?

Is it time to discontinue the traditional lacrosse games at the pow-wow because of the poor sportsmanship of a few people?

Is it okay to attack a player from behind, that doesn't have the ball, under the guise that "there are no rules"?

Ambulances had to be dispatched to the game both Friday and Saturday night. I don't know what happened Saturday night but my heart goes out to that family. I do know what happened Friday night because it was my grandson that was attacked.

My grandson is a smoke dancer. He loves to dance at the pow-wow and also loves lacrosse. He made grand entry Friday night, danced and later went to play lacrosse. His goal is to play on the all-native lacrosse team. He was captain of his lacrosse team in high school and took them to state championship.

At the game, my grandson made his second score, which was acknowledged by the other players. "Good shot", "You made it." He was jogging away when he was assaulted from behind and body slammed to the ground landing on his shoulder with the other person's weight on top of him.

At the hospital, the doctor said it was the worst grade of shoulder separation.

My grandson recently graduated from Pepperdine University where he was a lacrosse player. He is living in Los Angeles, working seven days a week at two jobs to make ends meet. His parents are missionaries in Singapore so he doesn't have family close by, also of concern in his lost income.

His surgery is scheduled for August 5th.

Maybe only a grandmother can understand the anguish of having a precious grandchild suffer such pain for so long.

My grandson is the most loving, compassionate, forgiving man I've ever known and immediately forgave his attacker, and hold no ill feelings toward him. I on the other hand, am still working on it. I know I have to forgive that person but it's hard knowing my grandson will continue to be in pain until it's healed.

I've been told that the person that did this is an elder who is supposed to be setting an example for the younger men, teaching the good sportsmanship and fair play. Some of the other players called what he did a "cheap shot".

I've had many people suggest that perhaps my grandson was assaulted because he doesn't look native. His eyes and skin color is too light.

I can tell you my grandson is extremely proud of his Oneida heritage and that's how he identifies himself.

Hopefully, someone can discuss good sportsmanship and fair play before these games, if they continue.

ONEIDA CHILD SUPPORT AGENCY
ONE TIME NOTICE OF PER CAPITA ATTACHMENT CLAIMS FILED

Re: Child Support Agency(s) vs. Various Individuals

A diligent attempt was made to notify the following individuals of claim(s) filed by child support agency(s) and the Oneida Tribe for interception and attachment of per capita payments to satisfy outstanding orders for payment of child support to the custodial parent and state of Wisconsin.

Sarol H Cadotte, Eric A Edwards, Rebecca M Osswald and Dakota K House

Our records show that you owe child support arrears pursuant to your account statement. Arrears may include child support, medical expenses, interest, costs and/or fees.

Your current balance and any increases will remain subject to collection by per capita attachment until the arrears are paid in full pursuant to 9.4-6(a)(1) of the Oneida Per Capita law.

You may volunteer to have federal taxes withheld prior to the attachment. The form following this notice must be completed and returned to the Oneida Child Support Agency within ten (10) business days if you want federal income tax withheld before your per capita payment is attached. Once returned, the federal tax withholding will remain in effect until the Agency receives written notification stating otherwise. A member can also change one's voluntary tax withholding status at any time by submitting a written request to the Agency.

If you have questions regarding your account please log in on-line to view your account balances at http://dcf.wi.gov/bcs/payments/logon.htm or contact your appropriate local child support agency.

For specific questions about this claim, settlement or payment arrangements, please contact the appropriate child support agency. If you have questions on the process, feel free to contact the Oneida Child Support Agency at (920) 490-3701.

Voluntary Federal Income Tax Withholding Request

I hereby request the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin to withhold 20% of my Membership, and future year payment(s), if eligible, for my Federal Income Tax Account. This withholding request shall remain in effect until a new payment form is submitted to the Oneida Tribal Child Support Agency.

I hereby absolve the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin of any liability for honoring this federal income tax withholding request.

Marian University to host bully prevention workshop

FOND DU LAC, Wis. ~ Marian University will be hosting a bully prevention workshop, "The Three B's: Bullies, Bullied and Bystanders" on Friday, August 30, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the Stayer Center Dining Room. The workshop will feature keynote speaker Amelio A. D'Onofrio, Ph.D.

The workshop is designed to help educators, mental health professionals and parents – or anyone working with youth or others who are prone to bullying or being bullied – better understand the complex dynamics of bullying, the role we all may play in those complex dynamics and what we can do to bring about change. In addition, participants will formulate realistic strategies for helping to bring about change and end the cycle of violence and bullying.

Keynote speaker Amelio D'Onofrio, Ph.D. is a clinical professor and director of the Psychological Services Institute in the Graduate School of Education at Fordham University. Dr. D'Onofrio holds degrees from Georgetown University, the University of Chicago and Fordham University. Dr. D'Onofrio is also founder of the Institute for Psychoanalytic-Existential Psychotherapy where he trains post-doctoral level clinicians. He is author of "Adolescent self-injury: A comprehensive guide for counselors and health care professionals."

The workshop is available for $30, and can be taken for 1 credit for an additional fee. Participants should register for the workshop by Friday, August 23. For more information or to register for the workshop, contact Dr. Janet McCord, jsmccord12@marianuniversity.edu or at (920) 923-8952.

Whose House Do You Belong To?

By Oneida Trust & Enrollment Committee

The word Longhouse is often used in different ways and misunderstood. There are at least three different meanings of the word. The first is the most basic: Longhouse means the type of home or structure in which Oneida people traditionally lived. The second is an extension of the first: to be a Longhouse person, meaning Haudenosaunee (Iroquois), or a descendent of people who lived in Longhouses. By this definition, all Oneida people are Longhouse people. The third use of the word is in reference to beliefs and living a certain way: to be Longhouse, meaning they go to the Longhouse for ceremonies and follow traditional teachings. A person may identify themselves as a Longhouse person by the second or third definitions (or both). This can lead to confusion.

It is important to note the third definition is often referred to as a religion. Our traditional teachings included spiritual elements, but our government and social rules and expectations were also included in those teachings. It is more accurate to refer to the traditional teachings as a way of life—the Longhouse way of life. Spiritual, social, and political elements were all tied together in the traditional culture. Today we tend to talk about them in separate terms.

Not all Longhouse people (our second definition) follow the Longhouse way of life (our third definition). About 400 years ago, Oneida and other Haudenosaunee people were introduced to the concepts of Christianity by Europeans. Gradually, Christian beliefs and values changed the political, social, and spiritual landscape of the Oneida Nation. Following the American Revolution, a Seneca man named Skanyatali·yó (Handsome Lake) had several visions. From the first vision in 1799 until his death in 1815, Skanyatali·yó shared a message of revitalization for traditional teachings, getting back to holding the ceremonies, and keeping our culture intact.

About the time that Skanyatali·yó's message was spreading to the other Haudenosaunee, the Oneida were losing vast tracts of land and were forced to leave their ancestral homelands in New York. Many Oneida who came to the reservation on Duck Creek were Christian Oneidas. Over the course of the 1800s, fewer and fewer Oneida in Wisconsin practiced the spiritual components of the Longhouse way of life. Those who did, practiced "underground," or secretly, to avoid persecution by Christian Oneida.

During the 1900s, the effects of assimilation, boarding schools, and acculturation began to take a toll on Oneida in Wisconsin. The Oneida government transitioned from the Chiefs to an elected government, and with that change, the political and social elements of the traditional teachings continued to weaken.

In the very early 1980s the ceremonies began to be re-introduced in Oneida, Wisconsin, including Kalihwi·yó, the message shared by Handsome Lake. The Oneida School System and the Language program have contributed significantly to our cultural revitalization. Since then, the spiritual and social aspects of our traditional teachings have been strengthened. We have yet to address the political issues, such as blood quantum and the foreign governing system we currently use.

If we imagine all Oneida people as a landscape, over the course of our history that landscape has diversified and changed in appearance and way of being. However, it has remained unified despite changing belief systems, political systems and social patterns. There is still something that holds us together as a nation, as a people. Could it be our sovereignty? It doesn't matter if you are a traditional Oneida, a Christian Oneida, or any other category of Oneida; we are all still Oneida. Our individual beliefs and ways of life are a part of our identity, but it seems that collectively we share something else in common.

Maybe the blood quantum issue isn't an identity issue after all. If the blood quantum concept were removed as a requirement of tribal citizenship, wouldn't you still be Oneida? It seems our identity is rooted in the same place as our sovereignty. Whatever new definition we develop of what it means to be Oneida should support and strengthen the concepts of our sovereignty.

From 1A/Removal petition

only did he tell them to give them assistance, it was over and above what the policy says," Doxtator said. "He is using the community support fund as his personal checkbook to help people."

Delgado defended his decision.

"I don't think any leader, if he had the resources, would allow a person in that much need of a medial facility, would sit back and say there is nothing I can do. You're going to have to wait and we'll discuss this. You act," Delgado said. "Our customs and traditions of our tribe always looked out for our people and no leader would ever turn their back on those needs. That's not being an Indian leader."

Doxtator also address tribal traditions and why he feels removal is the only answer.

"I don't want to compare us to our chief system but the Clan mothers chose the chiefs, they approached the chief three times and they gave him an opportunity to clean up his act. We don't have that here. All we have is the Removal Law. People have talked to him and said you are doing something wrong. He needs to go, he is not willing to change his ways. He is saying I can do it, I am the Chair," said Doxtator.

Doxtator's ideal situation would not be the removal of Delgado but another means to address misconduct tribal wide.

"I don't agree with removing him. It's not the best answer but because of the continuous violations we are pushed to it's the only conclusion. If we had sanctions laws or even if the GTC could fine you $500 for every email you send to a division director… we don't even have that," he said. "All we have is removal."

The Oneida Enrollments Department has verified the signatures and it will be forwarded to the Oneida Appeals Commission. They review the merits of the petition. If the Oneida Appeals Commission determines that the petition alleges sufficient grounds for removal, a hearing is conducted.

If the Oneida Appeals Commission determines at the hearing, that sufficient grounds have been proven, then a GTC meeting will be scheduled within 45 days after the Appeals Commission's findings are submitted. At the GTC meeting, a two-thirds vote of the GTC is needed to remove an elected official.

Delgado has filled an injunction with the Oneida Appeals Commission questioning the timeline that the signatures on the petition were collected.

Delgado feels the topic may not even reach the GTC.

"I don't think any court of law would uphold these charges. A negotiator negotiating, a leader encouraging, and helping our elders and children. I can't imagine them saying that's wrong and it's wrong to try to save lives," Delgado said.

Delgado feels he is supporting and protecting tribal ways.

"As Chairman, I support our proud history as Oneida people and I believe that Indian leaders must stand up and accept responsibility for the continuance of the Oneida customs and traditions, the protection of our people and our resources. To do otherwise would be negligent and weird," he said in a prepared statement.

SEOTS Youth Explore Health and Wellness

By Mark W. Powless

Every summer, Southeastern Oneida Tribal Services offers two 6 week youth programs. The programs target the age groups of 7-11 and 12-16 and focus on education and recreation. The theme for the youth programs this year was Health and Wellness.

The summer kicked off with a visit to Oneida. We visited Sid White, who is a Physical Therapist for the Tribe. He talked about physical therapy and showed some of the activities done during physical therapy.

We then visited Josh Gerzetich at Cultural Heritage. Josh talked about traditional plant medicines used by Oneidas and we toured the log cabins used by Oneidas during the late 1800's and early 1900's. The older group visited with Annette Cornelius at Cultural Wellness and learned about cultural views and approaches to health and wellness. We ended our trip with a tour of the Oneida Museum by Shawn King- Skenandore and an activity of making corn husk dolls.

SEOTS youth participated in group activities while learning how horses are used for therapy with at-risk youth and veterans.

Other activities during the summer included a lacrosse clinic with Marquette University, traditional food sampling, an exploration of Hopi culture, yoga, herbal facials, horse therapy, a talk with psychologist Dr. Mark Powless, diabetes bingo, Cardinal Stritch University visit, traditional tobacco, Chicago's Field Museum, art therapy, and a trip to the Milwaukee Zoo. All activities involved a connection to health and wellness.

When surveyed, the most liked activity of the summer was traditional food sampling. Traditional foods sampled were Oneida white corn, kidney beans, acorn squash, bison meat, maple syrup, and strawberries. The health benefits of each food were shared as well as cultural practices and/or ceremonies associated with the food.

The summer activities concluded with a trip to Great America and a family dinner.

For families interested in participating in the 2014 summer youth programs, please contact the SEOTS office in March 2014 and watch for a mailer from the SEOTS office.

2013 Adventure and Climbing Camps come to a close

One component of Oneida Adventure staff's core philosophy is based on this simple quote, "you can discover more about a person in an hour of play than in a year of conversation" - Plato. In the hustle and bustle of our lives, we often forget the simple pleasure of connecting through play. Each year Oneida Adventure staff is reminded of the importance of playing in our adult lives as we relate with each other and our children. Our Summer Camps impact us in this way each year. As we organize and plan for fun activities for weeks of skill development and learning, Camp finally arrives and we get the opportunity to let our guards down while we play with our campers. This year it was hard to tell if we adult instructors were instilling a sense of adventure into our campers, or if it was the other way around! If we are looking, listening and able to provide a safe environment to let our kids explore freely, we will quickly find an innate wildness in each of our children. AND if we follow after them, we can find that inside ourselves too. Live life fully! Let our children teach us how.

Oneida Apple Orchard

In 1994, the Oneida Tribe purchased a 2,400 tree Apple Orchard as part of their continuing strategy of reacquiring lands within the original boundaries of the reservation. The Apple Orchard has 24 acres of original orchard and an additional 14 acres of new orchard, which now totals approximately 4,500 trees. The orchard offers 34 varieties but the majority of the apple varieties are McIntosh, Cortland, and Honey Gold. During the season we try to offer a wide selection of fresh produce such as winter squash and pumpkins.

Part of the Orchard's goal is to generate interest in the area of agriculture as well as encourage our children to understand at a young age, the importance of growing healthy food, and finding natural ways to eliminate pests. The Apple Orchard is part of the Youth Day on the Farm event that takes place each April. The Oneida Elementary School 6th graders partake in this event. It has been quite successful in generating the youth's interest in agriculture. It also teaches them the many techniques which are used to naturally eliminate pests such as trapping insects and releasing bugs to control other bugs.

The Apple Orchard offers fresh fruit and vegetables to all community members. They can purchase these products starting early fall. Each September the Orchard participates in the Big Apple Fest. This year the Big Apple Fest will be on Saturday, September 21 from 10a.m. till 4p.m. Please see our website for additional details www.oneidanation.org/ocifs

Please call ahead for store hours during apple season. 920.869.2468 or 920.496.7423. You can also get the newsletter on our website at www.oneidanation.org/ocifs. We hope to see you down at the Oneida Farmers' Market.

A three man production crew from the television show Native Report shot footage for an upcoming show on Oneida's integrated foods system on Thursday, August 8.

Producer/Writer Michael LeGarde of the Grand Portage Ojibwe nation found out about Oneida's program from its website.

"I was really intrigued by what I saw," he said.

Native Report is based in Minnesota on the WDSE/WRPT Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) affiliate.

"We're in our ninth season of production and we're seen in 27 states," he said. "We try to branch out into the surrounding states."

LeGarde enjoys telling the unexplored story of contemporary Native American life.

"We're more than just casinos," he said.

News Around Wisconsin

Killer of Green Bay teen gets 40 years in prison

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) ~ A man who shot and killed an unarmed Green Bay teen has been sentenced to 40 years in prison.

Nineteen-year-old Julio Gonzalez, of Oneida, pleaded no contest in May to being a party to first-degree reckless homicide in the 2012 shooting death of Jeremy Teller. Press-Gazette Media report the sentence was the result of a plea deal. He could have received life in prison.

Another defendant, 26-year-old Miguel Garcia, of Oneida, was sentenced Friday to 15 years for being party to felony murder. Three other defendants have received lesser sentences, while two others await sentencing.

Prosecutors say the defendants were looking for someone else to get revenge for an earlier fight when they confronted Teller, and that Gonzalez shot Teller in the back as he lay on the ground.

Experts seeing sharp increase in ticks

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Veterinarians and others say they're noticing an increasing number of ticks in Wisconsin this year.

Pewaukee veterinarian Randy Schuett says it's one of the worst years he's ever seen. Schuett says he recently treated a Golden Retriever and suspected he had arthritis. Instead it turned out to be Lyme disease, which is carried by ticks.

University of Wisconsin-Madison entomologist Susan Paskewitz has researched ticks since the early 1990s. Paskewitz measures tick density out in the field. She says ticks are ten times higher than she's used to seeing.

Wis. mine opponents allowed to stay, for now

HURLEY, Wis. (AP) ~ A group opposed to a northwestern Wisconsin iron ore mine will be allowed to continue camping on Iron County forest land, for now.

The Iron County Board decided to postpone action on the camp at Tuesday night's meeting.

Instead, The Daily Press reports the board sent the issue back to its forestry committee.

The camp organized by the Lac du Flambeau Band of Lake Superior Chippewa has occupied a site near the proposed mine since mid-May. It has become a meeting place for those opposed to Gogebic Taconite's mining plans.

County forestry administrator Joe Vairus says the encampment has grown to 20 to 25 wigwams and has become a squatters village. Vairus says the camp is violating county ordinances by occupying without a permit.

Changing Spaces: Oneida Art for Design

Contest Results Announced

Special to Kalihwisaks

The Oneida Nation Arts Board, (ONAB) assisted with acquiring art pieces from Oneida tribal members and their families to be displayed in tribal buildings. The Anna John Community Care Center (AJCCC) committee looked to the ONAB for assistance with locating tribal artwork for the new buildings.

In May, ONAB launched the "Changing Spaces: Oneida Art for Design," contest through the Oneida Nation Arts Program. The mission of the ONAP is to "promote the diverse artistic expression within the community that reflects our heritage and spirit for future generations."

The art contest called for a wide variety of art pieces from: traditional to contemporary, fine arts or crafts, children's art to professional art. These works of art are for the new AJCCC, in Oneida, WI and the SEOTS Building in Milwaukee.

Beth Bashara, director ONAP, said selection was difficult. Three paintings from the Professional Category and three children's art from the Community Art category were chosen.

The professional artwork selected in the final round include "Arise," by Karla Sunn; "Symbols of 4 Seasons," by Amelia Cornelius and "Women's Dance," by LeAnne Thompson.

The children's artwork selected in the final round include: "Maple Camp," water color by Jossalyn Metoxen, "Three Clans," clay sculpture by Krysta Cornelius, and "Fruit Bowl," oil painting by Eajah Danforth.

"On behalf of the Oneida Nation Arts Board, thank you for your submission to Changing Spaces art contest. We were very impressed with the number and quality of entries. We enjoyed seeing the talent and creativity in Oneida," said Kelly Skenandore, ONAB Chair.

Real Property Law Classes starts Sept. 5

What: Real Property Law Classes
Where:
Division of Land Management Office, 470 Airport Drive Oneida, WI 54155
When: Thursday Afternoons, beginning September 5, 2013
Cost: Free and Open to the Public – Test is available for non-DOLM employees for $50.00 Tribal employees may be paid for dependent on the program area
Contact:
Cindy Lecker at (920) 869-1690 ext. 1800*. Registration forms are available at Land Management front desk. 8:00 a.m.-4:30 p.m.*

The instructors are Attorney Rebecca Webster and Acquisition Manager Mary Jo Nash. The classes started in 1996 to train all of the Land Management staff on the basics of tribal law. After the first course, staff from other tribal programs and boards found the discussion and information helpful in their positions. Participants have attended from the community including Casino, Appeals, Commission, Compliance Division, Business Development Unit, Tribal School, Land Commission, GLIS, Environmental Department and Personnel Department. So far, 106 attendees have received a Land Commission Certificate for completing this annual course.

The class size is small in order to facilitate discussions. A limit of 12-15 participants is usually accepted. The discussions focus on various federal eras of Indian policy and law, and how the Oneida Tribe was specifically impacted. In addition to lectures, lively sharing of information is generally received from the participants as the class moves through the traditional early years of the government, the Allotment Era, Indian Reorganization Era, and the present Self-Determination Era.

The class focuses on tribal laws and authority of different branches of the Oneida government, with an emphasis on Oneida tribal land transactions. Invited speakers from tribal programs such as the Appeals Commission, Environmental Department, and Tribal History enhance the discussion of how the Tribe as a whole carries on its business.

A tour is given of selected reservation properties, and then continues with an in-depth discussion of how and why properties are purchased within the Oneida Reservation boundaries. The overlap between tribal law and state law is evident in the area of acquiring land. This area is also where there are frequent jurisdictional and political disputes between the Oneida Tribe and surrounding state governments.

We invite you to join us on Thursday, September 5, 2013, 1:15-4:15 pm at the Division of Land Management Conference Room for our first class. September is right around the corner! We reserve the right to reschedule if we do not have ten participants signed up.

 Application deadline is Friday, August 30, 2013

CURRENT ISSUES

To Diminish the Power of General Tribal Council (GTC). It is no secret that prior to the John Powless Petition to provide a $100 stipend as an incentive to attend GTC meetings, the institution of GTC was becoming an ineffective institution. Too many GTC meetings were canceled due to the lack of a quorum. In my view, the John Powless petition returned the power of this tribe back to the people and removed it from the hands of a very few who had controlled the GTC for nearly thirty years. Without an effective GTC able to carry out its' constitutional responsibilities, the Oneida Tribe is not able to function as intended by our ancestors who adopted our Constitution in 1936. Currently, the payment of stipends to GTC members for attending meetings is being challenged by many. The number of elected leaders who work to diminish the power of the GTC is troubling because before the 2007 John Powless petition, a few, less than 100, made the decisions and laws for this tribe. Recent OBC minutes show another attempt to reduce the power of the GTC by continuing to bring the issue of reducing stipends to the GTC agenda. Each elected leader, board members, are given stipends for their work, and the work of the GTC is the highest authority. I do not support decreasing in any manner the $100 stipends because I feel that it would diminish the ability of GTC to do its work. GTC attends, listens, participates, and exercises its power as the Supreme Governing Body. At GTC meetings, there are over 2000 tribal members voting, and each tribal member's vote is significant to the governing of this tribe. Having 2000 Oneidas making the decisions for the Oneida Tribe is not only good governance, but also, protects our members and our resources by making more responsible decisions than 9 members could possibly make.

Case in point: In May of this year, the GTC said "No" to a Waste to Energy plant on the Reservation. Hopefully, further costs on that project will be stopped and if they truly are stopped because of GTC's actions, I believe that the GTC will have paid for itself in Tribal savings to cover GTC meetings for the next 20 years, just from that one meeting.

I caution GTC about approving any initiative which might diminish its effectiveness.

MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE

Removal From Office. As a people, the Oneida have been together since the beginning of time. We weathered the arrival of the European settlers; we survived and endured the removal from our homelands by a country that our warriors fought and died for to help create. We survived based on who we are as Oneida people. We prepared for the future by always considering the next generations; and we protected and honored our commitment to our children, our elders, and the integrity of our identity as Oneidas - there was, and is today, no greater responsibility. These are the customs and traditions of the Oneida.

The petition submitted for my removal from Office as Chairman appears to be based upon a foreign and unreasonable concept:

(1) That it is a bad thing and a removable offense for a leader to stand up and accept the responsibility to serve and protect the health and safety of Oneida elders and children;
(2) That it is wrong to support efforts to enhance community health through ceremonies;
(3) That it is somehow against the law for a leader to encourage that construction initiatives be more fiscally responsible.
(4) And finally, that after being assigned the task of negotiating a contract with a particular vendor, that it is somehow improper and a removable offense to communicate with that vendor regarding the Tribe's counter offer.

Currently, an injunction has been filed with the Appeals Commission on the issue of the fact that the first signers of the Petition for Removal signed on June 6, 2013, and the last signers were on August 2, 2013. The removal petition states that the Petition must be handed into the Secretary's office within 30 days of the collection of the first signatures.

The removal petition was handed into the Secretary's office on August 2, 2013, approximately 60 days after the first signatures on June 6, 2013, Therefore the position of the injunction in following the removal law is that the petition is null and void.)

As Chairman, I support our proud history as Oneida people and I believe that Indian leaders must stand up and accept responsibility for the continuance of the Oneida customs and traditions…the protection of our people and our resources. To do otherwise would be negligent and weird, and not me.

As a candidate for Chairman, I ran on a platform of supporting the GTC (FOR THE PEOPLE) and that means all the people of the Oneida Tribe. My campaign centered around supporting the GTC and all the tribal members, stopping bad investments that benefitted only a few Oneidas, addressing wasteful and overspending, and addressing corruption using the laws the people have in place to protect their tribe and their resources.

I followed the tradition of our people and tried to help a sick elder (in the end the elder paid for himself, not the tribe), supported community sweats needing hard wood, and demanded a fair and financially prudent process for the SEOTS building as directed by the GTC resolution. As a Candidate for Chairman, and as your Chair, let me assure you that I will continue to protect the Oneida people, all the people, and protect the resources for the people.

Thursday August 15, 2013

Purpose: Land Access Designation for Natural Areas

The Environmental Resource Board (ERB) is identified in the Public Use of Lands and Trespass Law as the body to determine the designations for Tribal Land.

The purpose of this hearing is to identify the proper land access designations for Oneida Natural Area lands for different land uses. Land Access shall be created which designates these Natural Areas as one of the following: Limited Access, Oneida Community Access, Oneida Tribal Member Access, or Open Access. The ERB together with the EH&SD shall, after holding a public hearing and reviewing any comments received, make written findings of fact and determine the designations towards the creation of a Land Access map.

I. Testimony:

A. Oral: There will be a 5 minute limit for all oral presentations. Each participant is encouraged to provide a written transcript of his/her oral testimony, to be submitted while present at the public hearing or within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to the below named individuals.

B. Written: For those who cannot attend the scheduled public hearing or do not plan to speak at the hearing, the Oneida Environmental Resource Board encourages those to submit written testimony. A maximum of five (5) pages, doubled spaced, can be submitted within ten (10) business days from the date of public hearing to Eugene Schubert, Policy Analyst, eschuber@oneidanation.org at Environmental Resource Board, 3759 W. Mason St, Ridgeview Plaza Suite #6, Oneida, WI 54155

* If you would like to obtain a copy of the Natural Areas under discussion, the land access designations under the Public Use of Lands &Trespass Law, or have any questions as to the public hearing process you may contact Eugene Schubert at ERB, via email at: eschuber@oneidanation.org or call (920) 496-5362.

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Abstained: Tina Danforth, Patty Hoeft

3. Tourism: Procedural exception to allow nine staff travel to Indian Summerfest, Sept. 6-8, 2013, Milwaukee, WI

Sponsor: Joanie Buckley

Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve the travel request for a procedural exception to allow nine staff travel to Indian Summerfest, Sept. 6-8, 2013, Milwaukee, WI, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried with one abstention:

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Abstained: David Jordan

4. Gaming: Procedural exception to allow five gaming participants to attend 2013 Global Gaming Tradeshow, Sept. 24-26, 2013, Las Vegas, NV

Sponsor: Louise Cornelius

Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve five travelers to attend and the Gaming General Manager can decide who those five travelers are, hoping that the Councilman's concerns are taken into account, seconded by Brandon Stevens. Motion carried unanimously.

5. Cultural Heritage: Procedural exception to allow 14 employees to travel to Great Law Recital, Aug. 13-19, 2013, Oneida, CA

Sponsor: Don White

Motion by Paul Ninham to approve the travel request for a procedural exception to allow 14 employees to travel to Great Law Recital, Aug. 13-19, 2013, Oneida, CA, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried with one abstention and one opposed:

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Opposed: David Jordan

Abstained: Tina Danforth

For the record: David Jordan stated I support the initiative, I am opposing just because the procedural exception is over the top, with having all those vehicles going and getting paid mileage. I just think we need to start realizing that we have to start being more efficient by carpooling would benefit future travel.

For the record: Tina Danforth stated I'm abstaining because I support the event and I tried to make accommodations to do that but there's too many inconsistencies in this particular proposal, so that's why I'm abstaining and liability still is a question that hasn't been addressed. Thank you, good luck and have a safe trip.

Amendment to the main motion by Tina Danforth to provide three tribal vehicles for the 13 staff people to participate in the Great Law event, seconded by David Jordan. Amendment to the main motion failed with four opposed:

Ayes: Tina Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, David Jordan

Opposed: Melinda J. Danforth, Patty Hoeft, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Summary of the Proposal

The Amendments were requested by the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee and Higher Education after the Area Manager for Education and Training overturned a decision by the Higher Education Manager to deny trust scholarship funds to an applicant. The Area Manger of Education and Training overturned the denial of trust scholarship funds due to ambiguities in the Policy's appeals process. These proposed amendments seek to clarify the appeals process by:

- Requiring the Higher Education Manager to handle initial appeals. The current Policy requires the applicant to file an appeal with the Department Director, however that position was changed to the Higher Education Manager position.
- Requiring the Area Manager for Education and Training, instead of the Trust/Enrollment Committee, hear appeals from the Higher Education Manager's decision.
- Extending some time frames from calendar days to working days. The current Policy requires an applicant to appeal to the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee within ten calendar days; however, the proposed amendments require an applicant to appeal to the Area Manager for Education and Training within ten working days

The Public Meeting materials, including the draft proposal, legislative analysis and any other relevant documents, will be made available at the Public Meeting, or can be obtained in advance through the Legislative Reference Office. The Public Meeting materials are also available on the Tribal Website at:

LOC Update

Transition Timeline: 2013-2015

On January 7, 2013, the GTC approved dissolving the current Oneida Tribal Court system and replacing it with a new Tribal Judiciary. These changes expand the scope of the Tribal court system, and many new requirements have been added to safeguard the integrity of the system.

Not all of the changes are immediate. The next few years will be full of transition, as the current Appeals Commission winds down and the Judiciary is established.

In addition to adopting the new Judiciary, the GTC directed that a separate Family Court be created—this will be a part of the Judiciary once the Judiciary is up and running, but the Family Court will be opening much sooner than the rest of the Judiciary.

Family law matters (i.e. , paternity, child support, child custody and visitation, and divorce cases) will be transferred to the new Family Court beginning in September of 2013, so that the new Family Court Judge can begin hearing cases as of October 1, 2013.

All other types of cases (the non-family law cases) will remain with the Appeals Commission until the new Judiciary opens its doors. During the transition, all of the Appeals Commission's remaining cases must be completed, transferred to the Judiciary, or dismissed so that the parties can refile in the appropriate court if necessary.

The OBC and the Appeals Commission are working together—and working hard— to make sure that there will be no disruption to any active cases during this process.

The next few years will require a lot of effort to make sure that everything goes smoothly, but in the end, the Tribal court system will be stronger, more efficient and capable, and a better reflection of our status as a sovereign and independent nation.

Judiciary (including Family Court)

JUNE 2015

General Phases

Now—August 2013
The OBC screens candidates and hires a Family Court Judge.
The Oneida Appeals Commission prepares to transfer all family law cases (i.e. child support, child custody, divorce, paternity, etc.) over to the new Family Court.

August 2013—December 2013
Procedural rules for the Judiciary (i.e. civil procedure, evidence, etc.) are created and adopted. The LOC also works on amending existing Tribal laws—all references to the Appeals Commission have to be changed to reflect the Judiciary as the Tribal Court system.

August 2014—October 2014
Newly-elected judges complete mandatory training before the Judiciary opens.

November 2014—February 2015
The Appeals Commission begins the final process of winding down, and works to transfer or complete all remaining cases on the dockets. Any cases that have not been transferred or completed by the end of this period will be dismissed and may be re-filed with the Judiciary.

Specific Dates

January 7, 2013
GTC approved the Judiciary and directed that a new Family Court be created.

May 8, 2013
Family Court Law was adopted.

June 12, 2013
Judicial Canons of Ethics were adopted. These will guide the ethical conduct of the new judges.

September 1, 2013
The new Family Court Judge begins work—the Appeals Commission begins to transfer family law cases to the Family Court.

October 1, 2013
The Family Court begins hearing cases.

Election Day, July 2014
The remaining Judges of the Judiciary (not Family Court judges) are elected during the 2014 General Elections.

OBC Inauguration Day, 2014
Newly-elected judges are sworn in.

November 1, 2014
The Appeals Commission stops accepting cases and the Judiciary begins accepting cases.

March 1, 2015
The Appeals Commission is formally dissolved and the APA/APA addendum are repealed, as a new chapter in Oneida history begins.

6 plead guilty in bribery linked to Choctaw casino

By Justin Juozapavicius
Associated Press

TULSA, Okla. - Six people linked to the construction of a Choctaw Nation casino pleaded guilty to bribery charges, federal prosecutors announced Monday.

Five of the six people; Lauri Parsons, her husband Brent Parsons, Cordell Bugg, James Stewart, and Mark Eshenroder owned or worked for companies that performed work or sold materials for the construction of the Durant casino, the U.S. attorney's office for the eastern district of Oklahoma said. The other person, Allen Franklin, was a project manager for the tribe.

All six were charged with conspiracy to commit theft or bribery of programs that receive federal funds, which is punishable by up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine. In addition, Brent Parsons was charged with conspiracy to commit money laundering and Stewart was charged with money laundering. Each of those counts is punishable by up to 10 years behind bars.

According to prosecutors, the Parsons owned Builders Steel, a Tulsa company that sold steel to the tribe, and Stewart worked for the company. Bugg and Eshenroder worked for Flintco, a Tulsa-based construction management company hired by the tribe.

The Choctaw Nation said in a statement Monday that a routine audit relating to the casino project found discrepancies from the purchase of steel from Builders Steel, and eventually revealed the tribe had been overcharged for those purchases. The tribe said the matter was turned over to federal investigators.

Flintco issued a statement Monday saying it regretted the harm caused to the Choctaws and disclosed that a third, unnamed former employee, was under investigation. It didn't name the former worker, but said it was cooperating with the investigation.

``Our company recognizes the Choctaw Nation was adversely impacted by the actions of Builders Steel, who influenced former Flintco employees and others to commit certain wrongdoings," the statement said. ``Flintco sincerely regrets this isolated incident and the negative impact it has had on the Choctaw Nation.

``We highly value our relationship with the Choctaw Nation and our company's Native American heritage. We will continue to cooperate with the government and the Choctaw Nation in any further investigation of persons involved."

The indictments and federal officials laid out Monday specifically how the building firms and other subcontractors tried to defraud the tribe:

- Lauri and Brent Parsons agreed to provide more than $5,000 in trips, vehicles, firearms, furniture, tuition, mortgage payments and other gifts to employees of the Choctaw Nation and Flintco, among other items. The company used the influence ``to obtain bidding preference, higher prices and huge cash advances for services and materials not delivered," according to the government.
- Lauri and Brent Parsons and Stewart agreed to submit $345,000 in false invoices to the Choctaw Nation from Scott Rice _ an office furniture company that Stewart worked for before he joined Builders Steel.áThe illegal proceeds were used to make a $25,000 deposit on an African safari and purchase firearms, furniture, and additional gifts.á
- Brent Parsons submitted a false invoice from the Worth Group to the tribe. The Worth Group was the architectural firm that designed many of the Choctaw Nation's casinos.áThe illegal proceeds were used to pay for $160,000 of trophy game killed by Brent Parsons at the Heartland Wildlife Ranch in Missouri.á
- Eshenroder agreed to provide more than $5,000 in building materials to remodel Franklin's kitchen, in order to influence business with the Choctaw Nation.

South Dakota cited in federal election complaint

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) - An organization that asked state officials in South Dakota to approve satellite absentee voting offices on three American Indian reservations has now filed a complaint with the federal Justice Department's civil rights division.

The Argus Leader reports that Four Directions filed the complaint after Secretary of State Jason Gant and the Board of Elections declined to establish early voting offices in Fort Thompson, Eagle Butte and Wanblee.

The advocacy group for Native American voting rights contends residents in the predominantly Native American communities don't have an equal opportunity to vote or register to vote when compared to residents in other parts of the state.

Gant says he's trying to get clarification on whether the state can use federal money to set up the satellite voting offices.

Native American sculptures get OK in Rapid City

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) - The Rapid City Council has unanimously approved a Native American sculpture garden in the city's downtown despite safety and access concerns.

The sculpture garden in Halley Park proposed by the nonprofit First Nations Sculpture Garden Corp. will feature bronze statues of four prominent 20th century American Indians: Charles Eastman, a physician who witnessed the Wounded Knee massacre; Black Elk, an Oglala holy man who was born and raised at Pine Ridge; artist Oscar Howe; and author Vine Deloria Jr.

The garden will be flanked by two of the city's busiest roadways, raising concerns about traffic safety and available parking. The city's Parks and Recreation Advisory Board in July narrowly rejected the plan, urging First Nations to work with city staff to find a more suitable location. First Nations officials maintained the park likely will not draw heavy foot traffic, and the city's Public Works Committee last week narrowly recommended approval.

``This project is not meant to be obtrusive," project coordinator Elizabeth Cook-Lynn said. ``It's an art-history project. It has nothing to do with politics. It has nothing to do with religion. We don't want to dig up old animosities. Very simply, it's an educational contemplative garden. It will remind us of our indigenous past."

The leaders selected for statues represent a cross-section of influential Native American leaders, which moves away from depictions of American Indians as strictly warriors or other stereotypes, according to First Nations.

Artstreet volunteers needed

GREEN BAY, WI – Artstreet is seeking volunteers to help celebrate 32 years in downtown Green Bay, August 23, 24, and 25, 2013. The time and energy that volunteers dedicate to the event helps to make it a great success year after year.

Volunteers are asked to work at least one (1) four-hour shift in event set-up, food and beverage operations, children's activities, artist relief and souvenir sales. Individuals that sign up to be a volunteer will receive a free Artstreet t-shirt.

Artstreet is a project of Mosaic Arts, Inc., a nonprofit organization that produces and presents cultural events of all disciplines; engages in marketing and promotional activities that create greater awareness and visibility to artists and arts organizations; and provides grants to individuals and organizations for community arts programming.

Artstreet is a designated project approved by the Green Bay Public Schools for service learning.

To sign up to become a volunteer individuals are asked to contact Mosaic Arts at: (920) 435-5220 or intern@mosaicartsinc.org.

Petition calling for removal of Chairman Delgado clears first hurdle

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

The General Tribal Council (GTC) is one step closer to taking a vote on a petition calling for the removal of Oneida Tribal Chairman Ed Delgado.

On Wednesday, August 21 the Oneida Appeals Commission ruled Brian Doxtator's petition contained sufficient evidence to move forward to a trial hearing.

The trial hearing is scheduled for September 5 and 6 and will allow for witnesses and presentation of evidence with the burden of proof falling on Doxtator to provide clear and convincing evidence that grounds for removal are present.

Doxtator plans on calling 11 witnesses, while Chairman Delgado's attorney Eric Wimberger notified the court they plan on calling four or five of their own witnesses.

Doxtator's petition calling for the removal of Chairman Ed Delgado was turned in to the Tribal Secretary's office on Friday, August 2 with 623 signatures, 101 over the legal amount needed per the Oneida Tribe's current Removal Law.

Doxtator along with 20 others who supported his petition process claim Delgado ignored General Tribal Council (GTC) directives, tribal policies and procedures, and the broke the tribe's Code of Ethics law.

Chairman Delgado questioned the actual timeline Doxtator used to collect the signatures. Dates on the petition show signatures with dates of June 6, which would fall outside of the 30-day period allowed to collect signatures.

Doxtator argued the date was an error of the individuals who signed and provided sworn affidavits from seven of the eight individuals saying that was indeed the case.

The Oneida Appeals Commission agreed with Doxtator stating he proved with evidence that he indeed followed the 30-day guideline.

The Oneida Appeals Commission will have until September 10 to deliver the trial hearing decision and if the removal petition will be forwarded to the GTC for a vote.

Fatal shooting outside bar in Oneida

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks
tcottrel@oneidanation.org

What started as a typical Friday night at the bars located in downtown Oneida ended in tragedy. An early morning bar fight escalated into the shooting death of a young Oneida man.

"On August 10, 2013, at 1:57 am, the Oneida Police Department and the Outagamie County Sheriff's Department responded to W140 W. Service Road, Oneida for a report of gunshots and a male lying on the ground," said Oneida Police Chief Richard Van Boxtel during a press conference.

Upon arrival at the address, identified as Benderz Bar in Oneida, responders found a 24-year-old male who had been shot. The victim was identified as Kamewan Salzman, who was immediately transported to St. Vincent Hospital in Green Bay where he passed away due to his injuries.

"18-year-old Alejandro Silva was quickly identified as the suspect, was arrested, and booked into the Outagamie County Jail for First Degree Intentional Homicide," Van Boxtel stated.

In addition to the arrest of Silva, 17-year-old Benjamin Evans, was also arrested and charged with aiding a felon and possession of a firearm.

Benjamin Evans (left) was charged with aiding a felon and possession of a firearm. Alejandro Silva (right) was charged with first-degree intentional homicide.

Veterans cut ribbon on new outpatient center

Oneida, Menominee and Stockbridge-Munsee veterans were on hand as the color guard for the ribbon cutting for the new Milo C. Huempfner Green Bay Regional Outpatient Center on Thursday, August 15.

The new Veterans Health Administration (VA) clinic is 162,000 square feet and will serve 20,000 area veterans. Green Bay Mayor Jim Schmitt stated the new facility created 200 new jobs and is developing VA housing near the clinic.

"Today we gather to open this magnificent building which is a promise kept to veterans who call this community home. Here you will find the care and compassion you seek right here in Title Town, USA," said Schmitt at the ribbon cutting.

According to Robert A. Petzel MD Under Secretary for Health in the Department of Veterans Affairs, the Green Bay VA clinic will offer patient driven primary care, mental health care, enhanced specialty care, outpatient surgery, and advanced diagnostics.

"The veterans we're going to care for in this facility served in our country with dignity and honor. In return, our VA staff members here are going to be working day in and day out to serve them with dignity and honor in their time of need," he said.

Oneida veteran Cletus Ninham said he appreciated the services offered by the Milwaukee area VA clinic, but he will be happy to avoid the 125 mile drive.

"It will be less time consuming for them, especially with veterans in pain," said Ninham.

George Greendeer concurred that the east Green Bay location will be more convenient for area veterans.

"For the major things we went to Milwaukee, but all the little minor things like eyeglasses, hearing aids, it was hard to get them done and get them adjusted, but this will take care of daily needs a lot better ," said Greendeer.

The Milo C. Huempfner Clinic is located at 141 Seigler Street on the east side of Green Bay. It was named for Brown County veteran Milo C. Huempfner who received the Distinguished Service Cross for his service in the US Army during World War II.

DOLM annual open house

Kali photos/Travis Cottrell

The Oneida Department of Land Management (DOLM) hosted its annual Open House on Thursday, August 15th. The open house offers the community the chance to tour the department and experience what they have to offer. The event also offered some fun with games, raffles, and food.

From 1A/Shooting

The criminal complaint states that Salzman and Silva got into an altercation as they were leaving Benderz Bar.

According to witnesses Silva allegedly took the weapon from Evans and fired four shots at Salzman. After the shooting Silva allegedly gave the gun back to Evans so that he may hide the firearm.

Silva and Evans appeared in Outagamie County Court separately at their initial hearings.

Silva's bond was set at $200,000 and Evan's was set at $25,000.

Both suspects have prior criminal records. Silva was the victim of an April 6th shooting in Oneida's Site I neighborhood. Silva will appear in court on September 16th for his preliminary hearing.

Skenandore, Matthew Snow
August 5, 1959 – August 13, 2013

Matthew Snow Skenandore, put down his paintbrushes and pens to experience and create beauty in a better place, on August 13, 2013, at the Bailey-Boushay House in Seattle, WA, aged 54 years. He was comforted and cared for by his older brother at the time of passing.

Matthew was born in Provo, Utah on August 5, 1959 to Marvin Eli Skenandore and Jaron Val (Anderson) Skenandore. Matthew was raised in Brigham City, UT, later travelled the United States in his early years with his family, finally settling in Kirkland, WA in 1974. He spent his formative years developing his aptitude for art, and received instruction at various colleges in the area. As his artistic scope and vision increased, along with his artistic ability, he became muse and mentor to many, and was very prolific, producing many works of art in oil, pencil, pen, encaustic, vacu-form, found objects and any item or method that would help in his effort to express his brilliant mind. He was married to Kimera Eicholz in 1985-2003, and they had a son, Maxx Skenandore.

Matthew loved exploring theologies, mathematics, and astronomy, and sharing those treasures with those who knew him. He was proud of his Native American heritage. He also was a prolific reader, and loved to garden. Matthew was the epitome of a great listener and championed the underdog, and was friend to the friendless. Most notably he was famous for his quick wit. But overshadowing all this was his love for his son.

Matthew is preceded in death by his Father Marvin Eli Skenandore, and his Mother Jaron Val (Anderson) Skenandore, and his eldest sister Barbara Sue Tabak,. He is survived by his son Maxx Skenandore, Washington; and remaining 9 siblings, Julie Skenandore, North Carolina; Jenny Diez, North Carolina; Stephanie Heaton, Washington; Peter Skenandore, Idaho; Samuel Skenandore, Washington; Sara Lybbert, Arizona; Stacey Olsen, Idaho; Jed Skenandore, Washington.

A memorial will be held on Saturday August 24, 2013 11AM at the Downtown Kirkland, WA Marina Pavilion, for family and close friends.

Blood, Nation, and Citizenship in the 21st Century

By Oneida Trust & Enrollment Committee

Article 6 of 8

As Oneida people, we must remember we are not just racial minorities; we are also citizens of a separate nation. The fact that we have a sovereign right to self-government is what makes us different from any other racial or ethnic group in the United States. Even the U.S. Constitution describes Indian tribes as separate governments. The Constitution's Commerce Clause states that Congress has the right "To regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several states, and with the Indian tribes." As a sovereign nation, we have the power to determine who can be citizens of the Oneida Nation, and it does not necessarily have to be based upon race and the amount of Oneida blood that someone has.

Since time immemorial, membership within the Oneida Nation had nothing to do with blood DNA. For instance, when we lived alongside the Stockbridge-Munsee people in New York, there was much intermarriage between our tribes. We also mixed with people from other Haudenosaunee (Iroquois) tribes. Beginning in 1936, however, we began to base Oneida Nation citizenship upon blood quantum. Many other tribes also adopted blood quantum requirements during the 1930s. Today, more and more Oneidas are of mixed race and no longer meet the minimum ¼ blood requirement. Soon, few may meet that threshold. The United States, as a whole, is becoming much more multi-racial as well. Now is an important time to consider whether or not blood should remain the only factor that qualifies one for Oneida citizenship. Multiple routes to citizenship would be more inclusive.

What exactly does it mean to be an Oneida Nation citizen in the 21st century? Is it about looking like a "real Indian"? Many people don't, including some tribal members who exceed the minimum blood requirement. Is it about being from the reservation? Many of our tribal members live off the reservation, and some in distant parts of the country. Is it about being knowledgeable of our traditional ways? Large numbers of Oneidas are strictly Christian. Some Native scholars have argued that "peoplehood" is based upon shared bonds through territory, language, sacred history, and ceremony. Must one have ¼ Oneida blood to be part of those social bonds? After all, don't we all know someone (perhaps the spouse of a tribal member) who is a recognizable member of our community, yet is not an enrolled citizen because they lack Oneida blood? Should we allow non-members, regardless of their race, to apply for citizenship just as the United States does? We dedicate much time to discussing what our rights are as tribal citizens, but what are the responsibilities of Oneida citizenship?

These and other difficult questions need to be asked so we can initiate the gradual process of building an agreement. The blood quantum requirement has become so familiar to us that it can be hard to imagine how tribal membership could be determined without it. What we all must keep in mind, however, is that the blood quantum system is a relative newcomer in our community. Perhaps we will decide as a nation to keep some form of it, but we ought to enter into that discussion realizing that race and citizenship status need not be one and the same, and that we can think outside the blood quantum box, if we so choose.

This series of articles is designed to inform Oneida citizens about Tribal enrollment issues. The goal of these articles is to generate community conversations leading up to and beyond the Sept 7th Sustain Oneida Summit which will explore potential solutions for citizenship and belonging.

Background on Business

Youth learn Business, Nutrition in Pilot Program

From doing classroom work in the morning to picking berries in the afternoon, 10 youths learned the basics of running a business as part of the Oneida Youth Food System Entrepreneur Project.

The eight week pilot program took a hands-on approach teaching the students how to use business software, do marketing, cost analysis and web design at the Oneida Community Education Center. But rather than market a theoretical product, the teens developed a trail mix named Fruity Booty – A Treasure in Every Bag.

Jamie Betters of the Oneida Cannery helped the youths gather and process the strawberries and raspberries that were used in the mix.

"(They were) doing the labor and the grunt work and then being able to hustle and sell it," said Betters.

Youth Entrepreneur Asia Danforth enjoyed creating Fruity Booty as well as selling it at the Oneida Farmers' Market.

"It surprised me (was) how many people wanted to buy our trail mix. I didn't think we would start out as good, but we started out amazing right away," said Danforth.

The program also emphasized nutrition as part of its mission, as well as the cultural aspects of indigenous foods. Youth Entrepreneur Natasha Stevens enjoyed the herb walk led by Oneida elder Carol Elm.

"She pointed out plants like lemon balm and raspberry leaves that we can make tea out of. We learned a lot about the plants, how to operate a business," said Stevens.

Betters hopes the teens will use what they learned to improve their own diets as well as be advocates for better eating for their friends and families.

"For them to be able to really understand about where food comes from, and that food is medicine, I think is really key to them developing healthy eating habits," said Betters.

The program was made possible through a grant from the First Nations Development Fund and W.K. Kellogg Foundation.

First Nations Oweesta Corporation

Wigamig Owners Loan Fund, Inc. is recipient of $110,000 loan

Special to Kalihwisaks

The Wigamig Owners Loan Fund, Inc. has recently engaged in a loan through Oweesta. First Nations Oweesta Corporation supports economic growth in Native American communities through the creation, development and capitalization of Community Development Financial Institutions. Native community development financial institutions directly provide Native American communities the tools and capital support required for real and sustainable job creation, small business development, commercial real estate development, affordable housing/home ownership while also offering basic banking services and financial literacy training to "under banked" Native American communities who have been historically targeted by predatory lending practices. First Nations Oweesta Corporation understands how crucial investment capital is to a Native community development financial institution; therefore investing in Wigamig is a priority. Oweesta makes every effort to provide loans to qualifying organizations, enabling them to reinvest the capital back into their communities or to use as leverage to attract other capital.

A certified Community Development Financial Institution (CDFI) is a specialized financial institution that works in market niches that are underserved by traditional financial institutions. CDFIs provide a unique range of financial products and services in economically distressed target markets, such as mortgage financing for low-income and first-time homebuyers and not-for-profit developers, flexible underwriting and risk capital for needed community facilities, and technical assistance, commercial loans and investments to small start-up or expanding businesses in low-income areas. CDFIs include regulated institutions such as community development banks and credit unions, and non-regulated institutions such as loan and venture capital funds.

Wigamig is excited for this partnership with Oweesta and will continue to assist families in the battle against poverty within Native communities. This loan will have a significant impact for the people of Wisconsin Indian Reservations since Wigamig is expanding their services to reach all eleven Indian Tribes in the state of Wisconsin. By providing financial education along with affordable lending products, Wigamig is strengthening tribal members and their families by building capacity for economic self sufficiency. With the use of these funds from Oweesta, Wigamig has already closed on one down-payment assistance loan and one debt consolidation loan for 2 Oneida Tribal member families.

Wigamig Owners Loan Fund, Inc. is a non-profit 501 (c)(3) Certified CDFI (Community Development Financial Institution) with headquarters located in downtown Lac du Flambeau. The mission of Wigamig is to increase the financial self-sufficiency of Wisconsin Native American Communities. For more information, contact Fern Orie, Wigamig Owners Loan Fund, Inc., Executive Director at 715-588-1600 or fern.orie@wigamig.org

Finance Tips for New College Students

By Dianne Zubella
Bay Bank

With college move-in days right around the corner, students living away from home for the first time may need to brush up on some financial dos and don'ts as they prepare for the college experience. Here are some basic reminders on how to avoid financial pitfalls during the transition from high school to college.

Understand how your credit card works.

The average credit card debt for consumers between the ages of 18 and 24 is $2,000. Nearly 90 percent of student cardholders carry a balance from month to month, and fewer than 10 percent know their card's interest rate or what the fees are for going over their limit or making late payments. Having a credit card during college is a great way to have easy access to cash for emergencies and to begin building up a credit history, which is very important for obtaining a mortgage or car loan.

However, students should make sure to read the fine print when they apply for a credit card. Knowing how much you'll need to pay and when is critical to avoiding the slippery slope of making minimum payments. Always make the monthly payment on time and try to avoid keeping a balance on the card from month to month. One way to ensure you can pay off the full balance is to treat the credit card like it's a check or debit card; only spend the money if you already have it in your account.

Protect yourself against fraud.

According to a recent study it takes young adults nearly twice as long to detect fraud when compared to other age groups and they are also more likely to fall victim to fraud and identify theft by people they know. College dorm rooms are easily accessed by other students, who may take advantage of any credit cards or sensitive financial documents left lying around. Consider investing in a safe or forwarding important mail to your parents' home.

One convenient way for college students to monitor their accounts, which are often at a financial institution in a different city from where they're attending school, is to use online bank statements and mobile banking alerts. Most banks today offer online or emailed account statements, which should be reviewed monthly for suspicious activity. Some banks also offer mobile alerts. If you sign up for this service, you'll receive text or email alerts when your account balance reaches a certain limit or unusually large purchases are made. This type of service allows for nearly real-time monitoring of your accounts.

Look for discounts.

Finally, take advantage of your status as a student! Many restaurants and retail stores offer student discounts, so always ask. Most college and university campuses also offer free or inexpensive entertainment options, too. Look around and see what you can find to keep your monthly expenses down.

Make sure children are on schedule with vaccinations

August is National Immunization Awareness Month

MADISON - It's back-to-school time, and state health officials are encouraging parents to make immunization appointments for their children before the school year starts.

"A healthy school year begins with children who are up-to-date on their immunizations," said Dr. Henry Anderson, State Health Officer. "Vaccines are among the safest and most cost-effective ways to prevent disease. They not only protect vaccinated kids, but they also help protect entire communities, including our elderly neighbors and relatives -- who can be more vulnerable -- by preventing and reducing the spread of infectious diseases."

Families with health insurance will need to schedule these appointments with their health care provider. State-supplied vaccines are available at local health departments through the Vaccines for Children (VFC) program for families whose children are not covered by insurance, are on Medical Assistance or are American Indian or Alaska Native. Parents should contact their insurance company if they are uncertain whether their insurance covers vaccinations.

State requirements and recommendations apply to children in kindergarten through high school, and vary by grade. For students in kindergarten through grade 5 (elementary school), required vaccines include:

DTaP/DT/Td, to prevent diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis (also known as whooping cough).

- Polio vaccine.
- Measles, mumps and rubella vaccine (MMR).
- Hepatitis B vaccine.
- Varicella vaccine, to prevent chickenpox.

For middle and high school students, an additional dose of varicella vaccine and a dose of Tdap vaccine are required. Tdap vaccine protects adolescents and adults against tetanus, diphtheria and pertussis. Wisconsin teen vaccination rates for the varicella and Tdap vaccines are well above the national average, according to a recent National Immunization Survey. Also recommended for adolescents are the HPV vaccine, to help prevent various cancers, and the meningococcal conjugate vaccine, to prevent meningitis.

Vaccinations recommended for college students include Tdap, meningococcal conjugate and HPV vaccines. Meningococcal conjugate vaccine is particularly important for students who live in dormitories.

The Community Health Department of the Oneida Community Health Center offers Immunization Clinics by appointment only. For more information, please contact the Oneida Community Health Department at (920) 869-4840 to verify eligibility and schedule an appointment.

Kick-Start your future, earn a GED

A GED can be the first step to your dreams

By Shannon Stone

This year the process of getting a GED is changing. The result is that people that have started the process, but do not complete it this year will have to start over. High school students drop out of school at the alarming rate of an average of 2500 students per day nationally. This comes at a cost of about $200 billion annually in lost wages, taxes and productivity according to the Pew Partnership for Civic Change. Naturally, the people that lose the most are the students that do not complete high school.

While the Oneida Nation Community Education Center (ONCEC) does not issue diplomas, they can assist people of all ages in getting their GED/HSED credential. Recently, a past graduate from the ONCEC's GED program, Shana Parker, was hired as the Instructor Supervisor proving that there are successes from the program. Throughout the rest of the year we would like to highlight some other successful community members to encourage people to complete their GED studies.

I recently had the opportunity to meet a very exciting young man named Tom Espinosa. Having completed his HSED in 1995, Tom is not unlike most of us in that he has lots of dreams of what he would like to accomplish including starting his own family. He enjoys fishing, hunting, biking and most physical activities. He has a very positive outlook on life. He loves young people and wants to be a positive influence on their lives. Tom also values a strong work ethic, stating that he prefers to go out and work for the things he gets. To him, it is important that young people learn values such as personal accountability and build a desire to earn the good things in life.

A major theme in our discussion was about hard work. Looking back in regard to completing their GED, Tom said, "I would encourage people study an apply yourself. Nothing good in life comes easy. Anything in life without a challenge is surely unappreciated." Completing his HSED filled him with a great sense of accomplishment and personal well-being. Tom also loves math. He loves the challenge it provides him especially calculus and physics. Upon completion of his general studies at NWTC, he plans to transfer to UWGB where he can earn his teaching credentials. His dream job is to be an educator and teach middle and high school students. The ONCEC wishes him well and stands by to support him if he should need it.

If you have not completed your diploma or GED, now is the time to kick-start your future. The qualified educators here can show you how to take those steps, like Tom, and start making your dreams a reality.

Contact the Oneida Nation Community Education Center and ask about our GED/HSED programs today. To speak with one of our instructors call us at (920) 496-5260.

Native Youth Mentor & Scholarship Programs

We are fostering new leaders and creating opportunities for Native Youth to participate in, network at, and be empowered by attending the annual National Bioneers Conference. We work with inner city tribal organizations, the Indian Education Department of San Francisco Unified School District, university Native Studies programs and tribal colleges to bring youth, grades 6-12, as well as college level Native students, to the conference that would otherwise not be able to attend.

This year, we are honored to formally offer 50 Native Youth scholarships with special funding provided by The San Manuel Band of Mission Indians. These scholarships include full registration – all access at the Annual Conference along with meals. If you are in the San Francisco Unified School District, we will also provide transportation. Visit http://conference.bioneers.org if you are Native American, ages 16-24, to apply now.

OTIE invests in Oneida youth

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises (OTIE) is an engineering, science and construction management owned by the Oneida Tribe. As part of OTIE's commitment to the Oneida community and Oneida students in particular, OTIE has established and sponsored various education outreach programs that are designed to introduce the engineering and science world to Oneida students at a young age. The purpose of these education outreach programs are to assure the Oneida students are fully exposed to all the opportunities available to become interested in engineering and science, and eventually choose engineering and science as their career path.

This past July, OTIE sponsored Green Bay Preble high school Ian Skenandore to attend a one-week summer camp program at the Milwaukee School of Engineering (MSOE). Along with other high school students, Ian attended the Focus on Electrical Engineering session from July 14 – 19, 2013, at the MSOE campus to learn what electrical engineers do in their field of work.

Ian Skenandore

Through sponsorships, OTIE invests in Oneida youth development by providing education enrichment opportunities for Oneida students in elementary school through college degree programs who have an interest in studying engineering. OTIE will continue to sponsor education enrichment programs for Oneida students, including academic merit scholarships for graduating high school seniors with outstanding grades, Oneida Nation School System summer sessions, and college student internships.

Assistance offered through TANF for school supplies, clothes

If your income is at or below 200% of the Federal Poverty Level, the Tribal TANF Program may be able to help your family with the purchase of school supplies and/or clothes this year.

The TANF program began accepting applications on Monday August 12. The cut off to accept application is Monday, September 30, 2013 (No extensions). Stop by the Center for Self Sufficiency, located at 2640 West Point Road, Green Bay to pick up an application. Only complete applications will be processed. If all required information is not attached the application will be returned to the mailing address listed.

Required Information Needed with Application:

- Verification of Tribal enrollment
- Verification of current school enrollment for each child age 3 – high school
- Verification of the last 30 days of all household income is required (pay stubs must show name, pay period dates and gross income)
- Verification of current address (dated mail within last 30 days)
- Recommended School Supply List
- Signature of applicant(s)

TANF serves eligible families with dependent children. At least one person in the eligible household must be enrolled with the Oneida Tribe of Wisconsin and be residing within Brown or Outagamie County; OR other eligible households with an enrolled tribal member of a federally recognized tribe residing within the Oneida Reservation boundaries.

Due to the large volume of applications anticipated, the agency will do it's best to process applications within 10 working days. Your patience is appreciated.

Julie Denny
Estate Claims Assistant
Oneida Enrollment Department

Shekolih Swakweku
(Greetings to all)

As many of you know, one of my duties and responsibilities as your Estate Claims Assistant is processing life claims when our members pass on. I complete all the necessary paperwork and forward to EPIC Life Insurance. At times, this position can become emotionally exhausting even though death is a part of the circle of life.

I write this article with a very heavy heart knowing one of our young tribal members' life was tragically taken. Having lived through a similar tragedy with my own son thirteen years ago brings back many emotions our families are going through. As I left my office last week, I'm thinking "have I completed all my work for that day" knowing we have families in our community still facing great sadness and sorrow. Sometimes the work we do in our professional lives needs to become secondary and one needs to reach out when others are struggling.

As I've stated in previous educational articles if you're a single person who has minor children (under the age of 18 years old) and have not completed your Oneida Beneficiary Designation form, and you have an untimely death, there will be NO monies available for your funeral expense. Once EPIC Life Insurance determines minor children are first in line to receive the proceeds, the custodial parent or legal guardian will receive the entire insurance proceeds on behalf of said child and according to the Uniform Transfer to Minors Act, these monies are to be spent on the child(ren). Here is the naming sequence which EPIC Life Insurance uses in making a determination of who gets the $15,000 life insurance monies when NO beneficiary form is on file.

1) Surviving spouse; or, if none
2) Surviving children (natural children, or legally adopted in equal shares; or, if none,
3) Surviving grandchild(ren) in equal shares; or, if none
4) Surviving parent(s) in equal shares; or, if none
5) Surviving brother(s) and sister(s) in equal shares; or, if none
6) Death benefit will be paid to your estate if there are no survivors in (1) thru (5) above

In my current position, I've seen too many times where a tragedy or unexpected death happened to a tribal member and discover no Oneida Beneficiary Designation form was completed. Depending on circumstances, especially the scenario described above of being single and leaving behind minor children—this suddenly places immediate family members in a financial crisis of how will the funeral expenses get paid. At this same time, the families are dealing with the insurmountable pain of losing a child.

Over the past week, I had the opportunity to speak with Thomas Salzman and I shared how his tragedy has affected how I do my daily job as it's not all about pushing paperwork through and keeping track of statistics. It's about the compassion, caring, use of good words and about our fire and our spirit within each one of us. Knowing that our children grew up together and in their young adult lives had become teammates and softball buddies who shared the love of the game. Thomas was also very gracious and humbled in allowing me to share a joint message to the membership and that message is: Please, take the time to complete your Oneida Beneficiary Designation form no matter how young or old you are. We still have 5759 members who have not submitted their Oneida Beneficiary Designation forms to our department.

If you're unsure if you have submitted the Oneida Beneficiary Designation form or need assistance in completing, please contact me at 920-869-6212, toll free at 800-571-9902, my email address is jdenny@oneidanation.org , or just stop in at the Oneida Enrollment Office , 210 Elm Street, Oneida WI were located next to the Oneida Library. The Oneida Beneficiary Designation Form can also be found on Enrollment Department website at www.oneidanation.org/ernrollment/olipp.aspx

In closing, I want to share the following poem as often times healing can come in the form of writing expression. As in this position, the burdens can sometimes get heavy , but one must continually strive and reassure those who cross our paths, that what your you're going thru is enormous and you are not alone in your time of grief.

Through A Mothers Eyes-The People Are Here For You

I seen great sadness and tears flow from a fathers eyes,
I seen a grandmother's broken heart endure more pain,
I seen the brother's spirits get broken in agonizing sorrow,
I heard a little child cry out "I want my daddy",
I heard an auntie say "he was loved so much",
I seen young men/women comforting family or standing in silence wondering why, why,
I seen softball buddies honor and pay tribute to their loved one on the ball field where he last stood,
I seen the fire keepers diligently taking care of that responsibility 24-7,
I seen friends come to the fire offering tobacco and prayers,
I heard the drummers offer songs for healing,
I seen the food preparers bring nourishment to keep the family strong
And through this mother's eyes, I'm honored to say my friends, this is how we take care of our responsibilities to one another.

I write this because thirteen years ago, I was overwhelmed with my own personal grief that I didn't totally see all these things happening around me, but now I'm seeing it, but happening with a different family.

Rest in Peace, Kamewan!

Beware of debt collection practices

MADISON ~ Wisconsin consumers should be on the alert for phone calls from unscrupulous debt collectors, the Wisconsin Department of Financial Institutions (DFI) warned today. In many cases, the caller states he is attempting to serve a summons and if the consumer does not "act immediately," he or she will be arrested. The callers do not represent law enforcement and any threats of arrest or jail are bogus.

DFI's Bureau of Consumer Affairs receives on average several phone calls per day regarding these types of complaints, and since Jan. 1 has fielded more than 100 written complaints. "In many cases, we suspect that consumers may have applied for or obtained loans on the internet or, at the very least, may have entered their personal information into an internet application," said Paul Egide, Director of the Bureau of Consumer Affairs. "That information is then fraudulently obtained by the perpetrators, who target consumers for collection of debt the consumers do not owe, or at least do not owe the debt to the company that is calling."

In other cases, Egide said, companies that have purchased the accounts and have a legitimate right to collect a debt may be engaging in illegal collection practices. Debt collectors that "own" consumer credit accounts for purposes of direct collection are required to register with DFI. DFI offered these tips to consumers who are being targeted by these callers:

- Ask for verification that you owe the debt. Collectors are required by law to provide such documentation or discontinue collection activities. They also are required to provide written evidence of their identity and where they are located.
- Do not provide a caller with any personal identification or payment information.
- Do not purchase money cards or money orders to pay the alleged debt.
- If you are receiving calls at work, speak with your employer to come up with a plan on how to handle the calls.

Consumers who believe they are being targeted by potentially illegal collection practices are encouraged to report the activity to any of four agencies:

- DFI at 800-452-3328, or online, www.wdfi.org/contact_us/ComplaintDefault.htm.
- The Federal Trade Commission, www.ftc.gov.

Canoe voyage on Hudson also trip back in time

By Dawn Walschinski

dwalschi@oneidanation.org

Nearly 20 Oneida community members helped bring the past to the present by participating in the Two Row Wampum Renewal Campaign July 27 to August 10 in New York State.

The event, coordinated by the Onondaga Nation and Neighbors of the Onondaga Nation (NOON), commemorated the 400th anniversary the first treaty between the Haudenosaunee and European settlers. A two row wampum belt was presented by the Iroquois Confederacy to representatives of the Dutch government in 1613. The two rows represented a canoe and a ship traveling side by side, indicating that neither party will interfere with the other.

The flotilla made up of canoes, kayaks and some period vessels was a living embodiment of the belt. The group paddled from Troy, NY down the Hudson River to Manhattan. Laura Manthe helped with the grounds crew and was impressed by the site of sometimes 200 vessels traveling in two lines down the Hudson River.

"When you see that long line of boats from the bridge that's a really great representative of the allies were on one side and the Indians were on the other, and the paddled in two rows the whole time," she said.

Several of the participants traveled with family such as Reggie Doxtater and his 13-year-old son Dylan Doxtater.

"He had never been paddling before either. It was kind of nice to see him grow as an individual through the whole trip," said Reggie Doxtater.

Jean and Kilabrew Van Dyke wanted their three children to learn about their past and how it impacts the here and now.

"For us, it was mainly just the experience, but mostly to get the kids involved in learning about the different Indian treaties," said Jean Van Dyke.

Before leaving for the trip, Oneida Adventures offered classes, and staff members went along on the voyage as safety crew.

"Experiential did a really great job on this trip being a leader and looking out for everyone's safety," said Manthe.

Participants encountered some struggles along the 150 mile trip both on and off the water.

"Some days it was so windy we were paddling in white caps with 3-4 four waves, and there were sometimes where we were told that only experienced paddlers mainly with kayaks could only go on the water," said Reggie Doxtater who traveled by canoe.

"We helped people take their tents down in our group," said Manthe. "We would move vehicles from one site to the next site, and we got lost every day, so we saw a lot of New York's countryside."

However, all the participants enjoyed the trip and the experience of meeting other Iroquois citizens as well as citizens of other Native American nations and New York area people interested in helping with the two row event.

"Being one with everyone, everybody had the common goal, everybody was sleeping out in tents, everybody was eating out and eating together and getting familiar with everybody," said Reggie Doxtater.

"I'm glad we went, we learned a lot and we met a lot of super great people that had a shared vision and mission," said Manthe.

"The whole group was really positive," said Jean Van Dyke.

The flotilla paddled with the current up to 15 miles a day, and landed at Pier 96 on August 9. They were greeted by the Dutch Consulate. The group then marched to the United Nations (UN) to commemorate International Day of the World's Indigenous Peoples.

Reggie Doxtater said many of the participants went their separate ways after the UN visit, but gathered again the next day for the New York City Two Row Festival.

"It seemed like everybody couldn't wait to see each other again, and it wasn't even 24 hours," he said.

Manthe hopes the young people who took part in the voyage will be inspired by the event.

"I think it was life changing for the young people where now they'll have an experience to draw on for the rest of their lives that they can do this, this is doable, and maybe they'll organize something for Oneida so we can have paddling in Oneida on the Duck Creek," she said.

Behind the Naming of Structures in Our Community

Embracing the Life Achievements of those Honored

David "Sonny" King

Giant ambitions from a man who was small in stature but big on making dreams come true. That's how most people remember David King, who was known by most as "Sonny". A man who raised half a baseball team of his own but encouraged hundreds of young Oneida, boys and girls alike, to aspire to be the best they possible could on the field and off. He was most counted on for his support to provide sports and recreation for the young people.

More than 40 years ago, the Oneida Tribe received a Community Development Block grant to build a recreational facility on the reservation for Oneida youth. The dream was to provide a community facility where Oneida children could go for daily recreation. Once the building was completed it needed a manager, Sonny became the man for the job. It was named the Oneida Nation Memorial Building, but mostly called the Civic Center. The facility was complete with several offices, a kitchen, gymnasium and of course a trophy case. Baseball and basketball were the most common of sports around the Oneida Civic Center shortly after it was constructed in 1970.

Sonny was more than the Manager of the Civic Center, he was a creative thinker who sought to see that the use of this facility was maximized to the greatest extent possible. Sonny served as an unofficial surrogate parent to many young people, he coached and guided many young Oneida men and women to develop athletic skills and above all, sportsmanship. Little league, softball, hardball, whatever activity was going on at the baseball diamonds, most likely Sonny had something to do with it. Didn't matter if it was between 8 am and 4:30 p.m. Sonny never seemed to punch out, he was there for the long haul. Nights, weekends and where ever the games were, he was glad to be there and coach, cheer and mentor. Did he get paid big bucks? He got his big pay as he saw his protégé's compete and play the game with skill and professional levels of sportsmanship.

While Sonny was Manager many exciting things happened at the Civic Center that changed the course of history for the Oneida Nation. For the first time Oneida held basketball tournaments in a brand new clean gymnasium that teams from the entire region were happy to play in. Volley ball tournaments in the winter, games and activities for the children and a safe and healthy environment for everyone. Along the way, the facility served as a clinic, offices of the Business Committee and finally, recreation in its entirety.

This man wore many hats throughout his lifetime. During the relocation era in the 1950's Sonny moved his family to Chicago where he attended school for barbering. After graduating from barber school, he packed up family again and moved to Milwaukee to work in the early 60's.

In 1967, Sonny and his family came back to Oneida where he took various jobs in Green Bay before landing a job with the tribe as a Youth Coordinator. Sonny applied his love of sports and coaching in every venue he was able to. Sonny is well remembered by many for his coaching of golf, basketball and baseball. In the early 70's he formed the OAA (Oneida Athletic Association). This association of sport enthusiasts worked at fundraising events for the community and to support athletes to travel to tournaments for golf, basketball and baseball.

His activities didn't stop with the youth, his participation in dirtball was one of the ways he stayed active throughout the year. There were many dart ball tournaments held at Rosie's Schuyler's as well as pie auctions. At the tender age of 60 he earned a PGA Teaching Certificate in Florida.

The old timers will remember Sonny as an Honest Injun. He was a self-taught musician who played music with Abe Wheelock who had a band called, Abe and his Honest Injuns. Sonny also taught music in Milwaukee for a while in the mid to late sixties. Sonny played in a number of bands over the years. His guitar playing skills were passed on to a few of his sons.

Being very community minded and involved in his community, he eventually ran and was elected to the Business Committee. His platform and vision was apparent as he always sought to support and strengthen programs and services for the youth and economic development. A classic pose of Sonny King was to see him standing before the Business Committee with his hands in his pockets, looking down as he thought about what he was going to say, then he would look up with a smile and say… "You know… "seems he always connected with everyone by saying, "you know". That was a gift he had, the ability to include everyone in his conversation and make them feel as though their opinion was important. To Sonny, their opinion was important. That's how he was elected to the Business Committee. As a councilman he continued to think deeply before he spoke. He sat in the BC meetings and usually was the last one to comment, sometimes Chairman Powless would lean over and look at him and say, "What do you think Sonny?" Sonny would always wait a moment, then look up and say, "You know."

He always had this continual half smile on his face, rarely a frown, and to this writer's knowledge, he never met his public in anger. He was generally an easy going kind of guy that was able to move through mountains of bureaucratic red tape to achieve his goals.

The accomplishments of Sonny King to the Oneida Nation are phenomenal. In 1971 he led the Oneida men's baseball team to the championship in the Dairyland League. As a member of the Wisconsin Indian Golf Association, he supported the organization in every manner possible. In his years before retirement he continued to coach grade school basketball at the Turtle School as well as golf instruction.

In the late 80's Sonny and some of his children went into the golf business owning and operating the "Hidden Valley Driving Range." Sonny would see golfers having problems with their swing and he was always ready to straighten them out!

Eventually people in our community decided to honor the memory of Sonny King and name the gymnasium, the David "Sonny" King Memorial Gym. This honor was so befitting a man like Sonny.

Sonny was married to Jean (Skenandore). Together they had 8 children; Harlan (Trish), Ellen, Pogi (Tom) Dessart, Carl Joe, Leroy (Joanne), Luann (Darrell) Skenandore, Tim (Tracy), and Conrad (Jess). I have the greatest appreciation to Sonny's family for sharing their Dad with us for so many years. Also thanks to them for providing me with some additional details for this story. Yawe

Seven Generation Visionaries

This is a series I am composing to profile our past leadership for their contributions to the Oneida Nation and their efforts that will impact our lives for the next seven generations and perhaps beyond. These are recollections that I have about the people I have known throughout my life, my earliest recollection is Oscar Archiquette who was my first teacher of the Oneida Language. Others include, Irene Moore, Lee McLester II, David "Sonny" King, Norbert Hill and others.

The first in my series is Anna John, an elder whom I respected and admired for many years. Her grandson Allen, entered a comment on facebook about the new Anna John Nursing Home and felt there was very little attributed to the namesake of that beautiful state of the art facility. That inspired me to begin to write short recollections about all the Oneida people who have places named in their honor. We need to keep their memory alive, but more importantly, Oneida people need to know the spirit that lived in each of these leaders which inspired them to create a better quality of life on our reservation.

I hope you enjoy my memories.

Elder Expo a success

Our first Elder Expo hosted by Oneida Nation Commission On Aging and Elder Services is over and our vendor and attendee surveys show that the expo was a great success with requests to repeat next year. All the comments from the surveys were carefully read and evaluated to improve the Elder Expo for next year.

179 elders enjoyed 20 tribal vendors that offered valuable resources and information to them. The elders were also given this opportunity to socialize with each other.

One of the highlights of the event was a wall called "Guess who I am." pictures of elders in their younger years were on display and each picture was identified on a list. The elders really enjoyed and you could hear the chuckles.

Winners of the random draw door prizes ($10.00 Oneida Gift cards): Loretta Metoxan, Pat Neilsen, Diane Heim, Roberta Anderson, Judith Spang, Noel Cleven and Greg Matson who donated his $10.00 card back to ONCOA.

Attendee survey random draw winners ($10.00 Oneida Gift Card): Barbara Mendolla and Loretta Skenandore.

50/50 raffle netted $290.00 with ½ going to random draw winner Ben Vieux and ½ to Roberta Kinzhuma Scholarship fund. Our silent auction earned $1081.00 for the Roberta Kinzhuma Scholarship Fund. This Scholarship fund gives scholarships to single mothers pursuing a higher education.

YawʌkO to everyone that made this Elder Expo a success.

Fall Prevention: A Home Fall Prevention Checklist

Making changes in your home to prevent falls: Each year, thousands of older Americans fall at home. Many of them are seriously injured, and some are disabled. In 2002 more than 12,800 people over age 65 died and 1.6 million were treated in emergency departments because of falls.

Falls are often due to hazards that are easy to overlook but easy to fix. This checklist will help you find and fix those hazards in your home. The checklist asks about hazards found in each room of your home. For each hazard, the checklist tells you how to fix the problem.

Floors: Look at the floor in each room.

- When you walk through a room, do you have to walk around furniture? Ask someone to move the furniture so your path is clear.
- Do you have throw rugs on the floor? Remove the rugs or use double-sided tape or a non-slip backing so the rugs won't slip.
- Are there papers, books, towels, shoes, magazines, boxes, blankets, or other objects on the floor? Pick up things that are on the floor. Always keep objects off the floor.
- Do you have to walk over or around wires or cords (like lamp, telephone, or extension cords)? Coil or tape cords and wires next to the wall so you can't trip over them. If needed, have an electrician put in another outlet.

Stairs & steps: Look at the stairs you use both inside and outside your home.

- Are there papers, shoes, books, or other objects on the stairs? Pick up things on the stairs. Always keep objects off stairs.
- Are some steps broken or uneven? Fix loose or uneven steps.
- Are you missing a light over the stairway? Have an electrician put in an over-head light at the top and bottom of the stairs.
- Do you have only one light switch for your stairs (only at the top or bottom of the stairs)? Have an electrician put in a light switch at the top and bottom of the stairs. You can get light switches that glow.
- Has the stairway light bulb burned out? Have a friend or family member change the light bulb.
- Is the carpet on the steps loose or torn? Make sure the carpet is firmly attached to every step, or remove the carpet and attach non-slip rubber treads to the stairs.
- Are the handrails loose or broken? Is there a handrail only one side of the stairs? Fix loose handrails or put in new ones. Make sure handrails are on both sides to the stairs and are as long as the stairs.

Kitchen: Look at your kitchen and eating area.

- Are the things you use often on high shelves? Move items in your cabinets; keep things you use often on lower shelves.
- Is your step stool unsteady? If you must use a step stool, get one with a bar to hold on to. Never use a chair as a step stool.

Bathrooms: Look at all your bathrooms.

- Is the tub or shower floor slippery? Put a non-slip rubber mat or self-stick strips on the floor of the tub or shower.
- Do you need some support when you get in and out of the tub or up from the toilet? Have a carpenter put grab bars inside the tub and next to the toilet.

Bedrooms: Look at all your bedrooms.

- Is the light near the bed hard to reach? Place a lamp close to the bed where it's easy to reach.
- Is the path from your bed to the bathroom dark? Put in a night-light so you can see where you're walking. Some nigh-lights go on by themselves after dark.

Other things you can do to prevent falls:

- Exercise regularly. Exercise makes you stronger and improves your balance and coordination.
- Have your doctor or pharmacist look at all the medicines you take, even over-the-counter medicines. Some medicines can make you sleepy or dizzy.
- Have your vision checked at least once a year by an eye doctor. Poor vision can increase your risk of falling.
- Get up slowly after you sit or lie down.
- Wear shoes both inside and outside the house. Avoid going barefoot or wearing slippers.
- Improve the lighting in your home. Put in brighter light bulbs. Florescent bulbs are bright and cost less to use.
- It's safest to have uniform lighting in a room. Add lighting to dark areas. Hang lightweight curtains of shades to reduce glare.
- Paint a contrasting color on the top edge of all steps so you see the stairs better. For example, use lighter color paint on dark wood.
- Keep emergency numbers in large print near each phone.
- Put a phone near the floor in case you fall and can't get up.
- Think about wearing an alarm device that will bring help in case you fall and can't get up.

Tsi?niyukwaliho·tʌ́ Our Ways CULTURAL HERITAGE

Onʌ́yote?aka Gathering August 23-25, 2013

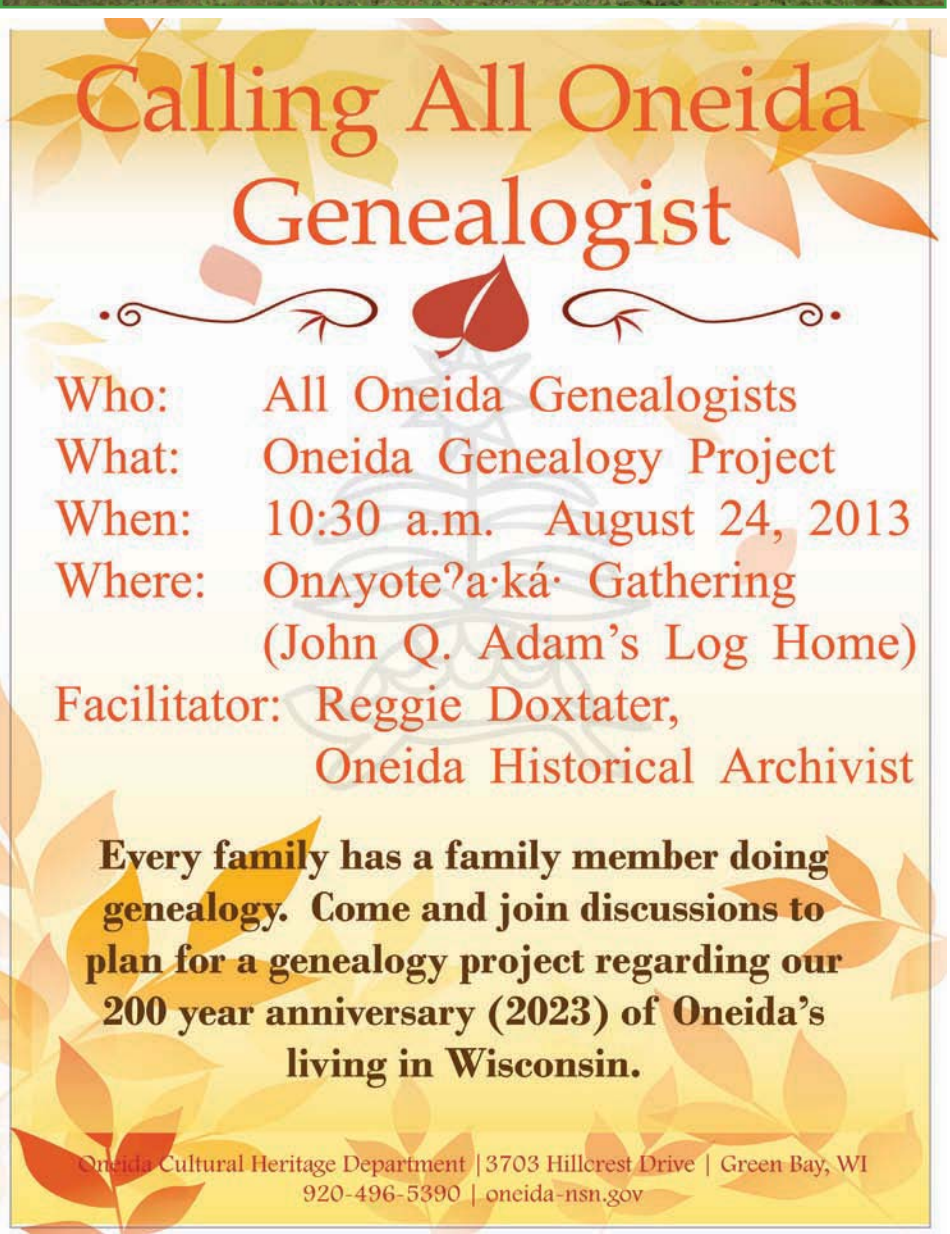
Twah wah tsile? (We are all Family)

This event has two primary purposes. One is to meet a goal of bringing Onʌ́yote?a•ká• people from around the world together to develop relationships through fun, educational, cultural and healing activities. The other is to meet the goals and objectives listed in the "Oneida Reservation Comprehensive Plan- A 20-year guide (2005-2025)". Instructions for viewing or obtaining a copy of this plan can be found at the end of this article. This event meets two of the four goals, addresses six of the 15 objectives and puts into action the core values identified by Oneida.

During our last Gathering we had the opportunity to watch elders reconnect with family and friends they did not see for many years. Siblings were reunited after being separated as youngsters. Visitors from foreign countries along with our neighbors had the opportunity to learn about Onʌ́yote?a•ká• as we practice Ka?nikuli·yo (The openness of the good spirit and mind). Our intent is to help build relationships and share our history as a nation of people to extend Kahletsyalu'sla (The heartfelt encouragement of the best in each of us) with Kalihwi·yo' (The use of good words about ourselves, our Nation and our future). Together these elements develop Ka?tshtstʌ́sla (The strength of belief and vision as a people). Through Kanolukhwa'sla (Compassion, caring, identity, and joy of being) we build Yukwatsistayʌ́ (our fire, our spirit within each of us) to meet the vision for Oneida. "A Nation of strong families built on tsi?niyukwaliho'tʌ́ and a strong economy".

Most of the activities will take place Saturday, August 24, 2013 starting with a meeting of Genealogists, learning about roles and responsibilities, discussion on land issues and moving into some singing, dancing with a few trivia questions thrown in to test the knowledge of our audience. The jigging contest was cancelled last year due to unforeseeable circumstances. This year it is on for Saturday. Although the barn renovation has been at a standstill a jigging/clogging/shuffle dance contest will be held.



Various tribal programs and departments provide support in the way of in-kind services, funding and donations. Volunteers are always welcomed. If you are interested in becoming a volunteer please leave your contact information with the Cultural Heritage Department at 920-496-5395.

We look forward to seeing you at the 2013 Onʌ́yote?a•ká• Gathering.

NOTE: You can get the entire Comprehensive plan by contacting John Breuninger at Jbreunin@oneidanation.org or going to the Oneida home page, select Community, then Public Works. There is a menu to the left with Planning and Statistics as an option, selecting this option will open the Oneida Planning and Development Department page. In the middle of this page are three separate documents pertaining to the Comprehensive Plan.

Cultural Heritage update

We are entering the final quarter of the 2013 fiscal year. This is the last year of the Administration for Native American Creating Language Learning Environments (CLLE) grant. This was a three grant geared toward developing language opportunities for the community with curriculum, technology and developing a mentorship program. The goals have been accomplished.

Developing curriculum was a challenge due to the amount of new information and initiatives in Indian country however the CLLE staff with the help of community members developed the information needed to meet the grant expectations. The new language website is currently being populated and will be ready for the Oneida site before October, 2013. A successful mentorship program developed 15 sets of partners and grew to a point that people who were mentored became mentors. Introductory classes started in various tribal departments and public schools. Cultural Heritage staff working with CLLE witnessed a spike of interest in learning language and culture. Social media efforts gained interest of over 800 individuals as facebook friends with over 2800 website hits by visitors. The ANA CLLE made a positive impact.

During the month of July and August several major activities were and are happening. There was a Two Row Wampum campaign that lasted two weeks in New York. The campaign was to bring awareness of the treaty (an ultimate law of the land for eternity) between the European and Haudenosaunee. The Oneida are the younger brother of the Haudenosaunee. This activity was joined by the Unity Riders from South Dakota. Together with many interested individuals throughout the world the campaign brought awareness to honor agreements for all time not just because it was convenient for the people of the time.

The other major activity in Ontario is the recitation of the Great Law. The Great Law establishes the Haudenosaunee. This speech recognizes the roles and responsibilities of all people to each other and nature. A more in depth follow up will be provided at the Onʌ́yote?a•ká• Gathering on the 24th of August.

The last major activity on the Cultural Heritage grounds is the start of a life size longhouse. The first log was put in on August 15, 2013. We express deep gratitude to all the individuals involved in this momentous occasion. A special recognition goes to Michelle Danforth who started this initiative a few years ago and completed the task with the assistance of her supervisor Joanie Buckley. The longhouse will provide a wonderful visual for school groups, community members and other visitors to show the intelligence, resourcefulness and self-sustaining talents of the Onʌ́yote?a•ká•.

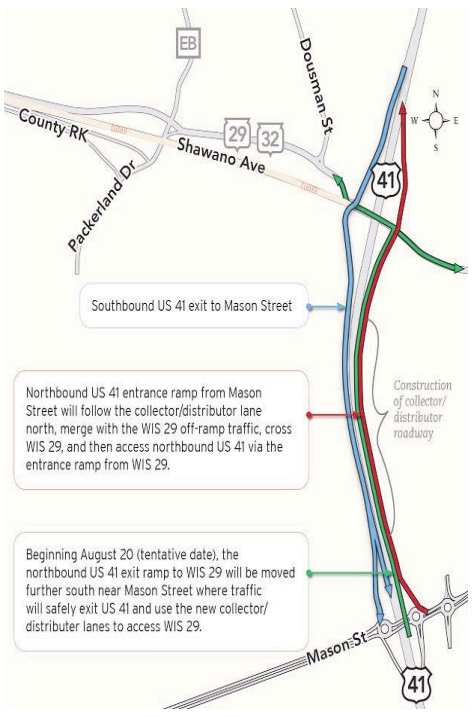
WIS 29 off-ramp changes on northbound US 41 in Brown County



Motorists exiting to Shawano Ave. under the Mason St. on-ramp

Green Bay, WI – The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) Northeast Region office in Green Bay is announcing ramp modifications for drivers exiting northbound US 41 onto WIS 29/Shawano Avenue and traffic entering northbound US 41 from WIS 54/Mason St. starting Thursday, August 22 at 6 a.m. The new location for the WIS 29 northbound off-ramp will be further south near the Mason Street overpass. WIS 29 traffic can safely exit from northbound US 41 near Mason and use the new collector/distributer lanes to access WIS 29/Shawano Ave.

The northbound US 41 on-ramp from Mason St. will continue to use the roundabout to enter northbound US 41 and merge with traffic exiting to WIS 29. The Mason St. on-ramp traffic will follow the collector/distributer lanes, cross WIS 29, and access northbound US 41 via the US 41 entrance ramp from WIS 29

The ramp modifications are necessary to assist construction crews working on US 41. The ramp modifications are expected to be in place for six to eight weeks. Future access to and from northbound and southbound US 41 to both Mason St. and Shawano Ave. will be via the new collector-distributor lanes between Shawano and Mason.

A collector-distributor roadway is a separate roadway paralleling mainline US 41 that will provide improved, safer and more efficient traffic flow between the closely spaced WIS 29 and Mason Street interchanges. The collector distributor lanes will be fully functional by 2016.

All lane restrictions are weather dependent and subject to change.

Visit us on Facebook and follow us on Twitter for additional details on US 41 traffic impacts and lane closures in Brown and Winnebago counties.

Wisconsin libraries allow patrons to share seeds

Madison, WI (AP) A handful of libraries across the state now allow residents to share seeds, and other libraries are studying the results to decide whether they should do the same.

The program allows patrons to take home heirloom seeds, plant them in their gardens and then return to the library at the end of the season with seeds generated from the original plants, the Wisconsin State Journal reported.

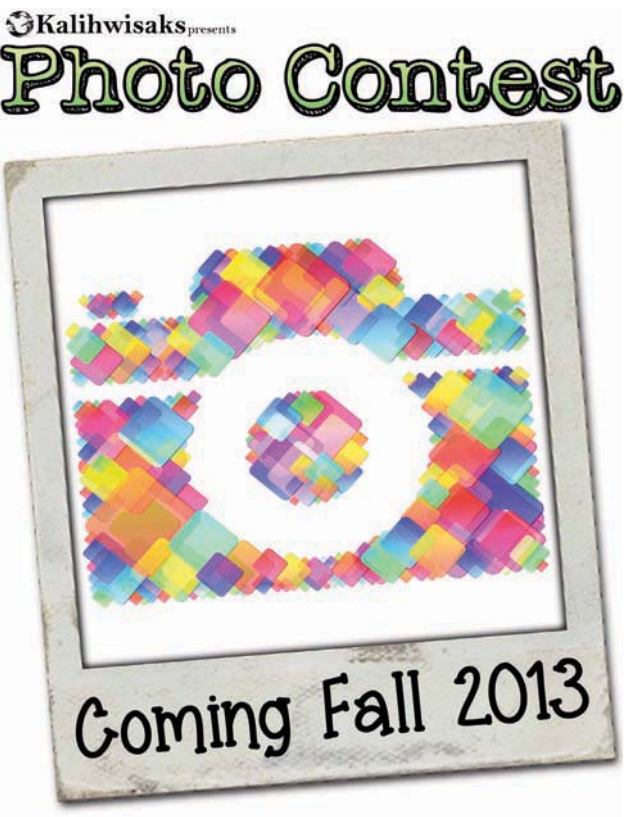
The La Crosse Public Library began a seed program in February following a year of research and planning, spokeswoman Kelly Becker said. The program has proven popular because people are increasingly interested in eating local and knowing where their food is coming from.

Since its launch, the La Crosse seed library has shared more than 600 seeds.

"There has been a lot of interest," Becker said. "We were almost overwhelmed at first."

At least three other libraries in Green Lake, La Farge and Wonewoc have similar programs, said Martha Van Pelt, director of the South Central Library System.

The Mount Horeb Public Library hopes to start a seed-sharing program next spring, library director Jessica Williams said. She predicted it would do well because of the area's agrarian roots.



Her library plans to start educating patrons this fall on how to grow and care for the seeds, and then begin sharing seeds by the start of planting season. She said it was too early to say how many seeds the library will share and whether the library will acquire them by purchase or donation.

One source the library is considering is Seed Savers Exchange, an Iowa-based nonprofit that works to conserve endangered crops by growing and sharing heirloom seeds and plants.

"The idea is a seed itself - it has to grow," Williams said.

The Madison Public Library system also is looking into whether a seed-sharing library might be sustainable, said Michael Spelman, the supervisor of the Goodman South branch. He said he liked the concept but he wanted to be sure it could succeed along with the library's other programs.

"This is one more new thing you might be doing. Can we do that well right now?" Spelman asked. "We really want to try and knock it out of the park, and that's how you do something successful."

Revenue flat at Potawatomi's casino in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) ~ Gambling revenue has dipped slightly at the Potawatomi (pot-ah-WAH'-toh-mee) Indian's off-reservation casino in Milwaukee.

Gamblers lost nearly $363 million in the fiscal year ending June 30th, compared with $368 million the previous year. Fitch Ratings analyst Michael Paladino says the revenue trend is similar to the rest of the country. He says casino earnings have been flat elsewhere.

The Journal Sentinel reports that although revenue has dipped at the Milwaukee casino, it's been enough to support payments of about $70,000 annually to the tribe's 1,500 members.

The Potawatomi are building a hotel next to the casino that's scheduled to open next year. The Potawatomi reservation is in Forest County.

Berlin High School looks for new mascot

Berlin, WI (AP) ~ Berlin High School is looking for a new mascot.

The school district will drop the Indians name and logo, despite a long battle to keep them. A 1962 Berlin High School graduate petitioned the school district to change the mascot in 2011.

The state superintendent ordered Berlin to stop using the Indians nickname and logo which depicts a man in an Indian headdress. WLUK-TV says a lawsuit challenging the removal of the Indian nickname was dropped earlier this week.

Signs with the Indian name and logo will soon come down at the high school gym. Warrior spears will be removed from the football players' helmets.

Emergency head: Power to alert system was lost

Appleton, WI (AP) ~ The emergency services director of Outagamie County says she could not have sounded the sirens when storms hit the Fox Valley this month.

Director of Emergency Services Julie Loeffelholz released a letter to the news media Monday. In the letter, Loeffelholz says she could not have sounded sirens alerting residents to the storm because power was lost at the communications tower that controls the alert system.

She also said she has not been questioned about her actions that night by the county's Public Safety Committee. The committee met in closed session Friday and recommended that County Executive Tom Nelson discipline Loeffelholz.

Post-Crescent Media reports Nelson says he'll convene an independent panel to review the county's reaction to the storms.

The storm caused $31 million in damage in Outagamie County.

Navajo to spread WI-FI Internet

FARMINGTON, N.M. (AP) ~ The Navajo Nation is in the final testing phases of a project that will make wireless Internet available to a majority of people on the vast reservation.

Tribal officials attending the opening of an $8 million commercial data center on Tuesday recalled how a teenage girl who had won a laptop computer in a school contest wasn't able to connect to the Internet because she had no phone line at home and how residents in isolated communities climb mesas in search of cellphone service.

They opened up a laptop in the northwestern New Mexico community of Shiprock, quickly connected to the Internet and played a video for the audience, the Farmington Daily Times reported. Broadband service soon should be accessible to 30,000 homes, 1,000 business and 1,100 community institutions across the reservation.

"The Navajo Nation, like most rural areas, faces considerable challenges regarding telecommunications services," said Navajo Tribal Utility Authority general manager Walter Haase. "With the opening of this facility, we have set the stage to allow high-quality, reliable telecommunications and data center services in the Navajo Nation that will enable information and communication flow throughout the region."

NTUA spokeswoman Deenise Becenti said Wednesday that Internet service will be available to residents later this fall. For now, businesses and organizations that want to rent server capacity from the data center can do so.

The tribal authority partnered with a wholesale wireless provider in 2011 to upgrade telecommunications services on the Navajo Nation. The tribe has majority ownership of the venture, NTUA Wireless LLC., while Commnet Wireless owns the rest. The agreement built on work the two entities did to secure $32 million in stimulus funds for the $46 million high-speed network.

NTUA board chairman Sidney Bob Dietz II was skeptical at first of the Navajo Nation getting into the telecommunications business, but now envisions an economy bolstered by the project that also could provide jobs for Navajo youth. Tribal officials also have been touting anticipated benefits in health care, education and emergency response services.

Marijuana Grow Operation seized on Menominee Reservation

(Keshena, WI) ~ After a 2-month long investigation, the Menominee Tribal Police Department working in collaboration with various local, state, and federal authorities, executed a covert operation which resulted in the successful eradication of over 900 marijuana plants, with an estimated street value of $1.35 million dollars. The operation was executed during the early morning hours of August 14, 2013 in a heavily wooded area on the Menominee Indian Reservation. No arrests have been made to date. However, this is still an on-going investigation.

The Menominee Tribal Police Department worked in collaboration with the Native American Drug & Gang Initiative (NADGI) Taskforce, Bureau of Indian Affairs, Drug Enforcement Agency, Federal Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Forest Service, U.S. Customs & Border Patrol, Wisconsin Department of Criminal Investigation, Menominee County Sheriff's Office, Shawano County Sheriff's Office, Brown County Sheriff's Office, and Menominee Tribal Enterprise- Forestry Department.

The Great Lakes, Olympic Boxing and First Native American Saint Showcased at Indian Summer Festival

First-time events join forces with Festival favorites Sept. 6–8, 2013

Indian Summer Festival, North America's largest cultural gathering of its kind, celebrates its 27th year with a special emphasis on fresh water and the tribal Nations comprising the Great Lakes region. Also featured this year: Olympic style boxing with legends of the Native American boxing world — Virgil Hill and Marcus Oliveira — and a celebration of the first Native American Saint, Kateri Tekakwitha, including a special mass conducted by the Archbishop of Milwaukee.

Indian Summer Festival will be held September 6-8 on Milwaukee's lakefront – Maier Festival Park (Summerfest grounds).

New This Year

Olympic Style Boxing & Native Boxing Legends

Boxing has a long history among tribal communities with many Native youth who would join boxing teams and fight in Golden Gloves tournaments. Boxing tournaments continue today as showcase events for many tribes throughout the country, and Native American boxers travel around the world competing for international titles and notoriety.

Boxing legends Virgil Hill (Ojibwe tribe) and Marcus Oliveira (Menominee tribe), will greet crowds and share their boxing highlights. Virgil Hill is a five-time world champion and recently inducted into the International Boxing Hall of Fame. Marcus Oliveira is a Professional Light Heavyweight Boxer – WBA Light Heavyweight Contender who is ranked #1 in his class. Both will be joined by "a reunion" of retired Native boxers from Wisconsin tribes who will also share boxing stories in and out of the ring. ALL boxers and officials are welcome to participate (no entry fees); online registration at www.indian-summer.org.

The First Native American Saint

Milwaukee Archbishop Jerome Listecki will preside over a special Mass to celebrate Saint Kateri Tekakwitha – the first and only Native American to be canonized – at 10 a.m. September 8 (Sunday) in the Marcus Amphitheater on the Indian Summer Festival grounds. While this is a Catholic Mass, non-Catholics are also welcome to attend.

Saint Kateri, who was canonized in Rome last fall, will also be celebrated through a special exhibit on loan from Marquette University. Known as the "Lily of the Mohawks," Saint Kateri was born in Auriesville (now part of New York). She was canonized by Pope Benedict XVI at Saint Peter's Basilica on October 21, 2012.

Native Pride Dancers

Internationally known and high-energy showmanship are the hallmarks of the Native Pride Dancers who employ an innovative blend of modern and traditional Native American dance style. Based in Minnesota and new to Indian Summer Festival this year, the Native Pride Dancers represent a proud and vibrant entertainment experience.

Festival Favorites

Brulé returns to the main stage with their powerful music, stunning showmanship, and a cadre of traditional and fancy dancers alike. The Indian Summer All-Star Band makes their debut performance this year. The All-Stars are made up of past Indian Summer band legends who have reunited to form a new sentimental sound. Entertainment lineup includes: Brulé, Indian Summer All-Star Band, Go Native Now, Aztec Dancers, Native American Children's Fashion Show, Native Pride Dancers, Michael Jacobs, Cody Blackbird, and The Strawberry Moon Women's Drum Group. Additional entertainers will be announced as they are added.

Canoe rides are back!

Paddle a canoe along Lake Michigan; reminiscent of canoe travel by the first people of this land. The launching point is point on the north end of Lakeshore State Park and rides will be available Saturday September 8, and Sunday, September 9 until dusk. The park that surrounds the lagoon helps protect it from the wave action typically found on Lake Michigan, making canoe rides fun for people of all ages and especially for families with small children.

Saturday Night Specials!

The wildly popular Fiddle and Jig Contest brings crowds to their feet (literally) as contestants jig for prizes to an Irish sounding beat. (Fiddling has been associated with Native people of America and Canada, going back to classic American heroes such as George Washington and Thomas Jefferson. Davy Crockett was a "ferocious" fiddler and the tune "Crockett's Reel" is still played today). Indian Summer Music Awards (ISMA) celebrates its 10th Anniversary with a glittery program featuring live performances Saturday night. A spectacular fireworks display will also be held following an emotive torch-lit canoe procession reenacting European contact with the first people of this land.

Oneida Conservation department takes on Community Trails

By Shad Webster
Conservation Department

On August 19, 2013 the Oneida Conservation Department (OCD) took on the ownership responsibilities of the "Community Trails", which includes the Duck Creek, Safe Routes, and the Highway 54 corridor project trails. These responsibilities will include the maintenance and care of the trail surface, landscape, and signage along these trail systems as well as the maintenance of the twenty-five (25) miles of existing rustic trails on tribal land.

There is a need to streamline the maintenance plan for all the trails and plan collaborative efforts with other tribal departments to promote recreational activities. As the maintenance tasks are completed and evaluated, the overall services will expand to meet the community desires. All service efforts will continue to promote a safe travel route for the community and provide positive recreational opportunities for the improvement of the overall quality of life.

Management Plan for the Oneida Trails System

The trail maintenance plan calls for the following tasks to be completed to ensure that esthetic features are showcased, hazards are responded to in a timely manner and positive community use is promoted;

- Inspection of the trails: Department staff will conduct quarterly walk through on each trail and identify maintenance needs (hazards, landscape issues, graffiti removal, etc.) along the trail routes.
- Established work orders: Department staff will establish maintenance tasks and assignments, which will be recorded on a departmental work order and assigned to department staff for completion.
- Completed work orders: Department staff responsible for the completion of tasks and assignments for each work order will record all activities on a departmental data base. The information gathered will assist in developing maintenance procedures and plan for future maintenance needs.
- Survey/Monitor use: Department staff will conduct surveys and monitor the activities on the trail systems. This information gathered will assist in identify community needs, address concerns, and provide details for strategic planning.

The OCD has an established work plan for the rustic trails which includes a survey inspection of all the trails and natural areas. The inspections serve as the implementation tool for the work orders that are systematically done to ensure that the proper maintenance is completed, hazards are removed, and esthetic features are showcased along the established trails and natural areas. The current management practice of the rustic trails will be implemented in the care and maintenance of the newly acquired community trails. The plan calls for the utilization of equipment, as a collaborative effort with other tribal entities. The management practices will be directly driven by the community use and planned events. As the management plan is developed and maintenance tasks along the community trail system are completed, additional plans will be implemented with other tribal entities for continued promotional use of the trail systems. The maintenance and recreational activities will be around a safe travel route to and from the neighborhoods and schools, as well as positive recreational opportunity.

The OCD feels that the expansion of services will create the prime opportunity to streamline maintenance efforts regarding the trails and natural areas. The quarterly trail inspections will establish a high standard of care and promote positive recreational activities in a safe and enjoyable manner. As the OCD works through the management plan and develops the strategies pertaining to the trails, the Department will be prepared for the future trail plans that are currently being considered. The OCD feels that this undertaking will create and deliver quality recreational experiences for the Oneida membership and community.

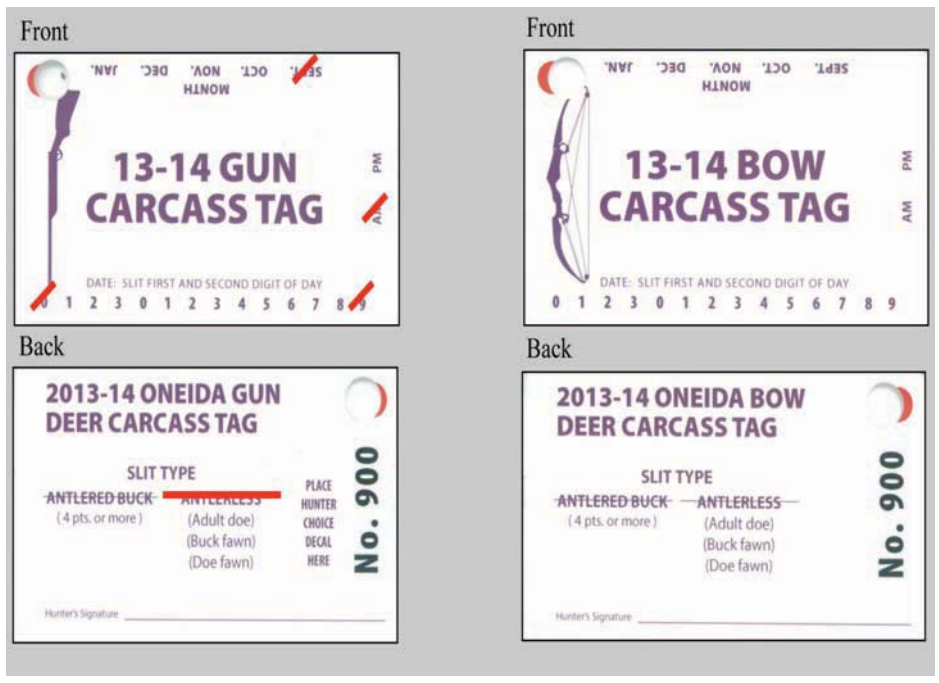
Oneida Sportsman Updates

By Shad Webster
Conservation Department



The Oneida Conservation Department held community meetings in February to amend the Oneida Nation Hunting, Fishing, and Trapping Laws for the 2013-14 seasons. The laws were examined to ensure that legal and fair chase opportunities are permitted for the Oneida membership. With the new advances in technology and equipment, a number of additions and amendments were proposed to the current laws. Below is a list of the proposed law amendments for the upcoming seasons that have been approved.

Elimination of the "Back Tag"

The traditional "Back Tags" will no longer be used by Oneida Sportsmen during the archery, firearm, and muzzleloader seasons. Below are examples of the new Carcass Tags. While sportsmen participate in hunting activities for whitetail deer, the Carcass Tag does not have to be displayed on the outer most garment of the sportsman, however, a valid carcass tag must be in the sportsman's possession while deer hunting. When contacted by a Conservation Officer, the sportsman will be required to present a valid carcass tag upon request. After harvesting a deer, the sportsman is required to validate and attach the carcass tag to the antler, ear, or leg of the harvested deer. Below are the instructions, on how to validate the Carcass Tags:

Instructions — Immediately Upon Killing a Deer:

1. Validate the carcass tag by carefully slitting the mark designating time AM/PM, date of kill and type of deer.
   Example: An adult doe was harvested on September 9th at 8am.

The proper way to validate the Carcass Tag is:

Slit the month: Sept; Slit the date: 09; and slit the time: Am. On the reverse you would slit: Antlerless.

2. Attach the carcass tag to the ear or antler of the deer, note: you must provide your own string or similar fastener.
3. Sportsman must sign the reverse side of the Carcass tag.

Failure to follow this procedure makes possession of the deer illegal and the tag invalid.

Fall Turkey Season

The use of hunting dogs is permitted ONLY during the fall season. The fall turkey permits will go on sale Monday, August 26, 2013. The fall turkey season opens on October 5, 2013 and continues until January 31, 2014. Sportsmen may harvest one (1) bearded bird (Tom/Jake) and two (2) Hens.

During both the spring and fall turkey seasons, permit fees have changed: $5.00 for anyone under eighteen (18) years of age; $15.00 for an adult; and Free for an elder. The turkey permit is an additional fee to purchasing an Oneida Sportsman License.

Muzzleloading Season

The 2013-14 muzzleloading season will open December 14th and close January 5th. Recommendations from the sportsmen who attended the community meetings wanted to adjust the muzzleloading season to open two (2) weeks after the close of the gun deer season. Once the season is open, the sportsmen are allowed to hunt for two (2) week. During this season, valid carcass tags that are not filled during the archery or firearm season may be used to harvest a deer.

Crossbow Use

During the established archery season (Sept. 7 – Jan. 31) any sportsmen with a valid Oneida Sportsman license and archery carcass tag is allowed to harvest a deer with a crossbow.

Oneida Sportsman license and Fall Turkey Permits go on sale, Monday, August 26th. A license is required for sportsmen who wish to trap, fish, or hunt small game, waterfowl or deer, within the exterior boundaries of the reservation. When purchasing an Oneida Sportsman license, you must have your Oneida Enrollment ID card and Hunter's Safety Card with you. A Hunter's Safety Card is required for anyone who was born on or after January 1, 1973. The license expires August 31st of each year.

The Oneida Conservation Department reviews the Nation's Hunting, Fishing, and Trapping laws annually with the membership, and the Environmental Resources Board, to ensure laws are amended in accordance with ideal harvest techniques, equipment advances, and management regulations. This practice helps to ensure that the establish laws are providing a safe and quality recreational opportunity for the Oneida Sportsmen. With the amendments to the law, the Department hopes to increase the interests of many sportsmen.

Please watch for more information regarding this issue and dates for future community meetings, to voice your concerns. Contact the Oneida Conservation Department at (920) 869-1450 with any questions or concerns.

Central Oneida Highway 54 Corridor Maintenance

The majority work on the new corridor for highway 54 in Oneida is complete, and is looking good…well, mostly you might say. This corridor includes the area from the Highway 172 roundabout to the Seminary Road roundabout. The Tribe assumed jurisdiction of the bridge and sidewalk July 1, 2013. The maintenance of the areas in the corridor between the roundabouts and surrounding the bridge and sidewalk will be shared between the Tribe and Department of Transportation (DOT) through October 2014. You might have questions about why the ditches are not mowed. The corridor was designed to have a "no mow" seed mix that takes one to two years to become established. During the establishment time the corridor may have a weedy appearance. The no mow mix is a variety of fescues and wildflowers designed to give the corridor a more natural appearance.

Why did the project select a no mow mix? A goal of the projects was to keep things simple, natural and supportive of people and nature. The no mow seed mix is the best alternative to stabilize the slopes, lower maintenance costs, provide a more natural appearance throughout the corridor and avoid an urban landscape feel. Plants were selected for their resiliency, disease resistance, tolerance for heat, drought, salt and other environmental extremes that occur along high traffic areas.

Any mowing that will occur next year along the edge of roadway will be done by DOT through a contract with the county highway department. The county is only required to cut it once a year. This fall there may be a mowing to help the preferred plants become established. Along with the no mow mix a variety of native tree species were selected with the same guidelines in mind and to give a variety of texture and color throughout the seasons.

The maintenance responsibility for the area will transfer to Oneida Conservation in late August. They will be meeting with the DOT and their contractor to review the viability of all the plantings and ensure all warranties are satisfied. For more information about this topic please contact Oneida Conservation at (920) 869 -1450.

LOC Update

Introducing the Oneida Tribal Judicial System

The following chart shows some of the main differences between the current Tribal Court system—the Oneida Appeals Commission) and the Judiciary, which will be replacing the Oneida Appeals Commission.

The transition from the current system to the Judiciary will take place over the next 21 months, and the OBC and the Appeals Commission are working hard to ensure the transition goes smoothly.

As always, the LOC welcomes any feedback from the membership, and we invite any opportunity to answer questions, provide more information, or to discuss concerns.

We also invite the membership to let us know about what they would like to read about in future LOC Updates—it is our priority to provide the membership with as much information as possible about all of our efforts and initiatives, and in order to best do this, we want to hear about what topics interest our readers.

Contact information for each LOC member can be found at the bottom of this page.

ONEIDA APPEALS COMMISSION (CURRENT SYSTEM)

COURT

THE JUDICIARY

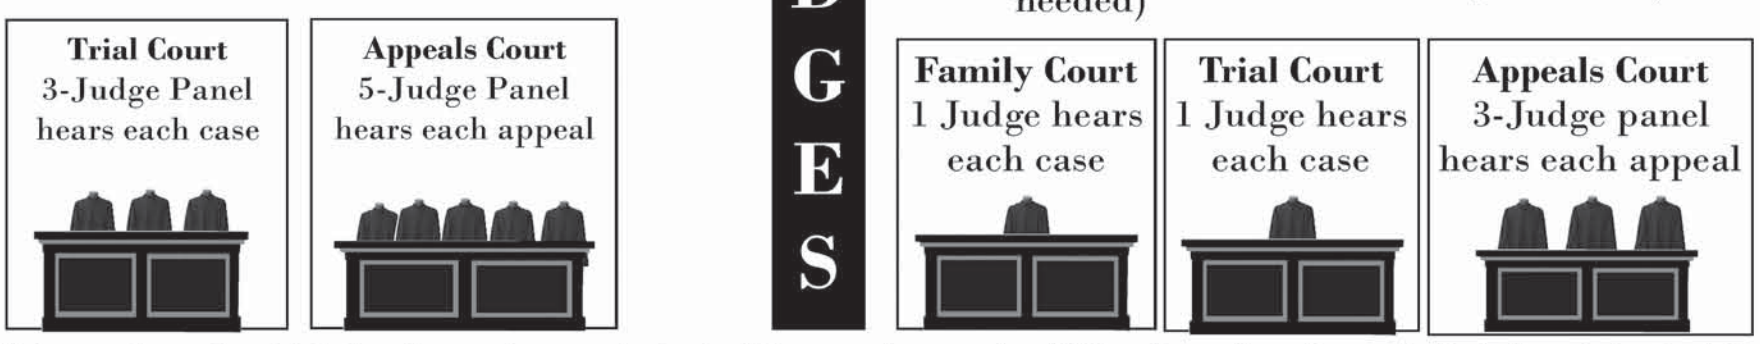
Right now, all cases (including family law matters) are handled at either the Trial Court level or the Appeals Commission level of the Appeals Commission.

The new system creates a separate Court, called the Family Court, to handle all family law matters (child support, divorce, paternity, child custody, placement, visitation, etc.).

The Family Court will be a part of the Judiciary once the Judiciary is up and running, but the Family Court will be starting operations much earlier than the rest of the Judiciary—the four-month transition from the Appeals Commission to the Judiciary will not begin until November 1, 2014, but the Family Court will begin operating in October of 2013.

The Judiciary also establishes separate divisions within the Trial Court, and more divisions can be added later as they are needed. One of the divisions of the Judiciary will be for Peacemaking and mediation—this will allow for two different types of alternative dispute resolution—Peacemaking incorporates traditional methods, whereas mediation does not.

ONEIDA APPEALS COMMISSION (CURRENT SYSTEM)



(11 elected judges, 3-4 year terms)

JUDGES

THE JUDICIARY

Oneida Family Court
(1 hired Judge, more may be added later as needed)

Rest of the Judiciary
(9 elected Judges, 6 year terms)

The Judiciary reduces the total number of judges that will be responsible for each case.

At the trial court level and in the Family Court, a single judge will handle most cases, instead of the three-judge panel of that is currently used. At the appellate level, appeals will be heard by three judges, instead of five. In both courts, a party still has the option of requesting the current panels of three or five if they prefer.

Also at the appeals level, simple procedural matters may be heard by a single judge, instead of the current panel of five.

These changes are intended to make the system more efficient and less costly.

JUDICIAL QUALIFICATIONS

The Judiciary imposes stricter eligibility requirements for Judges.

Under the current system, there are no education or experience requirements, but the Judiciary adds both.

The rules regarding a Judge's criminal history are also changed—not only will a felony conviction disqualify a person from serving as a Judge, but so will any other convictions involving fraud or misrepresentation. However, both the Family Court law and the Judiciary Law also add an exception that would allow persons with such convictions to serve as a Judge if the person has been pardoned and after enough time has passed.

	APPEALS COMMISSION	THE JUDICIARY
		Family Court Judges	All Other Judges
Elected or Appointed	Elected	Screened and Hired by OBC	Elected
Must be enrolled Oneida	Yes	No	Yes
Minimum age requirement	21 years old	None	30 years old
Education Requirements	None	Juris Doctor (law degree)	Bachelors degree in specific fields, or else a Masters degree or Juris Doctor
Experience Requirements	None	5+ years experience in family law	None, except for Chief Judges (see below)
Criminal History	No felony convictions	No felony convictions, and no convictions of any other offense involving fraud or misrepresentation; unless the person has received a Tribal or state pardon for such offenses, and ten years have passed since the pardon was granted.
Other Requirements		Must be licensed to practice law in some state, and must be in good standing with that state's Bar	* Judges must mot be mentally disabled or mentally unstable. * To be a Chief Judge, a person must have either a Masters degree or Juris Doctor, or three years of experience as a judge.)

OBC Forum

I hope everyone has been enjoying their summer. In this article I would like to focus on some of the legislative matters my office has been working on. I will also outline an economic note at the end.

Election Law and Comprehensive Policy Governing Boards, Committees, and Commissions

On July 18th a public meeting was held on amendments to the Election Law and the Comprehensive Policy Governing Boards, Committees, and Commissions. Much of the testimony provided focused on the recent GTC decision regarding term limits. My office will be reviewing all of the commentary from the GTC meeting and the public meeting comments to determine exactly what amendments should be made.

The public meeting testimony and comments received will be presented to the Legislative Operating Committee on August 21st. From this point we will hopefully be able to finalize both drafts for presentation to the GTC for consideration. I thank all of you for your support in moving these amendments forward.

Higher Education

On Saturday, August 3rd Higher Education was discussed as part of the Saturday Morning with the Business Committee meeting. There was an excellent turnout with nearly 20 community members present who provided meaningful feedback on their experiences with the Higher Education program.

Currently, the Higher Education program is governed by a couple of resolutions which have been vetted and approved by the General Tribal Council. There are several other documents and a handbook that are used as policies and procedures for administering the Higher Education funds. Many concerns have been raised with the policies and procedures currently used. Therefore, my office has taken on the task of compiling those concerns in order to begin work on a draft law which will hopefully resolve and clarify the issues raised. To give you an idea of some of the key areas of concern that have been raised thus far, here is a brief summary:

Vince DelaRosa
Councilman

- Forgiveness. A request has been received to provide a mechanism for forgiveness when it comes to Higher Education. Research has been completed by the Legislative Reference Office (LRO) indicating there are models out there in Indian Country addressing unexpected extenuating circumstances which have negatively impacted a student's grades and/or standing. If the membership supports a forgiveness policy/provision, then the main question would appear to be what the criteria should be for seeking forgiveness of credits paid for but not passed or completed.
- Prior credits/semesters. A couple members have raised concerns with how prior credits and semesters are applied to the funding maximums. If a student was attending school prior to the 1996 adoption of the Higher Education funding then those credits earned and semesters attended should not be counted when calculating the maximum number of semesters the student is eligible for funding through the Higher Education Department. Along the same lines, credits, semesters attended, and grades earned when Higher Education funding was not used should also not count towards the funding maximums or eligibility.
- Certificates. Clarification has been requested on the eligibility of funding for certificates, trades programs, pass/fail classes, etc. The overall goal is to ensure all staff and students are on the same page as far as what is eligible and not eligible for funding through Higher Education.
- Good standing. Definitions and clarifications were requested for a student in good standing, professional doctoral degrees versus doctoral degrees, and regional versus national accredited schools.
- Room and board allowances. A concern was raised that those that live off campus receive more money specifically for housing than those that live in the dorms. Allowances for room and board for off-campus and on-campus housing is set by each individual school. Additional funding is not authorized when a student is requesting to live in a dorm which may be more expensive but could provide a student with a more private and quiet environment for studying. We have been asked to look into a feasible way in which additional funds needed under circumstances as this could be offered to a student as long as their funding request would bring them in under the $20,000 cap and would still be less than what is paid for housing for off-campus students.
- Appeals. Several concerns were raised regarding the appeal structure. Several tribal members suggested that appeals be heard by an independent body made up of persons who are not employed within Oneida's Higher Education Department.

It is my hope that together the community and the Higher Education Department can come together to help bring forth one encompassing Higher Education law that will apply to everyone equally. The vision is to have a law with supplemental rules that the membership will have been afforded the opportunity to provide input on through the legislative processes.

I would like to personally thank Mitch Metoxen from the Higher Education Department who assisted with answering questions and offering clarifications regarding the Higher Education program at the recent community meeting. Thank you to the Tribal Secretary's Office for continuing to set up the monthly meetings and communicating the meeting notices to the tribal membership.

I encourage everyone to submit any comments and suggestions to my office. We are interested in reviewing all feedback as we move through the drafting process.

Economic Sustainability

Lastly, I would note, I am pleased to see that the OBC seems supportive of having an economic conference of sorts in the next few months. The idea is to share some of the best concepts, as it relates to diversification and building an actual sustainable economic system. There are a few top notch teachers who have an interest in assisting in this type of an event. Oneida should be linked in to share in the best economic practices. There are viable economic options to grow an economy and devise economic sustainability; we can look towards a suite or entrée of economic choices which can make life better for the Oneida people. We need to pursue, someday, innovation and change in many areas of our operations. This conference will talk about some of those best practices.

The day has to come where employees can enjoy regular pay increases and Oneida Tribal members can enjoy advanced levels of social and human services.

For any follow-ups, please contact my assistant Mrs. Cathy Bachhuber at cbachhub@oneidanation.org or 920-869-4426.

A Message from the Oneida Business Committee

Dear General Tribal Council;

We are saddened by the Saturday, August 11, 2013, shooting incident that occurred in front of the business on Service Road, Oneida. The safety of our elders, all members of the Tribe and all persons in our community is always paramount to the Oneida Business Committee.

We commend the Oneida Police Department in their response during and after the tragic incident. Oneida Police Chief Rich Van Boxtel kept Oneida and the surrounding communities informed of the status of this incident through the notices he provided to local area news stations.

We extend our thanks to the surrounding police departments that assisted Oneida Police Department to investigate and apprehend a suspect in the shooting. Oneida Police Department received assistance from local, county and state police departments because of the collaborative network that exists between our departments.

The Oneida Police Department continues its investigation into the incident. We acknowledge and respect their need for confidentiality in the investigative processes. We support their activities towards keeping our community safe.

Yawáko,

Summary of the Proposal

The Amendments were requested by the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee and Higher Education after the Area Manager for Education and Training overturned a decision by the Higher Education Manager to deny trust scholarship funds to an applicant. The Area Manger of Education and Training overturned the denial of trust scholarship funds due to ambiguities in the Policy's appeals process. These proposed amendments seek to clarify the appeals process by:

- Requiring the Higher Education Manager to handle initial appeals. The current Policy requires the applicant to file an appeal with the Department Director, however that position was changed to the Higher Education Manager position.
- Requiring the Area Manager for Education and Training, instead of the Trust/Enrollment Committee, hear appeals from the Higher Education Manager's decision.
- Extending some time frames from calendar days to working days. The current Policy requires an applicant to appeal to the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee within ten calendar days; however, the proposed amendments require an applicant to appeal to the Area Manager for Education and Training within ten working days

The Public Meeting materials, including the draft proposal, legislative analysis and any other relevant documents, will be made available at the Public Meeting, or can be obtained in advance through the Legislative Reference Office. a. Oneida Nation Veterans Affairs Committee: Procedural exception for six ONVAC members to Indian Summerfest, Sept. 6-9, 2013, Milwaukee, WI
Motion by Brandon Stevens to approve the procedural exception for six ONVAC members travel to Indian Summerfest, Sept. 6-9, 2013, Milwaukee, WI, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried with one opposed:
Opposed: David Jordan
For the record: David Jordan stated the only reason I'm opposing is because there was no backup for this item and I feel we need that information moving forward.
For the record: Tina Danforth stated that cost for this exception be presented in the next report as well as the detail for the DC trip, must be in the report, as an addendum or something. We need the information so we know what we're committing to. Thank you.
b. Oneida Nation Veterans Affairs Committee: Procedural exception for nine ONVAC members to Code Talker Coin dedication, Nov. 19-21, 2013, Washington, DC

General Tribal Council
1. Tribal member requesting Business Committee to ask GTC to consider amending or repealing the $100 GTC meeting stipend
Sponsor: Brandon Stevens
Motion by Patty Hoeft to defer this to the LOC, motion not recognized without a second.
Motion by Greg Matson to support the request for the Business Committee to add the GTC meeting stipend to an existing GTC meeting agenda in October, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried with one abstention and one opposed:
Abstained: David Jordan
Opposed: Patty Hoeft
Motion by Brandon Stevens that we forward this to the LOC for appropriate analysis, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried with one abstention:
Abstained: David Jordan
For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I like how we're doing this, it's a proactive effort in how we should run business. We have concerned Tribal members bringing a concern and how we process it. This is another way outside the LPA, how we can conduct business and if we feel fit that we need to move on an issue then we can do that. Otherwise there are other options afforded to them, like the LPA and putting through recommendations on a law. This one is just based on policy on what direction do we want to take on a particular topic.
For the record: Ed Delgado stated I support General Tribal Council. Before we had that stipend our General Tribal Council was weak and it was only speaking for a few. Our current General Tribal Council, I believe, makes the right decisions and speaks for the multitude of our Tribal members.
For the record: Patty Hoeft stated I support re-examining the $100 meeting stipend.
2. Petitioner Frank Cornelius: Direct Business Committee to dissolve Oneida Seven Generations Corporation based on Law Office March 2013 finding that OSGC's Corporate Charter identifies that the shareholder (i.e. the Tribe), as represented by the Business Committee can dissolve the corporation
Motion by David Jordan to acknowledge receipt of the petition and to forward to the responsible parties for appropriate analysis and an update be provided in 30 days, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried unanimously
3. Petitioner Madelyn Genskow: Direct Business Committee to hold the required public hearings and bring these resolutions to the GTC intact
Proposed resolution no. 1: Now therefore be it resolved--presenters who submitted petitions may respond to questions and comments from the floor at GTC meetings
Proposed resolution no. 2: Now therefore be it resolved the name and home address of people who sign petitions will not be published in the General Tribal Council meeting mail outs
Motion by Patty Hoeft to acknowledge receipt of the petition and send it through the appropriate analysis and it be brought back in 30 days, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried unanimously

Unfinished Business
1. Proposed comprehensive building management plan for Oneida Tribe Judiciary facility at former Human Resources building
Sponsor: Butch Rentmeester
Excerpt from June 12, 2013: Motion by David Jordan to direct the Chairman's office to notify Division of Land Management and Department of Public Works of the BC's decision in writing no later than Friday, June 14 and request DPW to develop and submit a comprehensive building management plan to the BC within 30 days, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried unanimously.
Motion by David Jordan to accept the comprehensive building management plan for Oneida Tribe Judiciary facility at former Human Resource building, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried unanimously Motion by Patty Hoeft to recess until 1:30, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried unanimously Motion by Patty Hoeft to come out of recess at 1:35 p.m., seconded Greg Matson. Motion carried unanimously

3. FY2013 Employment, Compensation & Benefits – Geraldine Danforth, HR Area Manager
a. Gaming Personnel Services Department: Rename Administrative Assistant II position title to Human Resource Assistant Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve the request to rename Administrative Assistant II position title to Human Resource Assistant, seconded by Brandon Stevens. Motion carried unanimously
b. Oneida Nation High School: Upgrade Administrative Assistant II to Administrative III
Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve the request to upgrade Administrative II to Administrative III, seconded by Greg Matson. Motion carried with one abstention and one opposed:
Opposed: Tina Danforth
Abstained: David Jordan
For the record: Tina Danforth stated I understand that sequestration is going to have an impact on the overall budget of the school, so we really need to be conservative about extending the costs for the school's overhead and most likely as those cuts occur, Tribal contribution is going to be made a consideration so I'm trying to prevent that going forward. Also the position can get reposted and can get filled at the current wage, this wouldn't have stopped anything but it's just a preference, a preference to increase the wage for a function that is going to occur no matter what.
4. Appoint Vince DelaRosa as Oneida Tribe representative for Wisconsin Housing and Economic Development Authority Tribal Advisory (WHEDA) Committee
Sponsor: Vince DelaRosa
Motion by Patty Hoeft to appoint Vince as Oneida Tribe representative for WHEDA Committee, seconded by Tina Danforth. Motion carried with one abstention and one opposed:
Opposed: Brandon Stevens
Abstained: Paul Ninham

Native Voices Tell Wisconsin's Tribal Histories

A new edition of Wisconsin Historical Society Press's best-selling book celebrates and documents the histories, traditions and stories of Wisconsin's Native Peoples. Indian Nations of Wisconsin: Histories of Endurance and Renewal (Revised 2nd Edition) by Patty Loew brings to life the history of each individual tribe, from origin stories to contemporary struggles over treaty rights and sovereignty issues. The volume includes compact tribal histories of the Ojibwe, Potawatomi, Oneida, Menominee, Mohican, Ho-Chunk and Brothertown Indians.

This long-awaited revised edition includes new material covering the economic, social and environmental advancements of Native communities. Loew devotes new chapters to discussions of urban Indians and the Brothertown Indian Nation. In addition, two new forewords - by Paul DeMain, editor of News From Indian Country, and J. P. Leary, assistant professor of humanistic studies: first nation studies at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay - help readers understand how the history Loew chronicles is everyone's history.

Loew describes the book as her "earnest attempt to explore Wisconsin's rich native heritage in a collection of compact tribal histories ... whose presence predated Wisconsin statehood and who have maintained a continuous residence here." She specifically engages the voices of native elders and tribal historians in each tribal community to provide an unparalleled contribution of personal experiences, adding a sense of authenticity and timeliness to the book. "Indian Nations of Wisconsin" also focuses on oral tradition: stories, songs, the recorded words of Indian treaty negotiators, and interviews, along with other untapped Native sources, such as tribal newspapers, to present a distinctly different view of history.

Lavishly illustrated with maps and more than 140 photographs, "Indian Nations of Wisconsin" is an indispensable resource and guide for anyone interested in the region's history, Wisconsin's Native peoples, and the full history of Wisconsin dancers of all ages compete. A dance special for Women's Jingle will focus on honoring the water (our Great Lakes). Indian Summer guests are invited to watch all dance competitions and the popular "Grand Entries"— a formal procession of veterans, active service members, Native "royalty" and dancers as they bring in Eagle Staffs along with Tribal, Veteran and American flags. During the Grand Entry presentations, a "Flag Song" is sung — likened to the National Anthem of the United States, followed by a special Veterans dance. Those attending the Festival are encouraged to participate in "inter-tribal" where everyone is invited to join in the circle and dance.

Tribal Villages from Oneida, Ojibwe and Menominee with cultural demonstrations, performances offer a "hands-on" appeal to guests. "Go Native Now" is a traveling "live history" encampment featuring tribal diversity, language and culture — all in a very entertaining format.

The Circle of Fine Art Exhibit brings works by major American Indian artists from across the country.

Great shopping! Vendors at the Indian Summer Marketplace will offer everything from turquoise jewelry to pottery, to things for your home and life. In the Natural Path "Herbal Area" you will find an array of traditional herbs, herbal related products, oils, coffee and tea to purchase and get a massage too!

A Native Children's Fashion Show will feature native-inspired works by Navajo designer LeAnn Hascon Ward. Ward's shows combine traditional and contemporary clothing, and some of her collection will be on sale. Her models, children from the Ho-Chunk and Potawatomi tribes, will tell the story of Native American design through the centuries.

Traditional foods and festival favorites are always available at Indian Summer Festival. Enjoy fry bread, Indian tacos, bison burgers, freshwater fish, wild rice, hulled corn, berries and more, along with hot dogs, ice cream, steamed corn among other popular food choices.

The 13th Annual Dylan's 5K Run & Walk for Autism will raise funds for the Autism Society of Southeastern Wisconsin; the run steps off on Sunday with registration at 8:30 a.m. For more information, visit assew@execpc.com.

About Indian Summer Festival:

Indian Summer Festival, a 501 C 3 organization, made possible by generous donations of our sponsors, Tribal Nations, a volunteer board of directors, committee chair people and festival workers. Please visit our website at www.indiansummer.org for the latest updates.

Initial Review

Rule 9(D) – Criteria for Acceptance:

The Initial Review Body shall accept an appeal for appellate review if one or more of the following elements are sufficiently alleged to exist in the original hearing body decision by the Appellant in the Notice of Appeal:

(1) A violation of constitutional provisions;
(2) The decision is outside the scope of the authority or otherwise unlawful;
(3) The decision is clearly erroneous and is against the weight of the evidence presented at the hearing level;
(4) The decision is arbitrary and/or capricious;
(5) There is exhibited a procedural irregularity which would be considered a harmful error that may have contributed to the final decision, which if the error had not occurred, would have altered the final decision;
(6) There is a presentation or introduction of new evidence that was not available at the hearing level which, if available, may have altered the final decision.

To conserve time and space provided, the Oneida Tribal Judicial System will only put into print the Initial Review Decisions which have been denied. The cases that have been accepted at Initial Review will be published when the final adjudication has been entered.

Denied Initial Review Decisions

Julie Mitchler vs. Oneida HRD-Benefits, Crawford Insurance.

Docket No. 12-AC-024, January 21, 2013. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. Denied. Ms. Mitchler failed to perfect her initial filing by the required date of January 10, 2013.

Appellate Court Decisions

Kurt Jordan, Quality Construction Management vs Dale Wheelock, Oneida Housing Authority.

Docket No. 12-AC-016, January 4, 2013. Judicial Officers Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless, Winnifred L. Thomas, Jennifer Webster and Stanley Webster presiding. This was an appeal of Oneida Tribal Judicial System, Trial Court decision dismissing Mr. Jordan's claim the Oneida Housing Authority had failed to comply with Chapter 57 of the Tribe's laws and give preference to Mr. Jordan in awarding a construction contract. Mr. Jordan alleged the Trial Court decision to dismiss was outside the scope of authority, clearly erroneous, against the weight of the evidence, arbitrary and/or capricious and exhibited a procedural irregularity. The Appellate Court found the Trial Court dismissed the case based on the absence of a waiver of sovereign immunity and without the waiver the case could not proceed against the Respondent due to the Tribe's immunity from suit. Dismissal upheld.

Crystal Cornelius vs Oneida HRD-Benefits, Crawford Insurance.

Docket No. 12-AC-019, February 14, 2013. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Carole Liggins (Pro Tem), Janice L. McLester, Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This case was an appeal of the Oneida Tribal Judicial System, Trial Court decision denial of benefits. Ms. Cornelius worked as a dispatcher for Oneida Transit. Ms. Cornelius presented evidence showing that not only she but other workers as well within the building suffered from increased or new sinus infections, respiratory issues, and other detrimental health effects which she believed was caused from the mold in the building. The Trial Court substantiated the fact there was indeed mold present in the Oneida Transit building through the pictures of the growth of plants growing out of a window sill; water intrusion in the ceiling tiles and mold growing in the gypsum wall corner and the employees testimonies, there was no evidence connecting the mold at the workplace to her health issues in December 2011. The Appellate Court was persuaded by the preponderance of the evidence that the environment in which Ms. Cornelius worked caused the health issues and led to her hospitalization. The Oneida Worker's Compensation Law states in section 13.3-12. Covered Injury/Accidents. Mental or physical harm to an employee caused by accident or disease and arising out of and in the course of employment. Injury includes mental harm or emotional stress or strain without physical trauma, which arises from exposure to conditions or circumstances beyond those common to occupational and/or non-occupational life and is predominantly work related, extraordinary and unusual. While the Trial Court concluded in their decision "There is no evidence connecting the mold at the workplace to her health issues in December, 2011. Dr. Mjannes's testimony seemed to be on the verge of doing so, but without the test results of the mold at the workplace, he could not connect the cause and effect." Ms. Cornelius had requested those findings so that her physician could test for a specific mold in the building where she worked that may have caused her illnesses. She had been denied that information on 4/2/2012, when she received an e-mail from Mr.Mears of the Environmental Department that stated "We have been advised by the Oneida Law Office not to release any reports related to Oneida Transit". The Appellate Court stated in their decision "The employee has a right to work in a safe and healthy environment. The employer has a responsibility to ensure a safe and healthy work place environment. Chapter 13 Oneida Worker's Compensation Law states: 13.1-1-2. It is the policy of the Oneida Tribe to protect the employees of the Oneida Tribe and over which the Oneida Tribe extends its jurisdiction." This Appellate Court finds in favor of the Appellant, Ms. Cornelius, and overturns the decision of the Trial Court. Thus Appellate Court grants the Appellant, Ms. Cornelius benefits from February 2011 through December 2011, as related to her claim, for her medical bills for Oneida Health Center, Prevea Health, St. Vincent's Hospital, personal and vacation time, as well as the donated hours she received while recovering from her hospital stay.

Dale Wheelock, vs. Ed Delgado: Geraldine Danforth.

Docket #12-AC-020 February 2, 2013. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Carole Liggins (Pro Tem), James Van Stippen (Pro Tem), Jennifer Webster and Stanley R. Webster presiding. This was an appeal of the Oneida Personnel Commission's Initial Review Body's decision to deny Mr. Wheelock's appeal due to being untimely. The Appellate Court found Mr. Wheelock's appeal was timely filed. The decision of the Appellate Court was to remand this case to the Oneida Personnel Commission for a hearing on the merits.

Trial Court Decisions

Kurt Jordan, Quality Construction Management vs Dale Wheelock-Oneida Housing Authority.

Docket No. 12-TC-052, June 19, 2012. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Jean M. Webster and Leland Wigg-Ninham presiding. This case involved the Respondent, Oneida Housing Authority's alleged failure to apply Chapter 57 of the Tribe's laws and give preference to Petitioner Kurt Jordan in awarding a construction contract. Petitioner filed a motion for injunction seeking, among other things, an order stopping the OHA from going forward with the construction project while this litigation was pending and for investigation to be done by the Indian Preference Department (IPD). Respondents seek to dismiss the motion on various grounds. We issued an injunction in order to maintain the status quo and permit the IPD to investigate. Respondents submitted a motion to dismiss based on two grounds: 1) That injunctive relief should be denied because Petitioner cannot establish a right to relief as there is no requirement that Respondent OHA enter into a contract with QCM even though it was the lowest bidder and 2) QCM's suit is barred by sovereign immunity. The IPD stated the OTJS should not have accepted the injunction until after their investigation was completed. We respectfully disagree; the Indian Preference Department should be completing its duties on time. Timely investigation and reporting would reduce or eliminate this type of litigation. Petitioner claims QCM previously earned contracts through the bidding process. Petitioner asserts he was notified that QCM was awarded the contracts and later the Law Office told him to re-bid. Petitioner alleges upon the second time he re-bid the contract was again offered to QCM to sign; this is when QCM signed the contract. Petitioner points out; an enforceable contract has three elements: 1) an offer, 2) an acceptance and 3) consideration. Petitioner contends the written contract offered by Respondent to QCM constituted an offer. Petitioner contends QCM was ready, willing and able to perform the terms of the contract and thereby signing it constitutes QCM's acceptance. Petitioner further contends nowhere in the contract was a provision requiring a conditional acceptance requiring the Oneida Law Office's approval. Petitioner asserts there was an offer, acceptance, and consideration resulting in a binding contract. In addition, Petitioner argues although Oneida has changed its policies regarding contracting with tribal employees this change would not affect QCM's contract because policy changes are not retroactive. Petitioner claims that for years contracts have been bid and entered into with tribal employees with the same tribal contracting procedures and regulations concerning IPL, FICA, FUTA and FLSA that exist today. Petitioner argues there has been no change in tribal or federal law which would warrant a change in policy and therefore, BC Resolution 04-25-12E is wrong and unsupported by any law or reason. Petitioner points out that the Oneida Law Office never produced any form of justification or proof for their opinion and can only speculate. The Court found that under the current Independent Contractor Policy adopted by the Oneida Business Committee on April 25, 2012 that prohibits the Oneida Tribe from entering into contracts with employees that own their own business was not in effect when Petitioner filed his claim. Therefore, the policy does not apply to this case because the policy changes are not retroactive. The Court grants Respondents motion to dismiss because according to O-Tech Solutions and DS Cash Management Services the IPD shall first investigate and then file on behalf of the vendor at the OTJS for violations of the IPL. It seems the original intent of the IPL was written so that the IPD assisted the vendors with some form of remedy. Assuming that all other things are equal such as the amount of the bid, the quality of work and eligibility of the contractor, what else does the word "preference" mean? Section 57.9-1(a) states the Tribe "shall give preference in contracting." Preferring one over another means giving priority. Respondents' Motion to Dismiss was granted. The injunction was lifted.

Tara A. & Latakeh Smith vs Oneida Housing Authority.

Docket No. 13-TC-023, March 8, 2013. Judicial Officers Jean M. Webster, Mary Adams and Kathy Hughes presiding. On February 6, 2013 Petitioner's filed a request for a Temporary Restraining Order (TRO) against the Respondent, Oneida Housing Authority and on February 7, 2013 a deliberation was held and a hearing scheduled for February 12, 2013. At the February 12, 2013 hearing Respondent's requested a stay of proceedings to allow the parties to work out an agreement. Request granted and the next hearing scheduled for March 7, 2013. At the March 7, 2013 Petitioner's failed to appear. Respondent's motioned the Court to lift the temporary order, proceed with the eviction, and order the Petitioners not to commit any waste upon the home. Petitioner's to vacate the premises by March 15, 2013 by 12:00 noon. Respondent's further noticed the Court that upon completion of the housing inspection, they will be filing a Motion for Enforcement and Deficiency Judgment for outstanding rental charges and repair charges due to neglect and/or waste. Respondent's motion granted.

Christopher Danforth, Sr. vs Scott Denny, Oneida Housing Authority.

Docket No. 13-TC-027, March 27, 2013. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Jean M. Webster and Leland Wigg-Ninham presiding. This cased involved a request for a Temporary Restraining Order against Respondent, Scott Denny, Oneida Housing Authority. Petitioners claim they were issued an eviction notice on March 19, 2013 to vacate the premises by March 21, 2013 at 11:00 a.m. due to a Stipulation within docket 08-TC-074 to maintain compliance with NAHASDA to provide healthy and safe housing neighborhoods. Petitioner argued a substance found in his home was not his, once he found it he was waiting to call Oneida Police Department (OPD) to dispose it. However, prior to contacting OPD a police officer approached him with a search warrant and then found the substance within his home. He was not legally charged and this incident should not be held against him. This is not the first time Petitioner was faced with eviction. Respondents asserted Petitioner signed a Stipulation in late 2008 that stated "it is not necessary for a conviction of a drug offense to result in a violation of the One-Strike and You're-Out Drug Policy, but rather a violation may be determined on a preponderance of the evidence. Respondents point out that the preponderance of the evidence means a drug conviction is not necessary, but only that drugs were found on the premises. Mr. Danforth conceded illegal drugs were found on his premises. Based on the above evidence the Court had no other alternative but to uphold the eviction and order Mr. Danforth to vacate the premises.

Anthony R. Webster-Bodway and Marla M. Webster-Bodway vs Oneida Housing Authority.

Docket No. 13-TC-025, March 28, 2013. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Kathy Hughes and Leland Wigg-Ninham presiding. This case involved a request for a Temporary Restraining Order against Respondent, Oneida Housing Authority. Petitioners were issued eviction notice to vacate the premises due to failure to submit a written appeal and appear before the OHA Interim Executive Director. Petitioners claim they satisfied the rental arrears and admit they are behind on the utilities. The parties requested a joint motion to stay the eviction. The parties entered into a stipulation and based on the terms, request a two (2) week stay with a hearing. The parties agreed that if Petitioners abide by the stipulation, the parties shall enter a joint motion to dismiss the eviction prior to the hearing. Petitioners failed to appear. Respondent requested the Court to lift the Temporary Restraining Order and set a date for the eviction. The Court granted Respondent's motion to lift the Temporary Restraining Order and ordered the eviction.

Yawʌko Community

Yawʌko to the Oneida Community,

As I leave, please, allow me to take the time to say thank you: to all of the special people I have met, to the families that allowed me into their homes, to the youth who were willing to share their stories and trust, to those how took the time to teach me and allowed me to ask ten thousand questions, to those who worked side-by-side with me to bring foreward and renew ways to help heal children, youth, families, and the community, and to all who supported our efforts with good thoughts and good words.

I will look forward to hearing about all the good work that will be happening here.

I will miss you all and hold you in my heart for all times.

Fare Well.

Is Oneida a Democracy OR a Dictatorship?

Based upon the latest report from the Oneida Enrollment office, we have about 17,000 or so enrolled members in the Oneida Tribe. Approximately 3,000 or so people work for the Oneida tribe. About half of the 3,000 are tribal members, whether they are Oneida, Menominee, Potawatomi, or some other tribe. That means about 1,500 or so tribal people are working for the Oneida tribe.

What does all of that mean? Well, let's just take a look at the numbers.

We have 17,000 or so enrolled member with about 1,500 tribal members working for us. That is roughly 10% of so.

So, quite literally, that is 10% controlling and governing the aspects and lives of the remaining 90%.

How is that a democracy? Is the minority controlling the majority? Is that a dictatorship?

Let's break it down even further. Of the 1,500 or so tribal workers, only about 200-300 are actually senior members of management or in a higher-ranking position that can affect policy or change it in some meaningful way for the areas they supervise or manage. That change can either be good or bad depending upon how you look at it. I will let you decide for yourself based upon how the tribe is doing right now, whether it be financially, ethically, or morally!!

That means only 200-300 out of 17,000 or so are really controlling everything in this tribe.

The remaining 1,200 – 1,300 or so workers are forced to live paycheck-to-paycheck, whereby employees are afraid to speak out of things that are wrong for fear of getting terminated.

That means about 1-2% are actually controlling everything for the remaining 98-99%.

Based upon those numbers, how is Oneida a democracy? We call ourselves the "People of the Standing Stone" and how we gave the rest of the world "Democracy". But how much of a democracy is it when only a very select minority can control the lives of the vast majority? What I find interesting are the numbers because….numbers do not lie, never have, never will.

Whatever we decide to call ourselves, "People of the Standing Stone" who gave the rest of the world "democracy" or a business, or a nation, or a democracy or a dictatorship, one thing you now must ask for yourself and judge is where you fall in this spectrum?

Are you part of the 1-2% where life is good and you can get whatever you want (new car, home, packers tickets, trips, six-figure salaries, etc.) ?

OR

The 98-99% where you slug it out in the trenches day-to-day just to survive?

Also, ask yourself in what direction and where is the tribe heading financially, ethically, and morally? Do things seem to be getting better or worse? Those are questions you alone must answer and I would imagine it would depend upon where you fall on that spectrum….the 1-2% or the 98-99%! So now ask yourself, based upon all of this….Is Oneida A Democracy or a Dictatorship? You be the judge.

Respect for Elders

Elders are supposed to be respected, looked up to, well the BC has seem to forgotten that. What happened to the Elder duplexes that are supposed to be finished after empty for two years? What about the apartments that are supposed to be renovated? Oh, that's right construction layoffs. Elder housing blames the BC, the BC blames the elders housing. Who's at fault they don't seem to know. Does it depend on your name or who you are related to? I guess so. I was told if you are in a wheel chair or use a walker it would make a difference NOT! Does the right hand know what the left is doing? When two people work in the same office, would you not think they would talk. NO! Why are the BC and elder housing never in, do they have that much time off? Pounding sand seems to be their job. What happened to the great Christmas party we used to have with music and dancing, oh yes elder cuts, not travel cuts.

Now is the elder respect? At informational meetings why can't you bring up things that are not on the agenda?

Scope of Responsibilities

When Ed Delgado was sworn in as Oneida Tribal Chairman in August 2011, the roles, responsibilities and duties of the Chairman's position were substantially different and far less than they are today. When his term started he was allowed one (1) Full-Time Executive Assistant and two (2) Part-Time Senior Policy Advisors. This was sufficient for the original scope of work the Chairman's office was expected to perform. However, shortly after being sworn into office, the current Oneida Business Committee took official action to eliminate the General Managers position that oversaw nine (9) Divisions (i.e. Gaming, Land, Development, Environmental, Internal Services, Health, Governmental Services, Enterprises, Oneida Housing Authority - with approximately 2,900 employees) with the assistance one (1) Assistant General Manager and approximately eleven (11) other staff that reported directly to her.

Shortly after that the United States Supreme Court did not rule in favor of the Oneida Tribe regarding the Oneida Land Claims and the Oneida Business Committee took official action to eliminate the Chief of Staff position and its staff that handled the matters concerning Legislative Affairs, Communications and all (approximately 33) Oneida Boards, Committees and Commissions.

Together, the GM and Chief of Staff had nearly twenty (20) staff to help them do their jobs. The work of the GM and Chief of Staff (including, but not limited to, immediate supervision, day-to-day roles, responsibilities, duties and authority) were delegated by the OBC directly to the Chairman's office. The Chairman's office received a HUGE increase in work and responsibility; however, no additional staff was assigned to assist the Chairman's office. The Chairman and his staff took on the workload to the best of their ability given their limited resources, however, it is unreasonable to expect this to continue. On Wednesday, August 14, 2013, Chairman Delgado requested authorization from the Oneida Business Committee to change his two Senior Policy Advisors from part-time status to full-time status due to the substantial workload. Oneida Business Committee Members Tina Danforth, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, and Brandon Stevens denied the request citing budget as their reasoning. Yet the expectation for the Chairman's office to perform properly and in a timely manner remains the same.

I don't know about anyone else, but I think Chairman Delgado was set up for failure from the get go. Personally, I am left thinking, feeling, and believing the denial is an act of retaliation for disclosing to the membership the hostile work environments, for addressing Vice-Chairman Matson about his statement about a non-tribal member, for speaking out in a public safety meeting, and for things people are disclosing on the ONEIDA-EYE.com (new website). From my perspective, it's like watching a select group of people standing/sitting around watching someone being held under the water, drowning and dying … having the full ability to help the person … but choosing to stand/sit around watching the person drowned, hitting, jabbing and kicking the person every now and then instead. Kind of like Chinese water torture, Oneida style!

Hyperbaric Oxygen returns to Oneida

The Mobile Hyperbaric Unit provided by American Hyperbarics will return to Oneida on the 27th of August 2013.

Located at the rear of the Oneida Health Center, treatments will be conducted daily from 7 AM through 6 PM. The Hyperbaric Chamber will be in the area through the middle of October.

This versatile therapeutic treatment allows oxygen to be delivered to tissues in critical need. Oxygen is the essence of life, its availability helps tissues to heal, helps the body's immune system to fight infection and in certain situations provides the body's cell the ability to produce energy allowing them to function efficiently.

Hyperbaric oxygen therapy centers are not new, in fact their emergence began in the early 19th century being seen first in Europe. More and more you are seeing its acceptance in hospitals through out the US.

Recent research with Veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan have shown its effectiveness in addressing lasting effects of mild traumatic brain injury or symptoms of post traumatic stress disorder.

In a recent study published out of Israel, Hyperbaric oxygen was instrumental in providing impressive improvements in neurological injuries even after decades. Patients with conditions such as stroke, cerebral palsy, traumatic brain injury have long reported the benefits of hyperbaric oxygen in providing significant positive changes in their qualities of life.

Among the conditions treated are the adverse effects of radiation following its use in treating cancer, selected problematic wounds. The Mobile Hyperbaric gives the opportunity to evaluate the effectiveness of this treatment for themselves.

Contact: Call Cindy Lecker at (920)869-1690 x1800. Registration forms available at Land Management front desk. 8:00AM - 4:30PM

The instructors are Attorney Rebecca Webster and Acquisition Manager Mary Jo Nash. The classes started in 1996 to train all of the Land Management staff on the basics of tribal law. After the first course, staff from other tribal programs and boards found the discussion and information helpful in their positions. Participants have attended from the community including Casino, Appeals, Commission, Compliance Division, Business Development Unit, Tribal School, Land Commission, GLIS, Environmental Department and Personnel Department. So far, 106 attendees have received a Land Commission Certificate for completing this annual course.

The class size is small in order to facilitate discussions. A limit of 12-15 participants is usually accepted. The discussions focus on various federal eras of Indian policy and law, and how the Oneida Tribe was specifically impacted. In addition to lectures, lively sharing of information is generally received from the participants as the class moves through the traditional early years of the government, the Allotment Era, Indian Reorganization Era, and the present Self-Determination Era.

The class focuses on tribal laws and authority of different branches of the Oneida government, with an emphasis on Oneida tribal land transactions. Invited speakers from tribal programs such as the Appeals Commission, Environmental Department, and Tribal History enhance the discussion of how the Tribe as a whole carries on its business.

A tour is given of selected reservation properties, and then continues with an in-depth discussion of how and why properties are purchased within the Oneida Reservation boundaries. The overlap between tribal law and state law is evident in the area of acquiring land. This area is also where there are frequent jurisdictional and political disputes between the Oneida Tribe and surrounding state governments.

We invite you to think about joining us on Thursday, September 5, 2013, 1:15-4:15 pm at the Division of Land Management Conference Room for our first class. September is right around the corner!! We reserve the right to reschedule if we do not have ten participants signed up.

Application deadline is Friday, August 30, 2013

Artstreet volunteers needed

GREEN BAY, WI – Artstreet is seeking volunteers to help celebrate 32 years in downtown Green Bay, August 23, 24, and 25, 2013. The time and energy that volunteers dedicate to the event helps to make it a great success year after year.

Volunteers are asked to work at least one (1) four-hour shift in event set-up, food and beverage operations, children's activities, artist relief and souvenir sales. Individuals that sign up to be a volunteer will receive a free Artstreet t-shirt.

Artstreet is a project of Mosaic Arts, Inc., a non-profit organization that produces and presents cultural events of all disciplines; engages in marketing and promotional activities that create greater awareness and visibility to artists and arts organizations; and provides grants to individuals and organizations for community arts programming.

Artstreet is a designated project approved by the Green Bay Public Schools for service learning.

To sign up to become a volunteer individuals are asked to contact Mosaic Arts at:
(920) 435-5220 or intern@mosaicartsinc.org.

T-Hawks look to compete despite shortcomings

The 2013 version of the Oneida Nation Thunderhawks football team has yet to reveal itself to Head Coach Bryan Peterson.

After losing the school's all-time leading rusher Davonte Pointer, and all-star tight end Mike Mills to graduation, Peterson isn't really sure where his team's offense will come from.

"We are really counting on three transfers to play well for us," said Peterson. "We have Dante' Thomas at wide receiver, we are expecting a lot of things from him."

With offensive production a question mark Peterson is expecting an improved defense that will keep them in games.

"We got a new defensive coordinator and the defense is really strong. In the past we would put up 60 but with our defense we will be playing a much tighter game," he said.

With only 14 mostly undersized kids on the current roster one would think Peterson would dial down his goals for the season. That's just not the case.

"Our goal is to make the postseason, really, all we have to do is get a .500 record. I think we are a really capable of that," he said. "If we can get out of our young players what we got out of them during scrimmages, we will be all right."

Along with size and number issues, a shortened offseason has put preparation in a frenzy.

"We used to always get a month but we only got two weeks this season. That doesn't help a young team. We're adjusting. We've had to rush some of our install schedule but we're getting it in," said Peterson.

The Thunderhawks are part of the 8 Man North Conference after the WIAA officially sanctioned the sport last season. They finished 3 – 6 last season.

In Peterson's fourth season he hopes to add five or six kids when school starts to help with the small team.

"We are really young. I won't stop coaching, I'll coach until my hair falls out. I'm going to teach the kids and build up momentum for upcoming years," he said.

Protestors await arrival of Washington's pro football team

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

When the Washington Football Team arrives Sunday, September 15 to take on the Green Bay Packers, the people whom its mascot purportedly honors will be waiting protest signs in hand.

But before taking on the parking lot outside the gridiron, members of the Indian Mascot and Logo Task Force will host a forum on Friday, September 13 to discuss race-based mascots at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay (UWGB). Chair of Indian Mascot and Logo Taskforce for Wisconsin Indian Education Association Barb Munson (Oneida) has been a leading advocate of removing race based mascots from Wisconsin schools, and is helping to organize Operation Respect.

"We're creating a forum for discussing stereotyping and the misinformation about First Nations people that have been perpetrated by sports teams, the media and schools," said Munson.

The event will feature Richie Plass' (Menominee/Stockbridge-Munsee) exhibit Bittersweet Winds, a collection of 300 items representing both Native American culture and Indian stereotypes.

"What I think that what is really unique and powerful about the exhibit is there are people who come in, and they … are from towns and schools that may already have that name or that image and they come in with an attitude with their fist in the air, but … they see everything," said Plass. "They see the drum, they see the artwork, they see the old documents and photographs. Stuff that a lot of us call culturally relative, but then right next to it you see … the Smurfs dressed up like Indians, 'now that I see all of this God awful stuff … man, I'm kind of getting it.' To me, that's the biggest point."

Munson hopes that area educators will visit the exhibit to learn more about the issue of race based mascots.

After weeks apart, all of the Bay Beach Wildlife Sanctuary wolves have been successfully united as a pack. The three younger wolves (4 months old), Owila, Tundra, and Yoon, have joined Luna and Ember (both 5.5 months old) in the wolf exhibit. The exhibit will be open for viewing daily from 9 am - 5 pm.

Greendeer named Coach of the Year

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

When you walk into Green Bay Elite's lobby it's hard not to notice the floors, walls, and counter space full of trophies, plaques, and awards. The cheer gym was missing one piece of hardware, a Coach of the Year award for coach/owner Cherokee Greendeer.

That changed when Greendeer was named Cheer Coach of the Year by Cheer Biz News magazine at the 2013 Cheerleading and Dance Worlds in Orlando, FL.

"I was so shocked that it happened," said Greendeer. "At that moment it's all the people you looked up to for so long. You're there with all the people that have been your mentors and said that's who I want to be. Now they're standing up applauding you. It was an amazing feeling. I wish the kids were there, without them I wouldn't be where I am."

After being nominated last year she again was notified she made the final five.

"This year parents, kids, and staff nominated me. Voting was online for the top five," Greendeer said.

Staff from Cheer Biz News selected the winner.

"They went through

2nd annual Onʌ́yote?a.ka'. Gathering celebrated

The Onʌ́yote?a.ka'. Gathering kicked off on Friday, August 23 at the Cultural Heritage Grounds off Highway 54 on 3703 Hillcrest Drive. "This is a great opportunity to really catch up on this issue, and especially for classroom teachers, if their doing an American Indian Studies unit and they want a contemporary issue to talk about with their students the mascot and logo issue is a contemporary Wisconsin Indian issue that involves all the tribes and years of advocacy," she said.

While the Washington NFL team hasn't visited Green Bay in five years, Munson states their mascot casts a long shadow.

"It's a stereotype, it's a racial slur, and Native people have been telling people from the mainstream for a long time that this is something that's really harmful," said Munson.

"The Washington R are the same issue as Indian logos in the public schools in this way - they don't stay in one place. The teams do not stay in one community and only harm the children in one community … They play at other people's fields, so it's like an infection that goes from one place to another. Their taking this negative impact along with them where ever they go to play."

Plass states there's a lack of respect on the side of supporters of Indian mascots towards actual Indians.

"There's so many people … from these schools and these communities, they're playing Indian, they don't know what it's like to live where we've lived, they don't know what it's like to have gone through what we've gone through, and what a lot of us still go through," he said. "I get told the same old same old – this is how you should feel. And I say I don't care how you think I should feel, I'm telling you how I feel and you're not giving me any credit."

Plass enjoys sharing his exhibit and discussing the images with visitors. One of his favorite exchanges was with a young man from Mishicot, home of the Mishicot Indians. Plass said the young man told him "I spent my whole life, my whole time in high school not paying attention, going '…why don't these Indians do this and do that' but after seeing the exhibit on campus and now sitting here talking with you, my big question is why weren't we taught this stuff in school? … Why wasn't that part of what we should have been learning?"

The Bittersweet Winds Exhibit and discussion forums will take place Friday, September 13 from 9:00am to 4:00pm at the UWGB Union.

On Sunday, September 15 protesters will gather on the corner of Ridge Road and Valley View Road around 8:30am. For more information contact Chris Munson at crmunson@gmail.com or Clif Morton at morton@hughes.net , or 920-982-6908.

nomination letters, talked to our peers and who decided who overall is a good ambassador for our industry," added Greendeer.

Greendeer's full gym has come a long way from when it started in 1999. Greendeer moved here from Ohio where cheer is very popular sport.

"We used to rent the aerobics room at Western Racquet. It was 9 to 10:30 at night because that was the only time they had available," said Greendeer. "There was nothing like it here, so I said why not."

Greendeer goal at Green Bay Elite is to create well-rounded individuals by teaching life skills.

"I want them to feel a sense of family. Every kid doesn't have that. For them to understand what's it like to work hard and achieve your goals. If you work hard you'll grab all of your goals," she said. "Green Bay Elite is somewhere they can go and not be scared. They can come here and not be bullied. They feel really good about themselves every time they are here. There are so many life lessons they can learn. It's like a journey to see their failure and see their success."

Passing On...

King, Marlo
March 3, 1974 – August 21, 2013

Marlo King, age 39 of Neopit, passed away unexpectedly on Wednesday, August 21, 2013. Born on March 3, 1974 in Green Bay, she was the daughter of Orlin D. and Pamela L. (King) Webster, Sr. Marlo was currently enrolled at the College of the Menominee Nation pursuing a career as a CNA with hopes of caring for her mother. She was also planning a summer 2014 wedding to Ramon Crow. When not working, Marlo loved to spend time with her family and friends, especially her beloved new grandson born this past July. She also liked to play bingo and gamble and loved Code Red.

Marlo is survived by: her children, Bernard J. Fowler III, Diandra R. Fowler, Damon E. Fowler; her grandson, Jayden Joseph Sanapaw; her fiancé, Ramon Crow; her parents, Orlin and Pamela; siblings, Linda J. King of Green Bay, Cheyanne Caldwell of MN, Nevada Webster, Onikwintala O. Webster of Oneida, Teri Webster of Green Bay, Orlin (Ashley Lohnes) Webster of ND, Jonni (Nate Noyes) Webster of Green Bay, Dannielle Webster; grandmothers, Lillian L. King of Oneida, Lorena L. Thoms of South Branch; and aunts and uncles, Marilyn, Ronnie, Bruce, Albert Sr., Edwin Jr., and Mike King and Terri, Debbie, Dakota and Werner (Porn) Webster.

Marlo was preceded in death by her grandfathers, Edwin D. King and Eli P. Webster.

Funeral services were held at 11:00am on Monday, August 26, 2013 at the St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Neopit with the Rev. David McElroy O Praem officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery. Visitation was held at 3505 State Hwy 47 in Neopit from 3:00pm on Saturday until the time of the service on Monday. A Parish Wake Service was held at 7:00pm on Sunday.

Swedberg Funeral Home, Shawano, assisted the family with the arrangements.

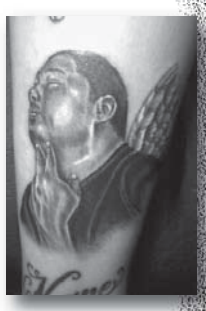
In Loving Memory

In Loving Memory of...
Bruce E. Sloma
Whose Birthday is August 31st

You have been gone since December 29, 2012.
We think of you everyday,



We remember your humor, wit, and your endless cups of coffee.

We have a lot of memories of you.
And we have shed a lot of tears
'cause we miss you so.

Happy 52nd Birthday Bruce!

Sadly missed and remembered always!
Love Mom and Dad, Robin, Jean; Sandra;
Kimberly, Rick and 'Felix' the cat

In Loving Memory of...
Kane
Just because we miss him so much...

An Angel in the book of life wrote down Kane's Birthday and Whispered as she closed the book, " TOO BEAUTIFUL FOR EARTH"...we love you.

In Loving Memory of...
David L. Doxtator
Whose Birthday is September 6th

Sometimes I look up into the night sky at the tiny stars and think about how far way you are.
It's then that I think I can see God winking as if to say He's watching over us all keeping us together in spirit.

And it's then that a special warm and closeness fills our hearts because even though God's world is so very big,
the stars seem to tell us what we know deep down inside.
God is bigger than the distance between us
God is big enough to keep us close in heart and love.

Happy 22nd Birthday David!

We all miss you.
Love Mom, Dad, Grandma,
Duane, Nuck, Robert, family, and friends

In Loving Memory of our Beloved Mother
Beatrice M. (Lyons) Waupoose
Who left us 26 years ago
(Still wondering what if...)
July 5, 1937 – September 11, 1987

God saw her getting tired,
a cure was not to be.
So he wrapped her
in his loving arms and whispered
come with me.

She suffered much in silence,
her spirit did not bend
She faced her pain with courage, until the very end.

She tried so hard to stay with us, her fight was all in vain
God took her to his loving home, and freed her from all the pain.

Deeply Missed, Deeply Loved and
Fondly remembered by your children,
Grandchildren and Great-grandchildren

Oneida Film Society fall film schedule

Barking Water, Native American Love Story to Start Season

The Oneida Film Society will begin showing new films on September 26. The film group is planning to show a new film each month. The films are produced by Native Americans and feature Native Americans. The films shown last spring included Reel Injun and The Business of Fancydancing. After each film the audience was invited to participate in a discussion about the film. The discussions tend to open the audience as they talk about the content of the movie and how it made them feel. The discussions have ranged from light-hearted to very serious as the film society examines the real life issues the films are addressing.

This season will begin with the movie Barking Water. This love story is about two older Native Americans that have had an off and on relationship over many years when Frankie discovers he has cancer. Frankie and Irene come together in a final journey to bring him home and find themselves on another journey of self-discovery. Barking Water will be shown at the Norbert Hill Center Business Committee Conference Room beginning at 4:30 pm on September 26, 2013.

October's film is Imprint. A ghost story is about a Native American lawyer, prosecuting a Lakota teen in a high profile murder case. She has to return to the reservation to visit her dying father. After the teen is killed she begins hearing voices and seeing ghostly images. This is a perfect film for the Halloween season.

November's film is Doe Boy. This film is a coming of age story of a young Cherokee boy dealing with the cultural clash between his White father and Native American heritage. Hunter is a hemophiliac, which makes it difficult (and dangerous) for him to take part in the same outdoor activities that dominate his father's life, especially as his mother, Maggie, worries about her son and tries to keep him away from danger. As Hunter grows older, he feels the need to prove himself to his father despite his medical condition, but his father objects to the Cherokee method of hunting and accidentally shoots a doe. Hunter turns to his Cherokee grandfather for advice and meets his first love, a girl.

The Oneida Film Society will finish the year with the film Christmas in the Clouds. A classic comedy of mistaken identity and romance set during the holiday season at a ski resort that is owned and operated by a Native American Nation. Shot on location at The Sundance Resort in Utah, this is the first contemporary romantic comedy to feature an almost entirely American Indian cast. We invite everyone to attend these wonderful films. Times and locations to be announced, for more information contact Shannon Stone at the Oneida Nation Community Education Center at SStone@OneidaNation.org. Admittance is free but people should register online at http://oneidafilmsociety.eventbrite.com.

OBC recognizes food program, pressure from petitioners

The Oneida Business Committee, back row, honored participants in the first Oneida Youth Food System Entrepreneur Project and the Oneida staff and community members that helped educate the teens in food preparation and small business.

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) honored young entrepreneurs in training at the Wednesday, August 28 OBC meeting.

After conducting a drawing of 19 Oneida citizens to receive tickets to the October 20 Green Bay Packers vs. Cleveland Browns, the OBC honored the teens involved in the Oneida Youth Food System Entrepreneur Project and the people who helped educate the students in the eight week program. Councilman Paul Ninham thanked the Oneida staff and community members, as well as instructors from Northeast Wisconsin Technical College.

"We have several teachers who stepped up to share their knowledge and culture," said Ninham.

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises (OTIE) board chairperson Butch Rentmeester reported that the business had successfully fought off challenges to at $46 million contract it won and is exceeding its projected revenues. Francine Skenandore of OTIE announced Margaux Wheelock-Shew and Cayman Berg had each been awarded a $5000 scholarship from OTIE.

The Oneida Seven Generation Corporation (OSGC) report was given by acting Chief Executive Officer (CEO) Bruce King who stated Kevin Cornelius was no longer the CEO as of August 21.

Bay Bank President Jeff Bowman reported the bank had brisk consumer loans and was working on developing its communication tools and advertising.

"We trying to get more involved in the community, sponsor more events that are going to help our customers," said Bowman.

The OBC accepted amendments to the Small Business Project 2000 Policies and Procedures. The change created a sliding scale for the amount of contribution needed based on the amount of the loan. Amounts Under $50,000 would require a 5 percent contribution, above $50,000 to $100,000 would require 10 percent, and above $100,000 would require 15 percent contribution of the loan. The sliding scale would create a smaller barrier for businesses needing lesser amounts of money. The policy change also named Bay Bank as the exclusive bank for the small business loan program.

A considerable amount of debate occurred over Frank Cornelius' GTC petition to dissolve Oneida Seven Generations Corporation (OSGC). Both OBC Chief Council Jo Anne House and Chief Financial Officer Larry Barton stated they need more time to gather information for the GTC presentation, but petitioner Cornelius insisted that the issue be put on the October 12 agenda.

"If the General Tribal (Council) wants the fiscal analysis, we can postpone it. If the General Tribal wants a legal opinion, which we don't require right now, the Constitution says the chairman or 50 voters can call for the meeting," said Cornelius.

"The answer is a simple yes, we can dissolve Seven Gens (OSGC), the process is complex," said House. "I don't think the General Tribal Council will accept the simple answer. I think the General Tribal Council will expect additional information which to make an informed decision."

The OBC accepted the analysis and added the petition to a work meeting.

Fifth season of Music from Our Culture (MOC) in Oneida Nation Arts Program

It has been said that when the first Europeans arrived on to the Haudenosaunee lands, they were greeted by the sounds of people singing. The Haudenosaunee (the People of the Longhouse), includes six Native American nations also known as the Iroquois Confederacy. For them, song, dance, and storytelling created vibrant communities.

Today, however, our world looks very different. Many Native people are challenged every day to keep their ways alive and our spirit as a people thriving. The Oneida Nation Arts Program (ONAP) started the "Music from Our Culture" (MOC) program to bring together Oneida children and preserve the rich musical tradition of the Oneida people.

The MOC program will be celebrating its fifth season this year. The 2013-2014 MOC season begins in October and promises to be exciting. With a grant from the Wisconsin Arts Board and funding from the National Endowment for the Arts, MOC presents Sadie Buck to work with teaching assistants and community members. Sadie is a Seneca woman from the Six Nations Reserve, Ontario, Canada and Tonawanda, NY. She comes from a long line of traditional singers and dancers.

Beth Bashara, director of ONAP, said "This season, in addition to our 6 - 12 year program, we are adding a young people's group for students 13 - 17 years old. Both groups will continue practicing Iroquois social music, Oneida hymns, Oneida language, and choral songs using the Oneida language. We will also be studying the Thanksgiving Address. We hope to have multiple performances this year and begin planning a small tour for the older children as the Oneida Youth Singers."

Music from our Culture (MOC) singers performed in May for the opening of National Tribal Child Support Association. To see a video of their performance visit http://www.oneidanation.org/newspaper/videos.aspx?id=38550

Since ONAP started MOC, more than 120 Oneida children have enrolled and learned more about their heritage and culture. The MOC proudly shares and sings all the music from the Oneida culture showing respect for everyone's personal beliefs. The program's success is the result of collaboration and support from the Oneida tribal schools, Cultural Heritage, community groups and individuals, and the hard work of the instructors, students, and families.

Dates and time for the next MOC session, to be held in October, will be announced soon. For more information call, Beth at 920-490-3830 or email bbashara@oneidanation.org for details.

Security Tips to Protect Yourself Online

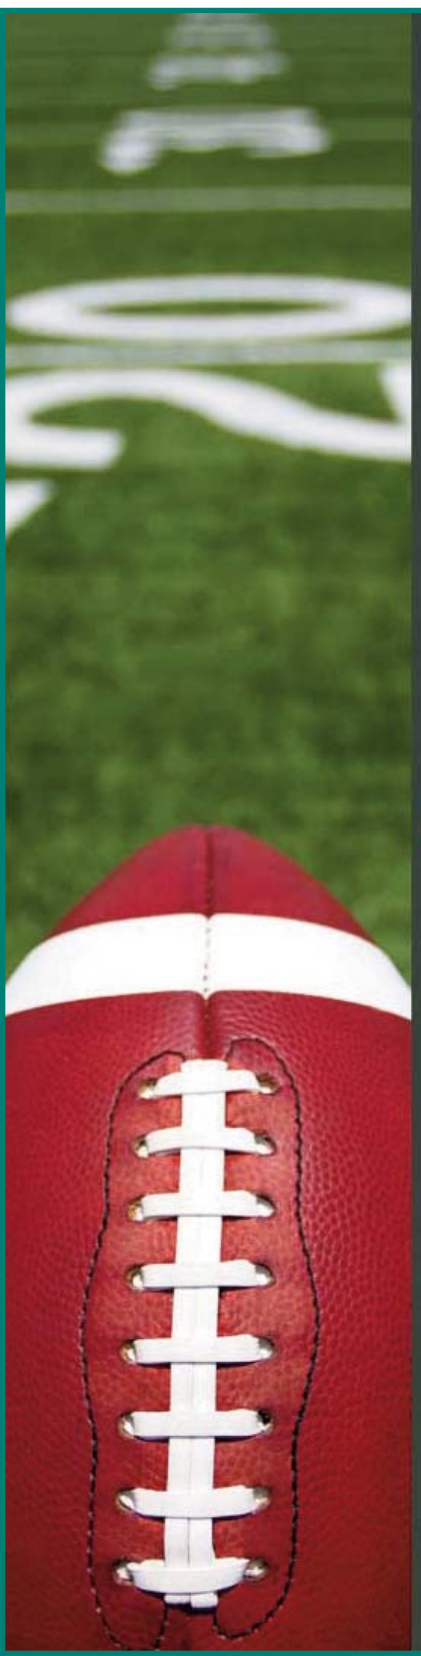
By Dianne Zubella
Bay Bank

A recent Javelin survey found that consumers with smartphones are 30 percent more likely to be victims of identify fraud. The survey also found that certain behaviors on social media can put consumers at risk. For example, 68 percent of social media users have their birthday information posted in their public profile.

Protect Your Device

When using the internet, especially for activities that put your personal and financial information at risk (like internet shopping or banking), be sure to protect the device you use to connect. Whether that's a computer, tablet or smartphone, be sure to keep your virus protection software up to date, install and activate a firewall and use spyware software. It's also good practice to password protect your computer or encrypt your mobile device in case it is ever lost or stolen. If you do conduct financial transactions online, check to make sure you're on a secure website. You'll see https:// instead of http:// on all pages of the website.

Protect Your Email



Email is another potentially vulnerable source of sensitive financial information. Never send your Social Security Number, bank account or credit card information via email, and be wary of emails that ask you to confirm your personal information. Always call the institution using the number you have (on your billing statement or the back of the credit card), not the number listed in the email.

In addition, never share your login and password information and do not store this information in your email for convenience. If your email is ever compromised, a simple search will hand-deliver all of that information to criminals. A better alternative is to store login and password information in an encrypted file on a computer that is not connected to the internet or simply writing them down and keeping them in a safe or lockbox.

Create Better Passwords

No matter how secure a financial institution or shopping website may be, if your password is easy to guess you are still at risk of fraud. Do not use your name, birthday or pet's name, as this information is readily available to many people, especially if you post it on social media. The best passwords are often derived from an entire phrase, rather than a single word, and incorporate letters, numbers and special characters. For example, the song lyric "Don't worry; be happy" can be transformed into this password: d0ntwry_Bhpy.

Finally, if you suspect your account has been compromised, contact your financial institution and credit card company immediately to minimize the damage and protect your assets.

The Affordable Care Act and American Indians and Alaska Natives

By Dr. Yvette Roubideaux
Acting Director,
Indian Health Service

I get questions all the time from American Indians and Alaska Natives (including my own relatives!) wondering why they should care about the Affordable Care Act since they already are eligible for the Indian Health Service (IHS). My response is that while the IHS is here to stay and will be available as their healthcare system, the Affordable Care Act brings new options for health coverage. It is another way that the federal government meets its responsibility to provide health care for American Indians and Alaska Natives.

The purpose of the Affordable Care Act is to increase access to quality health coverage for all Americans, including our First Americans. The benefits of the health care law for American Indians and Alaska Natives are significant whether they have insurance now, want to purchase affordable insurance through the Health Insurance Marketplace or take advantage of the States expanding Medicaid starting in 2014. Indian elders will benefit from a stronger Medicare with more affordable prescriptions and free preventive services no matter what provider they see. And of course, we're thrilled that the Indian Health Care Improvement Act (IHCIA), our authorizing legislation, was made permanent by the Affordable Care Act.

These new benefits mean potentially more services for individuals and the communities we serve. So we are encouraging every American Indian and Alaska Native to enroll in the Marketplaces starting October 1, 2013 to see what benefits are available to them.

To learn more about how the law is benefiting our community visit: http://www.hhs.gov/healthcare/facts/factsheets/2011/03/americanindianhealth03212011a.html

OTIE sponsors Oneida student

This past July, Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises (OTIE) sponsored Green Bay Preble high school student Ian Skenandore to attend a one-week summer camp program at the Milwaukee School of Engineering campus. Ian attended the Focus on Electrical Engineering session from July 14 – 19, 2013.

By Ian Skenandore

I am interested in being an engineer because I like to build things and solve problems. During the course of the Milwaukee School of Engineering camp we learned about the main things that electrical engineers do. The first thing we learned about was radio waves. We were taught how they get sent and received and then transmitted so we can hear the sound through the speaker. After we learned about radio waves we were given AM/FM radio kits and got to build our own radio and tune it to listen to some of the stations. The next subject we learned about was a computer program which allowed us to change things about a picture or audio. I thought this part of the class was less interesting because I like to be more hands on with my work.

Finally the last two days we used Lego kits to learn how to build and program our own robots to race and fight each other. There were three things we could try to make our robots do. The first was a sumo wrestling match and the other two were racing events. If you did not want to do any of these events you could also program your robot to do whatever you wanted. This was my favorite part because I like to be creative and build things.

I think the most challenging subject was building the AM/FM radio because it took a long time and there were a lot of parts that you needed to solder into place. I had to be really careful soldering because if you soldered any of the wires in the wrong spot the whole radio would not work. It was also very interesting seeing how things are built today and how small things can be. Electrical engineers can do a variety of things in their line of work. They can help build anything from phones to car parts and sometimes have to work together in teams with people from all around the world. I also learned that being an engineer can require a lot of patience and creativity.

Ian Skenandore

I really enjoyed this engineering camp and would recommend it to anyone that wants to try it. I made a lot of new friends and the experience helped me decide if I want to pursue this as a career. Thank you to OTIE for giving me the opportunity to go MSOE and see what they do and how they teach their students about engineering. It was a great experience and I would like to learn about another field of engineering better. I also talked with other people about what they would like to do. This gave me some ideas on what I would like to learn about if I got the chance to go again.

Assistance offered through TANF for school supplies, clothes

If your income is at or below 200% of the Federal Poverty Level, the Tribal TANF Program may be able to help your family with the purchase of school supplies and/or clothes this year.

The TANF program began accepting applications on Monday August 12. The cut off to accept application is Monday, September 30, 2013 (No extensions). Stop by the Center for Self Sufficiency, located at 2640 West Point Road, Green Bay to pick up an application. Only complete applications will be processed. If all required information is not attached the application will be returned to the mailing address listed.

Required Information Needed with Application:
- Verification of Tribal enrollment
- Verification of current school enrollment for each child age 3 – high school
- Verification of the last 30 days of all household income is required (pay stubs must show name, pay period dates and gross income)
- Verification of current address (dated mail within last 30 days)
- Recommended School Supply List
- Signature of applicant(s)

Support for the less fortunate

To whom it may concern:

I am writing concerning unfairness of aid from the Oneida Community Support Program to poor Oneidas. In 2012, even though I am not low-income, I received $5000 in financial help to cover my dental work from the Oneida Community Support Program. When I applied for help to cover costs, I inquired about the rules and was told that there were no income guidelines. In other words the same rules apply to low, middle, and high-income Oneida tribal members. Income levels are not factored into who gets help.

To me, it seems like higher income people receive more financial help than low-income people, because I know of several instances where this is the case.

I think it is outrageous that there is a petition going around to remove the Oneida Chair Ed Delgado because he tried to help low-income people that need the help them most. Let's hope for more compassionate rules to the truly needy. To quote from the Bible, Prov. 14:31 To help the poor is to honor God.

Madelyn Genskow

Sincere Thank You

This is a "Thank You" for all the Oneida community members who came to our aid during the loss of my friend and Husband, Gene. We had just been married for 51 years and his leaving was a huge undertaking.

Thank You Kerry and Commander Cletus Ninham and all of the Oneida Veterans for the service performed on the day of his funeral (it was very emotional). Thank you Carol and all of the Oneida Hymn Singers for the contributions of songs, which were very beautiful. Thank you Joel for arranging everything that was needed, which was handled with dignity. In addition, thank you, Brother Steve Baehler for delivering the eulogy, it was very interesting and instrumental and I apologize for the short notice. We are grateful for the staff at the Anna John Nursing Home, which were very kind and took good care of Gene. I heard nothing but good comments about the food served at the Radisson, their staff was very helpful to us. I am so appreciative for all of you and for my family as well, who offered love and kindness.

I apologize again for not knowing whom to personally thank for some flowers and plants that were given by the "Oneida Casino," and others from the "Oneida Nation." However, just know that they are beautiful and we appreciate your kindness and thoughtfulness.

A special "thank you" to Mark and Shirley Powless, and to Brother Nishimoto and daughter Keilani, who came over to help in that terribly hot sun. That was something that I will always be grateful for and probably never forget. Their helpfulness was a true gift of friendship and I thank them for the Priesthood that they hold.

I apologize if I have forgotten to thank all who were kind enough to help us through this trying time. Some of you may have gotten more than one "thank you" card and we apologize for that also.

Sincerely,
Jan Frion & Family

Upsetting News

Shekú,

An article came to my attention via the front page of the Green Bay Press Gazette. Petition calling for removal of Chairman Delgado.

I am not only saddened for our tribe, but also ashamed. Especially because the Press Gazette had to have received that information from someone on the reservation. The article mentioned the Spokeswoman for the tribe as Bobbie Webster. I feel if she was asked for information she should have said, no comment.

There is a word Kaliwi•y'o it speaks about the use of good words; about one's self and one's nation.

Personally I feel this should be strictly a reservation matter.

Being the Chairman, doesn't he have the power of Executive Decision???

What truly is behind this petition? Why didn't Brian Doxtator file when Thornberry was purchased against G.T.C.'s vote, to only buy if the land could be put into trust. We have been putting money in and seeing little results and will have to continue if we want it to survive. Then there's 7 Generations, which we continue year after year throwing thousands-millions?? their way, for what? Nothing.

Yawʌko,
Donna Ysebaert

Dissolve OSGC

For the sake of our Tribe, will you please help me dissolve Oneida Seven Generations Corporation (OSGC)? Their own financial statements show that in seven years we will be in the hole at the rate that their going. I need the General Tribal Council's (GTC) help – your help – now, or we will all face the consequences later.

If you do nothing you are approving this type of conduct. If you know of a problem you have to get involved to correct it. Dissolve 7Gens now.

It is your responsibility to step forward now and stop 7Gens from giving our money away.

If 7Gens was honest, why wouldn't they want the Tribe's members to have access to all their documents and know exactly what is happening?" Instead they are stonewalling, delaying, and refusing to comply with the requirements of the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) and the GTC.

7Gens is desperately scrambling to prevent the truth from being revealed. That is why I am asking you to step up and make sure your voice is heard. Because of the evidence that is emerging, I am confident that you will help dissolve 7Gens as soon as possible.

Family members, special interest groups, and private investors will continue to put political games and money ahead of our Constitution. It is up to you and me to fight for justice now and dissolve 7Gens.

Frank Cornelius

Let's work together

If you have had enough of Oneida Seven Generation Corporation's (OSGC) policy of spending, if you have had enough of the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) officials who don't know or don't care what the 7Gens' charter says or what our Oneida Constitution says, and if you have had enough of their disregard for the foundational values and principles our old time leaders of our Tribe left for us, then I'm asking you to help save our Tribe.

7Gens is like a cancer. It is not going away. With the help of all Tribal members like you, we can establish a better goal for our grandchildren. Together we can make a huge difference. Together we can put our Tribe back on the path to prosperity. We can dramatically cut spending and cut our losses. We can reintroduce the concept of business for profit.

With the support of all Tribal members like you we must exercise our God-given right to vote as we see fit. We are the General Tribal Council (GTC). People make up the GTC.

Oneida Research Scientist wins "Outstanding Research" Award

Norbert S. Hill III won the Outstanding Research Award at the Molecular Genetics of Bacera and Phage Conference.

Oneida research scientist, Norbert S. Hill III ("Bisco"), PhD, identified an unknown protein that inhibits cell division in bacteria. His paper and poster presentation won the prestigious "Outstanding Research" award at the recent Molecular Genetics of Bacteria and Phage Conference, August 6-10, at UW-Madison. This research may lead to the identification of new antibiotics that could be used to treat bacterial infections.

Hill's PhD thesis, completed in January 2013, at Washington University in St. Louis, in the microbiology lab of Dr. Petra Levin, examined how cell division occurs in bacteria. Specifically, Hill found how E. coli coordinates the timing of division with nutrient conditions. In a new paper, published in the July edition of the scientific journal PLoS Genetics, Hill reported that E. coli uses a protein that directly senses how much food is available and, when food is plentiful, temporarily blocks the formation of the constriction ring that pinches a cell in two. Ultimately, understanding how bacterial cell division works will lead to strategies to prevent it. This knowledge will aid in the development of antibiotics that can be used to fight bacterial pathogens.

Hill's discovery marks the first breakthrough in E. coli cell cycle research in the past sixty years. This leap provides new direction and opportunity for ongoing research by future graduate students after Hill departs. Dr. Hill has accepted a postdoctoral fellowship in microbiology at the University of California-Berkeley, scheduled to begin this fall.

Pan-Tribal Identity: What Can We Learn From Canadians and the Quinault?

So far we have discussed the consequences of Indian people and non-Indian people producing generations with 'diluted' Indian blood. But what about those individuals with multi-tribal ancestry? There are many Indians across the country who may have ½ or greater amounts of Indian blood, but when it comes to enrolling in a specific tribe, they don't meet the requirement. Consider the child who is a full-blood Indian, but only an 1/8th of any tribe in particular. Where does that child belong? This article will explore how tribes in the U.S. and Canadian First Nations deal with this question.

As we have seen, blood quantum is a North American phenomenon and primarily, a U.S. one. Within tribes using blood quantum, several variations exist. Tribes may use blood quantum to measure Indian ancestry, tribal ancestry, indigeneity, or parentage. In other words, depending on the tribe, you may be required to have any combination of Indian blood, or you may need specific tribal blood (i.e., Oneida); you may need to be from a certain place, or you may need to prove that your ancestors were Indian. Confused yet? It is mind boggling to think about all the different ways someone may 'count' as Indian.

At the most basic level, there are two types of blood rules used in tribal constitutions:

1. those measuring Indian blood quantum
2. those measuring tribal blood quantum

Tribal blood rules may require a specified degree of 'Ho-Chunk blood' or 'Menominee blood,' making the person's other tribal affiliations irrelevant. Indian blood rules (also called pan-tribal rules) allow individuals with large amounts of multi-tribal blood quantum, who may lack tribe-specific blood, to enroll.

It is interesting to see how tribal governments have changed over time when it comes to enrollment requirements. Over the past 70 years, tribal constitutions have shown a huge increase in the use of tribal blood rules, from 44% of pre-1941 constitutions to 70% today. The U.S. federal government does not make a distinction between "Indianness" and tribal affiliation in the same way that many tribes do. The federal government just wants to make sure that Indian tribes are composed of Indians. The tribes, however, have become more nit-picky about how tribal members are related (i.e., kinship or shared descent) and who belongs. Many tribes, in fact, insist that applicants show genealogical ties to the community. This shift toward favoring tribal specific blood shows that tribal governments have been gradually evolving in a more conservative direction when it comes to choosing who gets to be a member and who does not.

The most frequently used Indian blood quantum is ¼, which is used by the majority of tribes today, such as the Oneida. The majority of U.S. tribes (57%) do not allow multiple tribal membership. Some will even disenroll you if they find out you are enrolled in another tribe.

In contrast, Canadian blood quantum rules have a stronger pan-tribal character. The vast majority of Canadian groups using blood quantum rules use Indian blood rather than tribal blood. Registered Canadian Indians may move between Bands (tribes) without changing their status. In this way, Canadian First Nations are keeping the idea of "Indian-ness" as a quality shared in common by all First Nations. Some Canadian groups define blood quantum as 'the quantum of Indian blood in those persons who are direct descendants of aboriginal people of North America.' These tribes begin by designating each original member as a 'full-blood' so that a child who has at least '50%' blood quantum, effectively has at least one Indian parent. This suggests that Canadian First Nations maintain a strong concept of pan-tribal "Indian-ness," something that U.S. tribes may want to consider.

One tribe that takes a more flexible approach to multi-tribal identity is the Quinault Nation on the Pacific coast of Washington. The tribe recognizes any individual who can verify at least one - quarter combined heritage from seven tribes (Quinault, Queets, Quileute, Hoh, Chehalis, Cowlitz, and Chinook). Individuals, who do not meet the membership criteria may apply for adoption into the Quinault Nation.

Perhaps taking a closer look at multi-tribal membership criteria is the first stepping stone on the road to creating a broader definition of belonging.

Petitions Regarding SEOTS to Appear on October GTC Agenda

By Mark W. Powless

Two petitions regarding Southeastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS), both submitted on May 20, are set to appear on the General Tribal Council (GTC) Meeting agenda for Saturday, October 12.The meeting time and location is scheduled for 10:00am at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center.

Carole Liggins submitted one of the petitions as a "resolution for the dissolution of the second polling site (SEOTS) for tri-annual elections". The petition also calls for the Oneida Election Board to be charged with the responsibility to develop a plan in order to assist the second polling site (SEOTS) voters to have an opportunity to present themselves at the official polling site located within the exterior boundaries of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of WI reservation for tri-annual elections.

The SEOTS polling site provides a convenient location for approximately 1,500 eligible Tribal members to have a voice in the Tribal political process during tri-annual elections.

The second petition was submitted by Brian Doxtator. Per the petition, "The GTC decision on 7-31-04 to "...Direct the Business Committee to provide assistance to the SEOTS program to locate long term facilities for SEOTS program whether rental or purchase." Included rental or purchase, not new construction. This petition is being submitted for GTC to review and possibly amend, modify or overturn the 7-31-04 GTC decision. The petitioners request General Tribal Council to convene in Executive Session so that the Oneida Business Committee disclose to the GTC information and date relative to the construction of a SEOTS building in Milwaukee. The includes the three bid process, compliance with Indian Preference Law, consultant contract, developer contract (and the consultant/developer relationship if any), extent of SEOTS board input/participation and financing, current enrollment statistics, and projected enrollment statistics for 5 years, 10 years and 15 years within Milwaukee County and all border counties to Milwaukee county."

SEOTS is currently seeking to purchase a long term facility to continue to provide services and programs to the Oneida community of southeast Wisconsin and to access educational, financial, and other opportunities available in the largest market in the state.

SEOTS operates in the Milwaukee area on a mission of strengthening our cultural connection and providing services and programs to enhance the well-being of On^yote?a-ka living in southeastern Wisconsin. Approximately 2,000 Oneida Tribal members reside in the SEOTS service area. In fiscal year 2012, SEOTS enjoyed roughly 11,500 customer contacts. In 2012 SEOTS celebrated 20 years of service to Oneida Tribal members. Milwaukee is also home to the state's largest urban population and the state's largest Native American population.

Interested Tribal member are encouraged to participate in the upcoming GTC meeting on October 12.

Parent-Teen Group Sessions Come to a close!

It was Oneida Adventures goal to help families increase resilience and connect with their family through play. Throughout each group session there were times where this goal was achieved. While tree climbing, participants learned of their family values and family "life story," and a new awareness of family strengths were explored. Families had to rely on each other, use problem solving strategy and communication skills in order to successfully navigate to different GPS way-points. Furthermore, when they arrived at the waypoint, each family were charged to accomplish challenging activities and tasks there. Lastly, teens and their parents found a new sense of support and confidence in each other while taking personal risks and pushing themselves physically, mentally, and emotionally on the High Ropes Course. It was a unique and rewarding experience for each family involved!

Proposal for new casino divides Wisconsin tribes

By Todd Richmond
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Menominee Nation leaders have been pushing for an off-reservation casino in Kenosha for more than 20 years, hoping it will help pull their people out of poverty. The tribe overcame initial federal opposition, the indictment of its developer and fierce opposition from a rival tribe to score a significant victory this month when the U.S. Department of the Interior finally approved the project.

But the next step may be the toughest. The Menominee need Republican Gov. Scott Walker to sign off, and he has laid down conditions that are already creating rifts among Wisconsin's 11 tribes.

Walker said his approval hinges on three things - the plan must have community support; there can be no net increase in gambling; and the 10 other tribes must agree. The second and third requirements seem designed to create conflict; in order for the Menominee to get their casino, they or another tribe may have to give up some existing gambling, making it difficult to achieve consensus.

Richard Monette, a former chairman of the North Dakota-based Turtle Mountain Band of Chippewa who is now a law professor specializing in tribal issues at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, said Walker is improperly trying to pass the buck.

"It has nothing to do with those other Indian tribes. It has to do with a decision by the state of Wisconsin. He's the leader of the state of Wisconsin and he should be capable of making the decision," Monette said.

The Menominee reservation covers all of Menominee County, one of the most economically depressed areas in Wisconsin. Its unemployment rate last month was 16.7 percent, compared to 6.8 percent statewide.

"I've lived on the Menominee reservation all my life, and I can tell you that our tribe's unmet needs are significant and very real," tribal Chairman Craig Corn said at a state Capitol news conference last week.

The tribe operates two casinos in Keshena, the county seat. Their revenue is confidential, but the facilities are far smaller than the casinos run by the Ho-Chunk Nation and Forest County Potawatomi, who have the biggest - and presumably most lucrative - gambling operations in the state.

The Menominee hope a casino in Kenosha, about 200 miles southeast of Keshena on the Wisconsin-Illinois border, would draw more customers from Milwaukee and Chicago and their densely populated suburbs, leading to higher profits.

Kenosha County voters approved the idea in an advisory referendum in 2004. The project ran into snags, though. The tribe's developer was indicted for making illegal campaign contributions to then-President George W. Bush and then-Wisconsin Gov. Jim Doyle. Then the Bush administration announced the farther a tribal casino was from a reservation, the harder it would be to win federal approval.

President Barack Obama's administration repealed that policy. The U.S. Department of the Interior gave the Menominee the go-ahead on Aug. 23.

Walker responded by reiterating his criteria for approval. Still, the governor plans to hold a 60-day comment period on the casino.

The Menominee are trying to make their case to the public, pointing to analyses they commissioned that show the casino would create 3,300 permanent jobs and provide $35 million in annual payments to the state. They also point to the 2004 referendum as evidence of support.

But that referendum was almost a decade ago, and gambling opponents, most notably a group called Enough Already! WI, have pushed back hard since the federal approval came down.

It's also unclear what Walker means by no net gambling increase. His spokesman said the governor's position is in line with a separate referendum voters approved in 1993 to limit gambling.

Corn said in an interview that he believed the referendum involved only state gambling expansion. But others think it could require the Menominee to give up gambling in Keshena or another tribe to sacrifice some of its machines.

The other huge hurdle is tribal consensus. Walker told the Kenosha News he added that requirement to avoid feuding between tribal governments, but the call for no net gambling increase seems to be sparking tensions.

Two Wisconsin bands looking to build their own off-reservation casinos - the Lac Du Flambeau Band of Lake Superior Chippewa and the Stockbridge-Munsee Band of Mohican Indians - have sided with the Menominee.

"Everybody has the right to do gaming," Lac Du Flambeau President Tom Maulson said. "We shouldn't fight over our customers there. We're doing it for our people back home."

The Potawatomi and Ho-Chunk Nation, however, remain steadfastly opposed to the plan. The Potawatomi, who fear a Kenosha casino would suck profits from their operation 40 miles north in Milwaukee, say the state can't support more gambling. Walker served as Milwaukee County executive before he became governor.

"We hope that Governor Walker will see that this project is not in the best interest of Wisconsin and puts an end to the chaos created by the BIA (Bureau of Indian Affairs)," Potawatomi Attorney General Jeff Crawford said in a statement.

The Menominee have offered the Potawatomi shares in the casino's development or management, but Crawford has called the offer a publicity stunt.

The Ho-Chunk Nation, meanwhile, maintains the Kenosha area is part of its traditional homeland and the tribe would consider a Menominee casino there an incursion. Ho-Chunk President Jon Greendeer said he's told the Menominee as much.

"It's a very awkward and uncomfortable discussion to have with people you consider your friends and allies in so many other interests," Greendeer said. "My biggest hope is none of these long-built alliances deteriorate because of this."

UW-Whitewater course geared just for veterans

WHITEWATER, Wis. (AP) - A University of Wisconsin-Whitewater English professor has created a composition class especially for military veterans and their families in the hopes that it will allow them to discuss their experiences and feelings with other students who can better relate.

Students in Composition 102 read poetry, short stories and essays with military themes. They're also encouraged - but never pressured - to share their own personal experiences, The Janesville Gazette reported.

Associate professor Erin Celello said she wanted to help veterans connect with other veterans to whose lives traditional students might not be able to relate.

"There is freedom for veterans in a community of their peers, who understand their experiences," Celello said. "They can express their views in a way they might not be able to in a course with the average freshmen."

Nicholas Doucette took one of Celello's previous classes and said it helped him re-adjust to being back home. The former U.S. Marine served eight months in Afghanistan, where he helped clear the streets of roadside bombs. When he came back to college most students seemed more interested in interacting with their cellphones, he said, but being in a class with veterans made it easy to strike up conversations.

Doucette said the syllabus seemed unremarkable at first - until he realized the reading material helped him unearth emotions he couldn't find the words to express.

"When you have such a close connection to what you are studying, it makes the learning process a whole lot easier," Doucette said.

Dane County schools spend $3M on security upgrades

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ Public schools in Dane County have spent nearly $3 million on security upgrades over the summer, including reconfigured entrances and doors outfitted with cameras and buzzers.

The upgrades continue a trend that started almost 15 years ago following the school shooting in Columbine, Colo., the Wisconsin State Journal reported. Many of the local upgrades have been in the works for more than a year, but school officials say every time there's a school tragedy anywhere in the U.S., it increases the sense of urgency in Wisconsin.

Districts in Sun Prairie spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to reconfigure entrances so visitors now have to walk into an office or locked vestibule before they can get into the main building. In Waunakee, schools got a $40,000 upgrade to install intercoms and cameras at main entrances.

Most districts said they paid for the upgrades from their maintenance and capital budgets, even if they had to delay other projects such as roof replacements.

Many school officials said they were influenced by shootings at Columbine and elsewhere. The mass killing last year at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Conn., was especially shilling.

"Every time a tragic incident occurs, we learn something, and we re-evaluate," said Tom Wohlleber, an assistant superintendent in the Middleton-Cross Plains School District.

Red Cross helps storm victims on Pine Ridge

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) ~ The American Red Cross has helped 21 people who were displaced by a possible tornado at the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in western South Dakota.

The organization's Black Hills Area Chapter reported that two homes were destroyed and four others were damaged in Friday evening's storm, which also knocked down some power poles and left some homes without power.

In eastern South Dakota, a severe thunderstorm with lightning and large hail damaged some Sioux Falls businesses, some cars and other buildings Saturday night.

Lightning struck the Target store in the Empire East Mall, tearing a hole in the roof and breaking a couple of gas lines, according to the Sioux Falls Fire Department. The storm also damaged a loading dock at the J.C. Penney store across the street in the Empire Mall.

Hail also smashed car windows in the area. Fire Capt. Nick Luther said one woman was injured when hail broke several windows in her vehicle, but her injuries were minor and she refused medical attention. No one was injured by the lightning strike at Target, he said.

The state Game, Fish and Parks Department's educational Outdoor Campus in Sioux Falls was closed Sunday because of broken windows and fallen trees, but officials said they hoped to reopen Tuesday.

The National Weather Service reported that the Sioux Falls area saw 45 mph winds, and hail up to 2.5 inches in diameter fell west of downtown Sioux Falls.

OK Supreme Court issues stay in custody case

By Kristi Eaton
Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) ~ The Oklahoma Supreme Court has granted an emergency stay to keep a 3-year-old Cherokee girl with her biological father and plans to hear arguments from his lawyers and those of the girl's adoptive parents later Tuesday.

The court granted the stay Friday, although it only became public on the court's website Tuesday.

Three-year-old Veronica's birth mother was pregnant when she put the girl up for adoption. A South Carolina couple, Matt and Melanie Capobianco, have been trying to adopt Veronica since she was born, while her biological father, Dusten Brown, has been fighting them for custody.

The Capobiancos filed a motion to vacate the stay, according to online court records Tuesday.

At the heart of Veronica's case is the Indian Child Welfare Act, established in 1978 in response to high rates of Native American children being adopted by non-Native families. In 2011, a South Carolina family court awarded custody of the girl to Brown, a member of the Cherokee Nation, under the Indian Child Welfare Act. A family court in the same state ruled in July that custody be awarded to the Capobiancos and ordered Brown to hand Veronica over. Brown refused.

South Carolina authorities charged Brown with custodial interference after he failed to show up to a court-ordered meeting.

The case is now with the Oklahoma Supreme Court and both sides are expected at a hearing there Tuesday afternoon. A court referee is expected to recommend whether the full court should rule on which entity has jurisdiction in the case _ South Carolina, Oklahoma or the Cherokee Nation. Brown's lawyers argue that South Carolina should not have jurisdiction because the girl has lived in Oklahoma since 2011.

The hearings have been closed because it's an adoption proceeding, and neither side will comment because the court issued a gag order in the case. A call to Brown's lawyer was not returned Tuesday and a spokeswoman for the Capobiancos said she could not comment because of the gag order.

The U.S. Supreme Court said in June that the provisions of the Indian Child Welfare Act upon which Brown relied on to win custody do not apply, and remanded the case back to South Carolina.

The dispute has raised questions about jurisdictions, tribal sovereignty and the federal law meant to help keep Native American tribes together. Veronica's birth mother is not Native American.

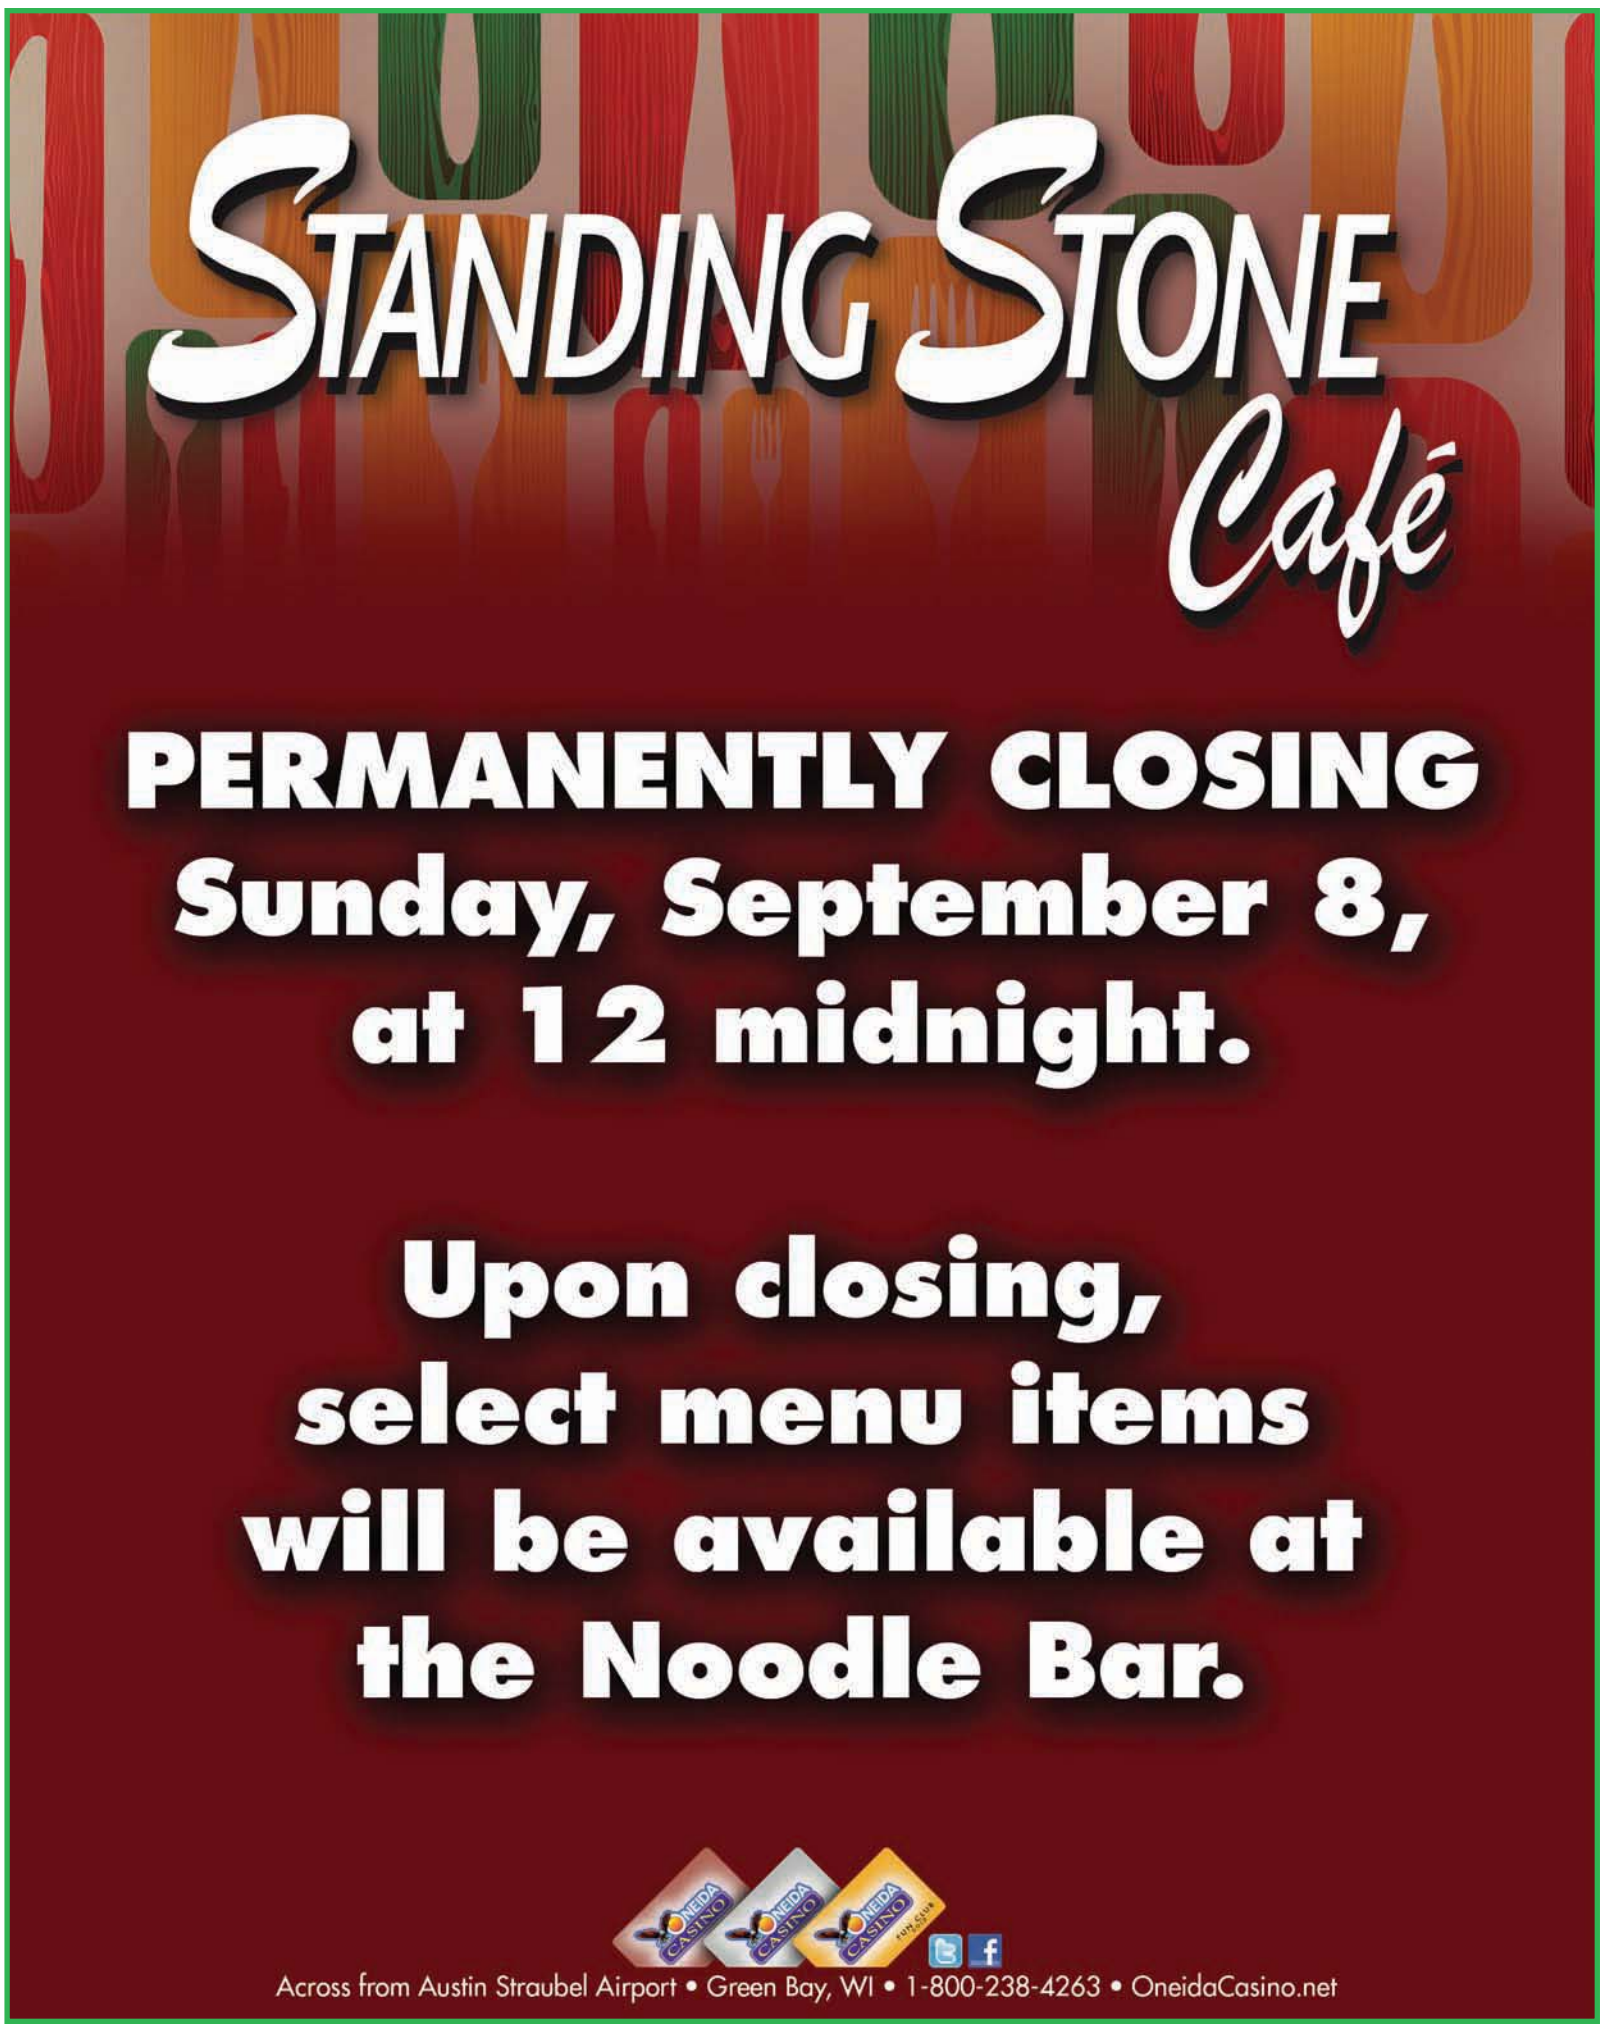
Wampanoag canoe headed to the Smithsonian

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) ~ A traditional Wampanoag canoe made by Plimoth Plantation's Wampanoag Indigenous Program is headed to the Smithsonian.



The canoe, known as a mishoon, will be ready for shipment Thursday.

The Patriot-Ledger reports that the 16-foot canoe and a documentary film about its construction will be brought to the Smithsonian's National Museum of the American Indian in Washington on Friday.

Darius Coombs, associate director of the Wampanoag Indigenous Program, came up with the idea of making a mishoon for donation to the Smithsonian.

He calls the Smithsonian's acceptance of the canoe an honor.

The mishoon is made from a single piece of white pine which is wrapped in clay and burned to create a thick bottom and natural keel.

Extending the Service Core of Oneida

Submitted image

The map of central Oneida depicts current and future projects designed to provide the Oneida community with places to convene in a healthy environment.

By Oneida Planning Department

The Oneida Planning Department utilizes a community based planning process in keeping the Oneida Comprehensive Plan current. A Public Participation Plan was designed to describe ways to create awareness, educate, gather input, and make recommendation for decisions that reflect community values.

Most recently the Oneida Planning Department prepared a Visioning Oneida document to set the framework for an Oneida Community of well-being. A set of six organizing concepts were used and presented to community members at the Division of Land Management Open House on August 15, 2013. The same information was presented to and accepted by the Oneida Business Committee and the Community Development Planning Committee, which is a sub-committee of the Oneida Business Committee. The following are the organizing concepts used in visioning the Central Oneida Community Service Core and reactions to the organizing concepts from the people.

The Diverse Housing Neighborhoods organizing concept includes a variety of house designs with options for home ownership and rental units for Oneida people in multiple income levels. Housing types include single family, duplexes, and apartments and address specific needs of the community such as elders, extended family, and starter homes.

The people's comments on Diverse Housing Neighborhoods were all positive. Input was given to include consideration for additional special needs groups such as single individuals with no children, apartments for single grandparents and people with low income.

The Connecting People organizing concept provides for safe, accessible trails and roads to allow for people to connect to destinations. It also provides an opportunity to get people moving which helps to improve their overall health. People are connected to nature. Through properly planned roads, trails, and sidewalks, opportunities are created to get people walking and talking. People are also connected through transit and public transportation, as well as to the internet.

Input from the people on this organizing concept was very positive because they felt that connectivity leads to good relations in neighborhoods and promotes healthy people. Outdoor gathering areas with shelters, more community meetings, and well groomed trails were suggestions for improvement.

The Nurturing Food Network organizing concept is another connection for the community with the land. It gives community members an opportunity to grow or purchase local healthy food. It also provides for gathering of berries, wild vegetables and medicines for healing. Sovereignty and sustainability are realized by developing the land in Central Oneida to support our local economy and community through a comprehensive food network.

Again, comments from community members were very positive on the nurturing food network organizing concept. Additional comments and ideas from the community included opportunities to learn about gardening, learning about food preparation by individuals, canning on a large scale leading to employment opportunities, and the possibility of a small grocery store.

These are three of the six organizing concepts for developing Central Oneida. Watch for our next article in which we will describe Community Service Core, Extending the Service Core, and Right Sized, Right Place Economics.

You may provide feedback to this article to the Oneida Planning Department by e-mail at jbreunin@oneidanation.org or by telephone at 920-869-4526.

Help USDA Use Section 504 funds

With only three weeks remaining in Fiscal Year 2013, USDA still has a substantial amount of funding available for Section 504 home repair loans. Loan funds not obligated by September 30, 2013 will be lost. Your help in getting out the word and working with USDA Rural Development (RD) to process loan applications is critical. USDA Section 504 loan funds are available in all states.

There is undoubtedly far more need than funds available for this program, which helps very low-income homeowners repair their homes. It would send the wrong message to have these sorely needed funds go unused. Please contact your local USDA RD office and work with them to help very low-income homeowners get their homes repaired

For more information, contact David Webster at 920.869.6184.

US overhauls process for recognizing Indian tribes

By Michael Melia
Associated Press

KENT, Connecticut (AP) ~ His tribe once controlled huge swaths of what is now New York and Connecticut, but the shrunken reservation presided over by Alan Russell today hosts little more than four mostly dilapidated homes and a pair of rattlesnake dens.

The Schaghticoke Indian Tribe leader believes its fortunes may soon be improving. As the U.S. Interior Department overhauls its rules for recognizing American Indian tribes, a nod from the federal government appears within reach, potentially bolstering its claims to surrounding land and opening the door to a tribal-owned casino.

"It's the future generations we're fighting for," Russell said.

The rules floated by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, intended to streamline the approval process, are seen by some as lowering the bar through changes such as one requiring that tribes demonstrate political continuity since 1934 and not "first contact" with European settlers. Across the country, the push is setting up battles with host communities and already recognized tribes who fear upheaval.

In Kent, a small Berkshires Mountains town with one of New England's oldest covered bridges, residents have been calling the selectman's office with their concerns. The tribe claims land including property held by the Kent School, a boarding school, and many residents put up their own money a decade ago to fight a recognition bid by another faction of the Schaghticokes.

Members of the state's congressional delegation also have been in touch with the first selectman, Bruce Adams, who said he fears court battles over land claims and the possibility the tribe would open its own businesses as a sovereign nation within town boundaries.

"Everybody is on board that we have to do what we can to prevent this from happening," he said.

The new rules were proposed in June by the Bureau of Indian Affairs, which invited public comment at hearings over the summer in Oregon, California, Michigan, Maine and Louisiana. President Barack Obama's administration intends to improve a recognition process that has been criticized as slow, inconsistent and overly susceptible to political influence.

Federal recognition, which has been granted to 566 American tribes, is coveted because it brings increased health and education benefits to tribal members in addition to land protections and opportunities for commercial development.

Tribes have been pushing for years for Congress or the Interior Department to revise the process.

"I am glad that the Department is proposing to keep its promise to fix a system that has been broken for years, leaving behind generations of abuse, waste, and broken dreams," wrote Cedric Cromwell, chairman of the Mashpee Wampanoag Tribe in Massachusetts, which was recognized in 2007.

The new rules will create tensions for host communities and some recognized tribes, according to Richard Monette, a law professor and expert on American Indian tribes at the University of Wisconsin. Tribes along the Columbia River in western Washington state, for instance, will be wary of a new tribe at the river's mouth gaining recognition and cutting into their take of salmon. Tribes elsewhere fear encroachment on casino gaming markets.

The salmon-harvesting Muckleshoot Indian Tribe in Washington state argues the new rules seem to lower the threshold for recognition. Tribal chair Virginia Cross wrote to the Interior Department that the changes, if approved, would lead to acknowledgment of groups of descendants who "have neither a history of self-government, nor a clear sense of identity."

In Connecticut, recognition has meant an entry into lucrative gaming markets. Russell, 67, said his 100-member tribe wants its own casino but not on its 400-acre (162-hectare) reservation ringed by the Appalachian Trail. A business consultant for the tribe, Bill Buchanan, said it has spoken with potential investors and, assuming it wins recognition, would like to swap some land, team up with one of Connecticut's bigger cities and perhaps build a casino along a highway.

A rival faction of the tribe, the Schaghticoke Tribal Nation, is hoping the new rules breathe life into its own parallel bid for recognition. The larger STN had the backing of Subway founder Fred DeLuca, who was interested in building a casino in Bridgeport, and it won recognition in 2004. But that decision was reversed after state officials argued the tribe had gaps in evidence related to its historical continuity.

U.S. Sen. Richard Blumenthal said Connecticut's congressional delegation is united against changes that he said would have far-reaching ramifications for several towns and the entire state.

Supporters of the rule change say it helps to remove unfair burdens. Judith Shapiro, an attorney who has worked with several tribes on recognition bids, said some have lost out because records were lost or burned over hundreds of years, and any tribe that was still together by 1934 had overcome histories of mistreatment and pressure to blend in with mainstream society.

The Schaghticoke reservation dates to the mid-1700s, but it has been carved up to a tenth of its original size. As recently as 1960, Russell said, the town fire department would come out to burn down homes on the reservation when tribal members died to prevent others from occupying them.

When Russell's own house burned down in 1998, however, the townspeople from across the Housatonic River helped him to rebuild. Russell, who grew up hunting and fishing on the reservation, said if the tribe wins recognition it can work something out with the town on the land claims.

"That's what I want them to understand," he said. "We're not the enemy."

Chairman's Report

By Ed Delgado
Chairman

CURRENT ISSUES

Oneida Total Intergrated Enterprise (OTIE). According to a recent Milwaukee Journal article, the Oneida owned OTIE corporation has received a $45 million contract to do some engineering work for the Federal government. That amount, though great news, is not counting the expenses that OTIE will incur to carry out the provisions of the contract. In addition, the Tribe's 2014 budget will include a one-half million dollar dividend payment to the Oneida Tribe. After 20 years of bad investments on so many other business initiatives, the OTIE news is such good news to this Chairman and I want to express my support for OTIE, their employees, and their Board of Directors.

Drugs, Alcohol and Gang Activity continues to plague our community and our youth. The recent tragic shooting outside of Bender's Bar in Oneida, I feel, is the result of all three. My questions are: How long will we put up with drugs, alcohol and gang activity in our community; What will leadership do about such activity and; Does the Oneida community have to put up with a bar in the heart of our community that now has had such a tragic event take place right in front of it. Note: The Oneida Business Community is considering filing a formal complaint with the Town of Oneida regarding the licensing of Bender's Bar.

Community Members Want Action, They Want Solutions! Last week a community member and Tribal employee whose job responsibilities cause her to witness the carnage drug and alcohol abuse has upon many of our Indian youth and families, asked that something be done. She called for action in the form of a campaign that would educate our youth and their families about the consequences of drug and alcohol abuse. As a result, the Tribe's communications and social services areas are meeting to plan a strategy to educate our community about what such abuse has done and can do to destroy the future of our young Tribal members. On the issue of gang activity and other possible criminal activity, two Tribal elders have recommended a neighborhood watch program as well as cameras watching and recording activities in some of our neighborhoods where gang activity has been reported.

Cooling Center. Marty Antone, Director of Oneida's Homeland Security and Emergency Management Department, has established a cooling center at the Tribe's Veterans Building. That facility will be available to community members during extremely hot weather. For the week of September 26th, the facility will be open. In Wisconsin, last year 27 people died from the effects of hot weather.

Update on the Removal Petition. On August 21st, the Oneida Appeals Commission (OAC) held a hearing regarding the Brian Doxtator Removal Petition. The decision of the OAC was to conduct another hearing on September 5th. At that hearing, the petitioner will have to prove by a preponderance of the evidence, that his allegations are true. This edition of the Kalihwisaks will contain a paid advertisement regarding what our Ethics Law says about Oneida Customs and Traditions, what the Chairman's responsibilities are under his Job Description, and of course, how I, as Chairman, tried to the best of my ability, to follow these laws while serving and protecting Oneida people, protecting their health and safety, as well as protecting Tribal dollars. I do not know what page the advertisement will be on.

SEPTEMBER'S MESSAGE

The Grace to be Classy, A Daughter Who Loved Her Father. Last winter, we lost Norman Elm. He had slipped on the ice in his driveway. He was loved by his family and his community. As a Tribal elder, his driveway had been cleared but his salt had not been spread on the ice. His daughter came to my office soon after. I have no idea of how it feels to lose a loved one due to an accident. It's so quick. To date, my Creator has protected me from that experience and I am thankful. At the time Lori Elm came to my office, her heart was broken, but she did not place blame. She made no negative comments towards anyone, in fact she recognized the tremendous workload and responsibility that our elder service workers have as they provide services to our elders. She was however, I feel, somewhat tormented or maybe that's part of losing a parent. And I mean tormented in a good way and a loving way towards her feelings for her father. She kept thinking and it kept coming to her over and over again, "What if." "What if someone would have spread that salt over her father's drive way, then perhaps her Dad would still be here." When she left my office, I thought to myself, "What a loving daughter." Last week, I asked Lori if I could write about this. She said yes and hoped that what we learned here could possibly help someone else in the future. It would have been so much easier to blame, but she only thought of helping others in her father's memory. I guess she was raised that way. To walk through life in a loving and caring manner is a blessing left to her by her Dad.

Treasurer's Report

By Cristina Danforth
Oneida Tribal Treasurer

DoeDoes Oneida have an opportunity lost or an opportunity waiting to happen? The news regarding the Menominee Tribe's approval to develop a casino in Kenosha has been granted federal approval. The next step is for the State of Wisconsin under Governor Walker's leadership to approve their casino project. The Menominee's new casino venture will create over 3,000 jobs and generate millions of dollars in revenue for the State. The market potential in Kenosha is tremendous based on their proximity to the Illinois and Wisconsin border. So to say the least, this does have financial implications for our neighboring state. It is my understanding from local news reports that there are discussions with the Menominee Tribe and the Forest County Potawatomi. In the event Menominee and Potawatomi agree not to partner, is this an opportunity for the Oneida Business Committee to pursue? I am hopeful there will be support from the community to create a business opportunity and partnership with the Menominee. Many business, financial and governmental considerations will need to be addressed if this is palatable.

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) recently approved a procedural exception for the Anna John Resident Centered Care Community (AJRCCC) to increase a purchase order (PO) for the remainder of the fiscal year. The PO is to cover cost of temporary agency staff (Certified Nursing Assistants (CNA) Registered Nurses (RN), and Licensed Practical Nurses (LPN)). At the end of this fiscal year the cost for agency staff will be well over 1 million dollars. I did not support this action because I believe 1. Our customers and patients deserve continuity of care. 2. The specific dollar amount for CNA, RN, and LPN were not segregated and therefore it is unknown if the increase will be sufficient. 3. The Finance Department and I have asked several times in the last 2 – 3 years what is the staffing levels that need to be funded at the AJRCCC. 4. A plan and projections for next year have not been received. If bed occupancy is 50% and we are already spending 1 million on staffing what is the expected cost once the AJRCCC is filled? If we continue to allow management to fall short of addressing their needs; when will they learn to be accountable to their budget and the patients they serve? If we had a clear understanding of how many patients are assisted living and how many are nursing care, we at least would have a basis for budget projections. It is imperative that administration plans for the staffing needs at AJRCCC in order to assure that our aging population receives quality and continuity of care. And finally, 5. There were not sufficient funds in the CNA, RN, and LPN line items to increase the PO by $295,000. This in itself is negligent, poor planning and mismanagement of their budget. I know I continue to get scrutinized, chastised and ridiculed by some of my peers and senior management and it stems from my desire to do my job as an OBC member and Treasurer. There are many other side issues related to the PO request to fund temporary staff but I needed to give an understanding of my opposition.

I truly care about the facility, its patients and staff and believe in the benefit it will eventually provide once it is fully operational and at capacity to serve the 48 patients it was built and intended for.

Summary of the Proposal

The Amendments were requested by the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee and Higher Education after the Area Manager for Education and Training overturned a decision by the Higher Education Manager to deny trust scholarship funds to an applicant. The Area Manger of Education and Training overturned the denial of trust scholarship funds due to ambiguities in the Policy's appeals process. These proposed amendments seek to clarify the appeals process by:

- Requiring the Higher Education Manager to handle initial appeals. The current Policy requires the applicant to file an appeal with the Department Director, however that position was changed to the Higher Education Manager position.
- Requiring the Area Manager for Education and Training, instead of the Trust/Enrollment Committee, hear appeals from the Higher Education Manager's decision.
- Extending some time frames from calendar days to working days. The current Policy requires an applicant to appeal to the Oneida Trust/Enrollment Committee within ten calendar days; however, the proposed amendments require an applicant to appeal to the Area Manager for Education and Training within ten working days

The Public Meeting materials, including the draft proposal, legislative analysis and any other relevant documents, will be made available at the Public Meeting, or can be obtained in advance through the Legislative Reference Office. The Public Meeting materials are also available on the Tribal Website at:

Casino smoking an issue with Foxwoods workers

By Stephen Singer
Associated Press

MASHANTUCKET, Conn. (AP) ~ The smell of cigarette smoke hung heavily over the Great Cedar Hall at Foxwoods Resort Casino one recent weekday morning, as gamblers lit up freely in the cavernous slots machine room. Ventilation that workers say has improved over the years was keeping the smell to a minimum and eliminating what might otherwise have been clouds of smoke hanging over the giant room.

Though a union contract will bring table game dealers increased wages and other benefits, workers will still have to breathe in gamblers' smoke. Because Indian sovereignty prevails, state law banning indoor smoking in most Connecticut businesses does not apply to Foxwoods, which is owned by the Mashantucket Pequot tribe.

The employees' union, the United Auto Workers, has been able to negotiate improved air filters and regular maintenance schedules.

"It's part of the job," said Kathleen McNamara, a server who has worked at Foxwoods for 10 years.

Some areas at Foxwoods reserved for nonsmokers, and McNamara - a smoker who's trying to quit - said she can spend some time in smoke-free environments during her six-hour shift. Still, she said she's happy with her work.

In the contract overwhelmingly ratified by workers in recent voting, the UAW won an 11.5 percent wage increase over four years and the right for dealers to decide how to distribute tips.

But state Sen. Terry Gerratana, Senate chairwoman of the legislature's Public Health Committee, said lawmakers are stymied by tribal law, which can dictate things like smoking.

"It's like us telling Ireland what they can and can't do," she said.

Foxwoods did not respond to a request for comment.

Without a law in its toolbox, the state negotiated voluntary agreements several years ago with Foxwoods and neighboring Mohegan Sun that limit smoking areas. Then-Gov. M. Jodi Rell worried in 2009 about the prospect of a legal battle and the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars in slots revenue. The Mohegan tribal chairman threatened to withhold the state's share of slots machine revenue over a possible smoking ban and to sue in federal court.

Full smoking bans are not common at commercial casinos. The prospect of lost revenue has prodded local and state officials to exempt casinos from full smoking bans that are in place nearly everywhere else.

Pennsylvania law allows casinos to permit smoking on 50 percent of gaming floors.

Local law in Atlantic City, N.J., restricts smoking to no more than 25 percent of casinos and Nevada bans smoking in all areas of grocery and convenience stores, including gambling areas. But the state allows smoking in casino gambling areas where children are barred by law from loitering.

Nevada casinos also may designate separate areas such as poker rooms to be smoke-free.

Cynthia Hallett, executive director of Americans for Nonsmokers' Rights, said smoking in casinos is an issue because the number of casinos is increasing in the United States.

David Schwartz, director of the Center for Gaming Research at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas, said revenue has fallen in several states that banned smoking at casinos. As a result, lawmakers are reluctant to impose further restrictions, he said.

A significant, but unspecified, portion of gamblers smoke, leading researchers to see a link between smoking and gambling, Schwartz said.

"You gamble longer if you're smoking," he said.

For example, Atlantic City's Revel Casino-Hotel, which is competing with other casinos in the city known for gambling, is allowing smoking on the casino floor for the first time as one strategy to hold on to customers. A spokeswoman said the casino would not comment.

A Montana ban on smoking in taverns and casinos resulted in a steep revenue drop. In the state's 2010 budget year immediately after the ban took effect, video gambling machine taxes were $52.4 million, a 16 percent decline from the previous year.

Rick Ask, administrator of the Gambling Control Division of the Montana Department of Justice, said the weak economy was a factor but most of the revenue drop was the result of the state smoking law.

But casino operators don't believe they are losing potential customers as a result of smoking limits or bans, Ask said.

"Most would say, 'Those are not my customers,'" he said.

Clyde Barrow, director of the Center for Policy Analysis at UMass Dartmouth, said studies disprove the industry's argument that smokers gamble more frequently than nonsmokers. And he contended the recession and weak economic recovery - not smoking - are to blame for falling casino revenue.

Editor's Corner

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks Managing Editor
dwalschi@oneidanation.org

With the Football Team Whose Mascot Must Not Be Named visiting Green Bay soon, it brings the topic of Native American mascots to the top of my mind. Specifically, it brings to mind the supporters of such mascots' response when confronted by the fact that calling someone by the color of their skin might be considered rude.

"Don't you Indians have bigger things to worry about?" is a refrain I've heard from time to time.

Yes, yes we do.

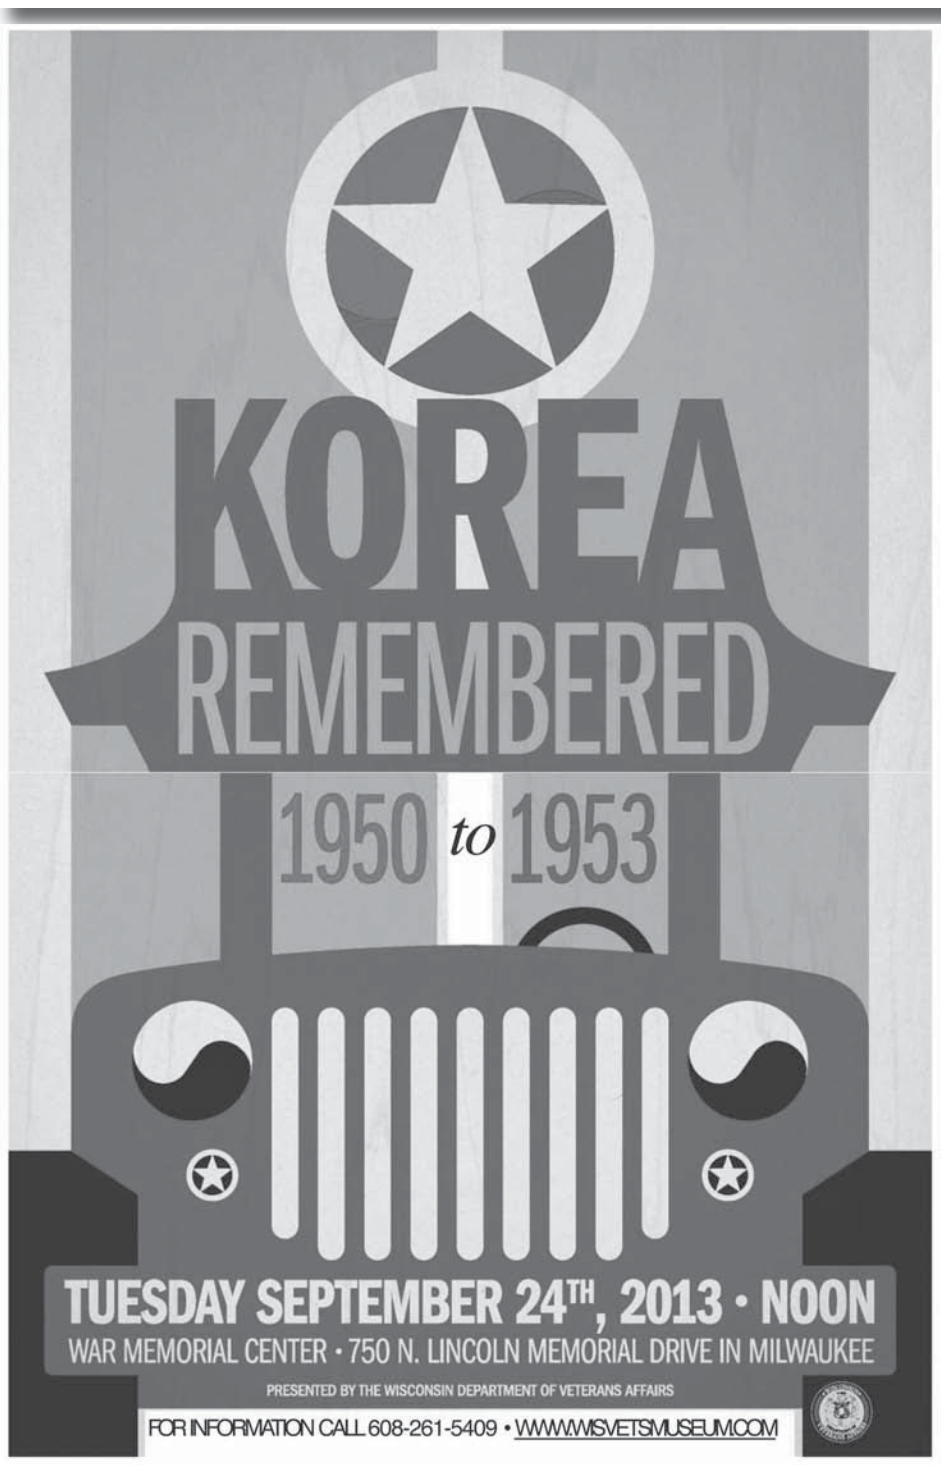
Discrimination, poverty, endemic alcohol and drug abuse, and even under the best of circumstances Native Americans suffer higher rates of diabetes and the health problems that go with it than other Americans.

So, Mr. Wears-Chicken-Feathers, which problem do you want to tackle first? They're all hard, complicated, long term problems that will take time, money, resources and effort, but if you dedicate your warrior spirit to the fight, I'm sure we'll find a light at the end of the tunnel.

What's that, Mrs. Paints-Her-Face-for-Game-Day? It's not your problem? Well, you asked about our bigger problems, so I thought you might actually care about the people you pretend to be on Sundays.

All you Chiefs, Indians, Warriors, Red Men, and appropriators of tribal names, I ask you, what has all your headdresses and tomahawk chops done to help Native Americans? Have you represented them in an educated and responsible manner? Nope. Provided gainful employment and economic opportunities? Nah-uh. Built up the self-esteem of Native children in our education system? Studies show quite the opposite effect.

What have you done to deserve theses names, titles, face paint and fake feathers? Have you gone to a sweat? Have you fasted? Have you survived centuries of fatal viruses, warfare, termination attempts, forced assimilation, the loss of language and culture, and the ongoing onslaught on our rights and identity?



Tell you what, do one of those things, and/or cure diabetes, and we'll talk.

Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve Oneida Neighborhood Development Team's recommendation for Fitzgibbons & Associates contract as approved by Community Development Planning Committee, seconded by Brandon Stevens. Motion carried with two opposed:
Opposed: Tina Danforth, Paul Ninham
For the record: Tina Danforth stated I am opposing this request because it has no measurable deliverables pending this contract completion. I'm also opposing it because the time frame is eight months and I think if we're going to have anything for implementation it needs to be completed no later than January, rather than April as designated.
2. Approve Attorney Robert Collins contract for Family Court Judge
Sponsor: Jo Anne House
Motion by Paul Ninham to approve Family Court Judge contract with Judge Robert Collins, seconded by Brandon Stevens. Motion carried with one opposed:
Opposed: Tina Danforth
For the record: Tina Danforth stated I'm opposing because there is a specific item that I requested be addressed regarding supervision.
3. Approve limited waiver of sovereign immunity for Pitney Bowes contract
Sponsor: Joanie Buckley
Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve a limited waiver of sovereign immunity for contract #2013-0892, Pitney Bowes, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried unanimously
4. Approve Attorney Charlene Smith three-year-extension to contract
Sponsor: Joanie Buckley
Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve three year extension to Attorney Contract with Charlene Smith, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried unanimously
5. Approve limited waiver of sovereign immunity for MIS contracts #2013-0853, #2013-0884, #2013-0885, #2013-0910
Sponsor: Jo Anne House
Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve a limited waiver of sovereign immunity with MIS contracts #2013-0853, #2013-0884, #2013-0885, #2013-0910, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried with one abstention:
Abstained: Tina Danforth
6. Approve limited waiver of sovereign immunity for Philips Healthcare contract
Sponsor: Debra Danforth/ Dr. Vir
Motion by David Jordan to approve a limited waiver of sovereign immunity for contract #2013-0530, Philips Healthcare, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried unanimously
7. Approve limited waiver of sovereign immunity for Envision Rx Options Inc.
Sponsor: Debra Danforth/ Dr. Vir
Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve a limited waiver of sovereign immunity for contract #2013-0146, Envision Rx Options Inc., seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried unanimously
8. Approve limited waiver of sovereign immunity for Trilogy Healthcare contract
Sponsor: Debra Danforth/ Dr. Vir
Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve a limited waiver of sovereign immunity for contract #2013-0740, Trilogy Healthcare, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried with one abstention:
Abstained: Tina Danforth
9. Status report on Family Court and proposed amendments to law
Sponsor: Melinda J. Danforth
Motion by Patty Hoeft to accept the report, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried unanimously
10. Discuss concerns about Anna John Resident Centered Community Care facility, operation and federal funding
Sponsor: Ed Delgado
Motion by Patty Hoeft to accept the report, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried unanimously
For the record: Tina Danforth stated I have a question about our conversation yesterday on the concerns around the Anna John Resident Care Center and it was around the Director of Nursing hiring. I think we need to ask that be reconsidered to be filled by a tribal member and that there needs to be some discussion and that this position be held on hold until that conversation can be concluded because I think this is a prime opportunity where we need to have our own tribal nurses in charge of taking care of our tribal patients in our own tribal facility and that we are finding ways to restrict people, rather than to help them be a part of the programs.
For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I believe we need a qualified individual that meets the standards that the assisted living facility needs to operate the facility and I don't think the administration is trying to find ways to circumvent the process, they are looking for a qualified individual.
11. FY2013 Employment, Compensation & Benefits – Geraldine Danforth, HR Area Manager
a. Risk Management: Workforce level change from Risk Management Insurance Clerk to Museum Interpreter-Cultural for limited-term-employee for duration of agreement Motion by Patty Hoeft to delete from agenda, seconded by David Jordan. Motion carried unanimously
b. Tribal Chairman: Request to change Tribal Chairman (2) Senior Policy Advisor positions from part-time to full-time due to increased work load
Sponsor: Ed Delgado
Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve the request to change Tribal Chairman (2) Senior Policy Advisor positions from part-time to full-time due to increased work load. Motion failed due to no second.
Motion by Tina Danforth to deny the request, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carried with one opposed:
Opposed: Patty Hoeft
For the record: Patty Hoeft stated each Business Committee member is allowed to hire who they want. They get to pick that person and no one has a say about who they pick and that's how I'm treating this issue, because there is some disagreement about how you're staffing the office.
For the record: Tina Danforth stated I voted the way I did because this is a budget consideration. We just had this conversation when we approved the budget this morning, to have some kind of monitoring of the expenditure of the budget around employment and cost and this is not a budgeted item that's being asked of us. It's not about who, it's about cost.

Adjourn
Motion by Paul Ninham to adjourn at 12:41 p.m., seconded by Brandon Stevens. Motion carried unanimously Minutes Approved as presented/corrected on Aug. 28, 2013.

Notice of Public Meeting

Topic: Proposed Amendments to the Drug and Alcohol Free Workplace Policy

When & Where:
Thursday, September 19, 2013 at 12:15 p.m.
OBC Conference Room

Comments accepted through September 26, 2013
Those who cannot attend the Public Meeting may submit written comments regarding this legislative proposal. Those who attend the Public Meeting may also submit written comments and/or a written transcript of their testimony from the meeting. All written submissions must be received by the last day of the Public Comment Period.

Summary of the Proposal

The proposed amendments to the Drug and Alcohol Free Workplace Policy (Policy) would update the Policy throughout. The main amendments include:

- Adding a definition for "prohibited drugs" and including provisions to address prescription and over-the counter medications.
- Prohibiting employees from using intoxicants or prohibited drugs while on official business travel and the conference or meeting they are attending is in session.
- Applying the Policy to job applicants and employees. The current policy only applies to employees.
- Expanding the scope of the Policy to include pre-employment testing, return-to-work/follow-up testing, and work-related accident testing; as well as new testing requirements for former employees who were terminated for violating this Policy but who are seeking re-hire.
- Authorizing a supervisor to send an employee for "random suspicion" drug testing without receiving approval from the supervisor's superior first.
- Limiting the back pay an employee can receive while suspended pending testing results so an employee would not receive back pay for work missed due to the employee's choice to delay the process.

Inventor of Goldieblox Toys to appear at SNC Day

DEPERE, WIS.: Debbie Sterling, the inventor of Goldieblox toys, and founder and CEO of Goldieblox, Inc., will be on hand for the Midwest launch of the toys at SNC Day on Saturday, Sept. 21, at 11 a.m. Goldieblox toys are designed to inspire young girls to become engineers; they consist of a series of interactive books and construction toys starring Goldie, a curious girl with a love of engineering. Sterling graduated from Stanford University with an engineering degree.

The launch will take place in St. Norbert College's new Cassandra Voss Center, home to the Joan P. Schaupp Women's Center, St. Norbert College Men's Initiative, and the college's women's and gender studies discipline.

For more information on Sterling and her toy company GoldieBlox, go to www.goldieblox.com.

For more information on SNC Day, visit the website at www.sncday.com or contact Mike Counter in the office of communications at 920-403-3089.

More about Debbie Sterling:

Debbie Sterling has made it her mission in life to tackle the gender gap in science, technology, engineering and math. GoldieBlox is a book series plus construction set that engages kids to build through the story of Goldie, the girl inventor who solves problems by building simple machines. Sterling writes and illustrates Goldie's stories, taking inspiration from her grandmother, one of the first female cartoonists and creator of "Mr. Magoo". Her company, launched in 2012, raised over $285,000 in 30 days through Kickstarter, and has been featured in numerous publications.

Chairman Ed Delgado
Supports the GTC

In July 2011, the Oneida Tribal members voted in the Tribe's very first primary election for their Business Committee. Following the nominations in March of that year, and the run off of four candidates for Chair in May, there remained two candidates for Chair, and Ed Delgado was elected the Tribe's very first majority Chair. Delgado ran on a campaign of supporting the GTC, stopping bad investments that benefitted only a few, providing more housing opportunities, and espousing a platform "FOR THE PEOPLE." For the first time, the Oneida Tribe had a Chair elected by the majority of the Oneida people.

When Delgado came to office, he introduced a clear-minded and honest approach to following the laws of the Oneida Tribe and protecting the people and the resources of the Oneida people, all the people, not just a few of the "entitled ones."

In January, 2013, plans to build an "incinerator" near the Turtle School, in the old Water Circle Grocery Store, in the wetlands, and on land that had been hastily re-zoned from light commercial to industrial, and the Chairman said that this land was not the best location. In May, 2013, the GTC determined that Seven Generations could not build an incinerator at this location or anywhere else on the reservation. Chairman Delgado was the only Business Committee member to publicly support the decision of the General Tribal Council to stop this dioxin-emitting project.

Now, the Chairman, stands falsely accused of violating ethics laws of this Tribe for seeking fairness and fiscal responsibility for a building in Milwaukee, carrying out duty and responsibility of Traditional Leaders by being responsive to the safety of Tribal member's who faced life-changing events, and supporting a sweat group receiving wood one time for 20 years of conducting ceremonies. A tribal member from another Tribe said, "What is going on in Oneida that it is wrong to show compassion for your people?"

Chairman Ed Delgado is innocent of any wrongdoing, and yet must face the wrath of those who do not support the health and safety of our children, our elders, our land, and our resources, stipends for the GTC, and those who refuse to honor the supreme governing body of the Oneida people. September 5, 2013, is the day the Petitioner to remove Chairman Delgado from office must prove that our strong and wise Chairman broke laws when he acted to safeguard our people and our resources.

Junior Golf Program wraps up 5th year

The Oneida Junior Golf Program at Thornberry Creek at Oneida recently wrapped up another successful year.

Every Friday morning was set aside exclusively for the Oneida Tribal juniors to receive instruction and also play on the Iroquois 9 hole Golf Course from the middle of June to early August. The instructors are PGA Professionals and Apprentices, along with accomplished golfers in the area. The Oneida Family Fitness is the main sponsor of the program to keep entry fees low for Oneida Tribal Members. In addition to the 7 week program, there is also a Junior Championship played in August and also a Parent-Child, Alternate shot tournament in August.

The program concluded on August 2nd.

The Junior program has received awards over the years, both statewide and also nationally from the WPGA and also the PGA/US Kids Golf. "We are very proud of the program here at Thornberry Creek," said Mark Becker, Director, Thornberry Creek at Oneida. The program teaches nearly 250 kids each year and includes instruction not only to improve golf games, but also life lessons involving, honesty, integrity, perseverance, determination and respect for each other and respect for the golf course.

"Make sure to sign up and join in on the fun in 2014!", added Becker.

Volleyball elevates to varsity play

Oneida captain Yasmine Denny rises up for a spike over a Bay City Bobcat defender.

The Oneida Nation High School girls volleyball program took steps forward last season as they successfully competed at the junior varsity level. However, this season the Lady T-Hawks find themselves playing at the varsity level.

To help with the transition to a higher level of volleyball the team had 16 players go out for the team, a number much higher than past seasons.

Oneida Head Coach, Kayla Osterberg in her sophomore season, loves the new additions to the team.

"There is a much better turn out than last year. We have a lot of younger girls, a lot of freshmen, and then we also have three transfers. We have a new assistant coach this year, Lauren Mills, so there are quite a few new faces this season. I can see right away that there has been a lot of improvement from last year," Osterberg said.

Much of that improvement has been attributed to the leadership of the upperclassmen.

Senior captains Yasmine Denny and Muriel King acknowledge that they make an effort to push the team to improve.

"As the captains I think we kind of push the girls to work harder or give it their all. We are trying to get better and if we're not pushing ourselves then we aren't getting any better. But it seemed like once we got behind them and encouraged them they did a lot better," Denny said.

With improvement in mind the team captains believe this will help the team be successful down the road.

"The new players seem like they are adjusting pretty good and getting better. That's good because we are on the varsity level this year and we're in a conference so it helps to have a lot of good players," King added.

The time spent improving one another in practice showed during the team's first tournament of the season as they took a tough Hilbert team to overtime. Although the Lady T-Hawks came up short they saw that they could compete at the varsity level.

"The girls played really well, improved, and stepped up their game. Our teamwork was good. We worked with different hitting approaches and lineups to see where girls will fit best in the lineup," Osterberg said.

As for the ultimate goal for the season, the seniors want to earn some playoff success.

"We at least get a playoff regional game this year because we are in a conference so I want to get passed at least one round in the playoffs. Then see how far we can go," Denny said.

"I also want to improve our spiking to make sure we are always able to get points," King added.

Isaiah Charles looks for a lane to run through against the Wayland Academy defense.

The Oneida Nation Thunderhawks football team played their home-opener on Friday, August 30th against Wayland Academy. Oneida dug themselves into a hole in the first half trailing 28-8 at the halfway mark. In the second half the T-Hawks clamped down on defense and mounted a comeback. Oneida managed to hang on and win the first home game of the season by a final score of 34-28.

Rauschenbach says Yawʌ́ko for time as Athletic Director

The Oneida Nation High School Athletic Department has been going through many positive changes this past year and all are on a positive path enabling our youth more opportunities to grow.

The 8-man football league has really opened up within the state. The main factor is that the WIAA has officially recognized the 8 man and more schools with low enrollment numbers are becoming involved with it thus creating excellent opportunities for conference titles and recognition.

In addition, our basketball program continues to grow in strides due our successes and competition the past few years. A huge Thank You to Ms. Coach Betters and Ms. Margaret Ellis for laying the groundwork in our girls program and putting us on the map.

We are looking to be placed into conference realignment this upcoming year, which is huge for our program as it will create a consistent schedule and conference title opportunities for our kids.

Lisa Rauschenbach

Another huge milestone this past year was being accepted into the Bay Valley Lacrosse Association for Lacrosse. Our boys and coaches have really made tremendous improvements to show others what Oneida is all about and we are all very proud.

Our volleyball program has moved to the varsity level this year as well and we continue to have confidence softball will be there soon as well.

All of these things show that our commitment to providing a total education experience for Oneida youth is working.

As all these new changes have started to take place, I have decided to step down in my role as Athletic Director.

I have met some really great people along the way, established some great friendships and learned so much but it is time for me to focus my attention on my own family and children's educational experiences as they grow.

It has not been an easy decision for many reasons but mostly because of the time, energy and devotion I have placed into the Department the past few years and the bonds that I have created with so many of the people I have worked with and met along the way.

My husband, my family and I have spent a great deal of time and placed a lot of devotion to the program and in return have all become T-Hawks at heart.

There are many people that I need to give thanks to for all that they have helped me or the department with.

For starters I would like to thank the Oneida Nation High School for the opportunity to serve as the Athletic Director the past 3 years. I would also like to personally thank former ONHS principal, Bob Ganka for believing in me and giving me the opportunity to serve as the Athletic Director. His charisma and character for the school were great motivators to me as I started the position.

I would also like to thank my coaches whom often do not get recognized for all the time and effort that they put forth in being good role models and motivating our youth and for their constant pursuing of the betterment of the Athletic Program. They are: Bryan Peterson, Bob Sundquist, Kayla Osterberg, Lauren Mills, Jamie Betters, Margaret Stevens, Alana Dallas, Scott Murray, Mike King, Curt Summers, Johnson Jamison, Ces Dawson & Eric Rauschenbach. Each of you has made a difference and I wish to give thanks to you for your help and dedication to the ONHS Athletics.

For those new coaches, we are excited to bring you on to the team. To all the workers; Larry Cornelius, John Powless, Apache Danforth, Paula Fish, Heather Powless, George Powless, Sally Hill, Tom Kenote, Eric Rauschenbach, Kyle Wisneski, and office personnel: Sue Doxtator, Nancy Blashka, Debbie Reiter – Mejohah, Carol Martin, and Sheri Mousseau, a huge THANK YOU! I couldn't have done it without you.

Additionally I would like to thank Art Skenandore for being so supportive and really standing behind ONHS Athletics and the decisions we have made together the past year. I believe that his passion and drive for the program will take the Athletic Department and School to new heights and am looking forward to watching it grow. It is because of him I am confident in walking away.

Lastly I would like to thank the parents and students of Oneida Nation High School. I am humbled to been have given the opportunity to work with so many great kids that are willing to push through the many obstacles that high schoolers go through today. Keep pushing hard and shine! I will always have T-Hawks in my wardrobe.

Petition to remove Chairman Delgado dismissed

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

The Oneida Appeals Commission ruled that a petition seeking the removal of Oneida Tribal Chairman Ed Delgado will not move forward to the General Tribal Council (GTC).

The decision, released Tuesday, September 10, states petitioner Brian Doxtator didn't prove with clear and convincing evidence that laws and procedures were broken after a two-day trial hearing on September 5 and 6.

The trial hearing centered around five occurrences where Doxtator alleged Chairman Delgado broke the tribe's code of ethics and violated a 1982 GTC resolution stating the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) is directed to stay out of day-to-day activities within the tribe.

A family was provided firewood for a sweat lodge. They were initially denied due to the request falling outside of the Environmental Health and Safety's policies and procedures. Policy allows sweat lodges used for wellness programs, funeral burns, and elders who use wood to heat their homes to benefit from the service.

After being denied, a family sweat lodge complained to Chairman Delgado's office. Chairman Delgado met with Environmental Health and Safety's Area Manager Pat Pelky and expressed his opinion that group's request for two cord of wood should be granted.

Pelky recommended that if the Chairman's office would recognize the family for their years of service with a certificate of appreciation wood could be provided as a token of appreciation. The wood was then donated.

Doxtator contended that this was a violation as he directed the wood to be given outside of policy.

The Oneida Appeals Commission ruling stated, "Mr. Pelky stated if one wanted to recognize a community member for their work they have done in the community a certificate of appreciation could be issued to receive firewood. This is what happened. There was not evidence that Chairman Delgado had a special connection to this family therefore, Section 3.3-3(a)(2) was not violated."

Section 3.3-3(a)(2) of the code of ethics states that elected officials should avoid participation in action or decision making (except where participation is in accordance with the traditions of the tribe) that would present an appearance of conflict of interest or an actual of conflict of interest.

Doxtator claims that violations were made during the pre-build

Great Nations Gather by the Great Lakes

Indian Summer Festival 2013

Kali photos/Yvonne Kaquatosh

Great Lakes – Great Nations was the theme for the 27th Annual Indian Summer Festival that was held on September 6–8, 2013. As the last Festival on Milwaukee's Lakefront, festival goers are treated to the sights and sounds of Native American Music, Traditional dancers and culture that is embraced with pride amongst the native people. The Oneida, Ojibwe and the Menominee tribe set up mini villages to educate the non-Indian visitors who attended. Traditional Smoke dancers performed all weekend at the Oneida Village and shared the platform with the Oneida Singers of Milwaukee and Storytelling by Oneida tribal members. Artists displayed their crafts for the viewing public and along side a traditional Oneida Longhouse.

Additional photos from the event can be viewed on Oneida Life and on page 8 & 9B.

The sand flew easily from the shovels at the ground breaking held Monday, September 9 that kicked off construction of an 18 acre lake at 6263 County Highway U. Oneida Business Committee (OBC) Greg Matson stated the Oneida Fisheries Restoration Project will provide opportunities for recreation for Oneida area residents.

"This is really going to move us forward on community development,

The University of Wisconsin-Green Bay (UWGB) hosted educational forums on the issue of Indian mascots ahead of Sunday's Green Bay Packers - Washington football game. Richie Plass, seated far right, spoke with students and visitors and shared his Bittersweet Winds exhibit. The exhibit is a mix of Native American images and cultural items mixed with stereotypical images and sports logos.

Summit focus on being Oneida

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks
nwisnes@oneidanation.org

A day-long conversation between Oneida tribal citizens centered around the sustainability of the Oneida Tribe and what it means to be Oneida.

The conference, called the Sustain Oneida Summit was held Saturday, September 7 at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center. It was presented by the Oneida Trust and Enrollment Committee.

"Our goal was to start the conversation and awareness on enrollment criteria," said Carole Liggins, Chairperson of the Oneida Trust and Enrollment Committee. "We felt this was the first step of many to bring that awareness to as many Oneidas as possible. If we remain with our current enrollment eligibility of quarter degree Oneida blood quantum, we will self terminate. All together we had 101 participants, which we felt was a significant number for our first gathering."

The summit featured presenters along with small group work where participants could focus and voice their opinion on what it means to be Oneida along with their ideas on Oneida's future.

Passing On...

Bente, Maxine M.

December 19, 1943 – September 13, 2013

Maxine M. Bente, age 69 of the Town of Wescott, Shawano, passed away peacefully, surrounded by her loving family on Friday evening, September 13, 2013 at the Theda Clark Regional Medical Center in Neenah.

Maxine was born December 19, 1943 in Green Bay, Wisconsin, a daughter of the late Lester and Rose (Cooper) Skenandore.

Maxine attended the West De Pere High School, and later the Milwaukee Vocational School.

On November 13, 1962 she was united in marriage to Ken Bente in Waukegan, Illinois. Following their marriage the couple lived in Milwaukee until 1974. Maxine along with her family then moved to West Bend, Wisconsin. While living in West Bend, Maxine was employed at the West Bend YMCA, a job she truly loved. The couple relocated to the Town of Wescott in 2000.

Maxine spent most of her time as wife, mother and homemaker, staying home to care for her family.

Maxine was an excellent seamstress and enjoyed knitting, crocheting and also was an avid painter. She had a great eye for interior decorating as well. Maxine an excellent story teller and had a great sense of humor. She was a warm hearted and caring person who will be missed by all who knew her.

Left to cherish her memory are her husband, Ken Bente of the Town of Wescott, her three Children, Stephanie (Joseph) Prescott of Pinellas Park, Florida, Laurie (Tim) Arndt of Huntersville, North Carolina and Thomas Bente (special friend Tammy Freund) of Fond du Lac, Wisconsin. Nine grandchildren, one great-grandson. Three brothers, Reggie Skenandore, Kenny Skenandore and Roger (Donna) Skenandore. She is also survived by nine sisters, Dorothy Gruetzmacher, Gerry Weller, Pat (Jack) Whitson, Mary (Bob) Gaetz, Judy Skenandore, Janice Prohazka, Jacqui (Donn) Pozan, Suzy (Dave) Martinson and Kathy Skenandore. A very special nephew, Steve (Kathy) Bransted. She is further survived by many nieces, nephews and dear friends.

Maxine was preceded in death by her parents, a son, Kenneth in infancy and one daughter, Kimberly Bente. Also two brothers, William and Ronnie Skenandore.

In keeping with her wishes, Private family funeral services have been held.

Schroeder-Mickelson Funeral Service of Shawano is in charge of the service arrangements for Maxine.

Skenandore, Lydia

December 19, 1943 – September 16, 2013

Lydia Skenandore, 101, of Oneida, passed away quietly Monday evening September 16, 2013 at a local nursing home. The daughter of the late William and Mary Metoxen was born January 13, 2013 in Oneida. She married James Skenandore in 1934. He preceded her in death on October 7, 1997.

She lived in Chicago prior to moving back to Oneida over 50 years ago.

Survivors include her three children, Larry Skenandore, Diane Van Straten, and Roxanne Waterloo, as well as many grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She is also survived by one sister, Sadie. She was preceded in death by her parents, husband, James and five children, one granddaughter, Amberly Skenandore, and seven siblings.

Family and Friends may have called at RYAN FUNERAL HOME , 305 North Tenth Street, De Pere from 5:00 to 8:00 pm on Wednesday September 18, 2013 (TODAY). Oneida Hymn Singers sang at 6:30 pm. Parish prayer service was held at 7:00 pm. Visitation continued after 9:00 am Thursday at Oneida United Methodist Church, Freedom Road, Oneida until time of service. Funeral Services were held at 11:00 am Thursday at the Church with Pastor Candace Ascher, officiating. Burial was held on Friday at St. Michael's Cemetery in Palatine, IL. Please visit www.ryanfh.com to send online condolences to the Skenandore family.

Obituaries...

There is no charge for obituary notices to be published in the Kalihwisaks for enrolled Oneida members.

Number of suicides in Brown County raising concern

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) ~ Brown County has averaged nearly one suicide per week this year, raising fresh concerns from a local suicide-prevention coalition.

There have been 28 suicides in the county through August, which is one more than all of 2011, the Press-Gazette Media reported. At that pace there would be 42 by the end of the year, topping the peak of 40 suicides from 2007.

"We're seeing a trend again that we don't like," county medical examiner Al Klimek said.

A suicide-prevent coalition that was put together in 2007 has begun stepping up its efforts to address factors that can lead to suicide.

The efforts include educational outreach to groups and residents throughout the city. Coalition members offer training sessions to help people recognize signs that someone might be suicidal, and let them know where they can refer individuals who need help.

More than 8,500 people in the community have been trained in the program, Klimek said.

Crisis Center of Family Services provides professional short-term counseling 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Over the past 18 months the center has averaged 170 face-to-face meetings per month related to suicide, program director Tana Koss said. That's a 25 percent increase over other years.

God saw I was getting tired
As He put his arms around me,
He whispered,
'Come with me'.

There is a place for you in heaven
Where there is no suffering, no pain.
All you have to do is look up to the sky
And know that you will see me.

I am an Angel in the stars
What a great place to be.
I am an Angel of God and a sparkle
I shall be.

Know that I'm watching over you
Just look up and see
I'm looking over you
Please don't be sad for me.

I'm your Angel in the stars
Where I am happy now.
You will see, and one day
You will be with me.

The Day God took you home

A million times
We've needed you
A million times we've cried,
If love alone could've saved you
You never would have died.

In Life we loved you dearly,
In death we love you still.
In our hearts you hold a place,
No one else could ever fill.

It broke our hearts
to lose you,
But you didn't go alone
Part of us went with you,
The day God took you home.

You're loved and missed each and every day,
May you continue to watch over us.
Love, Mike (Lisa), Lyle (Tera), Jerry (Tami),

In Loving Memory of...

Roberta Denny

I called 1-800-Heaven
today,
A soft and gentle voice
answered and said,
"Hello, you have reached heaven,"
I said "is Roberta Denny there?
Would you please tell her Arlene,
Darlene and Georgia called to wish her a Happy Birthday,"

And then a voice at the other end, said "I'm here!"

It's been 28 years since you were called away,
But we think of you every day,

The walks and all those good times we shared,
You are never forgotten,
You're always in our hearts,
And on this special day,
We called to wish you
A Happy 56 Birthday,
And we love you and
miss you every day,

And she said
"Thank you, I love you, too!"
"You're missed so much, but you're not forgotten,
"Hey, before I hang up, could you tell Mama & Dad & Sonny Mute
we all said Hello?"
And she said "sure, no problem."

OBC approves new judiciary building

By Dawn Walschinski

The Oneida Business Committee, back two rows, honored long time employees at the Wednesday, September 11 meeting.

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) approved plans to renovate the old Human Resources Department (HRD) building for use as the new home of the Oneida Judiciary at the Wednesday, September 11 meeting.

Present: Chairman Ed Delgado, Vice Chairman Greg Matson, Secretary Patty Hoeft, Council members Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens; Not present: Treasurer Tina Danforth.

With the creation of a new Oneida Judicial System coming next fall, the OBC approved a Capital Improvement Plan (CIP) to renovate the property on Frontage Road off of Packerland Drive to be used as the new court house. However, Oneida Citizen Chris Cornelius expressed concern over the location of the building, preferring that the court be housed near the Oneida Police Department (OPD).

"I do not believe, as a General Tribal Council (GTC) member, that the City of Green Bay is an appropriate place for our judicial system," she said.

Councilman David Jordan responded that the building is on the reservation and OPD would have jurisdiction there. He also stated that the building had adequate space and separate entrances for additional security.

"It fits the needs," said Jordan.

Comprehensive Health Division Director Debra Danforth and Medical Director Dr. Ravinder Vir reported the transition of residents of the old Anna John Nursing Home to the new Anna John Resident Center Care Community (AJRCCC) on June 12 went smoothly and impressed observers from the Wisconsin Long Term Care Ombudsman Office.

The OBC adopted a resolution that set the interest rates for small business loan at one percent over prime rather than having a set percentage, and established a set aside budget for developing a Food Hub initiative.

The OBC also set three GTC meeting dates. A special GTC meeting was scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 27, 2013 to approve the semi-annual report, and hear three petitions, and two referendum questions. Another special GTC meeting was set for Sunday, Nov. 17 to hear two petitions and two referendum questions. Finally, a special GTC meeting for a petition to dissolve Oneida Seven Generations was scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 15.

Regulation changes for Food Distribution

By Don P. Miller
Director, Food Distribution Program

Greetings,

It's the start of a change in the weather and a new Fall season is upon us. A time to experience the coming of the Fall colors so prevalent this time of the year. With a new school year starting as well, it poses additional responsibilities/duties not only for parents but for all school staff also. Then too, a start of a new football season is underway including high school, college, and professional teams.

Speaking of changes, there have been some recent changes made by USDA effective October of this year regarding eligibility, that includes additional income deductions authorized for medical costs incurred in excess of $35 for households with elderly and/or disabled members. In addition, a new standard deduction has been established for shelter and utility expenses. These additional deduction items now make it possible for interested participants to qualify, whereas in the past they may have been excluded for being as little as a dollar over the standard income limits. If you know of anyone who in the past wasn't able to qualify for the Food Distribution program because of income limit factors, please advise them to revisit our office and fill out an application for new consideration. Ms. Marilyn King and Ms. Joyce Skenandore, 869-1041, are available to assist and advise you in this matter.

Also, we have been advised that no longer will your yearly per capita checks (unearned income) be a factor in obtaining your entitlement to USDA foods in the month of October, as it has been in the past for all Oneida's. Therefore, we are authorized to issue food packages to you who are certified for our program during the month of October, just as we do during the rest of the year. So please make it a point to come in and take advantage of the savings in food costs that you may have previously had to spend from your per capita. As always we feature a great food package consisting of fresh fruits and vegetables, low-sodium canned products, an excellent variety of frozen meats, and numerous other dry good products that are used by you and your families. We look forward to seeing you in our facility and apprising yourselves of the benefits now available. Thank you and enjoy this great time of the year!

30 largest private Brown County employers named; Oneida ranks #2

Green Bay, Wis. - Humana again tops the 30 largest private employers in Brown County, as of July 2013, employing 3,170 employees.

This is just one of the statistics compiled by Advance, the economic development division of the Green Bay Area Chamber of Commerce, as part of its annual list of the 30 largest private employers in the Greater Green Bay area. The list denotes size of companies based on full-time equivalent employment for the companies' Brown County operations only.

"Our continued growth over the years is a clear demonstration of Humana's commitment to the economic and civic well-being of Brown County," said Jerry Ganoni, president of Humana's Small Business Division. "We are honored to once again be recognized as the largest employer in Brown County, and we look forward to many more years as a part of the community here."

Humana Inc., headquartered in Louisville, Ky., is a leading health care company that offers a wide range of insurance products and health and wellness services that incorporate an integrated approach to lifelong well-being. By leveraging the strengths of its core businesses, Humana believes it can better explore opportunities for existing and emerging adjacencies in health care that can further enhance wellness opportunities for the millions of people across the nation with whom the company has relationships.

Advance verifies the information by contacting human resources personnel at the largest privately owned companies. This year's 30 largest private employers listing include:

- 1 - Humana - 3,170 employees
- 2 – Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin – 2,747 employees
- 3 – Schneider National – 2,733 employees
- 4 – Bellin Health – 2,518 employees
- 5 – Georgia-Pacific Corporation – 2,300 employees
- 6 – UnitedHealthcare – 1,935 employees
- 7 – Aurora Healthcare – 1,738 employees
- 8 – Wisconsin Public Service – 1,569 employees
- 9 – American Foods Group – 1,476 employees
- 10 – St. Vincent Hospital – 1,455 employees

Bankruptcy

In the past, we have sued creditors for rude calls and credit reporting agencies for reporting bankruptcy on credit reports, when the Wisconsin Statute 128 has been used to satisfy debts. We can help you protect your family and put a stop to the harassing phone calls by creditors. We will help you find relief!

There is an innovative Wisconsin Statute, known as Section 128, that may help you get out of debt and avoid bankruptcy? If your situation is applicable, our team will use that Statute to help you and your family.

- STOP Wage Garnishment
- STOP Creditor Harassment
- STOP Credit Card Debt
- STOP Vehicle Repossesion

EMR to change health care delivery for OCHC

The Oneida Comprehensive Health Division is in the process of implementing the Electronic Medical Record (EMR). The EMR implementation will affect your health care within the Division in a number of ways:

1. It will enhance the ability of our health care providers in different locations to access your health care information for the purpose of improving your care.

The improved access or "integration" between Behavioral Health and Medical providers will provide seamless, safer and higher quality of holistic health care to our community. The EMR will improve communication by providing improved access to health information like Medications, Directives, Diagnosis and Allergies between health care providers whether you are receiving medical care at the Health Center or Behavioral Health.

2. The electronic access to information will help improve care and reduce the potential for medical errors. The Health care providers with EMR access to your health information will have a better, more complete picture of your health.

That means your health care providers can make sure the treatment they provide does not counteract other treatment(s) you may be receiving. For example, when you can't remember what medications you are taking, with the electronic sharing of health information your health care providers at the Medical Clinic and Behavioral Health will be able to see what other medications you were prescribed. They will thus be better equipped to order the right medications or treatment instead of ordering something that might be potentially harmful.

3. The Comprehensive Health Division will be able to utilize the EMR to improve the efficiencies and quality within our practice to improve your care. The use of the EMR and better access to information will also enhance the coordination of care and positively impact your health care outcomes.

The electronic sharing of information will help increase patient safety and reduce the duplication of services. Health care providers will be able to see what tests you have received and the test results, potentially preventing the need for repeat tests. EMR will provide cost savings by reducing duplication of tests, x rays and scans.

4. EMR will also permit improved tracking of access of your protected health information. Each time your health information is accessed, that information about access to your record is stored electronically.

This includes the identity of those who accessed your record, the date of access, the types of information accessed, and the reason your record was accessed. This makes it easier to enforce laws and regulations governing privacy and makes your record more secure than a paper chart. Only individuals legally allowed to access your electronic medical record would be health care staff that is granted access based upon their job duties and functions in accordance with privacy laws such as HIPAA.

It is the goal of the Comprehensive Health Division to improve your health and enhance protection to your health care information by utilizing the EMR. We will keep you informed about the changes and how those changes may impact your care. We appreciate your support and understanding during this transition.

2012/2013 Contract Health Services Bill Submission

If you're requesting Contract Health Services to assist in payment of your health related bills you must submit all bills to the Contract Health Service Department. It's best to submit your bills as soon as you receive them to prevent them from being turned over to a collection agency. The Contract Health Service fiscal year ends September 30th of each year.

Below is the bill submission deadline dates:

Date of Service 4/1/13 – 6/30/13 Submission deadline: 9/30/13
Dates of Service 7/1/13 – 10/31/13 Submission deadline: 1/31/14
Dates of Service 11/1/13 – 12/31/13 Submission deadline: 3/31/14

Please be sure that your insurance has been billed and made a payment determination on all your claims. If your insurance requires additional information you must respond within the specified timeframes. Once your bills are received CHS will determine your CHS eligibility and pay or notify you if your claims are not eligible for payment.

For inquiries regarding your bills please contact the Contract Health Service Department at (920) 869-2711.
